HARRISBURG IS IN.

The Pennsylvanians Take New Jersey's Place in the Atlantic Association.

NEW YORK, July 22.—The Atlantic Association met at the Fifth Avenue Hotel last evening.

It was announced that the Jersey City Club had disbanded and the application for membership of the Harrisburg Club was accepted. It will take the place of the Jersey City Club, but some change will have to be made in the schedule.

An amendment to the constitution was adopted, providing that where the regular umpire fails to appear and the captain of the visiting club fails to name one before the game, the captain of the home team shall name three men from which number the visiting captain can choose. If he fails to do so then the captain of the home team shall select one of them.

Mr. Soley Not Yet Sworn In.

WASHINGTON, July 22.—Mr. Soley, the New Assistant Secretary of the Navy, has not yet taken the oath of office and will not do so for several days because of the pressure of private business.

SOLDIERS IN REVOLT

The Grenadier Guards Indulge in Mutiny.

TROUBLE EXPECTED TO-DAY.

Tumultuous Scenes Witnessed Around the Wellington Barracks.

Mr. Stanley Has Entirely Recovered. Silver Commanding an Unprecedented Price in London—Dr. Peters Leaves To-Day for Germany—The British Parliament to be Prorogued August 9.

LONDON, July 22.—The Grenadier Guards, sentenced to banishment for two years for refusing to parade on July 7, were drawn up in the square of Wellington Barracks, at 10 a. m. and inspected by the Duke of Cambridge and Lord Wolseley.

The Duke addressed the men at some length. He strongly condemned those who had brought contempt on the regiment by bad conduct.

The Guards were then put through a variety of movements and sent back to the barracks. They will leave to-day for Chatham, en route to Bermuda.

These strong measures have become necessary, as it is now known that distrust prevails in official circles regarding all the Household troops.

Tumultuous scenes were witnessed in and around the Wellington Barracks when the Grenadier Guards returned. They held a meeting there and indulged in mutinous speeches and riotous demonstrations, smashing the furniture and doing other damage.

The Coldstream Guards were ordered to parade in full marching order and to maintain discipline. They have also been instructed to escort the Grenadiers to the railway station.

A rumor says the Coldstream Guards will refuse to obey this order, and that they will shoot the first man who goes out to obey it.

STAMBOULOFF'S SCHEME.

Ready to Proclaim Complete Independence for Bulgaria.

LONDON, July 22.—The sudden revival of the Eastern question has taken the political world somewhat by surprise and is causing a great amount of speculation and rumor. One of the most alarming reports has it that Premier Stambouloff, of Bulgaria, has prepared a formal proclamation of complete Bulgarian independence in defiance of the suzerainty of Turkey. In diplomatic circles here this is regarded as a false move on the part of Bulgaria, for it would place the signatories of the Treaty of Berlin in a difficult position and would give Russia an opportunity of which she would not be slow to avail herself.

It is admitted, however, that it is impossible for M. Stambouloff to maintain his position in Bulgaria unless he follows up the recent refusal of the Porte to grant his demand for the recognition of independence by Turkey, the execution of Major Panitza, the arbitrary interference of the Government in elections and other events having created so intense a feeling against the Premier that some such bold step is necessary to prevent the upsetting of his Government.

In Servia also the position is one of insecurity. The Government and Regents are at variance with one another. Jealousy of Bulgaria has now reached almost fever heat, and the expectation of startling developments is general.

Opinion of a Guatemalan Minister.

PARIS, July 21.—A dispatch has been received by the Guatemalan Minister here from his Government denying the statement published in the morning papers to the effect that hostilities have broken out between San Salvador and Guatemala. According to his advices war has not been declared, nor has the San Salvader frontier been crossed. He says if any fighting has taken place it must have been in the interior of San Salvador between rival factions.

Silver Booming in Europe.

LONDON, July 22.—The price for silver is 50¼d. per ounce. This is an unprecedented price and is due to changes made in the value of the precious metal throughout the world by the passage of the Silver bill. Indian exchanges and the Chinese trade are especially affected, because silver is the principal currency used. The remonetization of silver is again becoming the chief topic of conversation in Europe.

Bismarck Opposed to Socialism.

DRESDEN, July 22.—The "Nachrichten" in its published interview with Prince Bismarck states that the latter asserted that he only differed with the Emperor on Socialism, which he intimated must be kept under. Prince Bismarck was of the opinion that the sooner the Socialists were defied the better. He declared that time would come when Socialism would be found to be a military question.

No Interest in British Legislation.

LONDON, July 22.—Parliament will be prorouged August 9. The Liberals are pairing whenever opportunity offers, and rapidly leaving town. Mr. Parnell has performed one of his famous disappearances, and nobody knows where he is. He is not expected to be heard from again before November.

Dr. Peters Starts for Germany.

ZANZIBAR, July 22.—Dr. Peters left for Germany to-day and is hopeful of organizing a new expedition. Uganda, he declares, is entirely secured to German interests.

Stanley Has Entirely Recovered.

LONDON, July 22.—The physicians attending Mr. Stanley report that he has entirely recovered from his recent illness.

THE TIOGA EXPLOSION.

Officers of the Genesee Oil Company Held for the Murder of the Victims.

CHICAGO, July 22.—The coroner's jury investigating the Tioga explosion rendered a verdict recommending that J. C. Bright, of Buffalo, president of the Genesee Oil Company; W. H. Bright, of Philadelphia, vice-president, and Alonzo N. Belford, of this city, secretary and treasurer of the company, be held for the murder of the 24 victims of the Tioga, on the ground that they wilfully violated the law, and in so doing caused the death of the men.

The jury further censured the Union Steamboat Co., to which the Tioga belonged, for carelessness in receiving freight that might well be dangerous, without first inspecting the cases. They also recommended that the city oil inspector of this city have his duties so enlarged as to enable him to apprehend persons shipping explosive oils against the laws of the United States.

The coroner will at once notify the States' Attorney of the finding of the jury and a special grand jury will be asked to return indictments against the parties. Then requisitions will be made upon the Governors of Pennsylvania and New York for the arrest and delivery of the men to the State of Illinois.

Boiler Explosion in New York.

NEW YORK, July 22.—A boiler in the building located on Eagle avenue and 149th street exploded during the morning. The building was shattered. The explosion set fire to a one-story barn at 500 Eagle avenue, and a two-story frame dwelling owned by Charles Jones. An Italian laborer named Lillo, who was near the boiler, was struck on the side of the head and his skull badly fractured. Annie Setting was struck with a fragment of the boiler on the ankle, badly crushing it.

Victor Hugo's Granddaughter Betrothed.

PARIS, July 22.—Mlle. Jeanne Hugo, the grandchild of Victor Hugo, is betrothed to Leon Daudet, the son of Alphonse Daudet, the novelist.

BY THE WAY.

—Ground has been broken at the corner of North and Washington avenues, Dunellen, for a new store for Dealaman Bros., & Co.

—C. E. Townsend, of Middletown, N. Y., a registered pharmacist of high standing, has joined the Summer staff at Randolph's City Pharmacy.

—Mrs. Bergen of East Third Street, had her neighbor, Mrs. Morris, arrested for using objectionable language this morning. City Judge Codington will hear the case later in the week.

—Wednesday is Chautauqua Day at Ocean Grove, and the Trinity Reformed Sunday school will take you there. It will be a great day, and excursions from all over will meet there.

—Consult our advertising columns for names of the butchers who agree to close their places of business at 7 P. M. They should be encouraged in their efforts to give the clerks shorter hours.

—The attention of those boys who persist in playing base ball in the streets of the city, is called to the fact that there is an ordinance prohibiting the same, and that those who engage in the pastime are liable to arrest and imprisonment.

—The handsomest three-sheet wood-cut bill ever posted for any show, is that printed this year for George Thatcher's minstrel company. In design, execution and coloring it is unequalled, and in style and originality it has never been surpassed.

—Richmond street is receiving the attention of the Street Commissioner. The thoroughfare is being macadamized and a grade made so that the water will run off. It will make a good street when completed and reflects credit on Mr. Meeker.

—The Young Arlingtons defeated the Young Grasshoppers at base ball this morning, by the close score of 12 to 11. Garret Mattis and Wesley Thorn were the battery for the Arlingtons, and Daniel Guinee and Richard R. Scott for the Grasshoppers.

—The usual Tuesday evening meeting under the auspices of the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor of Warren Mission, will be held this evening in the chapel, beginning at 8 o'clock. Madame Lutfy and her brother, both natives of Damascus, but now of Mt. Lebanon, will take part. All will be cordially welcome.

—On account of devoting the time at all recent meetings of Ivanhoe Council, American Legion of Honor, to the initiation of the large number who have been added to its ranks, a full attendance of members is desired at their meeting tonight in the Hand block, for the transaction of postponed business, and the installation of officers.

—A little girl was taken before City Judge Codington this morning, charged with throwing stones at a house on West Second street. There had been a childish squabble, and an irate mother was determined that the baby prisoner should suffer. The girl was only seven years of age and a cripple. The Court promptly dismissed the case, and the child's accuser had to pay the costs.

One of Their Best Men Gone.

The editor of the secret societies column of the Sunday Morning News of Jersey City, refers as follows to a former Plainfielder:

In the death of Eugene V. Lorton, the Knights of Pythias of New Jersey lose one of the very best of officers that ever was elected to any position in this State. He was a charter member of Centenary Lodge, No. 100, of Jersey City. When business compelled him to move to Plainfield he joined Perseverance Lodge, No. 74, and afterward became a charter member of Unity Lodge, No. 102. He held positions of trust in the Endowment Rank and Uniform Rank, and was at the time of his death Grand Keeper of Records and Seals of New Jersey, a position to which he was elected to succeed Wm. B. French in 1878. By virtue of his continuous service of over ten years he was made a Past Grand Chancellor and thus became a member of the Supreme Lodge.

It Hasn't Stopped Growing Yet.

A mammoth sunflower plant, fourteen feet tall, is the pride of Samuel Hedden of Duer street, North Plainfield. It isn't in bloom yet, either, and may overtop his neighbors' houses before it satisfies its own ambition.

The evils resulting from habitual disease are many and serious; but the use of harsh, drastic purgatives is quite as dangerous. In Ayer's Pills, however, the patient has a mild but effective aperient, superior to all others, especially for family use.

DEATH OF MRS. LEAL.

An Estimable Plainfield Woman Dies Suddenly Away From Home.

The sad news of the death of Mrs. John Leal, wife of the well-known and popular instructor, Prof. John Leal, Principal of Leal's school, West Front street, has just reached this city from Saranac Lake, N. Y., where Mr. and Mrs. Leal were spending their vacation.

Mrs. Leal was a most estimable woman and had a host of friends. She performed in private many noble deeds, and will be greatly missed in charitable and social circles.

The death, which was very sudden, occurred this morning. Mr. and Mrs. Leal had been in the Adirondacks about a month.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Mr. and Mrs. George Kirkner are in the Adirondacks.

A. C. LaBoyteaux is registered at the Fennimore, Asbury Park.

Miss Mary E. Thorn of East Second street, is visiting her sister, Mrs. Wm. M. Perine, of East Orange.

Miss Florence M. Randolph of West Front street, spent a pleasant Sabbath with friends at Orange.

Mrs. Jacob Kirkner and family will leave on Thursday for their Summer home at Stamford, Delaware county, New York.

Mr. and Mrs. L. V. F. Randolph entertained the Rev. W. R. Richards, Mrs. Richards and Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Halloway at dinner last evening.

Messrs J. A. Smith, Geo. W. Rockfellow, J. K. Arnold and Andrew Love left Plainfield today to attend the Grocers' Convention at Atlantic City, to-morrow.

The Misses Edith and Grace Perine of East Orange, have returned home after spending two weeks vacation with their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward M. Thorn.

George Marshall, son of the late Daniel Marshall of this city, is lying seriously ill at the home of his mother on Park avenue. His affliction is a tumor or abscess on the brain.

Among those recently registered at Asbury Park and Ocean Grove are the following Plainfielders: J. W. Jackson, L. M. French and family, G. R. Cornwell and family, F. A. Cokefair, Mrs. C. C. Cokefair and Mrs. O. L. Jenkins, at the Metropolitan; Robert S. Manning at the Laurel; and George H. White at the National.

George B. DeRevere, proprietor of Taylor's Hotel, Jersey City, and the Union Square Hotel, New York, is occupying with his family this Summer, a charming home he has recently purchased in this city. One of his turnouts, a hardwood English mail cart and imported team, attracts much attention because of its perfect style and fittings.

Funeral of Mrs. Kate M. Overbaugh.

The funeral of Mrs. Kate M. Overbaugh, who died early on Friday morning last, at Muhlenberg Hospital, from heart failure, superinduced from injuries received in a runaway accident in Washington Valley, on Sunday, July 6, took place from the residence of her son-in-law, Amos P. Gray, No. 55 West Second street, yesterday morning at 10 o'clock. The Rev. Cornelius Schenck, pastor of Trinity Reformed church, this city, read from the Scripture and offered prayer, after which the remains were taken to the Scotch Plains Baptist church, where the pastor, the Rev. Mr. Parks, spoke comforting words to the large circle of mourning friends.

The remains were interred in the burial ground of the above church.

The floral display was very appropriate, consisting of a cross with the words "Our Mother," and other emblems.

Mrs. Overbaugh was the only child of Mrs. Phebe Fox who still survives her, being in her 85th year, and who, at present, resides in Washington Valley. Mrs. Overbaugh leaves eight children, four sons and four daughters, to mourn her loss.

A Chance for All to be Happy.

Lovers of minstrelsy anticipate and will doubtless enjoy a treat when the Gormans appear at Music Hall, Thursday evening. The company is one of the largest and strongest that has ever appeared in Plainfield.

The management give assurance that the programme to be presented is entirely new, novel and refined. Among some of the many features are: "Lorillard's Reception," "The Dandy Coachman," "The Midshipmen and Jolly Bo'sun," "The French Zouaves," "The Drummer Boys of Shiloh," "The Dancers' Dream," "Lucinda's Holiday," "Twilight in Dixie," "Reto, the European Sensationalist." For the conclusion of this remarkable programme of novelties, James Gorman has excelled himself in producing for an afterpiece a burlesque on "The Gondoliers" entitled "The Gamboliers." In this new travesty, George Gorman will have an Irish role which will give him an opportunity for the portrayal of his peculiar type of good-natured Milesian. John Gorman will impersonate the "Duke of Plaza Toro," and the entire company will be cast for the production.

Not Enough Councilmen For a Quorum.

The City Common Council was to meet last night, but on account of absence from town or pressure of private business most of the members were prevented from being present. As here was no quorum no business could be transacted.

BY THE WHOLESALE, NOW.

The Dishonesty of the Paper and the Calibre of the Chest, Grows Bolder and Greater.

For the information of the people that in their dealings they may steer clear of those whose chosen ways are the ways of sneaks and pickpockets, THE PRESS every few days publishes a record of the items stolen from its columns to light up the columns of the news of the evening following.

The record is also published for the information of our other contemporaries that they may measure the uprightness and manliness of one of their profession who will stoop so low as to try to build up his publication by the theft of the labor and brains of others.

The following is the boldest offense of the kind yet. A quarter of a column stolen word from word. Read the evidence side by side, and you will despise the paper and its owner more than ever—if that is possible:

From The Press of July 17.

Daniel T. VanBuren was a son of the famous jurist, Judge Van Buren of Kingston, N. Y., which was the home of the General's boyhood. When about twenty years of age, in 1843, he entered the Military Academy at West Point, and was graduated four years later, entering the United States Army July 1, 1847, as Second Lieutenant of the Second Artillery. He was promoted to First Lieutenancy Feb. 14, 1849, and served until his resignation, March 31, 1855. At the outbreak of the war of the Rebellion he volunteered for service, and was mustered in August 3, 1861, as Major Assistant Adjutant General. He became Colonel Add'l Aide-de-Camp June 1, 1862, and Brigadier-General of Volunteers March 13, 1865, and was mustered out of the volunteer service March 20, 1866, having served with great distinction through the war, and still holding himself in readiness for engagement in the regular service. A large portion of the Rebellion period he spent as aide and adjutant-general to General Dix. He was with Gen. Dix throughout almost his entire campaigns, including the engagements at Fortress Monroe and Norfolk.

After the close of the war the General retired with a most honorable military record, to private life. Acting under medical advice, he refrained from active business pursuits, and surrendered himself to a well-earned enjoyment of his wealth and family happiness. His wife, one of the most cultured of women, is a member of the Gouverneur Morris family, a direct descendant of the famous statesman.

From the news of July 19.

Daniel T. VanBuren was a son of the famous jurist, Judge Van Buren of Kingston, N. Y., which was the home of the General's boyhood. When about twenty years of age, in 1843, he entered the Military Academy at West Point, and was graduated four years later, entering the United States Army July 1, 1847, as Second Lieutenant of the Second Artillery. He was promoted to First Lieutenancy Feb. 14, 1849, and served until his resignation, March 31, 1855. At the outbreak of the war of the Rebellion he volunteered for service, and was mustered in August 3, 1861, as Major Assistant Adjutant General. ## EVONA TENNIS PLAYERS LOSE.

Close and Exciting Contests With Bound Brook's New Club.

Many spectators were present at the opening of the new grounds of the Bound Brook Tennis Club Saturday afternoon. Among them were people from Plainfield and Evona. The first game was gentlemen's singles between Louis Mack of the West End Athletic Association of Somerville and O. O. Strong of the Bound Brook club. Frederic H. Cook acted as umpire. Mack played well, but Strong's volleys were irresistible, and he won a victory for the home club by the scores of 6-2, 6-1, 6-0. The Centennials of Evona next played against the Bound Brook Club. The visitors were represented by Messrs Greensmith and Morton. Messrs Johns and Strong played for Bound Brook. Louis Mack was umpire. Many very pretty plays were made, and applause for both sides was frequent. The contest was close and exciting. Bound Brook won by the score of 6-3, 6-2, 6-0. An amusing incident was furnished by a game between four of the honorary members of the home club who had never before seen a racket. Messrs Fisher and Garretson secured a good lead, but late in the game R. Lamb tied the score, and Messrs Lamb and Hickman won by the score of 6-5. Umpire Greensmith of Evona was accused by Counsellor Garretson of assisting the winners to success, and a laughable farcical "appeal" of the case was made by the lawyer.

A Wayward Boy Causes Anxiety.

Mrs. Kate Keefe of West Sixth street, is greatly worried over the continued absence of her fourteen-year-old son Michael from home. Michael's mother has not seen him since Saturday, and she cannot account for his remaining away and giving her so much anxiety. He was always given kind treatment, and had no cause for running away. The lad is reported to have been seen going with other boys towards Scotch Plains. It is thought that they may be taking a Summer outing in their own peculiar way in the woods. When they get hungry and homesick they will doubtless return.

—A daughter was born to Mrs. August F. Sampson of Dunellen, Monday morning.

PLAINFIELD THEIR MECCA.

Capitalists Know What Town Will Repay Their Investments.

F. M. Bacon, of the Real Estate Trust, has just closed a contract for the sale of the largest tract of unimproved property sold in this city in a number of years. The purchaser is Mr. A. Keyser of Salt Lake City, who purposes making large improvements.

The property is situated on Broadway and runs through to Berckman street. It has large frontages on Broadway, Putnam avenue, Hillside avenue, Hill street, Stiger place, Webster place and Berckman street. It was formerly known as the Stephen Vail estate, but of late has been owned by M. F. Marckley. Mr. Keyser is a wealthy gentleman of large experience in the development of property. He will soon make that part of the city bloom.

Mr. Bacon thinks that the future prospects for the city of Plainfield were never brighter than now. His opinion is that the population of the city can be doubled in five years. Mr. Bacon is negotiating with two other parties who will buy large tracts for the purpose of development as soon as public improvements such as water works, sewerage, street railways and other improvements are a certainty.

The Reason Gallagher Let 'Em Go.

Michael Gallagher of Bound Brook, who struck Peter Meyers of Raritan and broke his nose, just outside of the Pond Machine Tool company's works, as told exclusively in THE PRESS, claims he did it in self-defense. They had some words inside the shops, and the latter threatened to "do" Gallagher when he got him outside.

Gallagher is little, but Oh! When a man twice his size says he's "got it in for him," Gallagher will keep an eye on him. Consequently when they met face to face out of doors, Gallagher put up his "dukes" for protection and then hit the big fellow between the eyes. Meyers was badly hurt, but strange to say did not whip his adversary. Gallagher at first offered to pay the doctor's bill and the wages for any time Meyers might be laid up, but having heard since that the latter is talking behind his back, Gallagher now says he'll do nothing for him.

Reputable dealers throughout the length, breadth and depth of our glorious land fortunately keep the genuine Hires' Root Beer in stock. Did you ever try it? It is easy to make, and ever so delicious, and it is such a safe drink.

Thousands have been relieved of indigestion and loss of appetite by a single bottle of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. The use of this medicine, by giving tone and strength to the assimilative organs, has made innumerable cures of chronic dyspepsia. Price $1. Worth $5 a bottle.

—The Hotel Netherwood's ice bill for June just past, was $246. For the same month of last year, it was $75.

Reorganizing the Buffalo Club.

BUFFALO, N. Y., July 22.—In the reorganization of the Buffalo Players' team Jack Rowe will be deposed both as manager and player. The Cleveland club gives Buffalo Faatz and Twitchell. The former will play first base and captain and manage the Buffalo team. Twitchell is to go in the outfield. Barstow, the Chicago pitcher who has done such good work, and Cunningham, of the Philadelphia team, were also given to Buffalo.

A Prize of $100,000

Is a good thing to get, and the man who wins it by superior skill, or by an unexpected turn of Fortune's wheel, is to be congratulated. But he who escapes from the clutches of that dread monster, Consumption, and wins back health and happiness, is far more fortunate. The chances of winning $100,000 are small, but every consumptive may be absolutely sure of recovery, if he takes Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery in time. For all scrofulous diseases (consumption is one of them), it is an unfailing remedy. It is guaranteed to cure in all cases of diseases for which it is recommended, or money refunded.

Catarrh

Is a blood disease. Until the poison is expelled from the system, there can be no cure for this loathsome and dangerous malady. Therefore, the only effective treatment is a thorough course of Ayer's Sarsaparilla—the best of all blood purifiers. The sooner you begin the better; delay is dangerous.

"I was troubled with catarrh for over two years. I tried various remedies, and was treated by a number of physicians, but received no benefit until I began to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla. A few bottles of this medicine cured me of this troublesome complaint and completely restored my health."—Jesse M. Boggs, Holman's Mills, N. C.

"When Ayer's Sarsaparilla was recommended to me for catarrh, I was inclined to doubt its efficacy. Having tried so many remedies, with little benefit, I had no faith that anything would cure me. I became emaciated from loss of appetite and impaired digestion. I had nearly lost the sense of smell, and my system was badly deranged. I was about discouraged, when a friend urged me to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and referred me to persons whom it had cured of catarrh. After taking half a dozen bottles of this medicine, I am convinced that the only sure way of treating this obstinate disease is through the blood."—Charles H. Maloney, 113 River st., Lowell, Mass.

COLD FACTS ABOUT SODA WATER

FIRST: Syrups made from so-called FRUIT ESSENCES are little better than POISON.

SECOND: Syrups made from BOTTLED JUICES are harmless but insipid.

THIRD: Syrups made from FRESH FRUIT are very much better, especially

FOURTH: Syrups made by a process original with us, whereby the PULP of the fruit is incorporated with the syrup. We dub such a syrup

"FRUIT CRUSH,"

And it is far ahead of all other sorts, as shown by a demand which exceeds any other in our experience, and by the fact that our ides was quickly imitated because of our neglect to copy-right.

A PLAINFIELD PLUMBER ON TOP.

Pike's Peak Itself Was Not High Enough for Daniel, So He Climb the Flag Staff.

(From the Sanitary Plumber.)

On the Monday following convention week, quite a number of the delegates from the East, who still remained in Colorado, either at Denver, Colorado Springs or some other picturesque abiding place, made up a party to visit Pike's Peak, the highest point in the Rockies, and which attains an altitude of 14,450 feet above sea level. The New York delegation was well represented, and many others of the United States had delegates present, while from New Jersey came Mr. D. W. Littell, Plainfield's plumber, who was attached for this occasion to the Empire State. After sundry halts to play snow ball and admire the scenery, the beauties of which were pointed out by the intelligent guides who accompanied the party, and incidental pauses, to get breath—though no one would acknowledge it—the summit, where snow lay ten feet deep, was reached. The highly rarified air played havoc with the breathing apparatus of the party, and even caused nose-bleed in some instances.

It might have been thought that this was high enough for any one, but one choice spirit—that same D. W. Littell—inspired, doubtless, by the motto of the State that had included him in its delegation, was dissatisfied with his altitude, and commenced to shin up the flagstaff that rises fifty feet high above the summit of the mountain. It was a long pull, but Brother Littell got there, as usual, and performed sundry gymnastic gyrations on the top of the pole, achieving a feat that no Eastern man had ever accomplished, although several had essayed it on prior occasions, and eclipsing all other foreigners who have undertaken the task. Descending to terra-firma, the athletic and venturesome plumber brought with him a piece of the flagstaff and a fragment of wire as mementoes of the occasion and of his daring, and he has promised to distribute pieces thereof as relics among those who accompanied him to the top of Pike's Peak.

Delegate Littell, joined the other visitors in the collection of mineral and other specimens for preservation as curios. That it is a cold day when New Jersey is left was fully exemplified on this occasion. Brother Littell found the finest specimen of the lot, a magnificent golden topaz, weighing about 8 pounds, 8 inches high, with six sides, each 4½ inches wide, and a pyramidal top. It is a beautiful crystal and of considerable value.

FLAMES FROM COTTON BALES.

A Plainfield Veteran Sea Captain Talks of Fires at Sea.

Captain Benjamin Doane, of LaGrande avenue, this city, who recently retired from the command of the steamer Cherokee, of the Clyde Line, after more than twenty years of seafaring life, furnishes interesting information concerning cotton fires on shipboard. The vessels commanded by Captain Doane were invariably cotton carriers of considerable capacity. From personal observation he discovered the cause of many cotton fires on the coasting shipping.

"Cotton"—he says—"is as inflammable as gunpowder. To my mind most cotton fires on shipboard are started when the bales are tumbled down the hatchway into the hold. My chief officer came to me one day and told me that he thought the iron bindings of the cotton bales were striking fire on the stanchions in the hold as the merchandise was tumbled down. I went to see for myself. For two hours I watched the bales of cotton as they disappeared into the hold, and whenever I noticed a bale strike a spark I ordered the bale to be thrown aside for examination.

"The flint-like spark invariably burned a hole, clean-cut as if it had been done with a red-hot darning-needle, which penetrated to the centre of the bale. Often the fire went out for want of air. Sometimes the tiny spark would smoulder for days, burning meanwhile, some of the cotton in the centre of the bale, before going out.

"The only way to avoid a fire from this source is to sheath with cloth the stanchions below the deck. This I did, and thereafter never had a fire on board my vessel. I think few captains of ships know this fact; if they did they would follow my example."

An Increase of Half a Million in Plainfield's Valuation.

The Union County Board of Assessments held a meeting at Elizabeth yesterday, to fix the tax rate. The total increases of valuations reported throughout the county in round figures are as follows:

|---|---|
| Clark | $ 15,000 |
| Cranford | 50,000 |
| Elizabeth | 674,000 |
| Fanwood | 10,000 |
| Linden | 67,300 |
| New Providence | 6,000 |
| Plainfield | 406,400 |
| Rahway | 43,000 |
| Summit | 142,000 |
| Union | 42,000 |
| Westfield | 32,000 |
| Total | $ 1,489,000 |

"Does your mother know you're out," said a boy to his little brother. "Yes, she does," was the answer, "for one bottle of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup has knocked my cold into a cocked hat, you bet."

A few applications of Salvation Oil will instantly relieve stiffness in the neck or joints. 25 cents.

A PRESS Correspondent Finds a Perfect Summer Resort.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—If you want to "loaf and invite your soul" as George Arnold has expressed it; if you want to come where carking care ceases to cark, where every prospect pleases and not even man is vile, come to Lakewood.

True, the forest primeval is here in all its wanton wildness, but it is the only evil thing which rears its head in the "keen, bright sunlight of publicity" or tucks it away under the sable cape of night.

Above all things, come to the "Old Homestead," so gracefully presided over and so generously provided for by our genial hostess, Mrs. Merriman. (No, dear PRESS, this letter will not be accepted in payment of my hotel bill! I am paying that in cold, cold cash, not even asking the rebate to which my L. A. W. ticket would entitle me, this being a League Hotel.)

But, if you would come to the old Homestead, come quickly; for, after next Winter, to satisfy the so-called "march of improvement" and modernization, the Old Homestead will disappear from off the face of the earth. If business will not be "carried on at the old stand," however, it will at the new one, only about two hundred feet away from the present site, by the gentle and gracious hostess aforesaid. And while the house will be modern the circumambient trees are antique and immense, casting a constant and gratifying shade over the croquet and lawn tennis grounds. But, take my advice, and steal away now. (I know you would not steal anything else.) Bring Mrs. PRESS, wander around the beautiful lake, Carosaljoe, and through the beneficent pine groves, and learn that Lakewood is none the less a Summer sanitarium because it is a Winter one.

I spent a day at Ocean Grove, last week. I found the thermometer at 96 degrees, a land breeze and the hot, glaring sands. I left them as I found them. I had no desire to bring them with me. It may be "a pleasant thing for the eyes to behold the sun," but when mine eyes beheld the delicious shade of this place and when my "noble brow" was fanned by the revivifying breeze which blew from the lake, I was prompted to exclaim, "For a perfect Summer resort give me Lakewood!"

But Lakewood is almost deserted at this time of the year. The large hotel, the Laurel House, is closed. It is de rigueur to come here when the rigor of Winter is supposed to make life not worth living elsewhere.

Some life is given to the place at present, by the building of several large and handsome cottages for Winter residents. The largest building operation now under way is that of a hotel, outside the sacred confines of the town. Perhaps one would not think of nineteen thousand acres of land as a confine, but the company of bright minds and efficient, far-seeing men who have brought this place up to its present prosperity own this amount of the earth's surface, and within these limits the Hebrew cannot rest his weary bones nor get a "good, square meal" wherewith to round out his waistcoat. At least that is the law at the Laurel House, (as it is at so many hotels throughout the land,) and, for the purpose above named, "the Laurels" is virtually the entire place.

Hence, the Hebrew has evidently "got his mad up." If he cannot get into the sacred limits he will get as near it as he can. This nearness is within about three quarters of a mile of the lake, for, of course, the wise and efficient men aforesaid were canny enough to secure the entire lake front. This drives the Hebrew back into the swamp, and there, striking hands with some sympathizing Gentiles, a hotel is building which is to cost one million dollars, and is to accommodate one thousand guests—if they come. I have guessed that they will not. True, I am not the seventh son of a seventh son, and I may be wrong in my augury. Two things seem, in my finite mind, to be against success: First, the location is bad. The ground is low, and the view is out of nowhere over against nothing but scrub-oak, stunted pine and the diminutive bush whereon the festive huckleberry doth hide its dusky bluishes. Of course the unlimited capital at the command of the syndicate may make this desert spot to blossom as the rose, but cui bono? Who will come to scent of and to see it? And this brings me to my second reason for non-success: It does not seem probable that the Hebrews will flock one thousand strong to get into a poor locality simply because they are denied admittance to a hotel in a good one. Nor that the Gentile will meet the Hebrew on social grounds simply because Gentile capital is interested. If the Hebrew lion and the Gentile lamb lie down together here, to any great extent, the dawn of the millenial day will surely be in sight, and we must give Lakewood air credit for being a peacemaker.

The cream of the building sites is, of course, on the shores of the lake, and there, surrounded by the larger pines, the land company will shortly break ground for a large hotel and several cottages. There is no doubt, whatever, of the success of this undertaking. The crowded condition of the Laurel House and of the Old Homestead last Winter, and the number of people turned away from both, are an evidence that Lakewood is the queen of inland resorts, and that a new hotel is demanded.

But, once more, let me entreat you not to wait until stern Winter rules the sky; come now, and you will evermore rise up and call me blessed because I shall have led you into this place of pleasantness and peace.

COQUETRY AND BEAUTY.

Susceptibility of Men to Frivolity and Simplicity.

Coquettes Seem to Command a Premium While Bralsy Women Are at a Discount—The Masculine Mind Tired of Pedantic Lectures.

A born coquette is more dangerous than a beauty, asserts a writer in the New York World. She inherits a better legacy than wealth, for while money gives life its cushion beauty gives it color and coquetry makes it sparkle. The coquette will go on with her conquests while there is a man left in the world with a heart in his bosom. There is a woman in New York who keeps a big boarding-school for the education of coquettes, and instead of walking on rose leaves she treads on golden eagles. Seats at her performances are secured two years in advance, and to make the application you pay a handsome deposit. There are no graded courses of study, no exhaustive examinations, no tedious memory lessons and no incessant, eternal and intolerable smashing of piano-keys. Aspirants for degrees can go to the Harvard annex. Would-be grenadiers are directed to Holyoke and Columbia, and blue stockings are advised to enter local high schools and universities for intellectual force. Here coquetry is fostered and no secret made about it, either. Square shoulders are rounded into De Milo grace; flat soles are raised by judicious foot coverings; high foreheads sheltered by kiss curls; harsh voices lowered a whole tone; angular elbows turned in; stiff joints loosened and every symptom of a strong mind rigidly suppressed. The pupil is sweetened, softened and curved. She is carefully instructed to know nothing and to do nothing that will rob a grace or mar a smile.

And does she pay?

Doesn't she.

Drop her in the village lane or quiet promenade of her native city and see if she is not gobbled up by the most promising young lawyer or most prominent bachelor in the town.

This is a serious, angular old world. Men are sick and tired of shrewdness, logic, argument and brains. They want to be amused, distracted, diverted. Good sense is tedious after the market closes, and the woman who talks profit and loss, supply and demand, premium and discount in evening dress, in the moonlight or at a dinner party, is a nightmare in petticoats, to be eluded at the first turn in the lane. Change is rest, and, while we hate giggling, we love gabble. There is where the coquetry of woman wins.

I remember riding in an elevated train beside a grizzly man of fifty and a breezy, chatty girl enveloped in fluttering ribbons, dreamy lace and the scent of wild olives, who was pouring society chat into her companion's ear. When a lull came in her recital do you think he sighed restfully? Not a bit of it. His only remark was: "Tell me some more."

Coquetry is to the wine of life what the sparkle is to champagne, and there are women who can no more help being coquettish than that delicious draught can help bubbling.

A pretty lot of nonsense, too, brothers preach against rice powder, curl papers, lip rouge and sweet scent. It is a matter of comment that these dear protected sisters receive more than a liberal allowance of home, while the veriest Dolly Varden in the set has her fill of the play, the dance and the tennis court.

The coquette is helped over dangerous crossings, her packages are picked up and brushed when she drops them. The first place at a bank window and the first consideration in the shops are hers. The coquette gets the loveliest flowers, the most delicious candies, the newest books and the latest prints in the market. The coquettes receive the idolatry of men. Their hearts, their hands, their names, and finally their worldly goods.

She need not make a show-case of herself nor play the flower garden to the captivating. A girl can be absolutely irresistible in a fifteen-cent cambric. Innocence, youth, beauty, sentiment are associated with a girl in a white dress. Plenty of men shrink from brocade and passamenterie as fabrics beyond their income, but the white cambric, the white mull, the white any thing is a raiment that blots out arithmetical calculation.

The coquette may be as wise as Maria Mitchell, Susan B. Anthony or Abigail Dodge, but she will never let a man find it out. She knows too well how they hate things didactic. And so she smiles sweetly, talks gayly and lives to please. Here's luck to the little coquette. Long may she wave and never waver.

A Hermit in a New York Hotel.

The census brought out the fact that a man can live in a New York hotel for ten years and never speak to any one or enter into any communication with any one except as to the common-place affairs of eating and drinking. This champion hermit lives at the Grand Union Hotel and is known as Bailey. That is all that is known about him. There was a statement printed that the census man had skipped that hotel, and in writing to the supervisor to say that the story was untrue and that the enumerator with the assistance of the clerks had made every effort to secure the proper information as to all permanent residents in the house, the proprietor, Mr. Garrison, added that there was one man called Bailey who, to the best of his knowledge, had not spoken a word to a living soul since he first came to live at the hotel ten years ago and from whom it had been impossible to obtain any answers to the questions. There has been a story told of another similar hermit who used to live at a large down-town hotel, but that one did talk occasionally.

Too Much Progress.

Mr. Chipps (looking up from the paper)—"The doctors have discovered another new disease." Mrs. Chipps—"Well, I wish they'd stop looking for new diseases long enough to find a cure for my old rheumatism."

THREE NOTED WIDOWS.

Fresh Gossip About Mrs. Beecher, Mrs. Custer and Mrs. Grant.

Mrs. Henry Ward Beecher has returned from Florida, and is seen on the streets occasionally, a little figure, slight, white-haired and folded in a black shawl. When I met her yesterday, says a New York correspondent to the Post Dispatch, there was the faintest touch of pink on her cheeks, giving her that delicate, shell-like beauty which sometimes goes with a soft white skin and white curls. She had a bunch of lilies of the valley pinned on her bosom. Within the block I passed another woman whose proximity made me look about startled. Had she recognized the daughter of Victoria Woodhull? I think not. Neither had the pretty Zulu Maud recognized her. A new generation has grown up, and in any case, there would not have been any thing dramatic about the encontre. Yet meeting the two brought back old memories. Mrs. Beecher's rooms are full of pictures of her husband—as the young lover, in the prime of life, as he was the year he died—and most of these pictures are so placed that the trail of a vine, the petals of a flower, caress them. Her interests in life are largely the things that interested him, or that she believes would, if he were now living, meet his approval. She gives a helping hand to the Brooklyn Woman's Health Protective Association, which wishes to clean the streets of a dirty city.

On the same day I passed within the hour two other widows—Mrs. Custer, in black dress and with winning eyes, and Mrs. Julia Dent Grant, who does not walk far, but was crossing the sidewalk from her carriage. Mrs. Custer has the record, I believe, of never making an acquaintance who does not wish to become a friend. She walks the pavements with a splendidly free step, in which one could almost fancy a reminiscence of the plains. A more prosaic explanation is found in her broad-soled, common-sense shoes. She is devoted to her husband's memory and absorbed in her literary occupations.

Mrs. Grant looks well and kindly, and stouter than is altogether becoming. Queen Victoria, however, is fleshier, and Mrs. Grant dresses in better taste than Queen Victoria. I fancy not much credence is to be given to the report that she will go to England and live with Mrs. Sartoris. All her interests are on this side of the water. Another report, even less probable, says that she has plans for voluminous literary production. When she has finished the reminiscences which now engage her, which will be practically her autobiography, it is more than doubtful if she sets about any further labor.

WAR EAGLE IN STONE.

Kickapoo Indians Come on the Petrified Body of a Chief.

A dispatch from Shawneestown, I. T., to the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, says:

There is great excitement among the Kickapoos over the discovery of a petrified body, supposed to be that of War Eagle, a leading chief of the tribe, who died many years ago, shortly after the tribe's return from Old Mexico. Instead of the remains being deposited in the ground in a coffin they were placed in an upright position in a large hollow tree, there to await the coming of the happy hunting days, as the Indians believe.

Yesterday, during the rage of a fierce forest fire, the trunk of the tree was consumed by the flames. A party of Indians who were passing through the woods, stopped to light their pipes, when the image of an Indian warrior, with tomahawk in hand, was discovered underneath the ashes of the burning tree. The scene which followed is described as being most remarkable. The Indians were scared so badly that they lost all self-control, and a regular panic ensued, the Indians rushing madly through the woods and yelling at the top of their voices. As soon as word could be communicated to the remaining members of the tribe, some two hundred in number, a hurried consultation was held, at which it was decided that the reservation should be immediately abandoned. Luckily some of the more civilized members of the tribe had influence enough to allay the feeling of fear, and the plan of desertion was not carried out.

The place of fright was visited later in the day, when, sure enough, the petrified body of War Eagle was exhumed and placed upon exhibition. The petrification was perfect. The war costume was as natural as life, there being a perfect imprint on the stone of both gun and tomahawk, which were buried alongside the body. The peculiar formation of stone presents an imposing appearance, and, but for the occasional creases caused by insects, would be clear of any imperfections.

A large hollow log was selected, the top sawed off about fourteen feet from the ground, and the petrified body placed therein, to remain forever. A two-inch pine slab bearing the following inscription marks the remains of this tribe's greatest warrior: "War Eagle, great fighter, turned to rock. Indians afraid Great Spirit. Let him sleep on in his beauty forever."

Co-Operation by Wage-Earners.

Twelve young ladies of Indianapolis, employed in stores and offices, have rented a suite of twelve rooms and are living on the Bellamy plan. Each pays into the treasury $3 per week, and a cook is employed to prepare meals. In addition each is assessed 25 cents for a contingent fund, which is held to meet unusual expenses. The young ladies room in couples, and each week two of them are appointed purveyors. The only time they are all together is at supper, but they are contented and enjoy their way of living.

The Cost of War.

Of wars within the last half century the cost has been as follows:

|---|---|
| France and Algeria, 1830-'47 | $130,000,000 |
| France and Austria, 1859 | 225,000,000 |
| The European revolution in 1848 | 50,000,000 |
| Prussia and Austria, in 1866 | 150,000,000 |
| Our civil war, 1861-'65 | 3,700,000,000 |
| France and Mexico, 1862 | 75,000,000 |
| Brazil and Paraguay, 1864-'70 | 300,000,000 |
| France and Germany, 1870-'71 | 1,500,000,000 |

An Art Which Young Ladies Practice Just Before Going to Bed.

Treating the Teeth, the Nails and the Complexion—The Vanity of Young Women—Miss Havemeyer's Turkey Feather Fan.

[COPYRIGHT, 1890.]
[Special Correspondence.]

MAN will go to his room at night, and if there isn't a match handy, he won't even trouble to get a light.

He simply gets out of his duds as quickly as possible and jumps into bed without more ado.

Now let us watch a girl and consider her ways:

First of all she must have a light, and a good bright one. She may have been entertaining her young man in the parlor until—well—we will say, until bedtime, or she may have been out to a party, but that doesn't make any difference. A girl has a regular way of going to bed that she does not depart from on any account.

The moment she enters the room she goes straight to the dresser and looks in the glass. I have seen a girl go down on her knees, and scan every feature, turning her face this way and that as if what she saw was something quite new to her.

Then the sweet girl begins to undress. She takes off her waist, views for a moment her pretty neck and arms, then she slowly slips out of her skirts and dons a silken robe de chambre—for our girl is very swell.

The robe is loose, of pink, blue or white, with cascades of lace falling all about the neck and bosom and way down to the dainty feet. It isn't buttoned—just tied with ribbons. Next the hair-pins come out and down falls the hair. It has been washed in soda or ammonia once a month to make it fluffy and also to give it the golden brown hue so much admired. Mrs. Potter's copper-colored tresses owe much of their luster to the frequent washings in soda and champagne which her maid gives them. Our girl brushes her hair and braids it in a loose braid; but she doesn't twist it up into hideous curl papers. Curling irons have done away with all of that, and the dear girl is just as lovely after the ball with all her finery off as she was during it.

And now she takes a bit of silk and draws it carefully between her teeth. It gets out all the particles that a tooth-brush can't reach; then she takes a little orange-wood stick, dips it into a little round silver thing that holds powdered orris root, and proceeds to scour each individual tooth; after which the tooth-brush and a cup of warm water finish the operation. She would rather do this every night than pay dentists' bills, she says.

Of course, the bath is the most essential part of the toilet, but our girl takes hers in the morning. She does wash her hands and face however, with water as hot as she can bear it. She uses a flannel cloth and holds it several minutes against every part of her face and neck.

Miss Sallie Hargous, who is famous for her peachy skin, says that she owes it all to hot water. "It's the best remedy for sunburn," says Miss Sallie, "in the world, and no one who uses it persistently will ever have pimples or black-heads." And now the nails must be attended to; just a little clip here and there with the scissors, a rub with the polisher and a touch of cold cream to keep them brilliant.

There are a thousand and one things that some girls do after they go to their rooms at night. They take medicines and pills and powders and cough syrups; they use inhalers, atomizers, flesh brushes and dumb-bells. Our girl has no need of all these. She sticks to her ounce of prevention. There are girls, too, who think they must have something to eat or to drink before retiring.

Miss Kathryn Kidder, who appears to the public as such anothereal, dainty creature, eats a big saucer of onions every night. She munches them while her maid combs out her hair. And Miss Dorothy Dene, the young English actress, sits up in bed until one o'clock in the morning with a novel in her hand and a big plate of cake on her lap. She reads the novel and eats the cake and the most astonishing part of it is, not that she doesn't have indigestion, but that she doesn't die; for with the cake she drinks quantities of chocolate.

And now, out goes the light and down goes the curtain. The scene is done.

This is the summer in which the old-fashioned girl is being resurrected. In 1876 the girls went back a hundred years to borrow their styles. A remodelled dress of some dead and gone grandmamma was just the thing. But the girl of 1890 is wearing the ruff of Queen Elizabeth, the farthingale of Mary Stuart, the lace mantle of Queen Isabella and the high-heeled shoes of Louis XV. Moreover, the girl of 1890 is a law unto herself. She goes in for original things.

Miss Maud Roosevelt appeared the other day in a genuine Beau Brummel waistcoat of ancient flowered brocade. It had silk reveres, big buttons, frills and all.

Last Monday the opening hop was given at the Casino in Newport. Miss Havemeyer was there in a gown that might have been worn in the fifteenth century. The bodice was round and cut very low. A fold about the neck and the high puffed sleeves were of white silk, sprinkled with tiny pink rosebuds and green leaves. The rest of the dress was of stiff, shiny silk, of old-fashioned green, the same color as your grandmother's Sunday parasol. The bodice did not end at the waist, it extended into points that reached the bottom of the skirt, where they finished with big bunches of pink ribbons. The under-skirt was perfectly straight and plain and very scant, and cleared the floor sufficiently to show a pair of pointed, high-heeled, green satin slippers, and now and then a glimpse of pink silk stockings.

The part of Miss Havemeyer's costume, however, which attracted the most attention was a genuine old turkey-wing fan. The quills were covered with a bit of faded pink satin and the handle was of tortoise shell. Evidently this fan was not a manufactured relic, but a genuine one.

Standing on the pier at Long Branch one windy afternoon last week was a girl with a pair of field glasses, eagerly peering out to sea. She was waiting for somebody. As she waited the wind played all manner of antics with her. It untwisted her vail from her hat and sent it careening away like a Fourth of July streamer, and as her skirts whisked about in the breezes there was more than a suggestion of lace-trimmed underwear. But the girl didn't seem to mind it. She kept on looking; and, finally, a fishing boat came in sight, pulled up at the pier and from its deck a sunburned fellow threw a kiss to the wind-blown maiden. But she appeared not over-pleased. She frowned; and when the young man came near enough she said: "I've been waiting for you here in the wind for more than an hour and I'm nearly blown to pieces. I think it's real mean of you to keep me waiting like this."

"But I didn't know you were coming," began the young man.

"You did too!" snapped the young lady. "I told you the last time you were in the city that I would come down to-day."

"Well, that was two weeks ago, Dolly. You see I forgot."

This was an unwise speech. It made the young lady more angry than ever.

"Oh! you did. Well, I didn't, you see, and here I am."

"But, Dolly, dear," went on the young man, persuasively, "you really will have to excuse me to-night, for I've got an engagement with mother and the girls that I can't break."

"Well, just let me tell you, sir," said the young lady, now thoroughly angry, "that you've got an engagement with me you can't break. It was made previous to the one you are talking about, and it's got to be kept. Do you hear?"

He heard, and he trembled, for, coming down the pier toward where he stood, he suddenly discovered his mother and sister and another young lady. The sight of the other young lady was what made him tremble. There was imminent danger of a scene. For once the young man was politic.

"There they come now," he said, hurriedly. "Now, Dolly, if you go to making any row I'll never speak to you again. I must leave you now and join them. But I'll meet you in an hour on the hotel piazza."

He kept his word, and that evening they were seen sitting happily under one of the tents in Asbury Park eating ice-cream. The little squall of the afternoon was evidently entirely forgotten.

Through all the changes of fashion the tailor-made girl survives. She is more severely tailor-made this summer than she has ever been before.

The evidence of the summer flirtation season having begun is everywhere apparent; not only on the sand by the sea, or in the surf, or in shaded nooks of hotel piazzas, or along the country lanes, but in more public places, such as railway coaches, for instance. I went out to Larchmont the other day. There weren't many on the train. I found myself almost alone in a coach where sat a pretty girl. I know her very well, but it would be mean to give her name. In the back seat dozed a countryman and on the other side sat a woman whose whole attention was occupied with a fretful baby. So the young people had it all their own way. I say the young people, for just behind the pretty girl sat a young man, a jaunty-looking fellow, with a black silk smoking-cap and a curled mustache. He leaned forward until his chin rested on the pretty girl's shoulder, and I could imagine exactly what he was saying. I could hear what she said, for she was a little nervous and spoke louder than she meant to.

"For Heaven's sake, Jack," she said, "be careful. You know papa and mamma are in the next car and may come in here any moment."

"LITTLE BO PEEP.'

MEN'S VOWS.

Miss Hufnagel Gives Her Views on the Subject.

[TRANSLATED FROM THE GERMAN, FOR THIS PAPER, BY ALEX. E. SWEET.]

EAR Mr. EDITOR: I read in a newspaper the other day the question: "What becomes of all the pins?" and this question I propose to answer after my own fashion. I don't know what has become of them. If there is no mistake in the calculation eighty-six millions of pins are manufactured daily in the United States alone, and I don't see that it is a matter of any great importance what has become of them. They were simply lost. That's all there is about it. Have the journalists all over the country nothing better to do than to bother themselves about lost pins? I dare say hundreds of thousands of unfortunate women are asked by their silly husbands to read that foolish paragraph and explain what has become of those pins.

I don't think that it is very gentlemanly or polite to ask such questions. In fact, it is positively malicious to do so.

These eighty-six million pins were lost by the female sex, and the insinuation is thrown out indirectly that women can not keep any thing; that they are always slovenly and careless; that they are not to be relied on at all, and that they are always putting things where they can never find them again. That is a mean thing to insinuate. Of course, every thing that is lost must be lost by us poor women, and we have no order or system about any thing. That's what all this talk about pins really means.

Now, a pin does not amount to much. Nobody thinks of picking up a pin; so it is swept out, and the consequence is that the newspaper men write long articles to the effect that the women of the country lose daily eighty-six million pins, worth twenty thousand dollars. Now, I know something which the men use very much, and it is of much more importance than pins. What becomes of all the solemn vows of love and fervent promises that men make to women?

I am sure that in this country there are more solemn promises made to women in one day than there are pins manufactured, but I will say for the sake of argument that men make use of only eighty-six million solemn promises of unswerving love and fidelity daily. Now what becomes of them all? Just as with the pins nobody knows what becomes of them all. As a certain writer said about the missing pins, no other article is in such general use and with none other is there such reckless extravagance. This applies perfectly to men's promises of love and fidelity.

I do not suppose that these masculine vows and promises are really worth as much as the value of the lost pins, but there are a great many of us poor females who place a great deal of importance on the aforesaid vows, and take them at their face value, whereas there is a big discount on them.

So I have answered the question with another. I am going to keep my eye on the newspapers, and when I come across any thing that reflects on the female sex, I shall put some questions to the male sex which they will not be in a hurry to answer, and which may eventually cure them of wanting to know what becomes pins and other trifles.

Yours, truly,
MINA HUFNAGEL.

PRESERVING HUSBANDS.

How to Treat Men So That They Will Prove a Joy Forever.

At a recent meeting of the Woman's Club at Marshalltown, Ia., Mrs. H. C. Young caused quite a stir by her response to the toast: "Our Husbands." Quoting Burns, Mrs. Young began:

"Husband, husband, cease your strife,
No longer idly rave, sir;
Though I am your wedded wife
Yet I'm not your slave, sir."

"How shall we preserve our husbands?" continued Mrs. Young. "In selecting your husband you should not be guided by the silvery appearance, as in mackerel. Nor by the golden tint as found in salmon. Be sure to select him yourself, as tastes differ. Do not go to market for him, as the best are always brought to your door. It is far better to have none, unless you know how to preserve them. Some women do this by keeping him in hot water. Others let them freeze by their carelessness and indifference. Some keep them in a stew by irritating ways and moods. Others roast them or keep them in pickle all their lives.

"It can not be expected that any husband will be tender and good managed in this way. The only true way to do with him is to preserve him. To do this your must have a preserving kettle of the finest porcelain; or, if that is unattainable, an earthenware pipkin will do with care. See that the linen in which he is to be preserved is nicely prepared. Tie him in the kettle with a strong silk cord called 'comfort,' as the one called 'duty' is apt to be weak, and he might fly out of the kettle and be burned. (You must remember that husbands are like crabs and lobsters, they have to be prepared while alive.) Make a clear, steady fire out of love, neatness and cheerfulness. Set him as near the fire as seems to agree with him. If he sputters and fizzles, do not be anxious. Some husbands will do this until they are quite done. Add a little sugar occasionally in the form of what confectioners call 'kisses,' but be careful to avoid pepper or vinegar, as these things spoil the flavor. A little spice improves them, but it must be used with good judgment. Do not stick any sharp instrument into him to see if he is becoming tender. But stir him gently, watching the while lest he lie too flat and close in the kettle, for then he soon becomes spoiled and useless. Watch him carefully and you can not fail to know when he is done.

"If thus treated, you will find you have a well-preserved husband that will prove a joy to you and the children, and he will keep as long as you need him unless you become careless and set him in too cold a place.

"'A king for the beautiful realm called home,
And a man that the Maker, God,
Shall look upon as he did the first,
And say—it is very good.'"

CURED BY LAUGHTER.

One of Joseph Jefferson's Funny Experiences in London.

Joseph Jefferson relates in the Century the following concerning a London experience of his: "My approaching appearance was the important dramatic event of my life. I had been five years from America and was on my way home, and I felt satisfied that if this new version of 'Rip Van Winkle' succeeded in London my way was quite clear when I returned to the United States.

"On Sunday evening, being alone in my lodgings, I got out for my own admiration my new wig and beard, the pride of my heart, and which I was to use in the last act. I could not resist trying them on for the twentieth time, I think; so I got in front of the glass and adjusted them to my perfect satisfaction. I soon became enthused, and began acting and posing in front of the mirror. In about twenty minutes there came a knock at the door.

"'Who's there?' said I.

"'It's me, if you please,' said the gentle but agitated voice of the chamber maid. 'May I come in?'

"'Certainly not,' I replied; for I had no desire to be seen in my present make-up.

"'Is there any thing wrong in the room, sir?' said she.

"'Nothing at all. Go away,' I replied.

"'Well, sir,' she continued, 'there's a policeman at the door, and he says as 'ow there's a crazy old man in your room, a-flingin' of his 'arnds about and a-goin' on hawful, and there's a crowd of people across the street a-blockin' up the way.'

Couldn't Get Rid of Him.

"An Auburn man," says the Lewiston (Me.) Journal, "thinks just twice as much of dog intelligence now as he did a week ago. He owned a dog and had tired of him, and had agreed to transfer him to a friend who lives in the south part of the city. He took him in his arms, tied a rubber coat over his head and carried him down and delivered him. It was a long distance, and he had no idea that the dog would ever show up again about his own premises. That night on reaching home the dog lay on his accustomed place on the rug, while the Auburn man's wife wore a curious smile of amusement. The conundrum in the family is: How does a dog know the way home?"

CURIOUS BIRD STORIES.

How a Partridge Was Killed by a Railroad Train.

A Sparrow in a Thunder-Storm—Excitement Caused in a Church by a Night Hawk—Friendship Between a Rooster and a Dog.

A few days since, writes the Norwich (Conn.) correspondent of the New York Sun, a partridge that was cleaving the air in swift flight across a break in the forest along the Air Line Railway, in Windham County, performed an odd trick on an express train that was extremely unfortunate for the bird. The four p. m. express train was a trifle late coming into Pomfret village, and was running at lightning speed, when the partridge essayed to cross over the track in front of the locomotive. Both the bird and rushing engine were following the legs of an acute triangle to its apex on the railroad line, but the partridge underestimated the speed of the train, which reached the apex a second in advance. The heavy bird struck the express car, in which Sam Dikeman, expressman, was sorting over freight, and went through a window in the side door with the momentum of a solid shot. So swiftly it sped it cut a clean circular hole in the large window pane as evenly as if the instantaneous job had been done with a diamond. Splinters of glass fell in a jingling shower the whole length of the car, and as Sam straightened himself from his work in dumb amazement the bird fell dead at his feet, a mass of feathers and broken bones. Sam had broiled partridge for supper that evening, and to save himself the expense of the broken window he made oath before the railroad superintendent that the wild bird, not he, was the author of the mischief.

In the memorable thunder-storms last week, while the whole firmament seemed to be shot through unceasingly with zigzag lances of lightning, many timid little birds sought refuge from the frightful uproar wherever a shelter offered itself. On one dark afternoon the telegraph operators rattling away at the keys in the Western Union office in New Haven suddenly heard a rustling overhead, and glancing about saw a sparrow, which, having come in through the open window, was swiftly skimming about the high-ceiled room. Then came a great crash of thunder, jarring heavily under the foundations of the building, and the little bird with a frightened "peep" fluttered down on the sounder at W. J. Sheehan's desk. Mr. Sheehan picked up the sparrow and held it in his hand until the fury of the tempest had somewhat abated, then took it to the window and released it. But the bird would not go out into the storm, and after hesitating on the window ledge for an instant returned to the operator, climbing on his shoulder and nestling against his face. Finally he threw the sparrow far out of doors and hastily shut the window, but it came back and pecked at the window-panes.

On another evening a big night hawk flew into the German Lutheran Church in New Haven while Prof. J. E. Whittecker, of Rochester, was lecturing on "The Follies and Foibles of Modern Life," and for fifteen minutes excitement reigned. A night hawk is a blundering creature in its flight, and as the wide-winged bird darted back and forth in the sanctuary in great sweeps and circles just above the audience, its spotted pinions gleaming specter-like as it hummed through the air, women screamed and darted about the pews, and finally the lecturer had to stop talking for fifteen minutes. Every one was afraid of the bird, for as it skimmed along the gallery front and shot among the heads of the people, once passing so close to the face of Prof. Whittecker it fairly took the words of his text out of his mouth, it went with the speed of a rocket, and it seemed it must go slam bang into somebody or something in its dizzy turns. Once a wise man shouted: "Catch that bird!" and the profound advice set the congregation to laughing. Finally the hawk, in a random dash, accidentally scouted through a window, and then the lecture went on again.

At Rockville a rooster and a dog have become fast friends. For a week the bird had been beset by a fierce cock, both being members of the same flock, and the two roosters fought almost constantly not far from the dog's kennel. Finally, the weaker bird, sick and friendless, having been completely knocked out in the ring, fled into the dog's kennel to escape its bloodthirsty foe, and, dropping in the straw, made eloquent signs, as if asking protection and shelter. Carlo undoubtedly had watched the combat between the birds with an intelligent and sympathetic eye, for not only did he permit the wounded rooster to tarry in his house, but when the other bird attempted to enter the kennel to glut its fury further he arose threateningly, growled, and just looked at the vindictive pursuer once, and that bird evidently made up its mind that the time for discretion had come. He went away sullenly. Since then the wounded rooster has dwelt with the dog, and the two inmates of the kennel seem to be warmly attached to each other. If any rooster challenges to mortal combat are forwarded to his friend the dog attends to them promptly; so the other barn-yard fowls have concluded that it won't do at all to monkey any more with the rooster that lives in a kennel.

How to Eat a Water-Melon.

It is said in Florida that the way to eat an orange is to put your nose in it. This advice applies to the water-melon in the most emphatic manner. There is nothing fit to eat in the melon but the heart, and that should be torn out and eaten bodily, and if the juices should run down the neck and into the sleeves, so much the better. Sweets to the sweet—and nothing could be sweeter than these juices, which embody the fruition of the year and all that is best in the seasons. The knife is a deadly weapon. It destroys the flavor and has a deadly effect on the fruit. People who understand their business never use a knife, but go at it like pugilists, and the more barbarous the attack the finer the feast.

PERISHED IN A FIRE

Frightful Tenement House Blaze in Cincinnati.

BODIES BURNED TO CINDERS.

Many Women and Children Injured and Partly Suffocated.

Several Firemen Buried Under Falling Walls at Allegheny City—A Number of Stores and Hotels Burned at Cadiz, O. An Old Woman Burned to Death in New York City.

CINCINNATI, July 23.—A densely packed tenement house on Front street and Broadway was burned last night.

In a few moments ten steamers were in attendance, but the fire was already beyond their control.

Mostly Germans were in the tenement, two and three families on a floor.

Ambulances were called for and then it was discovered that a number of lives were lost.

Four bodies, burned almost to cinders, were carried out and ten women and children were injured and partly suffocated.

The following were suffocated: Solomon Menskiki, Mrs. Menskiki, Era Menskiki, twelve years old; Aaron Menskiki, seven years old. The bodies of the dead were taken from the second story windows.

Of thirty occupants of the building fifteen escaped by the roof.

FIREMEN INJURED.

Buried Under a Falling Wall But Quickly Dug Out.

PITTSBURG, Pa., July 23.—The large woolen manufacturing establishment of Bradley, Barton & Co., on River avenue, Allegheny City, was almost totally destroyed by fire last night. The fire is of unknown origin, and made its first appearance on the third floor of the building.

Fireman Renschausen and hosemen Hortz, Fletcher and Biebe were buried under a falling wall. They were quickly dug out and sent to the hospital. Their injuries are serious.

The woolen company ceased manufacturing last fall, and had removed the greater part of their stock and machinery from the building. Loss $75,000; fully insured.

Suffocated in a Tenement House Fire.

NEW YORK, July 23.—Fire started in the five-story tenement house at 1577 Third avenue last night. All the tenants escaped except Mrs. Mackie, aged 40, who lived on the top floor. She was paralyzed and unable to help herself, and was suffocated before assistance could reach her. Two firemen were overcome by smoke and were taken to the Presbyterian Hospital.

Big Foundry Fire.

LOWELL, Mass., July 23.—The foundry of the Atherton Machine Company at Phœnix, in Tewksbury, a one-story brick structure covering 11,000 square feet, was burned during the night with it contents of furnaces patterns and flasks. The loss is estimated at $28,000.

Big Blaze in Cadiz, Ohio.

CADIZ, Ohio, July 23.—Fire swept the central portion of this town. The Globe Hotel, Gillespie's general store, the Arlington Hotel and several business places were burned, besides a number of residences. The origin of the fire is unknown.

KILLED BY A CYCLONE.

Disastrous Effects of a Storm Which Swept Over North Dakota.

FARGO, N. D., July 23.—An awful cyclone passed over the northern portion of this county last evening. There were seven persons killed.

Details from the cyclone are meagre. The only thing learned is that the storm struck Bowen, Clifford and Galesburg, about twelve miles north of Hunter.

It was a regulation cyclone, tearing and twisting across the country, leveling buildings and destroying crops.

Wires to the branch lines are prostrated and particulars will be late as reporters must drive a number of miles to the telegraph station.

Killed His Grandson and Himself.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., July 23.—Mr. Duffield, a 70-year-old German, at Harlingen, shot his 3-year-old grandson in the abdomen, inflicting a wound which will prove mortal. He then cut his throat and died instantly. The cause of the deed is unknown.

Dead Under His Engine.

CHICAGO, July 23.—The eastbound passenger train on the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railroad was wrecked near Limon, Col. Engineer McCormick and an unknown man were killed and thirteen persons were injured.

Killed by a Coachman.

NEW YORK, July 23.—John F. Ryan, 17 years old, was struck on the head with the butt end of a horse whip by Stephen Mason, a coachman, and died of concussion of the brain. Mason has been arrested.

Big Price for an Estate.

NEWPORT, R. I., July 23.—Mrs. H. M. Brooks of New York has purchased the Gardner Brewer estate, foot of Bellevue avenue, on the Cliffs, for $425,000. This is the largest sale ever made here and the estate is one of the finest in the city.

The Cleveland Fishing Party.

SANDWICH, Mass., July 23.—Ex-President Cleveland, R. W. Gilder and wife and Joe Jefferson and wife have arrived at Mashpee, where they will remain through the present week.

THEIR VICTIM DEAD.

The Assailants of Frank Miner Captured by Connecticut Officers.

HARTFORD, Conn., July 23.—The assailants of Frank Miner, who was shot in East Hartford on Monday night, were captured last night by officer Ennis of Hartford and Sheriff Moore of East Hartford. They are named Hazen Bellware and Thomas Golden, both of Glastonbury.

At the time of the shooting the men dropped a bundle containing some boots wrapped in a paper from Strong's shoe store in this city, and the officers, working upon this clue, obtained a description of the men from the clerk who did up the bundle. They drove to Glastonbury where the men live and found both of them in an out-of-the-way place in that town. When discovered Bellware attempted to draw a revolver on the sheriff, who told him to throw up his hands and then quickly secured him. Golden submitted quietly. Both men are married and live in Glastonbury. Bellware confessed that he did the shooting. They were brought to the jail in this city and will be tried in East Hartford. Miner died shortly after the men were arrested.

IS IT BLACKMAIL?

A Woman Thinks She Has Found the Man Who Deserted Her Twenty Years Ago.

EASTON, Pa., July 23.—There is excitement all through the Lehigh Valley over the charge made by Mrs. Elizabeth Schoen, of this city, that William H. Drumbore, proprietor of the Black Bear Hotel at Allentown, is her husband, Frederick Schoen, and that he deserted her in Bavaria in 1870.

Mr. Drumbore has been arrested on a warrant sworn out by Mrs. Schoen and is now under bail. The warrant charges him with desertion and infidelity.

Mr. Drumbore married Sarah Smith some years ago, and has since been living in Allentown. He says the case is one of attempted blackmail, that he was born in Carbon County, and has lived in Lehigh County since 1860. A good many people believe this is a remarkable instance of mistaken identity.

Mrs. Schoen says that she or any one else could identify Schoen by three marks or scars, one on his arm which his sister made with a scythe, another on his head, received during a street brawl in Bavaria, and a third that Mrs. Schoen thought it not proper at this time to describe.

Tied to the Tracks

WILKESBARRE, July 23.—Four Polanders were arrested in Pittston, charged with tying Thomas Tobin to the Lehigh Valley Railroad tracks. The rope was wound round his body and he was securely fastened. The engineer discovered the man and stopped the cars eighteen inches short of him. The Polanders were moved to action by the discovery of their stolen trunk on Tobin's premises.

Suspicious Looking Italians Arrested.

RONDOUT, N. Y., July 23.—Four suspicious looking Italians were arrested here charged with burglary. They were all well supplied with money and are thought to be connected with a gang of counterfeiters that have been working the Hudson River counties for the past few weeks. They are held for examination.

Lizzie Beebe Eloped.

LONG BRANCH, N. J., July 23.—Detectives who were employed by Captain Beebe, the Sandy Hook pilot, to search for his 16-year-old daughter Lizzie, who suddenly disappeared from her home July 10, have discovered that she eloped with a middle aged man, with whom she is now stopping at a hotel in Saratoga.

Strikers Return to Work.

HAVERHILL, Mass., July 23.—Kelly Brothers, contractors, have agreed to pay their striking bricklayers 42 cents per hour and the latter have returned to work. The lasters' strike at the Field-Thayer Manufacturing Company's shoe factory has been settled by mutual agreement, and the men will return to work to-day.

A Train Boy's Mishap.

NORWALK, Conn., July 23.—Benjamin Lyon, aged 16 years, residing at Portchester, N. Y., and employed as train boy on the Consolidated road, was thrown under the wheels while attempting to board a train in this city and had his leg cut off and collar bone broken. It is feared that his injuries will prove fatal.

Englishmen After Granite Works.

BOSTON, July 23.—An English syndicate has offered the Wetmore & Morse Granite Company $200,000 for its works at Montpelier and its quarry at Barre, Vt. The syndicate is also endeavoring to buy out as many granite firms at Barre as will sell, and six are understood to favor the transfer.

Disease in a Fishing Stream.

HUNTINGTON, Pa., July 23.—The far-famed fishing stream, the Raystown Branch, is being depleted of nearly all its fish by a mysterious disease. Thousands of dead fish, weighing from a half to five pounds are floating upon the surface or piled up in drifts along its edge.

Portland's Census Trouble.

PORTLAND, Me., July 23.—The official figures of Portland's population are 36,475. Well informed citizens claim that these figures are several thousand less than the actual population, and there is considerable dissatisfaction expressed.

A Number of Collieries Shut Down.

PITTSBURG, Pa., July 23.—Notices have been posted at all Delaware & Hudson and Lehigh Valley collieries that half time would be worked. This is bad news to the men, who have been working full time for the last three months. Six thousand men and boys are effected.

WASHINGTON TOPICS

Debate on the Bankruptcy Bill Begun in the House.

A VOTE TO BE TAKEN TO-MORROW

The House Passes the Substitute for the Senate Original Package Bill.

The President Returns to the White House—Indians Refuse to Sign the Government's Contract—Pensions for the Widows of General Fremont and General McClellan.

WASHINGTON, July 23.—The debate on the Bankruptcy bill began immediately after the passage of the Original Package bill, and will be concluded to-morrow.

It is generally admitted now on both sides that the bill will pass. This was not the impression two or three months ago, but the friends of the bill have since then done a deal of missionary work. The most outspoken of the measure were the Representatives from the West and Southwest, who seemed to fear that there was some trap to catch poor men in the measure.

The fact that bankruptcy bills had come heretofore from the East, where the greedy capitalist was supposed to be lying in wait for his prey, did much to cast suspicion upon such legislation. Even the assurances of the business men of leading Western cities that the bill would do good and not harm did not entirely convince the Western Representatives until all the points in the discussion were carefully gone over by leading lawyers and business men from their own section. It is admitted now that so far as the House is concerned the friends of the bill have labored to a good purpose.

EXCITEMENT IN THE HOUSE.

A Substitute Passed for the Senate's Original Package Bill.

WASHINGTON, July 23.—There was considerable excitement in the House when a vote was ordered on the Original Package bill. The first vote was on the House substitute for the Senate bill, which provides that whenever any article of commerce is imported into any State from any other State, Territory or foreign nation, and there held or offered for sale, it shall be subject to the laws of that State, provided that no discrimination shall be made by any State in favor of the citizens of that State against the citizens of another State, nor shall the transportation of commerce through any State be obstructed except in the necessary enforcement of the health laws of that State.

As the vote proceeded, it appeared that the result was in doubt and there was great excitement. At the end of the first call there was an affirmative majority of one. At the end of the second call, the majority was the same, but a number of members changed their votes and the vote as announced was: Yeas, 113; nays, 97.

A vote was then taken on the passage of the bill as amended with the following result—yeas, 176; nays, 88.

Indians Break a Contract.

WASHINGTON, July 23.—The Cheyenne and Arapahoe Indians have backed down from their verbal acceptance of the Government's offer for the purchase of their lands and refused to sign the contract. The Indians demand the payment of $600,000 in cash instead of its expenditure for them by the Government. The commissioners have refused to grant this demand and negotiations will be continued.

To Elevate Our Merchant Marine.

WASHINGTON, July 23.—The House Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries has ordered a favorable report on the Senate bill to place the American Merchant Marine on an equality with that of other Nations.

Pensions for Widows.

WASHINGTON, July 23.—The Senate Committee on Pensions reported favorably the bills to pension the widows of General John Fremont and General George B. McClellan, at the rate of $2,000 per annum each.

The President in Washington.

WASHINGTON, July 23.—President Harrison, accompanied by his son, Russell Harrison, returned to Washington last night from Cape May.

Cures at the Shrine of Ste. Anne.

OTTAWA, Ont., July 23.—An additional number of miraculous cures are reported as having taken place at the shrine of Ste. Anne de Beaupre in connection with a pilgrimage recently organized by Abbe Lesago. Miss House, a young French-Canadian lady, who was weak and crippled, suddenly felt her strength return while partaking of the communion, and threw away her crutches. Marie Louise Larin, aged 33, who has been for two years paralyzed was carried into the sanctuary, where, during the communion, she arose and walked through the church, and to-day is in perfect health.

An Oarsman Drowned.

TORONTO, Ont., July 23.—Michael Enright, the brother of Conrad Enright, the well-known oarsman, was drowned in the Don River while practising in his shell. It is believed his boat upset and his feet became entangled in the straps preventing him from saving himself by swimming.

Shot Himself in the Head.

NEW YORK, July 23.—Charles H. Smith, aged 42, a salesman the Hall Lock and Safe Company, committed suicide by shooting himself in the head at the Hotel Bradford. Smith has a brother living in Portland, Me., and a brother-in-law in Whitefield, N. H.

Typhoid Fever Epidemic.

TRENTON, N. J., July 23.—There are nine cases of typhoid fever in Princeton, and three cases have recently proved fatal. State Dairy Commissioner McGuire investigated the cases and reported to the State Board of Health that he thinks the disease was spread by using milk from a dairy farm, the herd of which had been drinking from a stream that was polluted. The Board of Health will make a thorough examination of the cause of the epidemic.

The Whang Doodle Gang Arrested.

BALDWIN, Me., July 23.—Sheriff Webb arrived here last night with warrants for the arrest of a number of members of the Whang Doodle Club of Baldwin, who have in various ways been manifesting an extreme dislike to Justice Bowers. They broke up his court several times, and last Friday a number of them took Bowers from his wagon and whipped him. Yesterday they placed him under arrest for carrying concealed weapons, having found a revolver upon him. The gang will be broken up at once.

SOLDIERS ARRESTED

Intense Excitement Prevails in Buenos Ayres.

THE BOURSE IS DEMORALIZED.

Discovery of a Military Plot to Overthrow the Government.

Guards Stationed Everywhere—London's Mutinous Troops Shipped to Bermuda—Newfoundland's Premier in London—He Says Joining the United States is the Only Way to Obtain Justice.

BUENOS AYRES, July 23.—The city is greatly agitated in consequence of the discovery of the plot to overthrow the Government. The place is garrisoned by 4,000 troops and 3,000 armed policemen. The bourse is demoralized. At the close of business yesterday gold was quoted at 213 per cent. premium.

LONDON, July 23.—Dispatches from Buenos Ayres report that further arrests were made of persons implicated in the military conspiracy. Guards were stationed everywhere, and the streets were patrolled by cavalry. There was much alarm and suppressed excitement among the populace, and on the bourse a semi-panic prevailed.

There was a heavy fall in cedulas, and the premium on gold ran up to 213.

At Montevideo the reaction continued. The forced paper was a failure.

THE GUARDS SENT AWAY.

A Large Crowd of Londoners See the Mutinous Soldiers Depart.

LONDON, July 23.—Twenty thousand people witnessed the departure of the British Grenadiers, or British "Mutineers," as they are now called. They marched out of the barrack gates in light helmets and red tunics, and proceeded to the Victoria Station.

The families, friends and sweethearts of the soldiers were on hand in full force, and some of the men were accompanied by father and mother while here and there a soldier marched with a wife holding her baby, and another little one toddling behind.

One painful scene was witnessed at the barracks just before the regiment started. A strapping Grenadier was seen holding his youngest born in his arms for a final embrace, the mother having just died. The poor fellow's anger and chagrin were pitiful to behold.

It was the frequent repetition of such scenes that made the efforts of the men to appear jolly seem rather forced. However, the drum and fife band played "The Girl I Left Behind Me" as the regiment trudged along to the station. On arriving there the soldiers packed themselves into the waiting carriages amid a babel of mingled cheers, sobs and oaths. The last scene was that of the departing train, with the men hanging out of the carriage windows, some shouting their last good-bys and others singing "Annie Rooney."

Col. Maitland of the disaffected regiment is made a scapegoat in the affair by the authorities, and held responsible for all the trouble and disgrace. He has been placed on the retired list.

NO HELP FROM ENGLAND.

Joining the United States Newfoundland's Only Relief.

LONDON, July 23.—In an interview here the Newfoundland Premier, Sir Wm. Whitney, stated that the delegates recently arriving from that province were not authorized to represent the people. They belonged to a minor party, and their views could not be taken as fairly reflecting those of the people at large.

The Premier declared that England had been shamefully remiss in regard to protecting the rights of her Newfoundland subjects. There could hardly be a doubt that, looking at the matter from a purely material standpoint, Newfoundland would consult her own interests if she should join the United States. He hoped that annexation would never take place, but such an event was certainly possible unless England redressed the wrongs of the Newfoundlanders, who had hitherto been among the most loyal of the colonists.

Banquet to American Riflemen.

BERLIN, July 23.—A banquet will be given this evening to the American riflemen by Herr Buhl, a member of the Reichstag. The riflemen are now visiting Neustadt, Bavaria. The Americans will subsequently visit the Deidesheim wine cellars.

To be President May Visit Sea Girt.

SEA GIRT, N. J., July 23.—The drills of the militia show a marked improvement and were highly satisfactory to General Sewell, the commanding officer. The brigade will be reviewed to-day by General Joseph N. Plume, and on Friday Governor Abbett and staff will review the troops. In the evening the grand ball will be held, and it is expected that President Harrison will be present.

The Drowned Bodies Recovered.

BRADFORD, Pa., July 23.—A special from Alexandria Bay, N. Y., says the bodies of Mr. and Mrs. E. V. Pemberton, Mrs. W. D. Hart and Miss Maggie Henry, who were drowned in the disaster there Thursday last, have been recovered. Divers found them in the cabin of the sunken yacht. They will be brought here to-night.

A Young Woman Commits Suicide.

DOUGLASTOWN, Pa., July 23.—Jennie Weldon committed suicide here by taking paris green. She had formed an attachment for a young man named Raymond Hauser, but her father forbade her keeping company with him. This is supposed to have been the cause of the suicide.

TERRIBLE MENTAL AGONY.

Fireman Roadhouse Tells Why He Confessed Murdering the Engineer.

VAN WERT, O., July 23.—The excitement subsequent to the murder of Engineer Vandevander, the arrest of his fireman, Samuel Roadhouse, and his confession, has materially subsided.

Roadhouse was seen in jail by a reporter. He said that the short rest he had last night was the first since the awful tragedy. He said: "No one can tell the mental agony I have suffered; it cannot be described. I put on a bold front, and had it not been for the fact that there were several men at Franklin, who heard us quarrel, I would not have made the confession. It was all I could do to keep from breaking down when the sheriff read the warrant for my arrest. I was not surprised but could not muster up courage enough to reply for some minutes. At night I laid awake but pretended to be asleep, hoping to hear some remark which might be dropped that might give me some idea how to act. Since I have gotten the weight off my mind I rest easier. God knows it was not my intention to kill him, he forced me to it."

At the inquest the testimony did not differ materially from Roadhouse's confession. Roadhouse will have a preliminary hearing to-morrow. He will waive examination and be bound over to the fall term of the court.

AWFUL CLOUDBURST.

Railroad Bridges and the Station House Swept Away by the Flood.

DENVER, Col., July 23.—A cloudburst in the Clear Creek canon last night completely demolished the two railroad bridges near the forks of the creek. The railroad restaurant and the station house were also swept away by the flood which came down the canon. The railroad tracks and roadbed from the forks to Golden was completely washed away.

Two hundred men and a train load of bridge timber and other material were sent to the canon from Denver. It is thought that it will take three days to get the road in running order again. No lives were lost so far as is known.

UNDRESSED IN THE PARK.

A Drunken Man's Clothes Frighted the Police at Niagara Falls.

NIAGARA FALLS, July 23.—W. H. Welman, of Ft. Wayne, Ind., created a decided sensation here yesterday. He came in with an excursion, and with some companions went on a spree. He strolled into the pleasure grounds, and thinking it was a hotel, took off his clothes, hung them on a fence near the brink of the cataract, and went to sleep under a tree. The clothes were found by some workmen, and it was thought to be a case of murder or suicide. While the police were searching below the Falls for the body, intelligence was received that there was a man at the police station who wanted a suit of clothes he had lost. They were brought to him, and the mystery was explained.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

Warren B. Witherell & Co., clothing manufacturers of Boston, are financially embarrassed.

Belgium is recruiting a hundred picked Soudanese for service in the Congo Free State.

Considerable frost was visible during the morning at Oakland, Md. Fires and overcoats are in general use there.

A battalion of troops has been ordered to sail at once from Madrid to reinforce the Spanish garrison at Melilla, which is besieged by Arabs.

The Interstate Conference of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union have begun their session at Mountain Lake Park, Md. The meeting will last four days.

The executive committee of the New Jersey State Board of Agriculture appointed a committee to confer with Governor Abbett as to the best plan to secure a grand agricultural display at the World's Fair in Chicago in 1893.

Fred B Cliff, of Rochester, son of Rev. W. B. Cliff, of Castile, N. Y., was drowned while bathing at Silver Lake. He was taken with cramps. His body has been recovered. His marriage was announced for to-morrow.

The Hartford Baseball Club will place six big lights on its grounds immediately, provided that evening championship games can be agreed upon with visiting clubs. The managers last night arranged for a game by electric light with the Baltimores this evening.

BY THE WAY.

—The Amateur Cuban Giants defeated the Star Athletics of North Plainfield, at base ball yesterday, by the score of 15 to 13.

—Engine Company No. 2 took their apparatus out for a wash, last evening, and found the engine to be in good working order.

—The Methodist, Congregational and Episcopal Sunday schools of Westfield, went to Laurelton Grove, on the Sound, yesterday. Fourteen cars and the iron steamer Cygnes, transported them.

—The Carpenters and Joiners' Union held their semi-monthly meeting in Jr. O. U. A. M., Hall, last evening. All the routine business was transacted, after which several new members were initiated into the Union.

—As Messrs R. W. Rice & Co., do not deal in gates—but in choice groceries—they would thank those "ripe" young men who are in the habit of leaving neighbors' gates in front of their store after closing hours, to desist at once and save further trouble.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

F. A. Dunham and wife have gone to Watch Hill.

Miss Lizzie Mattis of South Second street, is visiting relatives at Raritan.

Wm. Nelson, of Brooklyn, has been visiting his brother, Edward Nelson, of West Front street.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Howr of Bay street, lost their little child by death at Seabright, yesterday.

Miss Tillie Slack has returned to her home in Raritan, after a two weeks' visit with relatives here.

The Misses Tierney who have been visiting Miss Angie Feytel, have gone back to their home in Brooklyn.

Mrs. Thomas Bombaugh has returned to her home on West Eighth streeet, from a visit to her parents at Harrisburg.

John Mortimer and family, of East Fifth street, have taken a cottage at Asbury Park for the season. They left town today.

Several members of Franklin Council, made a call on one of the members of the Woodbridge Council, Jr. O. U. A. M., Monday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. B. A. Hegeman, of Sycamore avenue, Washington Park, left today for Montreal, Canada. They will return on Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. George W. Field and child of 18 East 134th street, New York city, are visiting Mrs. Ellen Johnson at Westfield, for several days.

Frank S. Nason of this city, has conveyed to Charles A. Reed of North Plainfield, his one-third interest in lot on East Fifth street and lot on Peace street for $700.

Mrs. L. Tietjen and son, of Brooklyn, who have been visiting their cousin, Mrs. D. C. Bird of West Second street, left Monday for Coney Island, accompanied by Jennie, youngest daughter of Mrs. Bird.

The remains of Cornelia H. Way, the late wife of Prof. John Leal, were brought to this city, this morning. The funeral services will be held at her late home on Second place, to-morrow morning at half-past eleven o'clock.

Ernest O. Chamberlin, son of O. E. Chamberlin of Madison avenue, a Plainfield High School graduate and a young man much esteemed by hosts of friends in this city, has just been tempted by a big salary to resign from the New York Sun and accept the position of City Editor of the World.

The wedding of Robert F. R. Huntsman to Miss Leontine Lissignolo is announced to occur Monday, August 4, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George A. Lissignolo. Invitations have been issued only to immediate relatives, as Mrs. Lissignolo is still in mourning for her mother.

A large number of epresentative German people of the city and borough, with many American friends too, met at the home of Mrs. Bach, on Somerset street, last evening, and from there went in a body to surprise Mrs. V. Utzinger, of Grand View avenue, upon the occasion of her birthday. About sixty were present. Never was there an affair of the kind more successful. Music, recitations, dancing and supper were parts of a long evening's enjoyment that all participated in. Mrs. Utzinger is very active in all charitable and church work, and deservedly popular. She was the recipient of many handsome gifts.

AFTER THE HIGH-CHECKERS.

Messrs Murphy and Scott of the S. P. C. A., Seek to Relieve Mr. Waring's Team Which They Claim are Cruelly Treated.

The liveliest kind of a time may be expected in local circles over the determined action taken by two officers of the Plainfield Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, this morning, when a clergyman and an artist laid hands on one of the most aristocratic teams in town.

A first step in the matter of lessening the evils of high-checking among Plainfield horses was taken in early June. The affair received proper attention at the hands of THE PRESS, and in the New York Evening Post of June 12, appeared the following:

A crusade for the emancipation of the horse has been begun in Plainfield, where the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals has acquired great strength, and where five Bands of Mercy among the younger generation have just been organized. A prominent officer of the local society and a special agent of the State society is Dr. H. G. Stephenson, a venerable humanitarian, eighty-five years of age. Of late the Doctor has busied himself going about the streets ordering ladies in their carriages to modify such portions of their horses' harness as seem to inflict cruelty, and as in most cases the ladies laugh or grow angry at him and haughtily refuse to accede to his demands, he has entered on a more determined course. He is especially bitter against such fashionable follies as docking tails and high-checking, and most of his efforts are being directed against the society people of the place. He has written stern letters to some of the offenders, including O. T. Waring, a Standard Oil magnate, who has many trotters of his own, and who is President of the Plainfield Gentlemen's Driving Park Association. Dr. Stephenson avows that he will show no favor, and, though Mr. Waring is very wealthy and influential, will prosecute to the utmost all cases against him. If those to whom he has written pay no attention to his demands, he will institute legal proceedings. He is entirely familiar with the anatomy of the horse and charges that tight check-reins—which with cruel blinders and other barbarous things are greatly in vogue among Plainfield's people—produce blindness and throat and spine diseases, besides seriously affecting the highly important salivary glands, and thus interfering with digestion. Cases of sore eyes and blindness from the use of "blinkers" pressing against the eyeballs are also reported. The local society has ample funds to aid the Doctor, against whom the people implicated are in high dudgeon. The Doctor could do no better than to circulate the wonderful book, "Black Beauty," which has attracted so much attention in England.

What THE PRESS and the Post contained was heartily endorsed, later, by Dr. Stephenson, but another paper contained the following malicious paragraph:

The New York Post of yesterday publishes reflections on Mr. O. T. Waring and others of this city, intimating that they are to be prosecuted by the Plainfield Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. Mr. Julian Scott, a prominent officer of the Society, desires us, in simple justice to Mr. Waring to say that the story is false. Mr. Waring is abundantly able to bring the publisher to account for accepting statements from an irresponsible "fake" writer, with an established reputation for unreliability.

The writer of the above seemed very eager to do "justice" to Mr. Waring, but seemed less ready to do justice to the newspaper correspondent whom he villified. The local representative of the Post wrote to the editor who published the above, a fair and courteous letter stating that the article in the Post was true, the eminent officer, Mr. Scott, to the contrary notwithstanding, and offering undeniable proof, if the paper was so anxious to be just, of the truth of every assertion. The letter concluded with the paragraph:

As to my being "an irresponsible fake writer with an established reputation for unreliability," that is a matter which through different glasses has a different appearance. There are still, it is said, some people who refuse to believe that the form of the earth is globular.

Of course the paper refused to publish the correspondent's fair-minded letter, because it twinged the editor's conscience.

This morning the Rev. T. Logan Murphy, one of the officers of the local Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, got in the company of Mr. Scott, who raised the cry of "False!" and with this same Scott's assistance seized Mr. Waring's horses on the public street, loosened the check-reins, and lectured the colored coachman till the scared darkey trembled and turned pale. They told him that if ever again he appeared on the streets driving horses checked so cruelly high they would haul him up before Justice Nodyne and make a tremendous example of him.

The horses whose tight reins had been relieved, of course couldn't find voice to thank their emancipators, and it is safe to say that neither will the Waring family thank the Plainfield Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals for raising such a hubbub over their private affairs.

A Good Boy's Bad Namesake.

There are two Michael Keefes in town, and each is a lad of about fifteen years. One is a telegraph messenger, and as good and industrious a messenger as one could wish. The other is the runaway boy to whom reference was made yesterday. Naturally, the good Michael Keefe doesn't want people to confound him with the bad Michael Keefe. It is the good Michael who lives on West Fifth street, with his mother, Mrs. Kate Keefe.

The runaway Michael returned to his father's home last evening, and promises to be a better boy.

Shot the Horse.

George Gould of Westfield, accidentally shot one of Liveryman Burtis' best horses yesterday. Gould had hired the horse to drive to Rahway and was returning from that place when his revolver of 44 calibre, which he was carelessly handling, exploded and the ball buried itself deep in the animal's flank. A veterinary surgeon is doing what he can to save the horse's life.

What so wonderful as a severe cough cured by Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup for 25c. Try it!

PLAINFIELD'S NAUGHTY POLICEMEN.

Two Fair Visitors Think They're Awful Horrid, but the Hackmen are Lovely and Nice.

Plainfield's policemen are great horrid brutes, in the opinion of Jennie Lyrrer and Wilhemina Bauerbach, and Plainfield's hackmen are angels with pearl-white wings, but whether or not Jennie and Wilhemina are prejudiced for the hackmen and against the policemen remains to be seen.

Not often do these two fair ones visit Plainfield. Indeed, their visit last week was only the second visit of their lives. Alighting from the train, and passing through the neat but not gaudy station, they were impressed by the sight of a long row of hackmen with cherubic faces, and fretting steeds eager to be away, and carriages emblazoned with the insignia of heraldry. Jennie and Wilhemina had no sooner reached the sidewalk than they found themselves in conversation with two gallant gentlemen whose respective trappings bore the Wm. Callahan and Peter Peterson coat-of-arms. The interview must have been a pleasant one, as, indeed, all interviews with Plainfield's genteel liveried noblemen ought to be and doubtless are; at any rate, when that vigilant policeman, Patrick Lynch, tripped blithely up and chided Mr. Callahan and Mr. Peterson for keeping their vehicles nearer the curbstone than the city ordinances permit.

Callahan and Peterson resented the interference of Lynch, who placed them under arrest. Thos. Farley another hackman, was also arrested, charged with taking a customer away from another hackman by leaving his horse, which the ordinances say must not be done.

Callahan, Peterson and Farley were arraigned before City Judge Codington the following morning. A delay was secured by counsel. In the afternoon Jennie and Wilhemina, who had to leave town that evening, were permitted to give their testimony in the case. They freely aired their opinion of Policeman Lynch's lack of chivalry, and of the brutal instincts of Plainfield's policemen generally, and lauded the hackmen to the skies as "the most perfect of gentlemen," "and which they acted lovely and nice, and the policemen was horrid, they must say, so there!"

When Police Captain Grant delved back into ancient history and told Jennie and Wilhemina how in olden times the hackmen at the railroad station used to tear to shreds everyone who wouldn't give each man a fare, and how the municipal government of which he and Sergeant Lynch were representative champions had put an end to such practices, Jennie and Wilhemina chorused the opinion that "in them days the policemen must have been awful bad."

The trial of the three angelic Jehus will be continued next week. The majesty and dignity of the law admit of no undue haste.

A NEGRO'S FATAL BLOW.

A Brutal Assault Results in a Terrible Disease and Death.

Relatives of Wm. Connett, who died last Saturday, believe that his death resulted from injuries received in an assault a year ago, and they will make an effort to have the guilty parties arrested and punished.

Mrs. John H. Stevens, a sister of Connett, tells the following story:

Connett was passing along East Third street, on his way home one evening, when two colored men stopped him, and one of them, whom he recognized, and whose name was Randolph, asked Connett what grudge Connett had against Randolph. Connett replied that he had none. "Yes you have," said Randolph, 'else why do you carry a pistol and say you will fix me?" Connett laughed and said "I haven't any pistol." No sooner had he uttered the words than Randolph, so Connett told later, hit him on the head with a sandbag and gave him a terrific blow in the side. Connett was knocked senseless. When he recovered consciousness people were bending over him. He was bleeding from nose, mouth and ears. The negroes had stolen his watch and chain, but had been frightened away before they could secure his money. He valued the watch highly, and as soon as he was able to go out he went to Randolph, accused him openly of the assault and robbery, and demanded his watch. Randolph returned the stolen property, and Connett did not prosecute him.

The victim of the negroes' assault never became entirely well. For a time he seemed to be improving, and was able to go on the streets, but the fearful blow he had received in the side had caused internal bruises which gradually developed into cancer of the stomach, and though six of Plainfield's best physicians attended him his life could not be saved. His friends announce themselves determined to have his death avenged.

More Expense for Elections.

To provide the necessary election machinery under the new reform laws it is necessary to fit up polling booths and the increased cost to each county will range from $3,000 to $10,000, according to size and population.

It is also thought doubtful if the glass ballot boxes, which all the counties were required by law to provide themselves with a few years ago, will answer for the purpose any longer, as the official envelopes, in which the ballots are to be enclosed, will not, it is stated, go through the machinery at the mouth.

—These nights are not appreciated by dealers in cream and water ices.

—Mme. E. Getti, of Paris, has leased one of the new stores in the Miller Building, corner of Park avenue and Fourth street, where she will open about August 1, a first class dressmaking establishment with a competent corps of assistants.

—Charles Williams, of this city, was sentenced to one year in State Prison, this morning, at the Elizabeth court, for stealing and selling some chairs and other movable property, from The Crescent building.

—Mr. and Mrs. Richard A. Boyce of the Somerset House, are enjoying a much needed vacation at Mizzen Top Hills of Somerset. During their absence Charles E. Bailey, late of San Francisco, Cal., will courteously attend to the wants of the patrons of the Hotel.

I've been a sufferer from rheumatism for years, and have been unable to obtain any relief at all. Salvation Oil gave me entire relief, and I heartily recommend it. HENRY WINKEL, Baltimore, Md.

—A horse owned and driven by Jeremiah Manning got the reins under its tail, in front of the Coward building, on Park avenue, this morning, and backed the wagon, which was loaded with hardware, into the sidewalk. The wagon was overturned, and the contents strewn about in the street, but Mr. Manning jumped and prevented a runaway by catching his horse by the head.

Lizzie Long's Long Sleep.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., July 23.—Miss Lizzie Long, of Mount Morris, went to sleep on Sunday, July 13, and has not awakened since. Up to the present time she has shown no signs of wakefulness except when ice cold water is applied to her temples and wrists, and even that now fails to cause any perceptible change. She breathes freely and naturally, with pulse nearly normal and temperature slightly above medium. Medicine and nourishment are administered by forcing open her jaws.

Strangled to Death.

BROOKLYN, July 23.—Mrs. Mary Allen, 89 Flatbush avenue, has been suffering for some time with paralysis, and about 1 o'clock becoming unconscious, her husband and mother attempted to remove her false teeth. They made a dismal failure of it, for the teeth slipped down the unfortunate woman's throat and she began to slowly strangle to death. After considerable labor her husband succeeded in extracting the teeth, but the woman died immediately afterward.

VARIED AND INTERESTING.

THE census-taking in New York has developed the fact that more than sixty languages and dialects are spoken in that city.

THERE is a family in France named B, one in Belgium named O, a river in Holland called T, a village in Sweden named A, while the most valued bird in the Sandwich Islands is the O-o.

THE census will not disclose the fact, but twice as many young men and young women between the ages of eighteen and twenty-eight are obliged to wear glasses as wore them ten years ago.

OUT in Nevada telegraph poles in low places, where water stands in winter, are said to have taken root and are covered with foliage. The poles are cottonwood and were planted with the bark on them.

THE quails are so numerous and tame in the vicinity of Grass Lake, Wis., that they fly into the village in flocks and sit around on the lawns like robbins. The law protecting them lasts two years more.

A LITTLE chicken, which, though healthy and flourishing, will always have to be fed by human hands, attracts attention in North Plainfield, N. J. The upper half of its bill is rolled back in a tight ball between the eyes. The lower half is natural and perfect.

A COLLECTION of glass flowers, made by a secret process by a Dresden firm, and representing all the families of plants in North America, will soon adorn the botanical shelves of Harvard University. Nearly four hundred specimens have already been received, and they are said to be very beautiful.

A SELLER of soap in Brooklyn has hit upon the ingenious expedient of placing in his show-window a handsome boy to blow soap-bubbles. The lad wears mittens, and so tenacious are the bubbles that he is able to bob them up and down half a dozen times before they burst. The window is usually surrounded by an interested crowd.

A STATISTICAL enthusiast has calculated that a pianist, in playing a certain presto, played 5,595 notes in four minutes. The striking of each note involved two movements of the finger and one movement each of the elbow, wrist and arm. From this it is calculated that seventy-two voluntary movements were made per second.

A FISH of most peculiar appearance, the like of which has never been seen by any of the many fishermen who have inspected it, was recently exhibited at Pensacola, Fla. It was caught in the gulf with hook and line, and is about five feet in length. The body is similar to that of a dolphin, and it has a bill like a needle fish. The tail is forked, and has two immense fins rising from the back. They are of a soft, bony substance and are of such peculiar formation that they give the fish the appearance of having a flowing mane. It is a rare fish, and, if possible, should be preserved as a curiosity.

Reputable dealers throughout the length, breadth and depth of our glorious land fortunately keep the genuine Hires' Root Beer in stock. Did you ever try it? It is easy to make, and ever so delicious, and it is such a safe drink.

ONE OF THE FINEST.

A Dress Rehearsal of Gormans' Minstrels, Evidences the Company's Worth and the Show's Merits.

Spangles of silver and gold, shimmering in the glare of the footlights, velvets, silks and satins of gay colors and delicate shades, added to the brightness and vivaciousness of the scene last evening on the stage at Stillman Music Hall, where Gormans' minstrels have been rehearsing during the past week, and where they will open the season Thursday night.

It was the first full dress rehearsal. The costumes, rich and tasteful, were fresh from the hands of the makers. Each of the handsome costumes is perfection by itself, and each of the "funny" costumes is a "show."

The entire text of the minstrel performance was not rendered in full, as the costuming was the matter under especial consideration, but enough was given to show that the Plainfield public may expect some excellent brand new features and an entertaining exhibition from opening to close.

The first part is very enlivening, and the specialties introduced later will win much applause. Many of the dances are of a highly fascinating order, and the singing is excellent. The "gags" are not mouldy resurrections. Healthy humor prevades every dialogue. Several very good vocal solos are given, but especially noteworthy is that of George Brunton, "We shall meet to part no more."

The drills are well executed, and have many new features. "The Midshipmen," attired in the nattiest of sailor costumes, have a fascinating "frolic." The dance and drill with the flags of all nations is remarkably fine. The costumes in this act are of richest texture and daintiest handiwork, and the intermediate lightning tableaux are very effective.

Of Gormans' minstrels one thing can be said which is true of few companies. The petticoat burlesque is not objectionable and is very funny.

AGAINST LIVERYMEN.

They Hire Unsafe Horses at Their Risk.

A decision of particular interest to persons who hire teams has been rendered by the Supreme Court, and as it covers cases occurring daily, it is printed so that liverymen may cut it out and paste it in their hats.

A man hired a horse and buggy of a livery stable keeper. Before doing so he asked if the horse was "safe and all right," and was told that it was a "little skeery," but that if careful there would be no danger.

During the drive the horse quite suddenly turned around, upset the wagon and injured the man. He sued for damages and on the trial it appeared that turning around was a vicious habit of the horse. A verdict, however, was rendered in favor of the livery stable man. The general term sets this all aside. It holds that as the boarding stable keeper did not disclose the dangerous trick of the horse he was liable for any injury resulting therefrom. The learned judge thus lays down the law on the subject: When the defendant hired this horse to the plaintiff the law cast upon him the duty and obligation to give the plaintiff a horse that was manageable and safe. The keeper of a livery stable engaged in the business of letting carriages and horses on hire, is bound to furnish a customer with a carriage and horse reasonably strong, safe and secure for the purposes of the journey. Plaintiff could only infer from the language used to him that the horse was a little flighty or might shy, but that if he used proper care and caution in the use of the animal, and held a taut rein on it there was no danger. He should have been informed of the particularly dangerous habit of the horse. This view of the law is so clearly sound that the only wonder is that the trial court could rule otherwise.

A Rare Treat During Vacation.

The third interdenominational Bible conference will be held at Ocean Grove August 6-10, 1890. The following distinguished preachers and teachers have promised to be present and conduct the study: James H. Brooks, D. D., St. Louis; A. J. Gordon, D. D., Wm. Nast Brodbeck, and Mr. and Mrs. George C. Needham, Boston; Dr. L. W. Munhall, Philadelphia; Nathaniel West, D. D., St. Paul; Wm. J. Erdman, D. D., Asheville; and Prof. W. G. Moorhead, D. D., Xenia. Other teachers will also be present.

The conference will open at 10:30 A. M., Wednesday, August 6, and close with the night service of Sunday, the 10th. Three sessions will be held daily. Entertainment can be obtained for from one to three dollars per day.

Raising the Figures.

Besides the increase in valuation by the several assessors in the county, as published in these columns yesterday, a committee appointed by the Board of Assessors recommended that there be added to the real estate valuations as follows: Cranford, $20,000; Linden, $115,000; Rahway, $117,000; Summit, 75,000. This recommendation was adopted by a vote of 8 to 2.

A Serious Mistake.

To "clean out" the bowels by strong purgative medicines, that weaken them, is a grave mistake. Take those reliable little sugar-coated "Pleasant Purgative Pellets," prepared by Dr. R. V. Pierce. They are mild, but prompt in relieving sick headache, bilious attacks, pain in region of kidneys, torpid liver, and in restoring a healthy, natural action to the stomach and bowels. 25 cents a vial One "Pellet" a dose.

THE TAX RATE FIXED.

County Valuations Go Up Nearly Two Million.

(From the Elizabeth Journal.)

The county board of assessors took up all of Monday in fixing the valuations and pro rata of the county and school taxes. After the noon adjournment the committee appointed some weeks ago to consider the question of increasing the real estate valuations met in the judges' room at the court house, and each of the assessors were summoned individually before them.

At three o'clock the committee reported. Mr. J. A. Hubbard, of Plainfield, the chairman, read the report which showed the committee had visited every township except Clark, and had thoroughly gone over the valuations. As a result of their investigations they recommended the following increases of real estate valuations: Linden, $115,000; Rahway, $117,000; Summit, $75,000; Cranford, $20,000. In respect to the other townships and cities the committee were of the opinion that the valuations were fairly assessed by the representatives. The committee were John M. C. Marsh, of Westfield; J. A. Hubbard, of Plainfield; J. J. Huff, of Springfield; D. Hobart Sayre, of Union, and J. W. Hughes, of Summit. Mr. Hughes declined to sign the report as he believed Summit's valuations ought not to be raised.

Mr. Marsh moved to adopt the report and it was taken up in sections. Mr. Ludlow, of Cranford, voted against the increases. Mr. Jepson, of Linden, voted against all increases except in Summit, and Mr. Hughes voted for all increases except Summit.

The recommendations of the committee were therefore adopted, and the increases made in each of the townships.

The increase made on the suggestion of the committee added to the increases returned by the assessors of the several townships advances the total taxable valuation of the county $1,815,000 over last year.

The result shows the total real estate valuation in the couty to be $26,121,025; personal, $4,483,333; liabilities, $842,808; total taxable valuation $29,761,500.

The total county tax to be raised is $200,000. The proportionment assessed against each city and township foots up $191,666.67. The remaining $8,333.33 is to be levied as a special tax under the county road act as the one-third of the $25,000 ordered by the board of freeholders for the county road improvement. The amount is divided as follows: Fanwood, $1,784 96; Westfield, $2 000, Springfield, $2,000; Elizabeth, $2,548 37.

Besides this amount of taxes for county road purposes, in accordance with the act the board was requested to levy against the township for interests now due and coming due during the current fiscal year, the following amounts. Union township, for Morris avenue pavement, $1,440.34; Linden, for St. George's avenue, $842.30; Rahway, for St. George's avenue, $185.95; Westfield, North and South avenues, $566 98; Fanwood, $409 05.

The usual resolutions providing for a committee to assess the county tax in Elizabeth and Rahway were adopted, and the commissioners appointed are as follows:

Rahway—John M. C. Marsh, Westfield; John Robinson, Fanwood; Gideon E. Ludlow, Cranford.

Elizabeth—D. Hobart Sayre, Union; J. A. Hubbard, Plainfield; J. J. Huff, Springfield.

PINCHED TO DEATH.

The Many Victims of the Deadly Coupler, and Other Causes of Railroad "Accidents."

The "deadly coupler" figures very significantly in the chapter of New Jersey railroad history known as "Accidents." Statisticians show that most of those killed and injured on railroads are not passengers, but employees or trespassers. New Jersey, with its 3,748 miles of railroads, affords a convenient field for observation on this particular line of study. The law of the State requires all railroad companies to annually report accidents, to state how they occurred and give the names of the crew responsible for the accident, with the final disposition of the crew after locating the responsibility. Scattered through the last report of the railroad and canal companies, which is prepared by the State Comptroller, and just received from the printer, there is considerable information bearing on the chances and responsibility of railroad employes, and figures that afford a study of railroad accidents.

Two principal causes are assigned as the cause of accidents, and they are the "coupler" and trespassing by walking on track or "stealing a ride," as the railroads designate it. The Central Railroad of New Jersey, for the year 1889, makes a remarkable showing for accidents. The total number for that year was 301. Of this number 54 were fatal, and 241 accidents of a miscellaneous character. With all the attempts to decrease the chances of getting "pinched" when coupling cars, still a large number of accidents occurred. The number on the New Jersey Central road from this source was just 49. The number of fatal accidents from walking on the track was 37. Out of this number one-half was directly traced to the fact that the unfortunate people had been drinking before they walked along the roadbed.

—The Young Arlingtons won another base ball victory yesterday afternoon by defeating the Young Eagles by a score of 15 to 13. The battery for the Arlingtons was D. Guinee and T. Gaub, and for the Eagles, G. Mattis and W. Thorn.

TEMPERANCE NOTES

TEMPERANCE REFORM. E

A Plan Which If Properly Carried Out Would Accomplish Wonders.

If there were no dram drinkers there could be no saloons; therefore dram drinkers are responsible for all the evil done by saloons—and more. Every man and woman who uses intoxicating liquor of any kind as a beverage, no matter where, or in what amount, is a dram drinker, and shares this responsibility. Every purchase is a direct contribution to the treasury of the liquor power; every known indulgence strengthens the sentiment that sustains and spreads the habit; and its potency for evil is greatest when the example is set by those who move in the higher circles of society and are able to exercise self control. The drink habit is a fountain of woe for which saloons are reservoirs and conduits. Destroying reservoirs may deflect or diminish without stopping the stream, but dry up the fountain and reservoirs and distributing pipes become useless, and dams and dikes unnecessary.

A mere return to moral suasion methods will not suffice. The greater part of the time and money heretofore devoted to Temperance work has been wasted. To illustrate: I once heard a good man, as he dropped exhaustedly into a chair, inform a committee that he had been "laboring hard all day for the cause," and inquiry developed the fact that his time had been spent "laboring" with eighteen Temperance men, two incorrigible dramsellers and one drinker. Tens of thousands of public meetings have been held with none but Temperance people in attendance, and, consequently no visible results. It will not do to merely offer pledges at meetings which drinking men and women carefully avoid. In some way it must be ascertained who these drinkers are and, when they decline to come to us, we must go to them. Furthermore, and equally important, we should be careful not to repel them by demanding greater sacrifices than are needed.

It is not possible to ascertain who are for or against a reform by guessing. Millions of men and women, supposed by their Temperance friends to be total abstainers, are in fact tipplers. The best, if not the only way to properly prepare for the needed work, is to divide cities, towns and counties into small districts, and have lists made for each containing the names of every resident over ten years old (just as the politician does with the voters of each precinct). Then, proclaiming that the purpose is to make each district as nearly as possible "solid for total abstinence," circulate pledges and check every signer. Many names can be procured at public meetings, but the greater number will probably have to be obtained by personal solicitation. Separate lists should also be obtained of the members of all churches, lodges, and other societies, labor unions and employes in large establishments, and especial efforts put forth to make each body "solid for total abstinence." While some workers would take selected names for personal visitation, others should go systematically from house to house and shop to shop. Of course, the names of those who are already in favor of Temperance, and those who can be most easily influenced would soon be secured, and, as the movement progressed, many who refused at first would decide to "help make it unanimous," for, when public sentiment in favor of great humanitarian movements becomes aroused, and organized, its power to persuade, convince and awe is tremendous. As the good work went on, and its results became manifest, the really human souls that would not be melted by the fervent heat of enkindled humanity would be rare indeed.

At all times, the "Phalanx" idea—shoulder to shoulder, in hollow squares about the Nation's homes, with every weapon leveled at their defiling and destroying foe—should be kept in mind, and the "Phalanxes" should be composed of "Temperance Volunteers." To succeed, this holy work must commence in and draw its chief support from the church, which, to that end, must first purge itself. Few ministers have even a faint conception of the number of tipplers now on their rolls, and, as the world can not be lifted onto a higher plane than the church prepares, the saloon will continue to flourish until the wine cellars under the church of God are closed, and the odor of alcohol is banished from its sanctuary.

It is admitted that the suggested plan would require a great deal of work; but can the desired results be secured with less? And are they not well worth what they would cost? Do we really desire the redemption of the Nation? If so, our plans must be as broad as the evil that we seek to suppress, and, after all, each set of workers will only have to cultivate their own small field. The most difficult part of the whole business is to make the start.—Albert Griffin.

THE MIRTH OF MADNESS.

Foolish Persons Who Sacrifice Sobriety and Reason to Frivolity.

There is a time to laugh, but that time is not all the time, as some people seem to suppose. The appetite for mirth sometimes becomes too strong, and all sense, sobriety and seriousness are sacrificed to frivolity. We have no special liking for long faces or sour looks, but empty gabble, vain frivolity and stale and foolish jokes are very poor substitutes for sober thought and an earnest life. Men have come to joke at every thing, public or private, sacred or profane, divine or devilish.

But life is not a joke, and there is a mirth which savors of madness. He who said: "There is a time to laugh," saw the time when he said that "laughter is mad." There is an intoxication of mirth which forbids all serious thought and prevents all serious action; and there are times when something is needed besides mockery and revelry.

It is stated that when ill-fated Johnstown was inundated by heavy rains, and the people had been driven to the second floor, large numbers of men left their houses, plundered the saloons of liquor, and by three o'clock there were nearly one thousand men drunk and sailing around the streets so dazed and helpless that they were unable to save themselves, or to care for their families. When at last the dam burst, and "the flood came and took them all away," the men who were sober and vigilant had at least a chance for their lives; but the men who were drunk, most of necessity perish, and their families had no one to protect and assist them.

We shall find, in the course of our experience, hours when all our energies and all our strength will be required to resist temptation, stem the tide of passion, save ourselves from an untoward generation, and escape the dangers that surround; and if our lives have been full of frivolity and vanity and emptiness, the jokes and gibes, the mirth and folly of a life-time, will be poor preparation for the hour of death, and poor preparation for the day of judgment. "Be sober, be vigilant; behold your adversary, the devil, as a roaring lion goeth about seeking whom he may devour."—H. L. Hastings.

BRAIN DERANGEMENTS.

The Terrible Effect of Alcohol on the Reasoning Faculties.

Alcohol seems to have a special affinity for the brain. This organ absorbs more than any other, and its delicate structure is correspondingly affected. The "vascular enlargement" here reaches its height. The tiny vessels become clogged with blood that is unfitted to nourish, because loaded with carbonic acid, and deprived of the usual quantity of the life-giving oxygen.—Hinton. The brain is, in the language of the physiologist, malfunctioned. The mind but slowly rallies from the stupor of the fourth stage, and a sense of dullness and depression remains to show with what difficulty the fatigued organ recovers its normal condition. So marked is the effect of the narcotic poison, that some authorities hold that "a once thoroughly-intoxicated brain never fully becomes what it was before."

In time the free use of liquor hardens and thickens the membrane enveloping the nervous matter; the nerve-corpuscles undergo a "fatty degeneration;" the blood-vessels lose their elasticity; and the vital fluid, flowing less freely through the obstructed channels, fails to afford the old-time nourishment. The consequent deterioration of the nervous substance—the organ of thought—shows itself in the weakened mind that we so often notice in a person accustomed to drink, and at last lays the foundation of various nervous disorders—epilepsy, paralysis and insanity. The law of heredity here again asserts itself, and the inebriate's children often inherit the disease which he has escaped.

Chief among the consequences of this perverted and imperfect nutrition of the brain is that intermediate state between intoxication and insanity, well known as delirium tremens. "It is characterized by a low, restless activity of the cerebrum, manifesting itself in muttering delirium, with occasional paroxysms of greater violence. The victim almost always apprehends some direful calamity; he imagines his bed to be covered with loathsome reptiles; he sees the walls of his apartment crowded with foul specters; and he imagines his friends and attendants to be fiends come to drag him down to a lazy abyss beneath."—Carpenter.

ITEMIZED FACTS.

ONE word—"drink"—explains the downfall of a once wealthy Pittsburgher who was admitted to the alms-house last week.

THE Lord Mayor of London recently entertained thirty-seven total abstinence mayors from as many different cities in England.

LET us take care how we speak of those who have fallen on life's field. Help them up—don't heap scorn upon them. We did not see the conflict; we do not know the scars.—The Reformer.

I HAVE had twenty-two thousand prisoners through my hands since I have been the governor of this gaol, but, though I have inquired I have not discovered one teetotaller among them.—The Governor of Canterbury Gaol.

IF a family begins to sell liquor it slaughters them like sheep and the family runs out of existence generally in about two generations. If the family buy liquor they become intemperate, dishonest, idle and diseased in some members of the household.

INDIAN AGENT SHULER, of the White Earth agency, says: "Fourteen Indians under my charge have been traveling with the Wild West show and have come back worthless vagabonds, whose principal desire is to live in idleness and gain a living by trafficking in whisky."

A GROCER at Reigate, it is said, had a spirit license. He has just invited his two sons to enter into partnership with him, but both, being staunch abstainers, refused, until their father consented to give up the license. After holding out for some time he has met their wishes.—Temperance Caterer.

A GIRL of only twelve was committed as "a confirmed drunkard" to an industrial school in San Francisco a few days ago. Her mother stated that the girl would steal, beg or do almost any thing to get liquor, and that she had been drinking for nearly a year. All attempts either to reform her or prevent her getting liquor had been failures, it was stated.

Beer Is Not Nutritious.

Senator Blair says in The Temperance Movement: "There are used in making one gallon of beer 33.2 ounces of barley of which 70 ounces are lost in 'malting,' in 'mashing,' 'fermenting' and 'fining,' leaving 13.2 ounces of nutritious (?) substance. Consumed by the glass at 5 cents each this would cost 80 cents, or about two-thirds of a day's labor; at 60 cents per bushel for barley the same amunt of nutriment in the form of bread, allowing about 60 per cent. for waste and making, would cost 2 cents. In other words, if a man drinks daily 4 quarts of lager beer, he will in about 19 months succeed in taking into his stomach in that form the nutriment contained in a five-pound loaf of bread."

FILLING TEETH.

No, friend, I have not lost my mother,
She was never so well in her life.
I'm not mourning the death of a brother,
Nor the sickness nor flight of a wife.
'Tis not love and the sneers of a woman
That have turned my face ashen and gray;
'Tis the prospect of torture inhuman—
I've a "date" with the dentist to-day.

Not a comrade of mine has turned traitor,
I think they are all true as steel;
Nor has Calumny's rife incubator
Hatched aught that will injure my weal.
My liver is right, and my stomach
Is a mortar all viands to bray;
Yet I feel in my bosom a dumb ache—
I've a "date" with my dentist to-day!

I have not sunk the bulk of my riches
In a foolish unfortunate spec.
My conscience shows no surgeon's stitches,
My ghosts rise at memory's beck.
There is not at the root of my sadness
Some mystery hidden away;
This only torments me to madness:
I've a "date" with my dentist to-day.

Oh, I think and I dream till I shiver
Of engines, of burrs and of drills;
My nerves are awake and they quiver,
And my soul with expectancy thrills.
In my teeth I shall soon have him feeling
With his prod in a business-like way,
Caring naught for my squirming and squeaking—
I've a "date" with the dentist to-day!
—George Horton, in Chicago Herald.

GOING HOME TOGETHER.

A Pathetic Sketch of Cruel Poverty, Sickness and Death.

AS I entered the room and felt my way to the bedside of the person I had been sent to minister to, I could not but feel a strange emotion of pity well up into my heart. I had often beheld, and become accustomed to scenes of poverty and suffering, but there was something different in this place from what I was in the habit of associating with the lower class. The room was almost devoid of furniture, in fact, I might say entirely so, for all my eyes could see in the semi-darkness was a little bedstead, mattressless and covered with an old quilt and tattered blanket, a small table, one chair and a tiny cupboard. But I did not allow much of my time to be taken up with these observations, for I had been summoned to relieve the sufferings of a sick woman.

I drew back a torn curtain from the broken-paned window, and, by the aid of a little shaft of sunshine that came dancing into the room, I saw a pale, pinched face resting uneasily against the cotton pillow, while a pair of deep-blue eyes met mine with a pitiful gaze. A beautiful head, covered with a mass of nut-brown curls, tossed to and fro by the pains that were racking it, and slowly, but surely, sapping the life from the frail form. I took the wasted hand in mine, and felt the fluttering pulse, the stroke of which denoted great weakness.

"How long have you been sick?" I asked.

"About a month," was the gasping reply, and a half suppressed moan followed the answer.

"You are not here alone, are you?" I continued, as a thrill of sympathetic sadness ran over me, imagining this little creature without company in this dreary place, and sick.

A faint, tender smile fluttered about her parched lips, as she replied:

"No; John stays with me as much as he can; but you know he must search for work, and can not give me all his noble heart would like to."

I thought of the stout, broad-shouldered fellow who had come to me and begged me to make this call, and felt that he must be John.

"He is your husband, is he not?" I asked.

"Yes," came the low answer.

"Why doesn't he get some one to stay with you?"

"We are strangers here," she said, "and know no one who would come unless we were able to pay them, and that is impossible, for John has not been at work but a few days since we came. He sits up with me at night, and during the day he looks for something to do, coming every now and then to see that I am all right."

Just then a soft footstep was heard at the door and looking up I beheld John entering. He came up to the bed, and stooping tenderly lifted the frail body and held it in his arms as if she were an infant. The great beaming eyes turned toward him with a love-light shining from their depths that is rarely equaled, and as his lips bent and gently caressed the little mouth a look of perfect happiness lit up the countenance of the young wife. Presently he put her back on the bed, and motioning to me walked from the room. I followed and joined him on the outside.

"HOW LONG HAVE YOU BEEN SICK?"

He turned as I reached his side, and with a face worn and thin from tireless watching and suspense, asked:

"Doctor, can she live?"

"Not in this place," I replied; "she must be removed, and that at once, to quarters where she will have careful nursing and close attention."

He buried his face in his hands and sobbed like a child, and huskily said:

"I have been trying to get her to go to her mother's, in the country, where she would get all this; but, doctor, she refused to go, unless I accompany her, and that is out of the question, for I have barely enough to send her. You see," and here he faltered, "we ran away from home and got married, which made her parents very angry. They have sent all of our letters back to us unopened, but if she would go to them, I know they would take her in."

"Would you go if you could?" I asked, as he ceased speaking and once more broke the stillness with his sobs.

"Would I?" he almost screamed, "my God, doctor, I would give this right arm of mine for enough to pay our way to the country home she deserted for me."

"Go, then," I quickly replied, "and get a carriage, and I will have her ready by the time you return; you shall go home together."

He did not pause for a moment, and was almost flying down the street before I had ceased speaking. I re-entered the sick-chamber and sought the side of my patient, and to my dismay found her much weaker than I had expected. I raised her into a sitting posture, and holding her almost in my arms, said:

"We are going to send you home to your mother, where you will have bright sunshine to cheer you, and the sweet songs of birds to awaken you in the morning."

Her head leaned to one side until her eyes were fixed on mine and a peaceful smile of happiness filled her face with a supernatural glow.

"Is—is John go—oing, too?" she gasped.

"Yes," I replied, "he is going home with you."

"Lay me down, then, and—and let—me rest, for I will—need my strength."

With a heart filled with sadness I gently replaced the wasted figure on the bed and sat down beside her to wait for John.

It seemed that he would never come, and impatiently I watched the fading woman, praying that her husband would make all possible speed, for it was only a matter of a short time if she was allowed to remain in her present abode. I felt that if she could be moved at once her life was saved, for the very mention of her old home, with John beside her, seemed to imbue her with renewed vigor.

As I sat alone, her head turned toward me and those great blue eyes once more opened, and with a smile of delight she murmured, so low that I was forced to kneel beside her to catch the words: "We are going home together; thank God I will not have to go alone."

Once more her long lashes closed and she slept peacefully.

Two hours passed and John did not come, and I was getting more worried every moment, when at last I heard the sound of footsteps entering the hall below. With a peculiar feeling that all was not right, I rose and went to the door, just in time to see several men coming slowly up the stairs with something between them covered with a white cloth. As they neared me one of them approached me and said: "A few minutes ago, sir, a man dashed across the street in front of the car I was driving, and before I could stop one of the horses struck him and the car ran over him. No one in the crowd that gathered knew him, except a man who thought he had seen him hanging around this building, and thinking perhaps his folks lived here, we brought his body on. Please look at him and see if you know his face." With a sickening dread I advanced and raised the cloth; there I saw what I had expected, the mutilated face of John.

I ADVANCED AND RAISED THE CLOTH.

"He was not killed instantly," continued the man, "for after I reached him, he muttered something about him and somebody going home together."

I did not reply to the driver, but, taking him by the arm, drew him into the room. As we entered the sick woman moved uneasily, and a low moan escaped her lips, followed by a gentle whisper, that sounded mere like the last breath of a sweet strain of music than any thing else:

"Thank God, John, we are going home together!"

There came a short gasp from her, and realizing too well the meaning of it, I sprang to her side and lifted her up.

But I held in my arms nothing but a piece of lifeless clay; they had indeed "gone home together." — Edward N. Wood, in Atlanta Constitution.

But Only for the Milkman.

Mrs. McClammy (to her five-year-old)—Why, Tommy, what are you doing with your hand in the milk pitcher? Take it out instantly!

Tommy—I'm feelin' around for a nickel.

Mrs. McClammy—What in the world do you mean?

Tommy—Why, papa said this morning there was money in milk.—Chicago Inter-Ocean.

A Mistake of Judgment.

"Congressman Turner made a mistake when he gave up the ice business to become a Representative."

"Do you think so?"

"Undoubtedly. If he had stuck to it for another year he would have made enough money to become a Senator."—Life.

THEY WERE TIRED.

But the Old Man Came Out Just a Little Ways Ahead.

In order to prevent being "stuck" on his papers yesterday a newsboy cried out: "All about war with England!" A young man sitting in front of a Griswold street hotel heard the cry, slapped his leg, and exclaimed:

"That's the stuff. I'm ready to go again!"

"Were you in the war of 1776?" asked a stranger who sat near.

"N-no, I don't suppose I was."

"In the war of 1812?"

"Perhaps not."

"In the Mexican war?"

"No."

"Were you even able to toddle around as a baby during our civil war?"

"I—I was over a year old."

"But you spoke about going again. What did you mean?"

"None o' your business, sir. There's always some old shell-back like you sitting around to throw cold water on a young man's patriotism, and it makes me tired."

"Does, eh? See where that finger went to? Observe this wooden leg. Want to feel this scar on my head? I was there. I am also tired. I am tired of hearing young squirts like you talk about war. Go home, bub—go home and have your mother change your bib and wipe your nose."—Detroit Free Press.

GETTING IN ON HIM.

Grand Street Dry-Goods Nabob (who fails to recognize his sales-girl in her street dress)—Won't you have my seat, madam?

The Sales-girl—No; keep it and give me one at the store for an hour or two to-morrow.—Puck.

JOYFUL MOSE'S END.

A Fitting Tribute to One of Windy City's Prominent Men.

The Windy City Zephyr thus chronicles the death of a well-known citizen of that place.

"The news has just reached us that Joyful Mose is dead. He passed quietly away about fifteen minutes ago, surrounded by a posse of influential citizens and a small grove of Black-Jack trees.

"Although Joyful Mose was an old settler and well known among us, he was not one whose presence would advance the interest of the town. He represented a class of citizens who are fast losing caste among people who desire to make this earth their home for any considerable time.

"He was too irritable and impulsive in his dealings with every one, and his extemporaneous use of the revolver has left but few of his old associates to mourn his untimely decease.

"We regret to say that he never worked in harmony with the Immigration Society. In a recent report of that society it is shown that while it increased the population of our city six souls, Joyful Mose had sent seven to explore the Great Beyond. This was a clear loss of one.

"Then the Immigration Society got tired. The president said that he was not in favor of wearing out his life just to furnish amusement for Joyful Mose, and if the situation of affairs didn't change, the society would retire from the field.

"This brought matters to a crisis, and the man with the hilarious cognomen is no more—he is dead.

"The man who cut him down told me that the deceased had got the drop on seventeen men in his life, but when he got the drop on a tree this morning he seemed to be a little surprised, but soon wilted.

"His death reduces the number of our population below that of Blue Forks, thus giving a snide one-horse town a chance to boast of its superior numbers over us, but we trust that our temporary loss will result in the greatest good. This is the end we should all work for.

"We are glad that this little affair has been settled at last.

"In the past the Zephyr has taken no sides in this matter, but now we say fearlessly that we fully endorse the action of the Immigration Society in ridding the community of a man whose sole ambition was to run the chromatic scale of mortality with both hands."—Drake's Magazine.

A Life-Long Practice.

Young Mr. Softy—(the conversation had been upon the subject of insomnia)—It is easy enough to go to sleep if you get about it right. I have—aw—an infallible recipe for it.

Miss Slygirl—What is that, Mr. Softy?

Mr. Softy—When I want—aw—to woo nature's sweet restorer, I—aw—banish every thing like an idea from my mind, doncher see?

Miss Slygirl—You've been practicing it all your life, haven't you?—Texas Siftings.

More Important.

Waller—What's the news, Riser?

Riser—Great news. Won a dollar on a ball-game bet from Fuller, to-day.

Waller—That's good. How is that stock you bought last week? Still going up?

Riser—Oh, I forgot about that. I sold it to-day and made $5,000 on it.—The Jury.

A ROCK THAT GROWS.

Remarkable Petrifaction in a Pennsylvania Ravine.

Dripping Water That Carries a Burden of Lime-Stone in Solution with It and Leaves Its Wonders in Stalagmites and Stalactites.

In a deep, dark ravine a few miles from New Castle, Pa., in North Beaver township, Lawrence County, is a wonderful natural phenomenon in the shape of a veritable growing rock. Fifty years ago, when it was first noticed, an inverted wooden pail would almost cover it. To-day it is a great bowlder, ten feet in height and fifteen feet or more in circumference, and weighing not less than fifty tons. During the summer months it is covered with a dense rich moss two or three inches deep, through which the waters from a little spring trickle continually.

The outer formation of this rock has a limestone appearance, but once remove the moss and chisel in the gritty surface and the real beauty and peculiarity of the rock are seen. A cellular formation like a mammoth sponge is discovered, and about the cells is stone as hard as adamant. On cutting further in, this cell-like substance is found to continue, but it seems to have been transformed into a translucent flint. There are tons of this flinty rock, for it is as heavy as granite, and every ounce of it is undoubtedly moss and other vegetable matter petrified.

This remarkable petrifaction has been wrought by the action of the water from the spring upon the moss. The water seems to have the singular property of turning into stone every thing that is brought in contact with it for any length of time. It has an acrid taste, and is undoubtedly heavily charged with mineral substances, although thus far it has never been analyzed.

The most remarkable fact about it is that it accomplishes so much in so short a time. The moss grows luxuriantly in the dark hollow, and the lapidescent quality of the water has operated year after year upon the layers of moss, turning them into a honeycomb of stone, and adding to what was first a small rock, until to-day there is this great bowlder of petrified vegetation.

A short time after the moss begins to grow in the spring, it commences to solidify at the roots, and the petrification follows closely on the track of the growing moss, like the formation of coral on the work of the coral insects. As it progresses, the dark green of the vegetation becomes yellowish, then changes to brown and darkens as the rock grows older. The moss is not all that is perpetuated in stone by the action of the water. Plants, leaves, twigs, every vegetable substance that has fallen on the rock and lain there have been impregnated with and, as by the touch of an inexorable fate, been turned into stone by it. Stratum upon stratum of the moss stone has grown over them, and many such objects are now to be found hermetically sealed deep in the heart of the rock.

To the mineralogist the rock is a mine of treasure and delight. No one ever chisels into that flinty bowlder without coming upon leaves and twigs petrified among the moss and securing many fine specimens to rejoice his heart and make envious less fortunate mortals. Those who have visited it thus far say there is not another such curiosity known in the world. The people in the neighborhood have long known of the remarkable qualities of this spring. Mr. William Allsworth first discovered it nearly fifty years ago. Then the rock was ten feet or more below the spring. Now it has climbed up the side of the bank until it is partially above the level of the spring, and has turned the water of the little brook that comes down through the ravine somewhat out of its course. Mr. Allsworth and some of his neighbors intend to try the experiment of fastening a frog or some other creature in such a way that the water will have a chance to act upon it, and see whether it will fill up animal tissue with its mineral burden as it has done the vegetable ones that have come in continued contact with it. They firmly believe it will, and there seems little reason to doubt it.

HYPNOTIZING A HEN.

An Englishman's Interesting Experiment with a Fowl.

Within the last month I have made an interesting experiment with a fowl, writes a correspondent of the London Spectator. Some choice eggs being sent me for hatching purposes (having no hen at that time broody and no incubator), I determined to set one of my hens on these eggs and keep her there by the force of mesmeric power. The eggs were not fresh when I received them, and to keep them with the uncertain hope of a hen becoming broody might have been fatal to their hatching. I therefore went against nature and sat my hen upon these eggs; she was in full lay at the time, and remained so throughout the three weeks that she was sitting, laying, according to her wont, two out of three days. Those who understand poultry will appreciate that no hen will do this, having become naturally broody, although for the first day or two after being set on eggs I have had hens lay once, or even twice. Marking the eggs I set her upon, I was able to know and withdraw the eggs she kept laying.

The first day I placed her on the eggs it took me half an hour to bring her into a hypnotic condition, but each successive day, after having roused her to drink and eat, I was able to soothe her to drowsy placidity in much less time; also, there were days, for which I can give no reason, when I had to go to her more than once in a day, she being in a restless, excited state, trying to get off the nest. The result has been, much to my own astonishment, that four out of seven of these eggs have hatched, and are healthy, happy little chickens. At night I can still influence their mother to her maternal duties, but in the day-time she takes no notice of them.

WHEN, in accordance with the pretty English custom, the charming Duchess of Portland was offered by her husband a superb necklace of rare stones on the occasion of the birth of her little daughter, she declined the gift, and asked to have its money value given to build new almshouses on the estate for the benefit of sick or infirm tenants.

THE Duke of Fife continues to sell off his agricultural property and manors in Scotland in a way which indicates that he is pressed for cash. He has just parted with the fine estate of Rothiemay, which has on it one of the most interesting old mansions in Scotland, where Mary Queen of Scots was lodged during her progress through the northern counties in 1562.

TRANSPIRING EVENTS.

A WREN at East Bradford, Pa., built a nest in a garment that had been hung out to dry.

A DIVER who was working at the foundation of a railroad bridge near Boise City, Idaho, gave a signal to be hoisted quickly. When he got to the surface he held fast a sixty-five-pound salmon that he had caught by the gills.

WHILE a Buffalo family was moving the mother suddenly missed the baby. The infant could be heard crying, and the mother found the weeping child inside of a roll of carpet. The babe had been left in the middle of the sitting-room floor, and the men who took up the carpet tossed a breadth over her without observing her, rolled her up in it and stood the carpet up in the hall.

A MONSTROUS chunk of ore was taken from the Mountain Consolidated Mine at Butte City, Mont., a few days ago. It was too large to put on a two-horse wagon and a four-horse team was used. The ore is estimated to weigh nearly four tons, and is nearly solid copper and silver. It has been bound with hoops of iron and boxed up, preparatory to shipment, probably to Europe.

A BEAR that has been helping himself for three years to honey from an apiary at Wewahitchka, Fla., was killed recently. The buzzing of the bees and the sweetness of his repast so occupied bruin's attention that he did not notice the approach of his slayers until too late to escape. He was a cute beast, nevertheless, for always in breaking into the apiary he smeared honey over his head and face to avoid being stung.

TWO YEARS ago three hundred whales were driven ashore on the estate of a Mr. Bruce at Sumburgh, in the north of Scotland, and they were killed and sold. Mr. Bruce at once demanded that a third of the value of the whales (£400) should be paid to him, in accordance with an ancient custom, by which the "laird" of this property was entitled to claim "thirds" of all salvage. The sheriff opposed the claim on the ground that Mr. Bruce had taken no part in the capturing of the whales, and the court of sessions has upheld the sheriff.

A STROKE of lightning recently produced remarkable effects on a large poplar at Playford, Eng. The topmost branches were not injured, but the bark was completely stripped from the trunk; and the southern half of the body, which was two and one half feet in diameter at the base and ten inches at the top, was shattered into fragments and scattered over an area of two acres. One solid piece weighing five and one-half pounds was carried one hundred and twenty-six yards from the base, while bits of less than half an ounce were blown sixty yards against the wind. One half of the trunk was left standing as a whitened stem forty feet high. The thunder-clap was terrific, the concussion breaking windows in a dwelling four hundred yards away.

THE BODY EXHUMED

Annie Goodwin's Remains Identified by Her Sister.

FULL PROOF OF THE FOUL CRIME

The Coroner's Jury Will Render Their Verdict To-Morrow.

The Body Placed in a Vault to Await Burial by the Dead Girl's Relatives, Dr. McGonegal and Mrs. Shaw, to be Brought Up for Trial To-Morrow—Detectives Promise a Clear Case.

NEW YORK, July 24.—The crime for which Dr. McGonegal and his companions in guilt are now under arrest in this city is developing into one of the most sensational episodes in the criminal history of this country.

The body of his victim, Annie Goodwin, has been exhumed and identified, and the fact that death was due to malpractice has been proved.

At 6 o'clock last evening the autopsy on the remains of Annie Goodwin, buried by undertaker Merritt in the cemetery at Astoria, L. I., was completed and the identification was established beyond all doubt.

Opening the Coffin.

When Coroner Messemer opened the coffin it was discovered that the body was dressed in a nightdress sewed around the body, a gauze undershirt, a part of the cloth in which the body had been wrapped by Dr. McGonegal, and black stockings fastened with yellow silk garters. It had been placed in the coffin with the back upward and its face turned to the left, so that it rested on its right side.

Not long after the autopsy was concluded Detective Price arrived at the cemetery with Annie Goodwin's married sister, Mrs. Halliday, with whom Annie lived for a time, and Sadie Traphagen, at whose home Annie lived after leaving her sister's house, and where for a time she was at liberty to meet her lover, Harrison.

On catching sight of the face with a mass of black hair floating back from it, Mrs. Halliday exclaimed, "Oh, yes, it's Annie. Yes, yes, it's her." Mrs. Halliday seemed about to faint, and was led away. Then Sadie Traphagen was led to the side of the corpse. She was considerably more composed than Mrs. Halliday.

Her identification was criticized more sharply by Coroner Messemer than Mrs. Halliday's. Sadie declared first that the body was not that of Annie Goodwin, and then, as if first noticing the girl's hair, exclaimed, "Oh, yes, it is Annie. I know her by her hair." On suggestion of Coroner Messemer, Sadie noticed the girl's teeth and afterward a slight scar on the left side of her nose and then announced positively that the body was that of Annie Goodwin. The black-ribbed stockings and the garters, too, Sadie said she remembered as well as a rip on one side of one of the stockings.

No Doubt as to Identity.

There was no doubt left now as to identity. She who had been buried as Jane Wilbur, an English woman, was surely Annie Goodwin. The grave had given up its dead and told its woe.

The body was placed back in the coffin and returned to the receiving vault, where it will await its final burial. Mrs. Halliday and the friends of the unfortunate girl will probably bring the remains to New York.

The coroner's jury will render their verdict in the case to-morrow morning.

The Doctor's Trial.

To-morrow morning McGonegal and Mrs. Shaw, the woman in whose house Annie Goodwin died, will be brought up for trial, and the detectives promise a complete case against both of them. They are doubtful about a conviction of the colored coachman who has been indicted as an accessory after the fact.

The Propeller Tioga Reaches Buffalo.

BUFFALO, N. Y., July 24.—The propeller Tioga, which was badly wrecked at Chicago by a naptha explosion, has arrived in this port in tow of the mammoth propeller Owego, having made the run down in the fast time of 68 hours. The Tioga was towed to the Union Dry Dock, where she will undergo a complete overhauling. It is estimated that it will cost $25,000 to restore her to her former condition.

Churchill Praises the Tories.

LONDON, July 24.—Lord Randolph Churchill, speaking at the Conservative Club last night, maintained that the Conservative party was constantly deepening its hold upon the country, while the character and caliber of the Radicals had steadily declined. He declared that the policy of the Government was succeeding at home and abroad.

President of Amherst College.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., July 24.—The report that Rev. Dr. Michael Burnham of this city had been selected as president of Amherst College is untrue. The trustees will not make the name of the man chosen known until it is certain that he will accept.

A Site For the Fair.

CHICAGO, July 24.—The World's Fair site was favorably settled by the City Council last night. The city will furnish $2,000,000 to fill 150 acres of the disputed part of the site—lake front—the property to revert to the city for purposes after the fair.

Liberals Active in Spain.

MADRID, July 24.—The Liberals are sanguine of carrying the approaching elections by a considerable majority, with the aid of universal manhood suffrage which came into effect this spring. The situation in Spain is regarded as highly inflammable.

ARCHBISHOPS CONFERRING.

The Catholic Prelates of the United States in Council at Boston.

BOSTON, July 24.—The Catholic Archbishops of the United States are holding their annual meeting in St. John's Seminary at Brighton.

Among the prelates present are the following: Archbishops Ryan of Philadelphia, Kendrick of St. Louis, Feehan of Chicago, Elder of Cincinnati, Ireland of St. Paul, Janssens of New Orleans, Riordan of San Francisco, Gross of Oregon, Williams of Boston, and Cardinal Gibbons. The latter is presiding over the deliberations.

Archbishop Corrigan of New York is absent in Europe. Milwaukee will not be represented, as the successor of Archbishop Heiss, who died a short while ago, has not been chosen.

A meeting of the Senate of the Catholic University of Washington takes place to-morrow, at St. John's Seminary. The meeting will be strictly private.

GROUND TO DEATH.

Twenty Lives Lost Through the Work of a Fiend.

MONTREAL, July 24.—A French despatch from Pemproke, 86 miles above Ottawa, on the Upper Ottawa River, says that two days ago some miscreants cut the ropes holding a raft of logs to the bank where the twenty-two raftsmen on board were stopping over night.

The raft, with the men all asleep on board, drifted out into the river and then into the rapids a mile below.

Of the 22 men aboard the raft only two survived.

No traces of the bodies of the other 20 have been found. They must have been ground to death.

The authorities are trying to discover the man who cut the ropes. No further particulars are at hand.

CLOAKMAKERS ARRESTED.

The Leaders of a New York Mob Held for Trial.

NEW YORK, July 24.—A crowd of striking cloakmakers entered the tailoring establishment of Solomon Beers, at 22 Rivington street, and assaulted Beers and his wife, the latter being stabbed in the head with a pair of shears.

Twenty-two of the assailants were taken to the Delancey Street Police Station and arraigned before Justice Duffy. The leaders of the mob, Morris Amsterdam, Samuel Rommer and Max Ober, were held for trial.

Pincus Rosolfsky, a cloakmaker, then threw a stone at Contractor Goldman, while the latter was leaving court. The stone missed Goldman but struck Court Officer Rooney in the face. Rosolfsky was arrested and committed for trial.

Demands of the Sugar Trusts.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., July 24.—The suit to wind up the sugar trust has begun in the Kings County Supreme Court. The eleven trustees of the trust are the plaintiffs, and several sugar refining firms and five gentlemen who represent the holders of $15,000,000 stock, are the defendants. The plaintiffs allege that they hold moneys for which they are fully able to account, and that as under a decision of the Court of Appeals all the corporations belonging to the trust may be dissolved, and thus the purposes of the agreement have failed. The plaintiffs demand, among other things, that the agreement be rescinded or declared inoperative.

A Young Hero to be Rewarded.

OLD ORCHARD, Me., July 24.—While attempting to board a train here after it had started Charles Palmer, a wealthy Montreal man, lost his footing. As he was hanging to the railing he swung between the cars and was losing his grip, when Frank E. Kelley of South Berwick, a boy peddler, saw him and managed to pull him on board the train. When he had recovered himself he asked the lad's name, said he had saved his life, and promised to send him a check for $5,000 when he reached Montreal.

LORD DUNLO'S TROUBLE.

Opening of the Suit to Divorce Him from Belle Bilton.

LONDON, July 24.—The well-advertised divorce suit between Viscount Dunlo and Belle Bilton of music hall fame came up for a hearing in the morning. The court room was beseiged by spectators.

Lady Dunlo, formerly Miss Bilton, accompanied by her sister, also notorious as a music hall performer, arrived at 10:15. Lord Dunlo came soon after in company with his counsel, Sir Charles Russell.

The latter, in opening the case, referred very severely to the co-respondent, Wertheimer, the dissolute son of a Wardour street curio dealer, who, he said, was much older than the youth who had been sent out of the country by his father.

A number of Lady Dunlo's letters were in court. They admitted that she had gone with Wertheimer, but protested her innocence.

Discontented Workingmen.

BARCELONA, July 24.—There is great discontent among the laboring population of this city. Strikes in the factories are becoming general. Two thousand strikers attempted to parade during the day, but were dispersed by the police. A decree has been issued forbidding all parades and outdoor gatherings for the present.

Seeking Pardon for the Grenadiers.

LONDON, July 24.—A petition is circulated asking the Queen to pardon the condemned Grenadiers. The petitioners declare that it is a foul injustice to place six men in the category of the lowest ranks of criminals, among pickpockets and area sneaks, simply because they happen to be the seniors of their respective companies.

The Giants Finish Their Series at Buffalo—Ward's Club Badly Beaten at Cleveland—Close Game Between the Boston and Cleveland League Teams, Harrisburg Defeats Washington.

HARTFORD, Conn., July 24.—The attempt to play ball by electric light last night was turned into a burlesque. A soft ball was used and the batters only bunted it. All the fielders played within the base lines. A large crowd was present. Only four innings were played. No score was kept.

The championship games yesterday resulted as follows:

First Cargo of Tea This Season.

TACOMA, Wash., July 24.—The ship Henry Failing, with the first cargo of tea of the season, arrived here yesterday, thirty-four days out from Yokohama. Her cargo consists of 41,385 packages, aggregating over three and a half million pounds, and valued at $1,250,000. It will make up seven or eight train loads of fifteen cars each for shipment east. The largest portion of the cargo goes to Chicago. Special trains will take it east.

MYSTERIOUS SHOOTING.

A Stranger Makes a Target of Himself in a Lumber Yard.

CAMDEN, N. J., July 24.—A mysterious shooting occurred here last night. Three pistol shots were heard in the lumber yard opposite Van Sciver's furniture manufactory at Delaware avenue and Federal street. A moment later a well dressed man about 50 years old staggered across the street and fell on the steps of the store.

"I'm shot," he said.

"Who shot you?" asked Abraham Anderson, of Anderson's canning factory, who was passing.

"I shot myself; send for a doctor."

The man then became unconscious and was taken to Cooper Hospital. The bullet was located near the spine, having passed in at the left side, just missing the point of the heart. The revolver was found in the right hand breast pocket of the coat.

No clew could be obtained to the man's identity. He is evidently a person of refinement. The shooting has occasioned great excitement. Only one wound could be found, and search is being made for another person who it is thought was the mark for the first two shots. The wounded man, it is feared, will not live until night.

KEMMLER WEAKENING.

He at Last Realizes the Full Terrors of His Position.

AUBURN, N. Y., July 24.—Kemmler is said to be weakening. The awful fate that has been hanging over his head for so long has at last touched his stolid nature and he fears death. For over a year he has been in the shadow of death without flinching, but his stolid demeanor has been supplanted by a hopeless realization of his condition and a dread of the coming execution. His new born fear has made him sick. His features are pallid and wan. His appearance is that of a broken down man, and he is losing his appetite.

This change came last Saturday evening. The full terrors of his position seemed to come upon him at once. A nervous fear possessed him which he could not master, and he told Keeper McNaughton of it.

Trouble in the Building Trades.

NEW YORK, July 24.—A big strike is expected in the building trades, the Board of Delegates having voted unanimously to call out all the union men working on any public school building in the city. This will affect 1,000 men. The Board blames the school trustees for awarding contracts with a proviso which will forbid subletting, and which thereby brings in an inferior grade of workmen, and is a source of additional expense to taxpayers.

The Big Leary Raft.

NEW YORK, July 24.—The Laughlin Towing Company has received a despatch announcing the departure of the Leary raft from Portland, Me. The tugs that are to tow the floating monster arrived yesterday afternoon. The cruise will be from Portland harbor to Point Judith, thence through Vineyard Haven Sound and Long Island Sound to Leary's ship yard, Greenpoint. The big raft, or rather what is left of it, will reach New York to-morrow.

A Card Clothing Combination.

WORCESTER, Mass., July 24.—Reports here of a combine of card clothing manufacturers, including Smith & Co., of Philadelphia; Steman & Mueller, of Providence; all of the Worcester and Leicester firms except Charles F. Kent and Howard Bros., and firms in Lawrence, Walpole and North Andover. All information is refused by manufacturers here, and the story is probably true.

An Offer to the "Marine."

BUFFALO, N. Y., July 24.—The Erie County Athletic Club offers $2,500 for La Blanche and Young Mitchell to fight here. The 'Frisco contest is probably off. This a larger offer than was made by the Young Men's Gymnastic Club of New Orleans. Jack Dempsey, who is now in Buffalo, announces his willingness to meet Ted Pritchard, the English middleweight, before the club for a purse.

Mr. Depew Calls on Gladstone.

LONDON, July 24.—M. Gouraud, agent for the phonograph, called with Mr. Depew to-day upon Mr. Gladstone, and presented the Grand Old Man with the resolutions adopted and phonographed by his American admirers. The clever tongued Chauncey addressed an eloquent tribute of his own, wherefrom the veteran statesman may perhaps gain some points in oratory.

Knocked Out in the Fifth Round.

DENVER, Col., July 24.—Three hundred sports from this city went by special train to witness the fight between Billy Woods, champion of Colorado, and Jack Ryan, of Omaha. The fight was won in the fifth round by Woods knocking Ryan senseless with a right hander under the ear.

No Change in the Cloakmakers' Strike.

NEW YORK, July 24.—There is no change in the cloakmakers' strike. The manufacturers say they will now employ all persons who can work a sewing machine. The operators are stubborn and will not yield, and the police look for trouble in the near future.

Two Boys Drowned.

WATERTOWN, N. Y., July 24.—Wm. and Asa Morrill, boys from Sandy Creek, Oswego County, went out fishing on Roberts Corner pond, near Adams. In trying to land a pickerel the boat capsized and they were drowned.

Sixteen Men Perished.

LONDON, July 24.—The American schooner William Rice, from Cape Ann for Iceland, has sunk. The crew of 16 men perished with the vessel.

WASHINGTON TOPICS

Official Correspondence on the Behring Sea Question.

THE PAPERS SENT TO THE HOUSE.

Secretary Blaine Speaks of the Value of the Seal Fisheries.

A Bill to Prevent the Lottery Using the Mails—Ministers Residents Promoted by the President—Favorable Reports on Public Buildings—The President Starts for Mt. Gretna.

WASHINGTON, July 24.—The President sent to the House of Representatives in answer to the resolution introduced by Representative Hitt the official correspondence between the Government of the United States and the Government of Great Britain touching the seal fisheries of the Behring Sea.

In his accompanying letter of transmittal to the President Secretary Blaine, under date of Bar Harbor, regrets the delay in transmission which the President directed on the 11th instant, and says that the correspondence is still in progress. The correspondence includes thirty separate papers, beginning with a letter from Mr. Edwardes, First Secretary of Legation and Charge d'Affaires, after Minister West's recall, dated August 24, 1889, and closing with one from Secretary Blaine to Sir Julian Pauncefote, the British Minister, dated July 19, 1890.

Mr. Blaine maintained a strong national position in his letters to the Marquis of Salisbury. He made few admissions. He awaited suggestions from the British Foreign Office, and then acted according to the best interests of the United States.

In a whole year only two points were advanced and discussed.

Mr. Blaine insisted that Canadian vessels, in capturing young seals outside the limit, committed an offence "against amicable relations," and the United States Government was justified in seizing such vessels and confiscating their catch.

Lord Salisbury, on the other hand, declared that Canadian vessels, in taking seals in the manner described, were not acting contra bones mores, and that the United States, in seizing them for it, strained its relations with Great Britain and assumed an authority which the nations interested had not conferred upon them.

LOTTERY AND THE MAILS.

The Bill Which the House Postoffice Committee May Adopt.

WASHINGTON, July 24.—Chairman Bingham has called a meeting of the House Committee on Postoffices for to-morrow for the consideration of the various bills relating to the Louisiana Lottery and the mails. His own bill to prevent the lottery from using the mails and revoking the charters of National Banks acting as its agents will probably be the one the committee will adopt.

The impression is being manufactured that it is the purpose of the committee to suppress these bills in the interest of the Lottery Company, but Chairman Bingham's action in calling a meeting effectually disposes of the charge.

PRESIDENTIAL NOMINATIONS.

Minister Residents and Consul-Generals Promoted Under the New Law.

WASHINGTON, July 24.—The President sent to the Senate the following nominations:

To be Envoys Extraordinary and Ministers Plenipotentiary of the United States, pursuant to act of Congress approved July 5, 1890.

Thomas H. Anderson, of Ohio, (now Minister resident and Consul-General at La Paz), to Bolivia.

Clark E. Carr, of Illinois, (now Minister resident and Consul-General at Copenhagen), to Denmark.

John D. Washburn, of Mass., (now Minister resident and Consul General at Berne) to Switzerland.

John L. Stevens, of Maine, (now Minister resident at Honolulu) to the Hawaiian Islands.

George Maney, of Tennessee, (now Minister resident at Montevideo) to Paraguay and Uruguay.

Also a number of revenue service and army promotions.

Scott for Congress.

WASHINGTON, July 24.—The word has been received here that Hon. William L. Scott has decided to be the Democratic candidate for Congress in the Erie-Mercer district, the nomination having been tendered him some weeks since. Scott has been remarkably quiet since the Scranton Convention, and had not shown any evidence until now that he is interested in Pennsylvania politics.

The President Goes to Mt. Gretna.

WASHINGTON, July 24.—A special train left here to-day via the Pennsylvania Railroad to the State encampment at Mt. Gretna, conveying Secretary of War Proctor, General Schofield, the head of the army, Senator Cameron, a number of prominent regular army officers, and President Harrison.

Public Building Reports.

WASHINGTON, July 24.—Favorable reports have been ordered by the House Committee on Public buildings on bills authorizing the erection of public buildings at Leesburg, Va., and Greensburg, Pa., at a cost of $5,000 in each case.

Burned to Death.

NEW YORK, July 24.—A fire in the pump room of the Consolidated Gas Company at the foot of E. Twenty-first street, caused a loss of $1,000. James H. Devoe, the night engineer, was so severely burned that he died.

ABANDONED AT SEA.

The Crew of the steamer Egypt Saved After a Battle With Fire and Water.

NEW YORK, July 24.—The Maritime Exchange has received a cable dispatch from London that the steamship Egypt of the National Line, had been abandoned at sea, because she was on fire. The crew were saved after a terrrible battle with the waves lasting 24 hours. All the cattle were lost and the crew and cattlemen were picked up after passing two days and two nights in open boats.

At the office of the National Line in this city, the agents said that all they knew of the loss was what they had learned from the Maritime Exchange.

The agent said that the Egypt left here on July 10 for Liverpool. She was commanded by Captain Sumner and had a crew of 73 men. She carried a general cargo, including 640 head of cattle.

The vessel had no oil or explosives in her cargo and carried no passengers, she having lately been employed in freight traffic only.

A number of steerage passengers had engaged passage on the vessel, but at the last minute the steamship company announced its inability to take them, owing to an absence of room.

THE SOUTH AMERICAN WAR.

Guatemala Troops Enter Salvador Against Orders—The Officer Under Arrest.

CITY OF MEXICO, July 24.—The Guatemala Minister has received a telegram from the Guatemalan Minister of Foreign Affairs which says: "Against the positive orders which the Government had given, one of our officers took some of our troops across the line. There was skirmishing of slight importance, and our troops, few in number, were ordered to return. They lost nothing. The officer who disobeyed orders by crossing the frontier line is under arrest and will be court martialed."

NEWS OF THE DAY.

The Paris municipality are contemplating the formation in that city of a force of mounted police, similar to that of London.

The President of Guatemala telegraphs the Minister to Mexico that "the Salvadorian enemies of Ezeta were met and routed by Ezeta."

Margaret Lombard, the last of the descendants of Justin Lombard, one of the settlers of Springfield, Mass., has just died in that city.

An international congress of spinners and weavers will be held in Berlin shortly to consider questions affecting the welfare of the persons engaged in those industries.

Henry Glenn, a councillor at Belfast, Ireland, has been convicted of embezzling $150,000 of the funds of a building society, and has been sentenced to five years' penal servitude.

Cyrus Johnson, a prominent prohibitionist and a leader in the Methodist Church at Centerville, Michigan, has been expelled from the church for going on the bond of a saloon keeper.

The police officers of Bangor, Me., have captured an organized gang of boys who called themselves the "Black Avengers," and who are charged with numerous cases of store breaking.

Patrick J. Sharkey, of the Americus House, New York, died yesterday. He was one of the backers of Kilrain in his fight with Sullivan, and was well known in the sporting fraternity. His estate was valued at $100,000.

By the will of Mrs. Catherine Crane Halstead, widow of James Mayer Halstead, just proved in New York about $75,000 is bequeathed in charity among the various Presbyterian churches and Home and Foreign missions.

King Leopold of Belgium in his reply to President Carnot's congratulations on the occasion of the jubilee says he hopes for a constant and thorough maintainance of the best relations between Belgium and France.

Six hundred drivers of the New York city street sprinkling carts and of the ash carts attached to the Street Cleaning Department are on strike. The street sprinklers demand steady employment and the ash cart drivers struck out of sympathy.

F. V. Crain, of Bangor, Me., has resigned the position of manager of the New Brunswick Railroad. The road has been purchased by the Canadian Pacific. Mr. Crain's successor is H. P. Timmerman, of Port Arthur, who will be general superintendent of the New Brunswick Division of the Canadian Pacific Road.

Weather Indications.

WASHINGTON, July 24.—For New England: Fair, followed by showers; southerly winds; stationary temperature.

For Eastern New York, Eastern Pennsylvania and New Jersey: Showers; southeasterly winds; stationary temperature.

For Western New York and Western Pennsylvania: Showers; cooler; southerly winds.

BY THE WAY.

—The United Tea and Coffee Growers Association will publish their views on early closing to-morrow.

—New platforms are being laid at the North avenue station of the Central Railroad, and the station is to be repainted.

—The regular mid-week meeting of the Plainfield Reform Club will be held in Reform Hall, this evening at eight o'clock. All are invited to attend.

—While in one of the pavilions at Ocean Grove, yesterday, Mrs. George W. F. Randolph had her pocket picked. The thief stole a pocket book containing some money, an excusion ticket, etc.

—Gorman's Minstrel company open to-night at Music Hall after a week's rehearsal and some months' preparation. Everything is brand new — costumes, songs, jokes and acts. Now fill the house.

—The Young Crescents of this city defeated the Unions of Grant avenue, by a score of 7 to 6, in a nicely played game at the latter place this morning. The batteries were: J. Sutphen, D. Guinnee and C. Sutphen, for the Young Crescents; Young, Scott and Lebau for the Unions.

—A perfect day by the seaside was enjoyed by the Trinity Reformed church excursionists at Asbury Park, yesterday. The train was composed of fifteen cars. Conductor Joseph T. Ross gave a quick run both ways. The excursion was the largest and most enjoyable the church has ever had. Among the excursionists were the Rev. Father Stafford and St. Mary's church choir. The affair was one of perfect enjoyment to all.

IN MEMORIAL.

Grace Church Vestry Publicly Expresses Its Loss.

The undersigned, to whom as a Committee of the Vestry of Grace church, Plainfield, N. J., was assigned the duty of preparing a Memorial on the death of Gen. T. VanBuren, present the following minute:

WHEREAS: It has pleased Almighty God in His wise providence to remove from the scene of his earthly labors, our friend and fellow-vestryman, Gen. D. T. VanBuren, we desire to put on record an expression of the very high esteem in which he was held. Although he had been a member of this community but a few years, he had already begun to exert an important influence. While abstaining from thrusting himself into public position, he was ready and willing, when demand was made for his services, to bear his part, and to do what he could for the advancement of the general welfare.

We had hoped for many years to profit in this Vestry by his counsel and experience, but it has seemed best to the Sovereign Disposer of all events, to cut him off in the midst of his useful-ness. We believe that this ordering has been as he would have desired—that he might fall with his armor on, doing gladly what his hand found to do for the benefit of his fellowman, and for the glory of God.

It is therefore ordered that this minute be entered in the Record-book of the Vestry, and that a copy of it be sent to the afflicted family and that it be furnished to the Press for publication.

E. M. RODMAN, Rector.
E. L. FINCH,
C. P. BULL,
W. E. LOWE,
O. T. WARING,
} Committe of Vestry.

Plainfield, N. J., July 22, 1890.

HUNTING FOR DEFEAT.

The Crescent League Team's Managers Offering Other Clubs Money to Hire Men to Beat Plainfield.

The "Trentons" of Trenton, and the "Star Athletics" of Newark, are the only teams the Crescents have played against this year, that they have not beaten. The Newark team won in twelve innings by a score of 4 to 3, and will play here again on August 16. The Trenton team won in ten innings by a score of 7 to 6, and will play here again on Saturday.

The Newark team won on April 12, the first game the Crescents played and before the present team was formed; but the Trentons won because four hits were all the Crescents could get off of pitcher Sandford—singles by Martin, Wiegand and Jones, and a two-bagger by Lee.

Saturday's game will probably be one of the most interesting of the year. The manager of the Trentons writes that he has secured some players from the disbanded Texas League, and thereby greatly strengthened his team. Managers Burnet and Leggett of the Crescents have agree to increase the Trentons' guarantee if they will bring pitcher Sandford again. The Trenton manager says he will.

The public certainly can't complain if the Crescents continue to win, when their managers are paying other clubs extra money if they will hire men to beat the Plainfield team.

The Accident to Mr. Coudert.

Frederic R. Coudert, the New York lawyer, who owns Force's Hotel and other Plainfield property, was thrown from his horse near New Market, Monday evening He was about to start on his vacation trip at the time of the accident, and the confinement to his room which must continue through the Summer is especially annoying. The horse which Mr. Coudert was riding was a broncho. The animal stumbled, and afterwards became unmanageable. Mr. Coudert was not dragged by the horse when thrown, but was struck on his left foot. His injury is a bad one. A compound fracture of the large bone of the left leg, and a fracture of the smaller bone, were discovered. Two pieces of bone were removed by Dr. Donohue of New Brunswick, assisted by Dr. Dana of Metuchen, and Dr. Neilson of New Market.

Got His Hurts from Falling Down.

Justice Crossley has dismissed the complaint made a week ago by Patrick Ageny against Special Marshal Louis Conrad. Ageny claimed that Conrad beat and kicked him. The alleged assault was said to have occurred while Ageney was under arrest. Conrad testified that he did not abuse Ageny, and it was shown that the latter probably received his injuries from tumbling about on the pavement while intoxicated.

Killed By Bee Stings.

Samuel Thompson, a Piscataway farmer, was driving his team of horses along the road between New Market and Stelton, yesterday, when one of them was attacked with blind staggers and fell against a number of bee-hives along the fence in front of a farmhouse. The bees fiercely attacked both horses, and the animals died from the effects of the stings.

Next!

A double sunflower, seven inches in diameter, and two inches thick, has been sent THE PRESS by Hugo Welgman who raised it. Thus the record is opened for the season. Who will beat it?

The market is flooded with decoctions under the head of Root Beer. Why should you experiment on such goods when the genuine Hires' Root Beer can be had? It is known to be a safe, delicious, and healthful temperance drink.

—A Remington type writer is advertised for sale in another column.

Reputable dealers throughout the length, breadth and depth of our glorious land fortunately keep the genuine Hires' Root Beer in stock. Did you ever try it? It is easy to make, and ever so delicious, and it is such a safe drink.

WHO IS THE LIAR?

If THE PRESS is, it Will Give the Children's Home $25.

The Somerset street alleged editor who doesn't know how to spell encyclopedia, says that THE PRESS obtained its biographical sketch of the late Daniel T. VanBuren, Brigadier-General, from data contained in a work issued by the Appletons. The biographical sketch which appeared in THE PRESS of July 17 was never in print before it appeared in these columns; and the alleged editor who stole it word for word from the columns of THE PRESS, is only trying to cover his theft with a falsehood when he says that it was not original with THE PRESS.

A PRESS reporter wrote the article in question; and this paper will cheerfully donate $25 to the Plainfield Children's Home, if anyone can prove that the article was not entirely original in this office. Most of the information contained in the article was obtained from verbal sources, as is often necessary, in journalistic circles, on such occasions; otherwise one or two slight inaccuracies might have been avoided. The writer of it never saw in any printed work, whether book or newspaper, any biographical sketch of General VanBuren, till after the sketch, stolen later, word for word, by the Somerset street "editor," appeared in THE PRESS.

We have seen many biographical works, but never "Appleton's Enclycopedia of American Biography," and the statement of the "intelligent" Somerset street editor that there is such a volume, doesn't tend to prove that there is. At any rate, THE PRESS challenges the "editor" who stole from its columns its biography of the late Gen. VanBuren, to publish in parallel columns the VanBuren biographical sketch which appeared in THE PRESS of July 17 and in his paper of July 19, and whatever biographical sketch "Appleton's Enclycopedia of American Biography" contains. Whether or not he tells the truth in charging THE PRESS with copying from the work to which he pretends to give late credit, will then be even more apparent, if possible, than now. If he desires to have the Plainfield Children's Home get $25, now is his opportunity.

COL'S DAUGHTER AND DRUGGIST'S SON.

His Grandfathers a Jay and Hers a Vanderbilt.

One of the most admired of the young women who occasionally favor the higher circles of Plainfield society with their presence, is Miss Louisa Shepard, niece of Mr. and Mrs. A. D. Shepard of East Front street. She is a granddaughter of the late Vanderbilt and "divinely tall." From her mother she inherits intellect, modesty and kind-heartedness in an unusual degree. Her many friends in this city will be interested in the following from a recent issue of her father's paper, the Mail and Express:

The engagement is announced of Miss Louisa Shepard, daughter of Col. and Mrs. Elliott F. Shepard, to Mr. William Jay Schieffelin.

Mr. Schieffelin is the son of William H. Schieffelin, Esq., and partner in his father's great chemical and drug firm of W. H Schieffelin & Co., whose warehouses are in William street, at the corner of Beekman street, and laboratory in Front street. Next year this house will celebrate its centennial, it having been established by the great-grandfather and great-great-uncle of its present young scion in 1791.

His grandfather, Samuel B. Schieffelin, is still a silent partner, 80 years of age and appearing to be only 60.

All four of his grandparents are living, as well as both of his parents. Mrs. William H. Schieffelin and her daughter, Miss Eleanor, are traveling in England with Mrs. Schieffelin's brother, Col. William Jay, and family. His grandparents, the Hon. and Mrs. John Jay, are at their country seat at Bedford, Westchester county.

He is a graduate of Columbia College School of Mines, and is a Ph. D. of Goettingen University, and a fellow of the Chemical Society of London. He is an active member of the Seventh Regiment. Both of the young people have been the objects of many congratulations from both sides of the Atlantic.

He is 25 and she is 20. He is 6 feet 1 inch, and she is 5 feet 11 inches, and every one says they have always been meant for each other.

TENNIS CHAMPIONS.

Messrs Hyde and Jacobus Win After an Exciting Contest.

(From the Central Times.)

The outcome of last Saturday's championship tennis tournament for doubles is the recognition of Frank Hyde and Russell Jacobus as champions of Plainfield. The contests were entered into with much zest, during the afternoon, at the Central avenue courts. The charming weather warranted the presence of many fair spectators who made merrier the happy event.

The Rev. Messrs Dilts and Goodrich opened the series of events by beating Sherwood West and Archie Cox. The Rev. Mr. Richards and Albert Tierney beat Harry West and Arthur Beebe. Russell Jacobus and Frank Hyde beat Fred Walz and Howard Beebe. In the finals, Messrs Goodrich and Dilts beat Messrs Richards and Tierney. Frank Hyde and Russell Jacobus won the championship by beating Messrs Goodrich and Dilts by the following score: 6-2; 6-4; 6-3; the last named winning only one set—7-9. The younger players deserve considerable praise for their fine playing. Mr. Richards and Mr. Dilts are a strong pair and many persons looked upon them as the winners.

SALEM'S SNAKE WOMAN.

Leading a Hermit's Life With Rattlers as Her Only Companions.

Martha Ann Tillson, the singular character who died at Salem, Ind., recently, was known as the "Snake Woman." Many were the stories afloat about her during her lifetime, as she would associate with no one. She lived in a little cabin at the foot of Twelve O'clock Knob, and led a hermit's life, having no one to share her abode except snakes. By the few who were ever allowed to see the interior of her cabin it is said to have literally swarmed with her strange companions, with which she ate and slept, and which were to be seen lying in her bosom and coiled about her neck, body and limbs whenever she was caught sight of.

Her extraordinary predilection for these unpleasant creatures is supposed to have arisen from a morbid feeling that she was, like them, hated of men; for, naturally deformed, she received in addition an injury to the spine while an infant, and, though perfectly sound of mind, was of so sensitive a nature as to render her miserable and uneasy in the presence of any but her parents, as she imagined herself an object of loathing and hatred to them. This she seemed to feel while still a little child, for her peculiar friendship began then.

She was observed to steal away every day with a pan of milk, and on being followed was found to be caressing a dozen or so hideous rattlesnakes, while they drank from the vessel which she held in her lap. Horrified, her parents tried to reason with her, then to punish, and finally to confine her in an endeavor to break her of her fondness for the reptiles, but she pined so for her pets that they feared she would die if kept from them. She evinced even stronger distaste for human society as she grew older, and, since the death of her parents, has withdrawn entirely from any association with her kind, living wholly on the product of a small garden cultivated by herself and of half a dozen chickens, which the snakes seemed to know were not legitimate prey, and left unmolested.

She was a little, fair woman of about forty-five, with sandy hair, very abundant and long, which she wore in a number of tight plaits, which, combined with her deformity and the odd, miscellaneous style of dressing, the result of her refusal to hold any communication with a fellow-being, served to make her a most remarkable-looking object. She was looked upon as a witch by the negroes about, who declared her to be possessed of the evil eye, and hated and feared her accordingly, though her life was a most harmless, quiet one.

She had been dead some days when discovered, and her dead body was literally covered with a writhing mass of snakes, which had to be killed before it could be removed, for the reptiles turned viciously on all approaching the remains. On her heart was found coiled a large rattlesnake, dead.

The inquest proved that the woman's was a natural death, and it is probable that the snake died of grief for its mistress. She left no heirs, and a few nights after her burial the house was burned down, it is supposed by some of her neighbors, as the greatest horror was felt for the place, which was still infested with snakes.

CHOICE EXTRACTS.

—Make your long prayers in private, and your short ones in public.—Watchman.

—It is thy duty oftentimes to do what thou wouldst not; thy duty, too, to leave undone what thou wouldst do.—Thomas a Kempis.

—Piety and true morality are but the same spirit differently manifested. Piety is religion with its face toward God; morality is religion with its face toward the world.—Tryon Edwards.

—Painful it is to be misunderstood and undervalued by those we love. But this, too, in our life, must we learn to bear without a murmur, for it is a tale often repeated.—Hyperion.

—If you want reality, you can not see it; the unseen is the real. If you want a shadow, you can see it. Things which can be seen by the eye are temporal things which, are not seen are spiritual. I wish I could get you to realize that every thing we can see is a shadow; and what we can not see is the substance. Ah! sirs; I wish you really thought this. We should not be so vexed and worried if we said: "These are shadows."—Spurgeon.

Sick Headache

IS a complaint from which many suffer and few are entirely free. Its cause is indigestion and a sluggish liver, the cure for which is readily found in the use of Ayer's Pills.

"I have found that for sick headache, caused by a disordered condition of the stomach, Ayer's Pills are the most reliable remedy."—Samuel C. Bradburn, Worthington, Mass.

"After the use of Ayer's Pills for many years, in my practice and family, I am justified in saying that they are an excellent cathartic and liver medicine—sustaining all the claims made for them."—W. A. Westfall, M. D., V. P. Austin & N. W. Railway Co., Burnet, Texas.

"Ayer's Pills are the best medicine known to me for regulating the bowels, and for all diseases caused by a disordered stomach and liver. I suffered for over three years from headache, indigestion, and constipation. I had no appetite and was weak and nervous most of the time. By using three boxes of Ayer's Pills, and at the same time dieting myself, I was completely cured."—Philip Lockwood, Topeka, Kansas.

"I was troubled for years with indigestion, constipation, and headache. A few boxes of Ayer's Pills, used in small daily doses, restored me to health. They are prompt and effective."—W. H. Strout, Meadville, Pa.

A Serious Mistake.

To "clean out" the bowels by strong purgative medicines, that weaken them, is a grave mistake. Take those reliable little sugar-coated "Pleasant Purgative Pellets," prepared by Dr. R. V. Pierce. They are mild, but prompt in relieving sick headache, bilious attacks, pain in region of kidneys, torpid liver, and in restoring a healthy, natural action to the stomach and bowels. 25 cents a vial. One "Pellet" a dose.

—Our melon-choly is due to Mr. J. B. Hatfield's liberality in placing before us for mastication a choice melon. It soon made us feel like aldermen, we were so puffed up. Don't do so any more Jessee, for if you do, all hands will have to be hooped.

ALAS, FOR FLEETING LOVE.

A Bride of Two Months Cruelly Treated by Her Husband.

Plainfield people will be shocked to learn that the brilliant society wedding which took place among the colored people of the city two months ago, as told exclusively in THE PRESS, has resulted in a series of tragic incidents after the briefest kind of a dream of bliss.

Thursday evening, May 1, Alice White, one of Plainfield's colored belles, was wedded to John Cooley, of Mentclair, at which place the couple have since resided. Yesterday, angered because his wife had refused to leave at his bidding a house where she was at work, Cooley went to his home, 41 New street, and began to demolish everything in the house that belonged to Alice.

He broke a large stove into pieces, shattered chairs and bedstead and a small piano belonging to Mrs. Cooley's son, broke the dishes, and smashed an alarm clock into fragments. Not satisfied with this, he procured the kerosene oil can and ruined all his wife's clothing by saturating it with oil. He poured kerosene over the bedding, too. All the the time he shouted and cursed. The neighbors did not attempt to molest him until he was about to ignite the saturated goods. Then they warned him not to set fire to the house. One man went to the window with a pistol and dared the mad negro to set fire to the house, threatening to shoot if the man lit the clothes. Cooley, on seeing the pistol, left the house at a break-neck speed, and has not since been seen.

After discovering her loss, Mrs. Cooley went to Justice Milligan's court and had a warrant issued for her husband's arrest on a charge of malicious mischief and threatening to kill her. She also accuses him of bigamy.

The couple had been married only four days when Cooley informed his wife that he had been married three times and had another wife living. On July 4 he told her while eating dinner that he intended to kill her. The next day he failed to bring anything to the house for her to eat, and for five days she was left in the same condition. To save herself from starving she obtained food from the neighbors. She succeeded in obtaining a position with a family in Upper Montclair. While she was at work at this place yesterday her husband, accompanied by Officer McNamara, rang the front door bell and informed the lady of the house that he wanted his wife to come home, and had an officer to make her come. When Mrs. Cooley was informed of the presence of her husband and the officer she was very much surprised, and told them that she could not come until her day's work was over, which would be at 7 o'clock. The officer then told Cooley to come away, as she would be home in time enough for him. The angry husband then went home and began the destruction of his household goods.

Mrs. Cooley had worked for many families in Plainfield. She was a widow before marrying Cooley, and has one child. It is said that Cooley's other wife is in Boston.

Only One Man's Opinion.

In the New York Saturday Review of last week is published the following reference to the proposed monument to be erected in this city:

Another soldiers' monument is to be erected, this time at Plainfield, N. J., and the design has some original features, which render it well worth attention. It consists of a plain column, not Corinthian, standing on a hexagonal base, and carrying in its first section a bronze trophy with die containing the State and National colors of the arms of New Jersey. Three piers project from the base on which allegorical figures, "victory," "liberty" and "mustered out," will stand. The capital of palm leaves is weak and inartistic, and the ornament (?) that stands upon it is worse, and should be dispensed with. The American eagle surmounts the whole. With the exception mentioned the design is highly creditable to the local designer, General James S. Negley.

Plainfield's Third Baseman Shows Them All How.

A number of Plainfield's baseball-fiends went to Bergen Point, yesterday afternoon, to see third baseman Lee of the Crescents play with the Bayonnes again. They were well satisfied, and came away proud of the fact that Lee was the only man on the two nines that played at all. Everybody on the Bayonnes struck out but Lee; he batted Currie with ease, played his position without an error and got in one of his phenomenal one-hand catches of a hot liner.

Judge McGregor's Will.

The will of Judge John McGregor, of Newark, has just been filed in the State Department. He leaves his estate, valued at about a million, to his son Austin H., and three daughters, Ada, Jesse, and Violet. Among the real estate in Newark bequeathed is the Sunday Call building, the Broad street store known as the Iron Front, and the family mansion at 1016 Broad.

Will Tell of Children's Life in the Slums.

For the benefit of the Fresh Air Fund, the children of the Dunellen Presbyterian church will this evening render a cantata, and the Rev. W. C. Stinson will give a fifteen minutes' talk on the children's life in the slums of New York. The admission is but 25 cents, and refreshments will be served to all who attend.

Borough Real Estate Transfers.

Recent transfers of real estate in North Plainfield included the following: Joseph Bolster.l and wife to Walter B. Thorn; Henry A. Clay and wife to Matilda A. Clay; Elias R. Pope and wife to Wm. Blair; Anna Eder and others to Wm. J. Eder; Jane Roome to Jos. O. Osgood.

Washingtonville Visitors and Crops.

N. S. Conover of Burlington, is visiting his friend, W. H. Rogers, at Highland Farm.

Miss Etta Stam of Brooklyn, has been spending a pleasant visit at her cousin's Miss Nettie Beeching.

Miss Annie Bromer has returned to her home in Brooklyn, after a pleasant visit to her friends, the Milligans, at Maple Cottage.

Mrs. S. H. Beeching, with her daughter, of Basking Ridge, is spending a few weeks with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Elias Allen.

The two Misses Hiscock and Miss Mary Rich of Philadelphia, are visiting at the home of their aunt, Mrs. Underhill, at Fairview Farm.

The large washout caused by the freshet last Summer, near Wilson's stone cracker, has not been filled in yet. It is a menace to the traveling public, as only a light railing protects the people from driving over. The attention of the township committee is respectfully called to its dangerous condition.

The hay harvest is now almost over. The crop is a good one and of the finest quality. The oat harvest, which will commence next week if the weather keeps fine, promises to be one of the largest in a number of years. The grain is plump and if gathered safely will be of good quality, with fair prices of cereals in the open market. The farmers see light ahead and think the hard pinch of the past few years, which has driven so many farmers out of the country into the towns, is a thing of the past.

Grocers by the Sea.

The delegates of the Retail Grocers' Association of New Jersey arrived at Atlantic City, yesterday afternoon, to attend their third annual convention, which opened then. They are President I. O. Fatlen, Passaic; Vice President W. W. Larkin and Secretary Mitchell, Trenton; Andrew Love, Geo. W. Rockfellow, Jas. K. Arnold and J. A. Smith, of this city; J. Null, Westford; William H. William, John Love, J. Albert Snyder, Trenton; Robert W. Mull, Morrisville; M. W. Larkin, Gloucester; J. W. Schuppman, Rahway; J. L. Patton, J. I. Baird, Passaic; P. V. Flynn, John Coale and A. M. Keuzie, Newark; W. P. Harmon, James Gibson, R. D. Conklin, John Schraeder, J. I. Brett, John Hendrie and Henry Wardle, Paterson; William H. Gilbey and Frederick Doeble, Westfield; William Howard, George Lonard, Rahway; J. V. Hubuard, James Noughton and R. S. Atkinson, New Brunswick; L. J. Mayer, Gloucester. A number of the Pittsburg grocers who are at Atlantic City on a visit will attend the deliberation of the body.

Escape of the Horse Counselor Lindabury Drove.

A large gray horse belonging to Palmer Skillman, who has leased for the Summer beautiful "Edgewood," the home of R. F. M. Chase, has disappeared. The horse broke his halter last Monday night, sometime before morning, and getting out in the yard forced the gate open to the garden where he enjoyed himself rolling on a lot of vegetables. Then he filled himself with sweet corn and finding freedom a pretty good sort of a thing, broke down the fence which borders on the Wauchung mountains.

He has not been seen since although two men have searched the wide, wide World. He is a fine large animal about 16 or 17 hands high. Any one finding him will receive a reward by returning him to his owner.

Transfers of City Realty.

The following deeds recorded in the Union County Clerk's office, tell of the recent real estate transfers in Plainfield:

William Battenfield of New York, to Frank Linke of North Plainfield, land on Front street, ½ acre, $7,000.

Michael F. Marcley and wife of Plainfield, to Sarah L. Hobbie of Plainfield, land on North side of Broadway, 50x196, $1,000.

James E. Crane and wife of Philadelphia, to Jeremiah Manning, of Plainfield, land on Dunellen avenue, 99x925, $1,000.

Central New Jersey Land Improvement Company to Alice Gleason of Plainfield, land on Northwest side Shore street, 100 feet Southwest from Stebbins place, 45x120, $380.

A Big Catch in Little Waters.

When the members of the Manhattan Athletic Club of New York want to enjoy themselves in the country they visit Plainfield's suburbs. At their last visit they gave a sporting exhibition before their friends on the grounds D. S. Lord, West Seventh street. During the day one of the men cast hook and line into a tiny pond on the Lord grounds and dragged forth a large eel weighing more than two pounds.

Members of the club will visit the same place again next week. They will be accompanied by Robinson, the club trainer.

Will Celebrate The Cancellation of Their Debt.

Subscriptions covering the entire mortgage debt of the Park Avenue Baptist church were finally completed last Sunday. In honor of that event and to rejoice over it, a social gathering will be held in the chapel of that church, this evening.

Thousands have been relieved of indigestion and loss of appetite by a single bottle of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. The use of this medicine, by giving tone and strength to the assimilative organs, has made innumerable cures of chronic dyspepsia. Price $1. Worth $5 a bottle.

SCIENTIFIC SPECIALS.

THE chief chemist of the London Gas Company has succeeded in making from the refuse of a gas retort a perfect emerald. The cost of making the gem, however, was many times greater than that for which a natural stone would be purchased at a jeweler's.

OZONE is now produced by a new electrical process, the details of which are not given. It is stated that it is extracted from the atmosphere instead of direct from oxygen, as formerly. The hygienic and commercial value of the new invention, should it prove successful, can not easily be estimated.

THE heart contracts with power enough to send a column of blood 7½ to 9 feet high. At every beat of a heart of average size and strength, the force exerted is equal to moving over 50 pounds; or to lifting a pound weight upward a distance of 3½ to 4½ feet, say 4 feet; or to carrying 4 pounds 1 foot upward.

ACCORDING to naturalists, a scorpion will produce 65 young, a common fly will lay 144 eggs, a leech 150, a spider 170, a frog 1,100. A female moth will produce 1,100 eggs and a tortoise 1,000; a gall insect has laid 50,000 eggs, a shrimp 6,000. One naturalist found over 12,000 eggs in a lobster, another 21,000. Leuwenhoeck computes 4,000,000 as the crab's share.

A MEDICAL crank, Dr. Weissmann, of Germany, believes that the artificial modification of animals can be transmitted to a new generation. As an experiment, in proof of his belief, he has cut off the tails of about 900 white mice, and he expects that the next generation will be either a race of stub-tailed mice, or mice entirely without caudal ornamentation.

SOME interesting experiments upon the nature and origin of the light emitted by the fire-fly have been lately made by Prof. S. P. Langley. From the spectroscope he finds the heat given out is scarcely appreciable. That the light is a chemical product would seem to be established by the fact that it decreases by products which check combustion (e. g. nitrogen), and increases by products which aid combustion (oxygen), and that the product of the process is apparently carbon dioxide.

IN a recent English review in an article on "Darwinism," the author says that the fundamental objection to the theory is that it rests upon an assumed fact for which there is no authority. "Two white spots on a distant hill appear both alike; to us, at our distance, they are white spots only, while, in fact, one is a block of stone and the other a sheep, and there is no single point of resemblance except their color. Exactly so the supposed simplicity of a living germ is not a fact of nature, but only the expression of our own blindness."

WE have heard of bread-cutting and boot-cleaning by electricity, and are now told by a German technical magazine (the Elektrotechniker) that the coffee in a certain Berlin cafe is brewed by the same agent, says the Caterer. In the center of the room are several large glass jars, through which passes a platinum wire in spiral form. The electricity, on heating the wire, speedily raises the temperature of the water in the jars to the boiling point and prepares the coffee in the sight of everybody. Lastly, a small electric railway transmits the coffee to the various tables, so that the guests may help themselves to their liking.

MODERN physiologists, says a Berlin correspondent of the London Lancet, regard the pre-frontal part of the brain as the seat of character and intellect. After the removal of this part in dogs and monkeys, no paralysis of any muscles or loss of sensibility occurs, but singular changes in the behavior, emotions and character of the animals have been observed. They become livelier, restless, impatient, irritable, quarrelsome and violent. Their movements seem purposeless, and their attention to what is going on around them and their intelligence are diminished. These observations have been confirmed by similar phenomena in the case of human beings.

MATTERS MILITARY.

THE German Empress appeared on review the other day at the head of a regiment of cuirassiers of which she is Colonel, clad in army uniform.

FRANCE'S census of carrier pigeons shows that in time of war the Government would have at its disposal upward of a quarter of a million of them.

THREE times within the last eighteen years the German army has been equipped with new rifles, at a total expense of $30,000,000. They have been used for nothing except for drills and dress parades.

IT is stated that a German artillery officer has succeeded in making a new explosive from carbolic acid and that a shell filled with this material possesses a power hitherto unobtained. Experiments made with these shells, thrown from mortars, have all, it is stated, proved highly successful.

ONE of the features of military drill in the Russian army is the training of soldiers to swim in battalions, at the same time using their weapons. At the recent annual military maneuvers in the presence of the Czar a fine exhibition of proficiency was given in this direction. A large force of infantry swam across a wide lake in full marching order, with the help of fascines made of reeds and rushes or of inflated sheepskins. At the same time they kept up a lively fire on the boats of a supposed enemy who were disputing their passage.

THE official report in the German Reichstag by Commissioner Major Caede showed that the Russian army, according to the plan of mobilization for 1889, on a war footing, was 2,579,000. That of Germany was only 2,800,000 or 2,900,000, including 177,680 drilled reserve men. That of France was 3,226,000 and 174,000 drilled reserve men. Germany had two or three hundred thousand fewer men than France. The army of Austria, with Hungary, had a war footing of 1,150,000, and that of Italy 1,090,000, so that the triple alliance powers have 5,140,000 in all against the 5,805,000 of Russia and France, that is, about 660,000 men fewer.

THINGS IN GENERAL.

THE population of the earth doubles itself in 360 years.

MICHIGAN has paid off a debt of over $7,000,000 since 1860, and is now free from debt.

THERE are 200,000 more Germans in New York City than in any second-class city in Germany.

PROPERTY to the value of $123,000,000 was consumed by fire in the United States during 1889, an increase of $13,000,000 over the preceding year.

IT is estimated that the regular insurance companies of the United States will disburse during 1890 the sum of $83,000,000 in death, endowment and dividend claims. It is an average of $1,000 for every minute in the year.

DR. FLINT is quoted as saying: "I have never known a dyspeptic to recover vigorous health who undertook to live after a strictly regulated diet, and I have never known an instance of a healthy person living according to a strictly dietetic system who did not become a dyspeptic."

THE postal agent at the place commonly known in this country as Aspinwall has notified the postal department at Washington that "the geographical and official name of this town is Colon," and letters received at the office addressed Aspinwall will be returned as misdirected.

ACCORDING to the New Orleans Times-Democrat the census returns from some parishes in Louisiana indicate that the whites are increasing in a greater ratio than the blacks in that State. In Red River Parish, for instance, the increase in the last decade has been: whites, 44.2 per cent.; negroes, 27.3 per cent.

BUT few persons who view a passenger train as it goes thundering past have an idea that it represents a cash value of from $75,000 to $120,000, but such is the case. The ordinary express trains represent from $83,000 to $90,000. The engine and tender are valued at $10,500; the baggage car, $1,000; the postal car, $2,000; the smoking car, $5,000; two ordinary passenger cars, $10,000 each; three palace cars, $15,000 each; total $83,000. Many of the trains which pull up to or out from the Grand Central Depot, New York, are worth $150,000.

A YOUNG New York millionaire, who is called "Eugene Aram" at the clubs, because he sits "remote from all" and mopes, frankly admits that he takes no interest in any thing in the world—races, base-ball, yachts and other matters that generally engage the attention of young men in good health like himself, with a great fortune to spend. He got tired of them long ago. "The truth is," he says, "I began life too early. I have been cursed by too much money. I wish I had been born poor. The poison of riches has made me unfit for any thing but an ennuied and useless creature. I know my case would not awaken much sympathy, but I tell you sir, its a hard one."

THE Photographic Society of Geneva, Switzerland, has just made an interesting experiment. It has been observed in the case of mature married couples who have lived together for a long period of years that, harmonious in thought and feeling, and subject to the same conditions of life, they acquire a strong facial resemblance. The society took the photographs of seventy-eight couples, to see to what extent this facial resemblance prevails. The result, says a London paper, is that in twenty-four cases the resemblance in personal appearance of the husband and wife was greater than that of brother and sister; in thirty cases it was equally great; and in only twenty-four was there a total absence of resemblance.

INDUSTRIAL BREVITIES.

THE wool clip in the United States for 1889 was 262,000,000 pounds.

IN Austria, a petroleum flame is now made to spin 1,500 yards of glass thread per minute, which is used not only for cloth but for chains, brushes, etc.

ABOUT 5,000 barrels per day of crude petroleum are consumed for fuel in Chicago. In the use of this oil for fuel about 500,000 tons of soft coal per annum are supposed to be displaced.

IT is stated that at least one-half of the sugar crop of the world is produced from beets. Sugar can be produced from many sources, but beets and the sugar cane give the cheapest sources.

"STRAWBERRY TEA" is the outcome of a new industry in Germany in the utilization of the young leaves of the strawberry plant as a beverage. Having been carefully dried, they are used instead of Chinese tea, which they closely approach in taste.

SOME experiments made at the Royal Polytechnic School at Munich show, curiously enough, that the strength of camel's hair belting reaches 6,815 pounds per square inch, while that of ordinary beltings ranges between 2,260 and 5,260 pounds per square inch, and the camel's hair belt is also unaffected by acids.

NINE-TENTHS of the dolls sold in this country are said to come from Germany, and the principal seat of manufacture there is Sonneberg, in Thuringen, a town of about 10,000 inhabitants. Doll-making is almost the entire industry of the place. It is not remunerative, as the people are very poor, owing to the low wages paid.

AN electric motor is in successful operation for wood-sawing in Lewiston, Me. It is a six-horse power and with a twenty-six-inch saw, which was driven at a velocity of 1,450 revolutions per minute. The proprietor claims that with a six-horse power electric motor he can do more work than with a ten-horse power steam engine.

SHAMOY or wash leather, properly chamois leather, is so called because originally and when of the best quality it was made from the chamois or wild goat inhabiting the Alps and Pyrenees. It is now made chiefly from the skin of deer, goats and sheep. It is essentially distinguished from other kinds of leather in being dressed in oil without salt, alum, or tan, and in the grain being taken off. The skins are brought to a state of pelt by liming and washing. The buff color is imparted by dipping into gamboge, not to tan, but to dye them.

The World's Greatest Shot Tells How to Handle a Gun.

Champion Bogardus Still Enthusiastic—Sound Health and Strong Nerves for the Man Who Shoots—Plenty of Bag and Little Game.

[COPYRIGHT, 1890.]
[Special Correspondence.]

JUST now, it may not be generally remembered that the art of shooting swift-flying birds, or "little birds," as the quail, plover, snipe, woodcock, etc., were once derisively called, is of comparatively recent origin, and at the beginning was practiced only by those who came here from Europe after having acquired their skill there. Those who lived on the Western prairies and other places where game abounded could kill a buck or fat turkey with the rifle. There were a few old-fashioned smooth-bores in use, but the shot used was buck-shot or other large sizes. Powder and shot were dear. The use of the pointer and setter was practically unknown, and the men who used good guns and small shot in the pursuit of small game were not favorably regarded. It was not believed that the game was worth the powder, to say nothing at all about the shot. The shotgun was called the "squaw gun" by Indians and hunters.

Born in Albany County, New York, I began to shoot at the age of fifteen. At that time I was a big strong lad. I am now quite six feet tall, powerful, sinewy, and muscular. I have never used tobacco in any form and have always enjoyed good health. I possessed, as I believe, the natural gifts which will enable a man in time and with proper opportunity to become a first-rate field shot; that is, a quick, true eye and steady nerve. The game in Albany County chiefly consisted then of woodcock and ruff grouse, rather difficult birds for young beginners. In the fall of 1856 I moved West, settling on the Sangamon river, near Petersburg, Illinois. It was a veritable paradise for a sportsman. It was a broken, swampy country. Deer and turkeys abounded, and there were vast numbers of quail, snipe, pinnated grouse and immense flocks of ducks and geese came every spring and fall. There was hardly a man there who could kill a snipe or a quail except myself, and the natives used to come out to see me shoot. One of the most famous hunters of the region laughed when he saw me loading with No. 8 shot for the first time. "That won't kill nothin', stranger," said he. "You can't stop quail with any thing lighter than No. 1 shot, nor prairie chickens 'sept BBs." He changed his opinion when he found I could kill ten to his one. The Sangamon country was and is a grand place for game.

To any one who can afford the expense and has the time to spare there need be no trouble in finding a good place to shoot. Of the Eastern States I know very little, but quail are more numerous, in most of the counties of Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Kentucky, Iowa, Missouri, Wisconsin and Minnesota than they have ever been before. Michigan and Northern Indiana are famous for snipe and duck, as are also Illinois, Iowa, Missouri and Minnesota. But perhaps the best general shooting is to be had in Northeastern Missouri and some parts of Iowa.

The prairies have been broken up, and when they now make their nests in the fields of the farmer, their nests are nearly all broken up and destroyed by the plow in the spring. Where parts of the prairie are left for pasturage the farmer burns these patches over late in the spring under the mistaken idea that it improves the young grass. This cuts up the supply of grouse, and seriously reduces the number each year. Many of the best snipe grounds have been drained and some even thickly built over, and the brakes and thickets where once the woodcock abounded have been cut up and cleared away. A love of shooting is rapidly spreading among farmers in the West, and many of these mistakes are likely soon to be rectified, as they really should be the most efficient preservers of the game.

To begin at an early age the practical acquirement of the art of shooting birds on the wing is a good thing, but any one who is able to walk abroad and carry a gun may attain fair proficiency in it. The number of men whose nervous temperament is such as to prevent this are very few indeed. Many have the natural gift of shooting, and, with abundant practice induced by their love of the art, become dead shots. By following proper methods and practicing much any one may become a good shot. Whenever convenient parents should let their sons learn to shoot. There need be no apprehension that an accident will occur, because the handling of guns prevents accidents instead of causing them. Two of the most important things to success in the field are the loading of the gun for the different varieties of game, and handling it when the bird is found and takes wing. A very common error is to use shot of a large size, with too much of it and too little powder. As long as the gun will burn it there is no danger of putting in too much powder, but the timid man can not be made to understand this.

The first thing to learn, having provided the gun, is how to handle it properly. He should be able to bring it up to his shoulder as clean and well as if it was loaded. This exercise should be continued until he is able to manage the gun with as great ease and facility as his bat while playing base-ball. A cardinal principle of this exercise is that under no circumstance should the muzzle of the gun be allowed to point at man, woman or child, whether loaded or unloaded, in the house or in the field, or, in fact, anywhere. When the young man handles the gun well unloaded, the next thing is to load.

Begin with light charges. For a breech-loader either the metal cases or paper cases, if he does not wish to use them more than once, may be used for his cartridges. They should be loaded lightly. If they are not, and the gun should kick, the youth or young man is very apt to fall into the bad habit of closing both eyes when he pulls the trigger, thus preventing him from ever becoming a good shot. He should stand upright, with his left foot in advance, and the right a little back to steady himself when he brings the gun to his shoulder as if to deliver fire.

At first the cartridges should be loaded with three or three and one-half drachms and an ounce of No. 8 or 9 shot. With these he may retire to a field, or some other safe place, and put up a target of paper a foot square against a tree or wall. Then retiring about sixty feet, he may load the gun, bring it up to his shoulder, with the left hand extended to the end of the stock, being careful to keep his finger from the top of the barrel so as not to interfere with the sight, taking aim along the top of a single, and along the rib of the gun if double-barrel, and when he has taken aim, pull the trigger.

It is natural for the beginner to shut his left eye in taking aim, and this is proper. I have heard men say that it is best to shoot with both eyes open, but I do not agree with them. Even in snap-shooting most good shots instinctively shut the left eye at the instant of firing.

After shooting, the youth should load again, and then examine the target to see how many shot he put into it and try again. The object of this is to get a good, quick aim, and to fire on the instant, with the gun firmly held and braced against the shoulder. Too long a time should not be taken in aiming. It is much better to fire on the instant of taking aim. After the consumption of a little powder and shot the young man will find that he can hit the target every time with the center of the charge. That is the way to kill, and he is now ready to begin on birds.

It is a well-known fact that one-half the shots made in the field are at birds which fly across the sportsman, or go quartering off from him, and most of the misses that occur are owing to the failure of the shooter to hold forward enough so that the center of the charge will be upon the bird when the shot reaches him. The center of the flight of shot should reach the line of his flight just where he will be when the line of the shot intersects his line of flight, not where he was when the aim was made. At a fast flying crossing pigeon I hold from eight to ten inches ahead; at a quartering bird from three to four inches. At a bird going straight away close to the ground, I hold right on; if rising, I shoot high. At an incoming bird I shoot right at the head, and rarely fail to kill. In applying these principles in the field, the kind of game, the distance and the season of the year must all be taken into account.

Probably the greatest shooting contest that ever occurred was between myself and Aubrey Coventry, for $5,000, at the Polo grounds, Brighton, England, Aug. 6, 1878.

We each had one hundred birds, thirty yards rise. I defeated my opponent by a score of 79 to 78. Over $100,000 changed hands on the result. The bookmakers asked me to name my own price if I would lose, but I told them I was an American sportsman, and would win if I could. Three of my most noted achievements (and to equal which I have a standing wager of 10 to 1 for any amount) are the following: I killed in succession at Dexter Park, Chicago, July 21, 1869, 100 single birds, tame doves. I killed 99 birds out of 100, single, 30 yards, 80 yards fall, from five ground traps, English rules, at Coney Island, July 2, 1880. I broke 5,500 glass balls in 7 hours, 19 minutes, 2 seconds, out of 5,854 shot at, in Madison Square Garden, New York, December 20, 1879. The challenge is still open.

We are making the best fire-arms to be found in the world in this country to-day. Americans on the whole are the best shots. In the English army there are many good shots at long range, but I fail to see the sense in lying on one's back and resting the gun on the toes, blaze away at a target 1,000 yards away. The Germans shoot off-hand at 200 or 300 yards distance, which I think is very much better. I should advise the American militia to adopt that style, because it will be found more useful in the field in actual warfare.

I expect to make a tour around the world next spring with my three sons, Edward, Peter and Henry, and if the saying be true, "there never was a man so strong, but what there was a stronger one," I shall be glad to meet him.

A. H. BOGARDUS,
Champion Wing Shot of the World.

THE HOUSEHOLD.

THESE ARE NICE.

Little Girls Love Handsome Aprons and These Ought to Please Them.

A little girl wearing a plain dress and a fresh, white apron always looks dressed up, and so much sweeter and prettier than the little miss whose dresses are made as nearly as possible like those worn by her mamma, that it seems strange that more mothers do not have the good sense to adopt the white-apron style.

Pretty nainsooks can be bought for a shilling and fifteen cents a yard, and embroidery and lace for trimming is so cheap that there are few who can not afford it. These little aprons are so easily washed and ironed that the mother ought not to deprive herself of the pleasure of seeing her little girl prettily dressed on the ground that the laundry work was thereby made too heavy. I know one mother whose little daughter has three white aprons, the best one of fifteen-cent nainsook, the other two of cream-colored seersucker made plainly. These last, when soiled, can be easily washed in a basin of warm water, and when dry are ready to be put on again without ironing, and the little girl always looks attractively dressed.

The best quality of cheesecloth or "seaside bunting," as it is called, is also pretty for aprons, and is kept looking nicely with very little trouble.

Figures 1 and 2 show two of the prettiest ways of making these aprons, and, by the way, the mother could not ask for a nicer pattern for a flannel skirt for her little girl than that represented by Fig. 1. The mother just referred to tells me that she also uses it to cut most of her little girl's dresses by. She has just finished a very pretty white dress which I must tell you about. It is cut by that pattern with a little change in the back where it is cut across at the waist line, and a straight breadth of the goods gathered on instead of the gored breadth represented. The front of the dress is all over embroidery, and it is worn over a guimpe of the same made with full sleeves. The pockets are left off, of course. The dress is finished around the bottom with a narrow ruffle of embroidery.

Ribbons are fastened at the waist line into the seams each side of the front breadth and tie in a careless bow at the back, hiding the seam where the skirt is joined to the waist. Ribbon bows are also fastened on the shoulders. When wearing it her aunt said the little girl "looks entirely too sweet for any use!" The same pattern is also pretty for a robe for a baby, and can be reduced in size with very little trouble. Another pattern should first be cut, allowing for high neck, and then cut down to proper proportions.

Fig. 3 is also a representation of an apron pattern, but is used for cutting dresses quite as often as for aprons. It is not pretty for any aprons except those of very thin material, but is pretty for dresses of either cotton or woolen. In summer it should be worn with a white guimpe having full sleeves, and for winter is pretty with a guimpe of velvet or cashmere in some bright color which harmonizes nicely with that used for the dress. A pretty and serviceable dress for school wear might be made of blue and white gingham with a guimpe of plain blue, if the mother objects to washing white guimpes.—Marie Sias, in The Housekeeper.

BATHING AND DIET.

Their Effects on the System by Purifying the Blood.

In the spring many people are inquiring what they shall "take" to purify the blood. Bathing, water-drinking, diet and fresh air are the only means by which the blood can be purified and these remedies are good at all seasons of the year. Oxygen is a general house cleaner; it saturates the blood and thus reaches every part of the system, and water is just as good and just as necessary for cleansing the tissues on the inside of the body as is is for keeping the outside of the body clean. It helps to dissolve the waste matter and put it in shape to be carried out of the system by the liver, kidneys and skin. Proper diet is necessary to keep the impurities out. What would be thought of a man who employed another to clear his garden of stones and rubbish and yet was himself all the time increasing the work by pitching in other stones and sticks because he enjoyed doing it? Yet, many a man sends for a Hercules in the person of a doctor to clear out his Augean stables, and yet keeps putting into his stomach the unwholesome dietery which induced his diseased condition.

The notion that many people have of purifying the blood by putting something into it is absurd—as though impure substances could have any purifying effect. Would soiled clothing be much improved by being washed in a decoction of burdock root or willow bark? Diseased blood is impure blood, defiled by want of proper action of the liver, skin and other purifying organs. What is needed is to set the liver, skin, kidneys, etc., to work, and one of the best means in the world is a run out of doors. Let one with blue lips and a pallid face start out for a brisk walk or run in the open air and in a short time he comes in with rosy lips, bright eyes and an altogether different countenance. The oxygen he has been taking in has served to wash out the effete matter and burn it up and he is a new man. Then take plenty of exercise in the open air, live in well ventilated rooms, eat simple, wholesome food, and drink freely of pure water and no other blood purifiers will be needed.

DR. J. H. KELLOGG.

PRACTICAL SUGGESTIONS.

CARELESSNESS in measuring and preparing a dish is often the cause of failure. When a recipe is found good, it should be followed exactly.

IT is not only an economy for housemakers to keep an account book, but it is a great satisfaction to know, from year to year, exactly what has been expended.

To remove claret stains from table linens, rub on salt as soon as possible, and wash in the usual way. If not entirely removed, apply lemon juice and dry in the sun.

WHAT is more disagreeable to use than a rusty flat-iron? Rub them with fine emery dust and sweet oil. If you can not make them smooth, send them to a factory and have them ground.

IF the stove is cracked, a good cement is made for it as follows: Wood ashes and salt in equal proportions, reduced to a paste with cold water, and filled in the cracks when the stove is cool. It will soon harden.

SAVE stale pieces of bread, and when an easy day comes, dry them thoroughly in an open oven, and with a rolling-pin crush as fine as dust. These, then, will always be at hand for preparing oysters, cutlets, croquetts, etc.

GO to bed at night to sleep; and not to think over the troubles of to-day, nor the anticipated trials of to-morrow. One woman said: "I plan my next day's work each night after retiring." Poor, little, nervous thing, she looked it.

KEEP celery fresh by rolling it in brown paper sprinkled with water, then in a damp cloth, and put it in a cool, dark place. Before preparing it for the table, submerge it in cold water and let it stand for an hour. It will be found very crisp.

WHEN furnishing a home, do not neglect to purchase pictures. They serve to recall pleasant memories and scenes, and when hung to harmonize with the furniture and in keeping with the use of the room, they are highly ornamental. Buy good ones, or none.

WHEN one is fatigued, tea is an efficient restorative. It forms an agreeable, warm drink, which is neither heating to the blood, nor oppressive to the stomach, particularly if taken slowly when one is sitting quietly. Large quantities, however, induce nervous disorders.

THE importance of letting the sunlight fall into all parts of our dwellings can not be too highly estimated. Good health is dependent on sunlight and pure air. An eminent physician has said: Sunlight should never be excluded, except when so bright as to be uncomfortable to the eyes.

SILVER, washed after each meal in very hot water, with sometimes a little ammonia in it, will be bright and shining for a long time without other cleaning. When a more thorough cleaning is necessary, use any good silver polish, being sure to rub lightly, as the bright lustre soon wears dull, and if it be plated, soon wears off.—Mrs. W. H. Maher; in Good Housekeeping.

Care of Lamps.

Lamps are a necessity in every household, even during the summer months. But it makes a great difference in the atmosphere of the home, whether the light is clear or dim. To insure a good light the burners of petroleum lamps should be kept bright. If they are allowed to become dull the light is uncertain, and owing to the absorption of heat by the darkened metal, smoke is the result. Once a month place the burners in a pan, covering them with cold water, to each quart of which a teaspoonful of washing soda has been added, and also a little soap. Boil slowly for one or two hours, and at the end of this time pour off the blackened water. Then pour enough boiling water into the pan to cover the burners, adding soap and soda in the same proportions as before. After boiling again a few minutes, pour off the water, rinse the burners with clear, hot water and rub dry with a soft cloth. The burners must be perfectly dry before the wicks are introduced.

Should the wicks become clogged with the particles of dust floating in the oil, and new ones not be desired, they may be boiled in vinegar and water, dried thoroughly, and put back in the burners. If wicks have done duty all winter, they should be replaced by new ones in the spring. Nickel burners may be boiled as well as brass ones. Time spent in the care of lamps is never wasted. A perfectly clean lamp that gives a brilliant light is a great comfort.—Western Rural.

SHE WANTED JUSTICE,

And, Like Many Others, Went to the Wrong Place for It.

During the closing minutes of the session of the court of general term in room No. 4 at the court-house yesterday, says the St. Louis Republic, a pale, grief-furrowed face might have been seen pressed against the glass panel of the door. The eyes were large and black, but dimmed with excessive weeping, and there were heavy black circles under them. Her dress was black and threadbare. For ten minutes she stared into the court-room, hesitating between fear and inclination. Meantime court had adjourned, the judges retired and all attorneys and loungers went quickly out. Still the woman held her place at the door. Presently some one passed, saw the woman, addressed a word or two to her, and then, opening the door for her, said to Clerk Brent:

"A lady to see the judge, Mr. Brent."

"The judge has retired, madam," said the clerk.

"Can't I see him, then?"

"I fear not."

"But couldn't I go to his residence?"

"That depends. Do you wish to see to see him on legal business?"

"I want to see him about my divorce case," said the woman, breaking down and crying quietly. "He hasn't been fair with me."

"Is your case in court?"

"Oh, I don't know, sir. It was set down for the April term, and it should have come up in April, you know, and now they tell me it's put over to October. My God! I can't wait; I can't wait so long."

"Did you have an attorney?"

"Yes, I had Mr. Blank first and he took all the money I had, $18, and then threw it up when he found I hadn't any more. Then I got Judge —— and he presented my petition, but he's never done any thing more, and now he's let them put it over till October. It's cost me nearly $50 already, and that is more than I can save in a year."

"Judge —— wouldn't treat you in that way willfully. He isn't that sort of man."

"So they told me, but I guess they're all alike," and she wrung her hands pitifully. "You see I haven't any money, and I can't get any relief. And he comes and beats me and robs me and threatens to take little Eva away from me. He says he has the right because he is my husband and I'm not able to care for her properly. But, oh! sir, he can't, can he? Don't you see if it goes over until October it will kill me. And God knows what will become of the baby. What shall I do, sir?"

"There's only one thing. You must get your attorney and come into court and make a showing of these facts."

"And I can't see the judge?"

"No, madam."

"But it isn't right. I don't understand it. I haven't been treated fairly, and if I could see the judge just a moment I know he couldn't refuse me."

"I'm very sorry, madam, but it's against orders."

"And I thought there was justice in the courts!" sobbed the woman, as she left the court-room.

How many others have cherished such illusions!

A MOTHER'S HEROISM.

She Dispatches a Ferocious Panther in the Wilds of Texas.

The wife of Morris Kapper, a ranchman owning an extensive place near here, says a letter from Harrold, Tex., had an adventure with a large female panther, in which the lady succeeded in killing the animal with a hoe. Her husband had requested her on leaving the house at dinner to send him some medicine, which he was taking at regular intervals, when these intervals occurred, which she did, dispatching her son, a boy of nine or ten, to his father, who was employed in his vegetable garden, situated about three hundred feet from the house. Her second child, a little girl of three, begged several times to go instead of her brother, so in the cool of the evening Mrs. Kapper, to gratify the child, sent her instead with the medicine.

The mother afterward following the trail, which was perfectly distinct, soon came upon a panther dragging the child by its little dress along the ground, but the weight prevented the animal from going faster than a walk; so, without its detecting her she ran back and caught up the hoe that her husband had left in the garden and returned. The panther had then dropped the child, but was still standing over it, and on seeing Mrs. Kapper began to snarl, showing its pointed teeth.

She ran up to it, when it again seized its prey in its teeth, but the heroic lady tore her child from its grasp, and putting it behind her, met the panther as it rushed at her, infuriated at the loss of its booty, with a blow of the hoe, which missing the head, yet severed its left ear from it. The panther paused in its attack on her and began to try and reach the wound with its mouth, screaming and tearing up the earth. Mrs. Kapper then brought the hoe down on its head with such force as to crush its skull, and the next moment the animal lay dead at her feet.

Another Scientific Discovery.

A wonderful discovery has been attracting the attention of scientists. A beam of sunlight is made to pass through a prism so as to produce the solar spectrum of rainbow. A disk, having slits or openings cut in it, is made to revolve, and the colored light of the rainbow is made to break through it and fall on silk, wool or other material contained in a glass vessel. As the colored lights fall upon it sounds will be given by the different parts of the spectrum, and there will be silence in other parts. If the vessel contains red worsted and the green light flashes upon it, loud sounds will be given. Only feeble sounds will be heard when the red and blue parts of the rainbow fall upon the vessel, and other colors make no sound at all.

Probably a Failure.

Smith—Jones didn't make much of a success with that patent scheme of his, did he?

Brown—No, I guess not. He still lives in Brooklyn.

WASHINGTON TOPICS

The Bankruptcy Bill Passed by the House.

A LABOR AMENDMENT ADOPTED

The Lodge Election Bill to be Modified by the Senate Committee.

The Presidential Party Returns From Pennsylvania—Several Postmasters Appointed—A Bill to Incorporate the Red Cross Society—$10,000 for Dr. Mary Walker.

WASHINGTON, July 25.—The journal having been approved, the House proceeded to vote upon the committee amendments to the Bankruptcy bill. These amendments are principally verbal and informal in their character.

The committee amendments having been disposed of, an amendment was adopted enforcing the laws of the States giving labor for wages preference.

The vote was then taken on the minority substitute, known as the "Voluntary Bankruptcy bill." This was disagreed to—yeas, 74; nays, 125.

The Torrey bill was then passed—yeas 117; nays, 84.

THE ELECTION BILL.

The Lodge Measure Has Been Modified by the Senate Committee.

WASHINGTON, July 25.—The Republican members of the Senate Committee on Privileges and Elections have agreed upon a form in which the Lodge Federal Election bill will probably be laid before the full committee and before the Republican caucus in the near future.

The bill has been much simplified and has been, moreover, materially modified by the Republican members of the Senate Committee. The print of the bill as ordered yesterday does not represent the final action of the Republicans. It may be modified at a future conference or it may be modified in caucus.

As agreed to thus far the bill does not contain the domiciliary visit feature and the jury feature, which were so objectionable to the Democrats in the House of Representatives, and the conferrees have modified very distinctly the character of the offenses under the law and the punishments prescribed for them. Most of the work on the substitute has been done by Senator Hoar, the chairman of the Elections Committee, who has taken a particularly active interest in the subject.

THE BEHRING SEA TROUBLE.

The Publication of the Correspondence Removes a Cause of Irritation.

WASHINGTON, July 25.—The publication of the Behring Sea correspondence has removed the one cause of irritation that has vexed the two countries for several years. There is now, it is disclaimed, but one way our revenue cutters can search British vessels in Behring Sea, and that is under the protection of our navy. That fact is established, and the gravity of the controversy is therefore to that extent diminished.

BAR HARBOR, Me., July 25.—The publication of the correspondence between Mr. Edwardes and Mr. Blaine respecting the Behring Sea trouble caused a great sensatinn here, especially in the immediate circle of the Secretary of State's intimate friends and acquaintances, none of whom, however, have succeeded in getting him to say anything definite. Mr. Blaine is determined as much as possible to preserve his golden rule, and asserts that he will see no one further on the subject under any consideration whatever.

$10,000 For Dr. Mary Walker.

WASHINGTON, July 25.—Senator Evarts introduced a bill directing the Secretary of the Treasury to pay to Dr. Mary Walker the sum of $10,000 to reimburse her for her services and sufferings as an assistant surgeon in the Union army during the war of the rebellion.

Presidential Postmasters.

WASHINGTON, July 25.—The President sent to the Senate the following nominations: Postmasters—New York, Amos Roberts, Addison; Miss Cassie W. Hull, Bath; H. S. Beebe, Canisteo. New Jersey, Edward Gardner, Bayonne. Pennsylvania, James E. Ogle, Johnstown.

The Red Cross Society.

WASHINGTON, July 25.—Senator Sherman introduced a bill to incorporate the Red Cross Society, with Clara Barton, George Kennan, J. B. Hubbell and others as incorporators.

Return of the President.

WASHINGTON, July 25.—The Presidential party returned from Pennsylvania early this morning.

Accidentally Killed.

AMSTERDAM, N. Y., July 25.—Colonel William H. Husted, of Brooklyn accidentally shot and killed himself at his summer residence at Broadalbin, eight miles from here. He was putting a gun in a wagon in his barn, in order to go on a hunting expedition, when the gun was accidentally exploded and the charge passed through his heart. He was worth $7,000,000. Coroner Lefler, of Gloversville, has charge of the case and will hold an inquest.

Two Years for Editor Heywood.

BOSTON, July 25.—Ezra H. Heywood, publisher of The Word, was sentenced to two years imprisonment on the charge of sending obscene matter through the mails. The court overruled a bill of exceptions.

BEFORE THE PRESIDENT.

The Chief Magistrate Compliments the National Guard of Pennsylvania.

MT. GRETNA, Pa., July 25.—Hundreds of visitors were here to greet the Presidential party when it arrived. The trip from Washington was accomplished in four hours.

The party which consisted of President Harrison, Secretary Procter, Postmaster-General Wanamaker, Attorney General Miller, Major General Schofield, Col. Earnest and Captain Taylor, of the Ordnance Bureau, were met at the station by a cavalry escort and conducted to General Snowden's headquarters.

Major John M. Carson, clerk of the Ways and Means Committee of the House of Representatives, and James R. Young, executive clerk of the Senate, were also with the party.

The President and his party reviewed the 9,000 troops, including the United States army detachment, and notwithstanding the heavy rain the men marched well and presented a fine appearance. The President, Secretary Proctor and General Schofield were much pleased with the movements of the National Guard and complimented them on their fine marching.

ELECTRIC LIGHT WAR.

The Schuylerville Catholics Excited and Trouble Expected To-Day.

SARATOGA, N. Y., July 25.—The electric light war at Schuylerville has broken out again after an armistice of three weeks. Judge Tappan, of Potsdam, having granted a permanent injunction restraining the people of Father Heffernan's parish from interfering with the planting of the poles in front of the church, the electric light people appeared on the ground and commenced to dig holes.

The church bell was rung and instantly several hundred men rushed from the Victory Mills and drove them away. The electric light people then called upon the Sheriff for protection, and it is believed the 22d Separate Company of Saratoga will be called to the scene to-day.

The parishioners are in a highly excited state and serious trouble is expected.

THE CLOAKMAKERS WIN.

Every Demand Made by the Strikers Agreed to by the Manufacturers.

NEW YORK, July 25.—The cloak operators' strike is settled. The manufacturers have agreed to everything demanded by the strikers.

According to the agreement, which was signed by both parties, all non-union hands are to be laid off and those who were locked out are to be taken on. The non-union hands will have the privilege of applying for work when they join the union. The inside contract system is to be abolished.

Differences hereafter are to be referred to the Executive Boards of the respective unions and the Cloak Manufacturers' Association before strikes or lockouts are ordered. All week tailors are to receive $15 a week and pressers $14.

Escape and Capture of a Lunatic.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., July 25.—Henry Eddy, who recently shot two men at Danbury while insane, escaped from Police Sergeant Wagner while en route to an asylum. When the train stopped at the depot Eddy was given permission to visit the toilet room in the end of the car. Just after the train started he dodged out of the door unseen by his guardian, and was not missed until the train had gone several miles away. He was captured in a New Haven brick yard.

Driver and Team Killed.

PITTSBURG, Pa., July 25.—Last night an express train on the West Pennsylvania Railroad struck a two horse team and driver at a crossing near Herr's Station. The driver and team were killed instantly. A gang of laborers who were constructing a sewer at the roadside became so frightened at the accident that they let go their hold on a large cast-iron pipe. The pipe fell into the ditch and upon two men, killing one and fatally injuring the other.

Accident on the Kearsarge.

BAR HARBOR, Me., July 25.—While practising outside with heavy guns an accident occurred on the Kearsarge which may prove fatal. The same gun which sunk the Alabama was the offender. After discharging a shell which weighed 180 pounds, it turned, striking the captain of the gun in the temple, making a severe wound. The man was carried to the hospital on board ship.

Young Ladies Take the Veil.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., July 25.—A large number of novices took the veil and were received into the Order of the Sisters of Charity at Mallndkrodt Convent here during the morning. The solemn ceremony was conducted by Rt. Rev. William O'Hara, Bishop of Scranton. The large chapel was densely filled with relatives and friends of the young ladies.

Called to Find Her Daughter Dead.

LAMBERTVILLE, N. J., July 25.—The dead body of Mrs. George Tyror of this place was discovered under peculiar circumstances. Mrs. Thomas Reamer, her mother, called to visit her, but getting no response to repeated knocking, she forced an entrance. Her daughter was found lying on the floor, dead, while a lighted lamp stood near her feet. She had only been married a few months. Heart disease was the cause.

Shot Five Times by His Wife.

NEW YORK, July 25.—James Cavanangh, a variety actor, was shot five times in the back by his wife, from whom he was separated, on 14th street, last night. The revolver was a 22 caliber and Cavanangh was not much injured, the bullets merely scratching the skin. Mrs. Cavanangh was arrested.

BLOWN TO DEATH.

Three Persons Killed and Several Injured by a Mysterious Explosion.

SAVANNAH, Ga., July 25.—W. J. Bullard's three-story brick boarding house, 203 Congress street, was blown up shortly after midnight. Three people were killed and six injured.

There were 12 people in the house. Most of the occupants were asleep and were hurled from their beds and either buried under the falling debris or thrown on top of it.

The names of the killed are: Mrs. W. J. Bullard, James Lockly and Gus Robie.

George Maxwell, colored, has been arrested and jailed on suspicion. He had been employed in the house but was discharged on Saturday night, when he swore that he would be revenged.

Workmen have been busy all day removing the debris. No signs of powder or dynamite have been discovered.

Many believe the house simply collapsed, but those who were in the neighborhood say that there was first an explosion, then the crash of the falling building.

UNCLE AGAINST NEPHEW.

Sensational Slander Suit About the Dead Body of an Infant.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., July 25—A sensational slander suit at East Providence will be watched with interest. Undertaker Carroll thought his nephew, who worked for him a number of years, had stolen certain articles and had him arrested.

The nephew retaliates by making several grave statements against his uncle. He said that the body of an infant was placed in the hands of Undertaker Carroll for burial. It was laid in an elegant casket, purchased by the parents, and left in Mr. Carroll's receiving room for interment.

At this time the undertaker received an order for a similar casket, but having none on hand, took the body of the first child from its resting place, depositing it in a rough pine box, and resold the coffin to his later customer.

Young Carroll claims that the infant's body was covered with acid, nailed up in the box and thrown into the cellar, where it lay for months.

Undertaker Carroll says he will make Frank prove these assertions. The young man was placed under $5,000 bonds and held in jail to await the September court.

TRIED TO KILL HIMSELF.

A Defaulter Arrested at His Residence Attempts Suicide.

NEWARK, N. J., July 25.—Several days ago an investigation showed that William R. Owens, of Harrison, secretary of the Steam Generating Company was short in his accounts to the extent of about $3,000. A warrant was issued for his arrest, and last evening he was placed in custody.

Owens, who was arrested at his residence, asked permission of the detective to change his clothes before going to jail. This was granted and he stepped into his room. In a few minutes a pistol shot was heard. The officer rushed into the room and found that his prisoner had shot himself in the head, inflicting a slight wound. Owens was immediately taken to the jail in this city where the wound was dressed.

KILLED BY LIGHTNING.

Terrific Electrical Storm in Wisconsin—One Block Struck Three Times.

SHEBOYGAN, Wis., July 25.—A terrific electrical storm visited Sheboygan and did great damage. Two laborers at Ellwell's flour mill were struck by lightning. William Strassberg was instantly killed and Samuel Litsch paralyzed. A stable was struck by lightning and consumed.

Schlicht's block was struck three times, destroying one of the stone towers. The electric fire alarm boxes and telephones were burned out.

Alleged Bogus Priests.

PATERSON, N. J., July 25.—The Catholic residents of this city were startled by the exposure of a number of men who, clad in the garb of priests, it is charged, have for some time past been victimizing the members of the church. From present appearances it looks as if the men were never ordained at all, and it is not at all certain that they were even members of the Catholic Church. Bishop Wigger, who has jurisdiction over the town, inclines to the latter belief, as he has ordered the men to desist from their present mode of operations. Should they fail to do so his instructions are to the effect that they shall at once be arrrested.

Original Package in Kansas.

ATCHISON, Kan., July 25.—All the express companies have notified their agents at Atchison and other points to take no more beer or other liquor for Kansas towns. Heretofor local dealers on this and the other side of the river have done a bottle, jug and keg business by express to interior towns. In order to get around the order dealers will pack their liquors in boxes and thus concealed express agents are bound to take them. It is understood that the order was issued in anticipation of the original package bill becoming a law.

Third Largest Tunnel in the Country.

NEW YORK, July 25.—A dispatch from Denver says that the Colorado Midland Railroad has let a contract to Michael H. Keefe, of Butte, Mont., for the construction of a tunnel. It will be 9,350 feet long, the third longest in the United States, and will cost $1,000,000.

More Englishmen Anxious to Invest.

DUBUQUE, Ia., July 25.—A British syndicate has made an offer of $7,000,000 for the Knapp, Stout & Co. property in this city and Wisconsin. The property consists of several large mills and valuable tracts of pine land. The offer is likely to be accepted.

SIX BATTLES FOUGHT

San Salvador's Troops Whip the Guatemalans.

MANY KILLED AND WOUNDED.

The Intention is to Overthrow the Government of President Barillas.

A Mob in Santiago Attacks a Number of Stores and Sacks Them—Minister Reid Denies the Alleged Paris Interview—Catherine Wood Found Guilty of Robbing Americans.

LIBERTAD, July 25 (via Galveston).—News has just been received here, confirming reports of the success of the Salvadorian forces beyond the frontier in Guatemalan territory.

The Salvador army has now gained six battles and has captured quantities of arms and ammunition. Many have been killed and wounded on both sides.

The Salvadorian forces are now pushing their way into the interior of Guatemala and are meeting with success at every step. Great enthusiasm prevails. The intention is to overthrow the Government of President Barrillas before coming to any agreement with Guatemala.

San Salvador is determined to free herself from the yoke of Guatemala and assure her own liberty and independence.

MINISTER REID DENIES IT.

He Repudiates the Alleged Interviews in Paris Newspapers.

PARIS, July 25.—The Siecle and the Figaro published an alleged interview with Mr. Whitelaw Reid, the American Minister, which makes him denounce the McKinley bill as a measure opposed to civilization, and which, further, represents him as declaring that it was improbable that the citizens of the United States would long endure the tariffs, and that the increasing of the difficulties of commerce would imperil the success of the Chicago exhibition.

Mr. Reid authorizes an explicit denial of the truth of the interview. He says he saw no journalist, and authorized nobody to speak on the subject in his name. The Secretary of the American Legation, who alone responds to press requests for information, denies the accuracy of the interview and declines responsibility for the statements made.

"JACK THE RIPPER."

He is Reported to be a London Medical Student.

HALIFAX, N. S., July 25.—A Halifax lady, at present visiting a distinguished London official, writes to friends here that Jack the Ripper is under arrest in that city and has been for some time. The "Ripper," she says is a medical student, and his arrest was made on the strength of information given by his sister.

The authorities have kept the matter the strictest secret in order to work up a case against the man. The chain of evidence is very complete.

This information, though, startling, is vouched for by the writer of the letter, who accidentally came into possession of the facts.

She'll Rob No More Americans.

LONDON, July 25.—Catherine Wood has been found guilty at Liverpool of stealing a diamond ring from Mrs. Hamilton of New York aboard the steamship Etruria. It was brought out on the trial that the woman had committed robberies from passengers on twenty-five trips.

Rioting in Santiago.

LONDON, July 25.—A dispatch received here from Valparaiso states that a mob attacked a number of stores in the city of Santiago, the capital of the republic and sacked them. The military was called upon to quell the disturbance and the troops soon restored order.

Agricultural Show Opened.

LONDON, July 25.—Mr. Henry Chaplin, Minister of Agriculture, speaking of the Lincoln Agricultural Show this afternoon, said that the present rise in prices was due to the rise in silver caused by the action of the American Legislature.

Arrival of the Egypt's Crew.

LONDON, July 25.—The British steamer Manhattan with the crew and cattle men from the National Line steamer Egypt which was abandoned on fire at sea July 16, passed St. Catharine's point early in the morning. The Manhattan will land the Egypt's people at Dover.

Destructive Fire.

EARLVILLE, N. Y., July 25.—The Opera House block and adjoining buildings were burned about 3 a. m. The business places burned include Douglass & Buell's drug store, Clark's hardware store, Cushman & Brainard's general store, Thorpe's jewelry store, Estey's furniture store and Thomas Cash's saloon. It is thought the fire was the work of an incendiary.

Military Promotions.

HARRISBURG, Pa., July 25.—George R. Snowden has been appointed Major General of the Pennsylvania Guard by Governor Beaver, vice General Hartranft, deceased. Robert R. Dechert was appointed Brigadier General of the First Brigade. Both are promotions from the next lower grades.

Ignored the Boycott.

ATLANTIC, Ga., July 25.—A public meeting was held at the Chamber of Commerce here at which resolutions protesting against the passage of the Election bill were passed. The resolutions ignored the proposed boycott against Northern tradesmen.

SHOT AND HANGED HIMSELF.

After First Deliberately Killing His Young Wife.

WHEELING, W. Va., July 25.—A horrible domestic tragedy was enacted at the house of George Ault, at Centreville, Belmont county, O., at 8 o'clock in the morning. Mandeville Ault, Deputy Auditor of Belmont county, deliberately killed his young wife and then committed suicide. His lifeless body, covered with blood from a bullet hole in the back of his head, was found dangling from a beam in the barn within an hour after his wife's death.

About two months ago Ault, who had been used to the open-air life of a farmer, was compelled to abandon his desk in the St. Clairsville Court House because of ill-health, and he took his wife and only child to his father's to rest and recuperate.

It is believed that he suddenly became insane.

BY THE WAY.

—The first August excursion to the seashore is to be given by the Sunday schools of the First Presbyterian, Park Avenue Baptist and Congregational churches, next week Friday.

—The carts that the recently purchased fire department horses are to draw for use on the city's streets, have arrived. They are two double and one single, painted blue with red wheels.

—The philanthropist who has replaced the mountainous cobble-stone sidewalk on Grove street hill, near Front, with modest but navigable flag stones daily receives the benediction of all whose fate it is to pass that way.

—One of the large flag stones on the Park avenue sidewalk in front of the City Hotel contains a broad hollow that at every rainstorm becomes filled with water and makes easy the acquirement of wet feet. The puddle usually remains for several days after each storm, and people who have walked through it more than one sunshiny day are begining to think it ought to be abolished.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Dr. and Mrs. D. C. Adams are home from Asbury Park.

Charles Potter, Jr., and family are back from Lake Mohunk.

Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Martin are home today from Asbury Park.

Miss Mamie L. Byerson is Summering with friends at Manasquan.

Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Titsworth are at the Hotel Bristol, Asbury Park, for two weeks.

Miss Hattie M. Powelson of West Fourth street, is spending a few days at Ocean Grove.

Miss Lulu Tyler, of New York, is visiting at some of the many homes where she is so welcome here.

Joseph S. Pike of East Front street, will join the colony of fashionables at Hotel Albion, Asbury Park.

Mrs. L. E. Howard and family of Plainfield are among the latest to register at the Pocano Mountain House, Mt. Pocano, Pa.

Mrs. Amanda Frazee whose death was told exclusively in THE PRESS of yesterday, will be buried from her late home, 35 East Second street, to-morrow at two o'clock. Mrs. Frazee only lived 48 hours after she was seized with a paralytic stroke.

The Somerville Gazette says: "William V. Steele, Esq., who daily runs down to Plainfield to attend to his law office there, is not at Sea Girt, where his Company is. Too pressing business is given as the reason. He is First Lieutenant of the Company."

Captain Grant of the police force, left Plainfield yesterday for a visit to his daughter who is one of the assistant secretaries in the general office of the C. L. S. C., recently removed from this city to Buffalo. During officer Grant's absence, the brave Sergeant Lynch will officiate.

George Marshall, whose dangerous illness at his home on Park avenue has already been told of in these columns, is not expected to live. Tumors on his brain may cause his death at any minute. He is a son of the late Daniel Marshall of this city, and a nephew of the late James Marshall of Newark, from whom he has also just inherited a considerable fortune.

Wm. Watson and family of New York, who are boarding on Richmond street, with a few friends, numbering in all a party of twelve, went to Boynton Beach yesterday for a stage ride and bath. They took Officer Hope along to keep the dogs and calves away. The only drawback to the day's pleasure was a stomach overloaded with the good things the ladies had provided in abundance.

The evils resulting from habitual disease are many and serious; but the use of harsh, drastic purgatives is quite as dangerous. In Ayer's Pills, however, the patient has a mild but effective aperient, superior to all others, especially for family use.

—The people of Westfield, we understand, are counting a great deal on the half-arranged series of ball games between their club and the Crescents. One game, however, would satisfy them.

Positive and unsolicited testimony from every section confirms every claim made for the wonderful efficacy of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup. Price 25c.

GREADER GETS A BREATHING SPELL.

He Finds His First Loop-Hole in a Defective Complaint.

A crowd of people eager to hear the evidence in the case of the Borough of North Plainfield against Charles Greader, who was charged with the illegal selling of liquor, gathered in the Borough Council chamber this morning, and sweltered two hours away only to witness the dismissal of the complaint.

Craig A. Marsh, Greader's counsel, had issued a venire for a jury, and Borough Counsel Charles A. Reed, who had just returned from Barnegat, protested that under the Borough laws and ordinances, which he cited, only the Borough Mayor or Justice of the Peace, without jury, had a right to try such a case. Consequently considerable time was spent in argument, and further delay was occasioned by counsel having to send for papers which had been forgotten. All this time good business men whose temporary misfortune was to be residents of the Borough and summoned to serve as jurors, had to fidget about in their chair wishing they were back in their offices. Mr. Marsh said that as long as the jurors were present they might as well be used, but Mr. Reed claimed and Justice Hardy held that the use of jurors in the case would be improper and would invalidate the verdict. Mr. Marsh said that if the case were to be one of technicalities he'd present some too, and gave a list of objections. The Court overruled several points, but had to admit the claim that the complaint was defective; and on Mr. Marsh's motion the complaint was dismissed.

A new complaint may be issued.

Let the County Pay it All.

Mayor Male and Corporation Counsel Marsh of this city, and the City Attorneys of Elizabeth and Rahway, met a committee from the Board of Freeholders, and the County Attorney, yesterday, at Elizabeth. To provide the necessary election machinery under the new reform laws, it is necessary to fit up polling booths or compartments, and the increased cost to each county will range from $3,000 to $10,000, according to size and population. The meeting was to discuss the question of who should pay for the booths.

The townships which are not required to use such booths at their town elections, think that the cities—like Plainfield and Elizabeth who will need just such booths themselves a month after the county election, or as in Rahway during the following Spring—should pay at least half the expense.

In consideration of the fact that the cities will have to take care of the booths from year to year, Counselor Marsh moved that the meeting recommend that the Board of Freeholders pay the entire cost of building them. It was so adopted.

Dunellen and New Market Welcomed to the Fold.

A meeting of the Local Union of the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor was held last evening in the lecture room of the Trinity Reformed church. The Rev. A. R. Dilts, President of the Union, occupied the chair, and Miss E. C. Benedict acted as Secretary. A resolution admitting the societies of the Dunellen Presbyterian and New Market Baptist churches to the Union was unanimously adopted. D. C. Skaden, M. M. Dunham and J. A. Powlison were appointed as a committee to draft and submit by-laws to govern the Union.

Thursday evening, Sept. 18, was chosen as the date of the next meeting, and a committee of one from each of the societies in the Union was appointed by the President to prepare a suitable programme for the occasion.

Women's Tongues Lead Them Astray.

Two quarrelsome neighbors from East Third street, appeared in court this morning and told Judge Codington how badly each abused the other. Several other women who from time to time have looked on or taken part in the squabbles of the two, also poured into the Judge's ears their tales of woe. The burden of evidence seemed to be against Mrs. Mary Morris, who was the prisoner in the case, and whose accuser was Mrs. Ellen Bergen. It was shown that Mrs. Morris had repeatedly said nasty things to Mrs. Bergen, and as a punishment for using foul language the Court imposed a fine of five dollars. The witnesses were very eager not to have their names in the papers, as Judge Codington had chided them all for their quarrelsome habits.

Where the Excursionists Dined.

The following Plainfielders registered at Asbury Park, Wednesday: Brunswick—Mrs. J. S. Cutter; West End—Mrs. L Wright, A. A. Wright, A. Underhill; Leadley—C. Parse and wife; Grand Avenue—Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Phillips, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Pope; Sunset Hall—John A. Stafford, Edward J. Harding, John O. Runkle, J. C. Traynor, James Lanigan, W. F. Brown, James Ennis, Martin Galbraith, May Flanigan, Allie Quinn, Mrs. Ronan, Allie Keely, Jessie Keely, Maggie Sheehan, Julia Day, Josie Shaefer.

A New Umpire.

Lu Johnson of New York, the professional umpire, has been engaged by the managers of the Crescent League's ball team, to umpire to-morrow's game here and all subsequent games on the Crescent grounds, if he proves competent and satisfactory.

A friend induced me to try Salvation Oil for my rheumatic foot. I used it and the rheumatism is entirely gone. JOHN H. ANDERSON, Baltimore, Md.

A PARADISE NEAR PLAINFIELD.

Freeholder Vanderbeek Discovers Rapids, Glens, Parks and Trout, Within Eighty Minutes of this City.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS: Thinking it might be a little interesting to you and some of your readers—while most every one seems to be migrating to our beautiful sea side resorts—I would like to tell the great many who do not know, that up among the hills of Northern New Jersey there are scenes which astonish the beholder, and which might be properly called the "Catskills of New Jersey." Watkins Glen the famous, does not surpass Black River Falls.

Your correspondent started with his companion from Plainfield on the 1:59 P. M. train. Changed cars at the White House less than an hour later, and took the train which connects with the Rockaway Valley Railroad going Northwest through New Germantown to Pottersville. At this place we left the train and wended our way along the banks of the Black River to the cressing; following the pathway along the river side beneath the fine overshading trees to the village of Pottersville, a third of a mile distant from the station. There we found a very hospitable boarding house presided over by Mr. and Mrs. Sering Potter; one of those fine old-fashioned farm houses with old shade trees, a stream of pure clear water running in front of the house, spacious lawns and lots of fruit trees.

This village has been hidden in between those hills beside the Black River for nearly a century. It has two large flouring mills, one machine shop, one large store, one handsome church—denomination Dutch Reformed—and about one dozen very comfortable dwellings. The country around is very hilly but finely cultivated. It is a very large peach growing section, although a failure this year. But this is a feature which in a very short time, by the opening of the new railroad will make Pottersville fruits celebrated. A new park which has lain dormant until very recently, has been newly beautified until it is just the place for church excursionists. The Black River flows and tumbles and foams over the rocks through the gorge until you are perfectly enchanted. The rocks and hills rise in some places almost perpendicular. There is a beautiful hill right back of the village that overlooks the whole scene on one side and connects with the park on the other.

If some enterprising person with means could procure that site and build a large Summer boarding house there, it would never want for patrons. There are picnic parties coming constantly to see the new park; applications for board are almost daily received, and no one to accommodate them. We found ten boarders where we applied, and only because we were special friends could we find accommodation.

For special rates over the road for picnics or excursions, application should be made to the courteous Superintendent J. E. Melick, at White House. He is a very genial gentleman who will spare no pains in making your visit to Pottersville one of great pleasure. I almost forgot one great feature of this paradise among the hills, it is the trout and bass fishing. Now Mr. Editor I will not trespass on your patience, but would say to all—go and see for yourselves.

A. VANDERBEEK.

Warming the Children's Hearts.

The occupants of Mrs. West's boarding house at 80 East Front street, yesterday generously and happily entertained the little folks of the Children's Home, on the extensive grounds about the house, bounded by Second, Church and Front streets. There was a surfeit of pleasures of all kinds for the lads and lassies, and plenty of good things to eat besides a package for each to carry away, containing candy and fancy crackers, oranges, marbles, dolls, jack-stones, balls, and a nickle.

It was Mrs. Perry who presented each little one with a nickle, and the gift was particularly a happy thought. Others who provided were: Mrs. West, Mrs. Chas. West, Mrs. Thieriot, Miss Hale, Master Willis West and Joseph D. Thieriot.

An Unusual Catch of Perch by Plainfielders.

While fishing in the river below the dam, yesterday, at Bound Brook, Jacob O. Field and Richard Field, of Broadway, succeeded in catching, by actual count, five hundred and fifty-eight perch. Mr. Fisher at the canal lock, and other old and well known fishermen present at the time, report it to be the largest catch in years by a hook and line. Mr. Field has a reputation as a very expert fisherman. While fishing with a party of friends last week in the same river, he succeeded in catching a nice specimen of shad on a hook and line, as told of in these columns.

An Interesting Meeting.

The regular meeting of Franklin Council, 41, Jr. O. U. A. M., was held as usual last evening, in their hall corner of Front street and Park avenue. Owing to the several attractions a goodly representation of the members were present. After the regular routine business was transacted, the matter of attending the grand parade at Asbury Park on August 20, was then discussed and laid over for consideration, after which singing, recitations, etc., for the good and welfare of the order was given by the members.

Thousands have been relieved of indigestion and loss of appetite by a single bottle of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. The use of this medicine, by giving tone and strength to the assimilative organs, has made innumerable cures of chronic dyspepsia. Price $1. Worth $5 a bottle.

FROM DISTANT LANDS.

A TEA trust has been formed in Tokio Japan, "for the purpose of restoring the declining tea trade of that country."

TURKISH engineers say that the river Euphrates might be made navigable the year round by an expenditure of $100,000.

PRINCE and Princess Radzivill having set the example of giving dinners in the Eiffel tower, Paris society is following the fashion. These dinners come high, but they must have them.

THE burning of women and sacrifice of slaves is reported to be still practiced in Bali, a small island off Java, notwithstanding a treaty with the Dutch prohibiting such barbarities.

LONDON is overrun with what it is pleased to call "piano recitalers," and the musical agents have declined for the present to make any new engagements with celebrities of that sort.

A "FOSSIL FOREST" has been discovered in Scotland. Thirty or forty fossil trunks have already been laid bare, most of which are gray freestone. One of the trunks is at least two feet in diameter.

A CURIOUS fashion has come into vogue in Paris. In all the cemeteries metal boxes with a slit in the lid are placed on the tombstones to receive the cards of visitors. The relatives of the deceased are thus enabled to see who among the living still cherish the memory of their departed friends.

THE salvation army in Paris has been reinforced by a salvation navy. A church boat floats on the river Seine near the Point de la Concorde. The "floating temple," as the Parisians call it, has been named "The Herald of Mercy." In the hall amidships there is accommodation for two hundred persons.

THE barrister's wig is giving much trouble in the warm colonies of England. He is a bold judge as well as a sensible one who takes off his own wig and suggests to other members of the bar that they do the same. Special wigs are now made for warm climates, which are extremely light, being a mere horse hair net.

SALZBURG will shortly be the city of Mozart, as Bayreuth is the city of Wagner. An opera-house in which only model performances of Mozart's operas will be given has been planned and the money for building it has been raised, and before next summer the structure will be well under way. It will seat two thousand persons.

THE Government of Morocco lately sent ten Arab horses of the purest and finest blood as a gift to the King of Belgium. When they reached Brussels King Leopold was not greatly struck by their beauty, and on an investigation being made it turned out that the original animals had been sold by some unscrupulous official and that inferior ones had been substituted.

THE authorities at Paris are putting cremation to effective use. Since the establishment of the crematorium at the cemetery Pere-la-Chaise more than twelve hundred unclaimed bodies have been disposed of in it. The process in its present perfection will reduce a body to ashes in less than an hour, and at a cost of about thirty cents for fuel. Among the better classes cremation is gaining in popularity.

AN English officer who recently traveled on the public service says that he sent in in his account of traveling expenses the entry: "Porter, one shilling." His accounts were returned, with the remark that porter could not be allowed, but that if the entry were intended for the conveyance of luggage it should be noted as porterage. The alteration was duly made, and a query added as to whether a cab should not be entered as "cabbage." The reply was that "correspondence on this subject must cease."

IT is now twenty years since the Japanese began to reform their institutions, and during that time nothing has more clearly shown their adaptability and intelligence than the progress which they have made in education. Out of 6,740,920 children of school age in the Empire, 2,800,000 are enrolled in the public schools, while universities, commercial schools, schools of fine art and of music, schools for the deaf, dumb and blind, law courses in German, French and English, libraries and museums, all form part of a thorough and progressive system.

MEANT FOR MERRIMENT.

"PAPA," said little Johnny Cumso, "the paper says: 'The people at large think so.' What does it mean by the people at large?" "Those not in jail," replied his sage papa.

LITTLESHOT—"I can't pay that old account just yet, Mr. Cutaway, but I want a suit this summer if you can accommodate me." Tailor—"Certainly, sir; I'll instruct my attorney to commence one to-morrow."

WATCH-MAKER (during dinner in a New York boarding-house)—"No, sir. There is nothing tougher than the spring-steel used in watches." Landlady (innocently)—"Mr. Uhrmacher, won't you try some of the spring lamb?"

A MAN who had foolishly ventured upon a verbal contest with his wife was met, as he was retiring from the scene, by his little son, who had just begun to study grammar. "Papa," said the child, "what part of speech is woman?" "She isn't any part of speech at all, Gregory; she's the whole of it."

A SCOTCH dominie who had argued long with a female parishioner over certain disputed religious questions at last exclaimed in despair: "It's no use arguing with you any longer; you are not open for conviction!" Whereupon the irate but triumphant dame responded: "I am open to conviction, but just show me the man that can convince me!"

FOGG—"What's this advertisement you have out in front, stating that you are selling goods way below cost?" Einstein—"It's der truth, my vriend." Fogg—"Now, you don't mean to stand there and tell me that you are selling goods so cheap as all that?" Einstein—"I'll tell you der fact. My gustomers are getting rich buying from me and selling to deg rag man."

Sick Headache

IS a complaint from which many suffer and few are entirely free. Its cause is indigestion and a sluggish liver, the cure for which is readily found in the use of Ayer's Pills.

"I have found that for sick headache, caused by a disordered condition of the stomach, Ayer's Pills are the most reliable remedy."—Samuel C. Bradburn, Worthington, Mass.

"After the use of Ayer's Pills for many years, in my practice and family, I am justified in saying that they are an excellent cathartic and liver medicine—sustaining all the claims made for them."—W. A. Westfall, M. D., V. P. Austin & N. W. Railway Co., Burnet, Texas.

"Ayer's Pills are the best medicine known to me for regulating the bowels, and for all diseases caused by a disordered stomach and liver. I suffered for over three years from headache, indigestion, and constipation. I had no appetite, and was weak and nervous most of the time. By using three boxes of Ayer's Pills, and at the same time dieting myself, I was completely cured."—Philip Lockwood, Topeka, Kansas.

"I was troubled for years with indigestion, constipation, and headache. A few boxes of Ayer's Pills, used in small daily doses, restored me to health. They are prompt and effective."—W. H. Strout, Meadville, Pa.

A WOMAN'S SAD STORY.

A Drunken Husband and a Second Hand Merchant, Despoil a Happy Household.

One way of making money to pay for real estate white elephants has just been illustrated by the recent "purchaser" of the Dunlap building, Tunis J. Carey, ex-Captain of Police. A woman is concerned in the affair, and after hearing the woman's story it becomes quite apparent that the way in which the woman was treated is not at all creditable to the Shylock in whose power the woman unwittingly found herself.

Mrs. Thomas Fayhe who lives at the corner of West Second street and Exchange Alley, is eminently a respectable woman, and what beauty and happiness has existed in her home has been due to her influence. She is unfortunate in having a husband who is "all right when sober," but who is as often under the influence of liquor as he is "all right." He does well by his family when not intoxicated, but he does many unkind things to his wife and children when he has plied himself with liquor.

During one of his recent periods of intoxication he sought out Tunis J. Carey—and all this that follows is Mrs. Fayhe's own story, corroborated by the statements of a neighbor who was a witness to much that occurred as here related—and offered to sell his household goods for money for more rum. The condition of Fayhe was self-evident, but the man who by the claims of some is so intent on having justice dealt to all, and so eager to assist in achieving moral reformations, snapped eagerly at the opportunity and completed negotiations before Fayhe had a chance to get sober and retract his offer.

Going to Fayhe's house in order that he might see for himself that he was getting the bargain he anticipated, Carey made a survey and an inventory of the things the house contained.

Mrs. Fayhe, learning his purpose, pleaded with him not to buy the goods. "My husband doesn't know what he is doing," she urged. "You can see that he has been drinking heavily. When he sobers up he'll be sorry he ever suggested the sale. Don't take away our property; don't destroy our home."

The sight of Mrs. Fayhe's tears, and the quivering of her voice, seemed to impress Carey, and in the presence of another woman he told the injured wife that he wouldn't buy the goods. The grateful wife had faith in the promise, and showered thanks on her unwelcome visitor; but alas for man's cupidity, craftiness and deceit! Next day Carey's trucks stopped at the door, the home was despoiled, the household goods were stacked up on the heavy wagons, and a weeping woman with two sad-eyed children clinging to her skirts was left amid bare walls to bewail the satanic treachery of false promises.

The paltry sum paid to the drunken husband by the bargain counter policeman was $30. The goods that were sold for this insignificant price included a parlor suit which a short time before had cost $150, a bedroom suit recently purchased for $60, stoves, carpets and other furnishings, valued altogether by Mrs. Fayhe at $300.

Mrs. Fayhe says she asked how much it would cost to get the goods back, and she was told, "One hundred dollars!"

She had not nearly so much money, but with what little she had she bought back a few things which to her and her two children were necessaries. Mr. Fayhe has kept out of sight since the transaction. Mrs. Fayhe will not welcome him back.

During her trouble Mrs. Fayhe went to City Judge Codington for friendly advice. She says that the Judge seemed surprised to learn that Carey had purchased the goods after she had asked him not to and after he had said he would not, but when she asked if there was no legal redress for the moral wrong committed, the Judge gave her no encouragement.

Oftentimes things occur to arouse a community and to establish the belief that there is such a thing as legal injustice. Whether or not this incident of Carey's career is a righteous and honorable thing is for the public to determine. THE PRESS has merely given above the woman's story, and its columns are open to Mr. Carey for a denial, explanation or any defence he may wish to make to set himself right for once before the people.

Should the Check-Rein Go?

(From the Elizabeth Journal.)

The S. P. C. A., of Plainfield, has commenced warfare against the tight check rein on horses, and very properly has taken to task one of the wealthiest and most influential citizens for this inhuman practice. The check rein, drawn tightly so as to forcibly hold the horse's head in an unnatural position, is simply an instrument of torture. They need no check rein unless they have vicious habits which a proper check rein will prevent. But most horses hold their heads in a medium position, and to check such horses up is practically the same as fixing a man's head in such position that he is always looking up into the sky. It is a brutal, inhuman, cruel piece of work, and whether the owner of the horse is rich or poor he ought to be compelled to stop it. If Plainfield succeeds in this warfare against the check rein—or if it does not—it is hoped the warfare will be commenced in other cities. The check rein ought to go, except in vicious horses, and should the be used only with great discretion.

The market is flooded with decoctions under the head of Root Beer. Why should you experiment on such goods when the genuine Hires' Root Beer can be had? It is known to be a safe, delicious, and healthful temperance drink.

THE JUSTICE WAS RIGHT

And the Philanthropic Editor Was Mistaken in His Charity.

In last Friday's issue, under the head of "Misplaced Sympathy," THE PRESS reprinted from the Somerville Gazette an account of how Judge Bartine, who knew little of the case, at the instigation of the Gazette's editor, who knew less, released a lot of wilfully bad boys who had been sent to the county jail by Justice Hardy. The latter has written the following letter to the mistaken philanthropist:

To the Editor of The Unionist-Gazette:

SIR: I find in your issue of July 17 two articles, one of which is an editorial, concerning the holding to bail of the three boys from North Plainfield on a charge of burglary. I feel sure that you do not fully understand the case, and, therefore, take the liberty of giving you the facts.

The youngest boy, Spillaine, ran away from home some weeks since, and apparently his father made no effort to bring him back. The evidence before me was that only a few days before the robbery of Mrs. Hall's store this boy and the Prentice boy raided a banana cart in the absence of the proprietor and stole some $5 worth of fruit. They were caught. In consideration of their youth they were released on their agreement to stop stealing and to pay for the fruit. Instead of doing this they at once decide to rob Mrs. Hall's store, and for a week or so await a favorable opportunity. The time comes and with the care and precaution of veterans at the business they proceed. One boy was left on guard to warn the others if a policeman hove in sight, or if anything suspicious occurred, while the other two committed the robbery. They succeeded, as they thought, without detection, but word reached the officers and they were arrested.

This was the second offence, and that within a week of the first, and before any amends had been made for the first. This seemed to show conclusively that these boys were determined to be criminals, and that because they were let off once they would be again. I may be right, or I may be wrong, but it seems to me that the community must be protected from such thieves, for who can say what next is on the programme—arson or even murder. Is it better to prevent this or to encourage it? Shall we pat these boys on the head and say "Well done; go on with the good work?" or shall we say, "We gave you a chance the first time and now the severe discipline of the reform school shall try its effect upon you?" Shall we protect the community or shall we wait until hanging becomes necessary?

No one feels any more sympathy for the wrong-doer than this same Justice whom you criticise, but, when a person is brought repeatedly before him for drunkenness, it is not always "$10 and costs," because that does not remedy the evil.

Again, while these same boys were in jail, an officer returns and reports that while in the jail he did not hear cries and sobs, but instead oaths and vile language. Shall we pat these boys on the head and say, "Right, my son, go on your recognizance, swear if you will, steal if you will, rob if you will, but, in Heaven's name, don't let anyone send you to Somerville jail."

Is this the proper course, and is any other course inhuman, outrageous and barbarous. Their parents in the courts here say, "Send them to the Reform School. We can't handle them." Do you know better than they?

JUSTICE JAMES HARDY.

Plainfield, N. J., July 21, 1890.

Special Despatches by Phone.

A sample of the stuff sent daily by telephone to a crony editor, is the following from the New Brunswick Home News of Monday, July 21:

PLAINFIELD, July 21. (Special.)—Yesterday the police started out to stop a base ball game, but when the players saw them coming they ran away. The officers captured 17 of their coats and learning the names from letters in the pockets warrants have been issued for their arrest.

Without passing criticism on the rhetoric of the paragraph, or on its mixture of pronouns of the third person, THE PRESS has to say that the story is untrue. The "dispatches" sent from Somerset street to New Brunswick are frequently, as in this case, such bare-faced manufactures that the inventor of them doesn't dare publish them in even his own paper, but contents himself with gulling his friend.

Woman's Smiles and Woman's Tears.

One to enliven, the other to soften the hearts of mankind. An old bachelor once said women were either "all smiles or all tears," but this cannot be true for what would there be "twixt a tear and a smile." Women have enough to bear to make them "all tears" and enough to hope for to make them "all smiles." When afflicted with nervousness, sick headache, and the numerous diseases peculiar to their sex there is necessity for contemplation, and for "tears," but when they consider that there is a sure remedy in Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription for all such complaints, there is reason for "smiles."

FOR GIRLS AND BOYS

LOST.

Lost—Somewhere here, I think it was,
Between noontime and night—
A pair of precious, priceless things
All full of sunny light;
And each was made of tiny links—
Pure gold from tip to tip—
And sixty of these links were joined
In cunning workmanship.

Upon each tiny link there lay
A diamond bright and clear;
Could I have lost them, do you think,
As I was coming here?
I fear that they began to slip
When I was in the lane
And filled my mouth with raspberries
And both my hands with stain!

When I stretched out upon the grass
And had that lovely dream,
I'm sure a dozen links or so
Slipped down into the stream.
And many more I must have lost
When I went slowly down
Beneath the forest trees that make
A cooler path to town.

These several links—I felt them go
When loitering at the gate—
Slipped from my hand although I knew
That I was very late!
Gone are the precious jeweled links
'Mongst berries, brooks and flowers—
And no reward could bring me back
Those two lost sunny hours!

THE GHOSTLY RAT.

Mamma Rodent Tells Her Children of the Sad Fate of Their Poor Uncle.

"Tell us a story, mamma, please."

"Yes, mamma, please do!"

The first request came from Mrs. Rat's eldest ratlet; and the second was the indorsement of their big brother's appeal by the three young ratlets.

Mrs. Rat and her family were as snug and happy as any rodent household could reasonably expect to be in this world of trouble and cats, for they had just eaten an excelent supper consisting of cheese and other good things, which had been placed in the pantry by a considerate cook, and they were now snugly ensconced in a warm nest back of the chimney, where no cat could possibly penetrate. Besides, there were rumors among the rodents that their particular and implacable enemy, Mrs. Tabby, had been severely injured by certain bad boys of the neighborhood, and would therefore be confined to her rug for a week or more.

"Well, what shall I tell you?" asked Mrs. Rat; "shall it be a ghost-story, or ——"

"A ghost-story by all means!" cried the ratlets unanimously, shivering with delightful apprehension, and snuggling closer together.

"A ghost story it shall be, then. None of you ever saw a ghost, but I have. It scared me more than a million cats would."

You see Mrs. Rat was somewhat disposed to exaggerate.

"I was quite young then, and flighty. I had a habit of straying away from home and into all sorts of dangerous places; but my experience with the ghost converted me for a time into the most exemplary of rodentesses.

"I had got as far away from home as the big apple bin in the back cellar, and was enjoying myself immensely when I chanced to look around, and there, no farther away than that knot-hole," indicating it with a sweep of her tail, "was the ghost of a big rat. He glowed like white fire, and his tail was a long streak of fire. He seemed to be sitting and thinking, for he was perfectly motionless.

"I was literally paralyzed. I could not move a paw, nor take my eyes from the thrilling sight. Every hair on my body stood erect, and I suppose I should have been frozen to the spot until now, if the ghost himself had not broken the spell by moving toward me.

"Then I turned and ran around that apple bin and back home so fast that it wore the skin off my toes. I was almost sure, too, that as I turned to run I could hear the ghost call me by name, and that only scared me the more.

"When I told my father and mother of the apparition they only laughed at me, and told me I might relate it to the marines.

"That same night, though, my father came home all in a fright. He had seen the specter, and was more scared than I had been. Then a party of the bravest rats in the house got together and went to hunt for the ghost. I shall never forget how they started out. Some were making fun of father and poohpoohing the idea of ghosts generally. Others said there must be something in it; at any rate they would see.

"Well, they found it, or it found them, I never learned which, but I know they had not been gone five minutes when the whole troop came back, helter-skelter, running as if for their lives. They tore through the holes like mad, and all the lady rats and ratlets who had been left at home scampered after their husbands and fathers, who hadn't time to stop, but who yelled: 'Come, run! The ghost is coming!"

"We did not stop till we got clear away from the haunted house and across the street into the cellar of a building on the other side. We made new homes there, and heard nothing of the ghost for some time.

"One of my brothers got lost in the moving. He wasn't at home when the stampede took place. We supposed he was left behind in the other house, but no one was brave enough to venture near the ghost to see. At last we mourned for him as dead, believing that he had been scared to death by the specter, or else caught in a trap set by the giant humans who build the houses.

One day I got to prowling about again as I use to, and went into the pantry up-stairs, for the food in the cellar was not what I had been accustomed to. Well, will you believe me, as soon as I poked my nose in the pantry door I saw the ghost again. There he was, and he called me by name, for he saw me as soon as I saw him.

"Somehow, I wasn't so much frightened this time, for the voice sounded faint, and the ghost did not look quite so spectral as before. Then I saw that he was in a trap fast and tight; I got real brave and went nearer, and he spoke once more:

"'Why do you shun me? Why do all my friends shun me? I am your own brother.'

"'Are you dead, and is it your ghost?' I asked.

"'Not at all,' he said. 'I'll tell you how it happened. I went into one of those wire arrangements to taste a bit of cheese, and then the door closed with a bang and I couldn't get out. A big man came along, and, when he saw me, he said;

"'"Ah, ah! my fine fellow! I'll give you a coat of phosporous!"

"Then he rubbed some stuff all over me, which made me bright and shiny, and let me go. Since then I haven't been able to get a word with one of my relatives. All of them run from me. So I don't care what happens to me. My life is a burden. Tell father and mother—'

"But I did not stay to hear the rest of his message for just then a big man came into the pantry with a horrid cat in his arms, and I left. When I went back, my brother was gone, and—but why dwell on the painful subject? It is time you children were all asleep."—W. H. Siviter, in Santa Claus.

FRIGHTENED BY A FEATHER.

Story of a Strange Little Girl Who Cried Widgy! Widgy!

Kathleen was a dear, happy little girl, who ran about the house and yard singing and laughing, with her yellow curls dancing in the sunshine.

She loved every body and every thing, but, strange to say, there was one little thing of which she was afraid, and what do you suppose that was? A feather, or a bit of down!

About every thing else she was very brave, but when she saw one of these dreadful feathers come floating or rolling toward her, she would cry out "Widgy! Widgy! Widgy!" and dance up and down, waving her hands before her face, until some one would take it away.

One day mamma sent her little girl up-stairs to get a spool of thread. Kathleen always did errands very quickly and nicely, but this time she was gone so long that mamma wondered what had become of her. She was just starting to find out, when Kathleen was heard screaming in fright.

Mamma ran up-stairs as fast as ever she could and found her little girl jumping up and down and crying: "Widgy! Widgy!"

A downy white feather had floated in through the window and was rolling and tumbling in front of the door just as though trying to keep Kathleen from passing.

Mamma picked up the feather, and taking Kathleen in her arms, she showed her how pretty and white it was and how nicely it would look in Dollie's new hat.

The little girl promised to try not to be afraid any more. But it was a great many years before she could see a feather without wanting to cry: "Widgy! Wigdy!"

Was not that a strage thing for a little girl to be afraid of?—Cousin Sarah, in Youth's Companion.

A Cunning Dog.

Captain is a large, handsome Newfoundland dog. He lives at Malden. We call him Cap most of the time. When he is called Captain he understands that something is wrong. Sometimes he gets into mischief, and has to be scolded or punished for it. Then he is called Captain, and that in a very stern voice.

Cap knows that he is to stay about the house. That is his duty. But one day (this really happened in the spring of 1889) Cap was not to be seen when his mistress called him to breakfast. This was something strange, she thought. So she waited a little while and again called his name. "Cap, Cap," she called. But no dog appeared. Captain's mistress thought he surely must have run away this time, and so he had. For two days nothing more was heard from him. We thought he had been stolen by some bad boys.

But the third morning, on opening the door, what did we see sitting on the steps but poor old Captain. He looked very meek and sorrowful. He wagged his tail slowly, and hobbled around on three legs, holding up the fourth paw as aif it were hurt.

Of course no one had the heart to punish the poor fellow then, so he was caressed and called "poor doggie." The paw was looked at, but we could not find any thing the matter. We thought we could take him to a dog doctor if the paw troubled him much. Cap was given a good warm breakfast, and seemed very grateful for it. He now thought his troubles were over.

Going into the room a little later, his mistress was astonished to find Cap trotting around as well as ever. The rogue had been making believe all the time. He was afraid of a whip, and thought we would forget it after while.

Captain didn't get the whipping, but he did get a good scolding for running away.—Little Men and Women.

EXPECTATION.

Under the trees m/ Heart and I together
Await the step that nevermore will come;
Await the greeting word forever dumb!
I know not how—whether we dreamed, or whether

My Heart and I, seeing the new-blown heather,
Took hope from its full glory; or the sum
Of earth's wide joy, moving our pulses numb,
Drew us abroad into the sweet warm weather.

We conned the lesson well, long, long ago,
My Heart and I—we conned the lesson well
In summer heats, in winter's stubborn cold!
That he will come no more, we know, we know;
Yet we expect him more than tongue can tell,
And listen for his coming as of old!

AN ODD PROPOSAL.

My Lady Love Rescued by a Bit of Short-Hand.

"OUR new boarder," said Miss Cathcart, who sat next me at the table; then in a lower tone, "I don't see what Mrs. Matthews can be thinking of. I was told this was a very select place."

"So it is, isn't it?" I answered, in true Yankee fashion, with an assertion and a question.

"Judge for yourself! This latest acquisition to our number is a stenographer and type-writer in Lawyer Butler's office."

I looked down the table at the very pretty young lady sitting there, and thought to myself that she might prove a very charming companion. Miss Cathcart—thirty years old and attired like a girl of eighteen—looked faded and old in comparison.

That evening, in the boarding-house parlor, I was introduced to Miss Rachel Stone, the "new boarder," and in half an hour we were on very friendly terms. I had touched upon the subject of short-hand early in the conversation, saying that, as a lawyer, I had often thought I would like to take my own notes in the court-room, and a most enthusiastic advocate of stenography I found. She upset all my theories about shorthand, declaring it was not hard to acquire, and that it was a most delightful and fascinating study.

"Why not give me some lessons?" I said, laughingly.

Miss Stone took me up at once. Not that she would entertain a proposition to give the regular lessons, but she assured me if I would get the proper books I could pursue the study without a teacher. "In any difficulty," she said, "I should be very glad to render you assistance."

Now, to be quite honest, I fell in love with the new boarder in that very first hour, and as a natural consequence, I returned home the next evening with the necessary books in my possession. I am ashamed to confess how often I feigned ignorance just to enjoy her pretty, eager way of explaining the difficulty.

It was not long before the lines and curves and hooks began to mean something to me, and one particular phrase had a peculiar fascination for me. I used to write it over and over again—"I love you, I love you." It was so easy to make—a tick, two curves, and a miniature croquet wicket, all joined together in one delightful phraseogram.

It came to be an understood thing that after supper Miss Stone and I should sit at a small table in a corner of the parlor and talk over the short-hand. Miss Cathcart made herself exceedingly disagreeable, and sometimes Rachel—I called her Rachel in my heart—would leave the room to escape her discourtesy.

Sometimes we would make a little break in the shorthand and turn to other topics, and in these exchanges of confidence I learned a good deal about Rachel's home, in a small New England town, and of her only brother, a college student of whom she was very proud. I found it was to help this brother through college that she had sought a position in the city.

"ENGAGED!" GASPED MRS. MATTHEWS.

Every day I fell more deeply in love, until I reached a point where there were no more depths to sound. I hardly know why I did not make a formal proposal—perhaps because no very good opportunity presented itself, perhaps because I was in doubt as to her answer. Sometimes I would fancy her color deepened a little when I entered the room; but there was a frankness about her treatment of me, and a business-like way of making shorthand the chief topic of our conversation, that did not tend to encourage me.

One afternoon I went home earlier than usual with two opera tickets in my pocket, and in my heart a determination to know my fate that night. Surely I could manage a proposal during the walk home.

As I stopped in the hall to leave my hat I heard Mrs. Matthews' voice through the parlor door. It was pitched high as though the speaker was angry or excited. "I must have your room," she was saying. "Some of my best boarders will not remain under the circumstances, unless you leave the house."

"Under what circumstances? I do not understand you, Mrs. Matthews." It was Rachel's voice, and it sounded as though the poor girl might break down and cry the next instant. I considered myself wholly justified now in playing the part of an eavesdropper.

"Your goings on with Mr. Hamilton under cover of that shorthand study. You could not spend more time in his company if you were engaged to him."

Ah! If my darling had been engaged to me how quickly I could step to her side and defend her from these cruel insults. The little phrase: "I love you," flashed into my mind, and it was like an inspiration. As it happened, I held in my hand a book—a compilation of stenographic phrases I had just purchased—and with the white paper wrapped about it and the lead pencil in my vest pocket, every thing necessary to carry out my plan was at hand.

In bold, black characters, I swiftly wrote on the book the words: "I love you. Be my wife," in shorthand. The next instant I stepped into the room.

"Excuse me, Miss Stone," I said, "if you are engaged. Hearing your voice as I passed through the hall I thought I would hand you the book I spoke to you about. I hope it is all right."

As I handed her the package I saw that my poor love's cheeks were hotly flushed and her lips quivering. I wanted to take her in my arms in the face of the frowning landlady. As she took the book her eyes fell upon the shorthand characters. They stood out boldly on the white paper, and to her they were as plain as print. Her head dropped an instant. Then she gave me a look—if eyes ever said yes, hers did. We were engaged, and now my way was clear.

"I have been thinking, Mrs. Matthews," I said, "that it would be well for Miss Stone's engagement to me to be announced. Shall we delegate you to make the fact known to the rest of the household?"

"Engaged!" gasped Mrs. Matthews. "Is Miss Stone engaged to you?"

"It gives me great pleasure to say that she is. Miss Stone will return to her home in a very short time to make preparations for our wedding, which will take place the coming winter."

When the landlady left the room, eager I knew to carry the news to Miss Cathcart, I took Rachel in my arms and begged her pardon for so summarily deciding her future for her. I told her if her brother needed aid to complete his college course I would most gladly give it, and that two months was just as long as I was willing to wait.

In a certain little box my wife cherishes the keepsakes she values the highest, and among them is a bit of wrapping paper bearing a few stenographic characters—my shorthand proposal.

Would you like to see it? Here it is:

FACTS ABOUT LEAVES.

Specially Modified by Nature for Some Particular Purpose.

Even the most cursory observer of vegetable life must have been often struck with the various forms of leaves. Why they should be so variously formed does not, however, often suggest itself, though there is a reason for the special shape and texture of almost every leaf in existence. Plants, such as grasses, daffodils and others which usually grow in clusters, have generally narrow leaves growing upright, so as not to overshadow one another. Other plants, of isolated habits, have an arrangement of foliage which secures to themselves the space of ground necessary for their development. The daisy, dandelion and shepherd's purse—which may mostly be seen in pastures—are examples of this. A circle of broad leaves pressed against the ground, forming what is known as a rosette growth, effectually bars the approach of any other plant and keeps clear from all other roots the space of ground necessary to its own nutriment. Floating leaves, and leaves of marsh plants, are usually of simple outline, for, having few competitors, they are not liable to get in one another's light. Submerged plants have mostly leaves of narrow segments—the reason for which is not very well understood, though it is assumed by naturalists that it is for the purpose of exposing as large a surface as possible, in order to extract the minute proportion of carbonic acid dissolved in a vast bulk of water. Leaves on the boughs of trees are often much divided, so as to fold easily, to prevent their being rent and torn by high winds, while the glossy surface of evergreens is intended to throw off rain and dew, which might freeze on them, and so cause injury to the tissues within. But the hairs on the surface of leaves are perhaps the most interesting study of all. With the aid of a microscope, the beautiful and systematic arrangement of these can be easily discerned, and their uses understood. On many plants there are glandular hairs, to catch or deter small creeping insects; on others there are hairs set so as to act as effectively against young animals as a spike palisade against obtrusive boys; on others, hairs which arrest the drops of moisture and force them down the leaf-stalk, to moisten the earth about the roots; while others are protected by a series of poisoned stings. The ordinary nettle is an example of this, and the beauty and ingenuity of its mechanism is truly wonderful. Each nettle hair is armed with a brittle and pointed siliceous cap, which breaks off in the wound; and the poison is then able to flow out through a tubular hair, from a reservoir at its base. There is scarcely a form of leaf but is specially modified by nature for some particular purpose, and the discovery of this purpose is a source of very pleasant, as well as profitable, study.—Horticultural Times.

THE MAN WHO SELLS DOG.

Being an Account of One of the Clever "Brace" Games.

Mr. Fielding Is Led to Invest in a Hand-Painted Skye-Terrier with a Character as Fraudulent as His Coat.

[COPYRIGHT, 1890.]
[Special Correspondence.]

A venerable man, with a large philosophical smile, stands in front of one of the principal hotels in New York every day selling dog. He has sold dog for the last ten years, and is said to be well off.

In the earlier stages of his career, before he had reduced the subject to a science, he used to sell dogs; but he has now discovered that one is enough for any intelligent fakir's stock in trade. Years ago he used to have three or four pretty little puppies in his arms when he stood forth to ask for trade. They were much prettier than the mere product of nature, because the man is an artist as well as a fancier, and can paint the meanest mongrel cur that ever walked on four dissimilar legs until he looks like the descendant of a hundred prize-winners.

His customers then as now were mostly women upon whose impressionable natures the beauties of the puppies never failed to work. Now the peculiarity of the little dogs was that they never lived more than twenty-four hours in their new homes. They were usually purchased in the "shopping" hours of the early afternoon and expired about ten o'clock the next day.

When a fair purchaser found herself thus bereft, she always went to find the man from whom she had obtained the dog. And he was always at his accustomed place. He would listen to her story with tears in his eyes, and when it was finished he would wipe them away with the back of his hand and murmur: "Poor little Fido; how I loved him!" Then he would sell the woman another little dog exactly like Fido—so precisely similar in fact that he never failed to expire at the same hour by the clock. I learn that he sometimes sold as many as four dogs to the same woman on four successive days. Of course they were all "doped"—poisoned, in other words—but the women never suspected it.

But the dog merchant whose name is Perkins (from Nutmeg, Conn.) has got beyond all that now. He has only one dog. From his hide outward, this animal is one of those queer, shaggy skye-terriers with a blue line traced down his spinal column. I am told that the blue line on Mr. Perkins' terrier will not stand wet weather and that he is a bleached blonde, part of whose hair is fastened on with glue. From his hide inward this dog is one mass of infamous deceit. He is no better morally than Perkins himself.

Perkins has the alleged skye-terrier fastened to the end of a string; and there the gentleman from Nutmeg stands all day amid the busy throng, toying with the line like one who is fishing—for suckers. If Mrs. Fielding had not taken the bait—that is, the dog—one day I might never have understood Perkins, and there would still have been depths of moral depravity of which my innocent heart would have known nothing.

"I hate to part with him," said Perkins, when Maude ventured to inquire if the dog was for sale, "but I will do it for fifteen dollars."

Then Maude looked at me. Perkins must be a lucky man, for by a rare chance I happened to have the amount concealed in my clothing. It was evidently the act of fate, and I did not attempt to resist. We bought the terrier.

"Take him home, Howdy," said Maude, "and if he is hungry, you will find some strawberry shortcake in the ice box."

I could not immediately take the dog home, for I had several appointments to keep down town. Maude had other errands to attend to, and we parted. I grasped the string which had the dog on it and allowed him to lead me down Broadway. He started right along just as if he had business, and I followed as best I could.

It is bad luck, you know, for two who walk together to pass on opposite sides of an object, especially if one of the two is a dog on the end of a string and the object is a man in a hurry. The skye-terrier and I had bad luck of this kind several times, and most of the pedestrians expressed a fervid interest in our eternal future, though I trust that their recommendations as to the locality will be mercifully disregarded, for it was not my fault. The terrier can go there if he wants to; it would be cruel to separate him and Perkins.

The conduct of the terrier became steadily worse. He ceased to confine his activity to his legs, and began to use his lungs in the production of such howls as confirmed my growing belief that his lineage was not what it had been represented.

It was especially hard for me to control the movements of this strange animal, because, as every body knows, the rear end of a skye terrier looks so much like the front end that it is impossible to tell which way he is going to jump. He showed no disposition to bite anybody, but he developed a tendency to run round and round, and thus wind me up in the string. I would gladly have relinquished the care of the beast, but dared not let him go on the street, because I knew that a lot of foolish people would chase him, and bring him back to me, and make me more conspicuous than the dog alone could do, though he was very successful in that way.

Finally I got him to the building where one of my friends whom I wished to see had an office, and by much persuasion I urged him to go into the elevator, where he ran back and forth between the feet of the man who had charge of the car in such a way that it took us ten minutes to untie him when we reached the right floor.

Meanwhile the howls of the beast never ceased. His system of voice culture equaled that of the woman who lives across the way from us—from all of us; everybody knows her.

When the pup and I broke into the office of my friend there was a panic. The terrier here abandoned all attempts at self-control. Indeed, his abandon and cœve and diablerie and other French methods of misconduct became so alarming that I sought refuge in the highest thing that I could find under the ceiling, while my friend crawled under his desk and yelled: "Take him away."

"Take him away, yourself," said I. "I'll give him to you."

Then we debated the subject while the terrier climbed on top of the desk and howled. We decided that he was mad and ought to be shot. My friend is an artist, and he keeps in his office a bellmuzzled blunderbuss for his wife's mother when she calls. I do not mean that he intends to shoot her with it. Oh, no! He makes her pose all the celebrated cross-eyed heroine of the Revolution. She holds the old cannon at arm's length and thinks he is putting her into a picture, when in reality he is only going on with his ordinary work.

WE DECIDED TO SHOOT THE TERRIER.

Well, my friend reached out from under the desk, grabbed the old bell-muzzle and tried five times to shoot the dog before he remembered that the gun wasn't loaded.

Pretty soon the dog jumped off the desk and made a break for the door. Being on the other end of the string I followed. He went down the stairs easier than I did at first, till I stubbed my toe, and then we descended with equal facility. He led me down Cortland street toward the ferry, and thus suggested to me the brilliant idea of taking him over to our relatives in New Jersey, that he might enjoy the benefit of country air.

We boarded the boat by the entrance usually devoted to teams, and we were in too much of a hurry to give up a ticket. A rumor that the dog was mad spread quickly, and we created a sensation which appeared to please him wonderfully. He was a dog who could not stand it to be overlooked: he wanted everybody to know that he was on hand and attending to business.

Among the passengers who did not jump overboard or otherwise remove themselves from the danger of hydrophobia was a young man who leaned quietly against a stanchion and polluted the atmosphere with a large cigar.

"I say boss," he remarked, "you don't seem to understand a dog very well."

Disentangling my leg slowly from the string I replied that I had not had much experience with that kind, and I inquired whether he considered himself an expert on canine insanity.

"I'll take the purp off'n your han's fer t'ree dollars, see?" said he.

"Well, you can't do it too soon," I said, and handed over the money and the strings.

Now, would you believe it, that dog calmed down in one second, and walked off the boat with the young man as gently as Mary's little lamb. I could not forbear turning to a man who stood near by and remarking upon the strangeness of the occurrence.

"Young man, you've been taken in," said he; "that's a trained dog, educated to act like a lunatic when away from his master, and the fellow who took him away stands in with the man who sold him. Every time the old duffer sells the dog the young one follows him up and steals him back again. Nobody ever kicks; they're too glad to get rid of the dog."

I looked more closely at the man who gave this information and recognized him as a well-known confidence operator, whose stamping ground is near the place where the venerable old hypocrite conducts his transactions in dog.

Take it for all in all, I think this is one of the most remarkable games played by anybody outside of Wall street.

HOWARD FIELDING.

POPULAR SCIENCE.

SCIENCE CLIPPINGS.

It is estimated that the railroads of this country will need a million tons of steel rails this year, which will cost, delivered, $35,000,000.

The art of making red glass for church windows as practiced in the twelfth and thirteenth centuries was lost for a long time, and was only recovered in 1836. The modern product is still inferior to the ancient.

There is a growing tendency among chemists to regard the elements as varying arrangements—produced as successive stages in the process of cooling—of one original form of atom. Evidence in favor of the hypothesis is claimed in the fact that some elements seem not to have formed in the sun, while yet more are absent from still hotter stars.

A wonderful discovery has been attracting the attention of scientists. A beam of sunlight is made to pass through a prism so as to produce the solar spectrum or rainbow. A disk, having slits or openings cut in it, is made to revolve, and the colored light of the rainbow is made to break through it and fall on silk, wool or other material contained in a glass vessel. As the colored lights fall upon it, sounds will be given by the different parts of the spectrum, and there will be silence in other parts. If the vessel contains red worsted and the green light flashes upon it, loud sounds will be given. Only feeble sounds will be heard when the red and blue parts of the rainbow fall upon the vessel, and other colors make no sound at all.

Geologists are always ready to use work done by laborers in other branches of science, and of late a most interesting work has been going on, says the Scientific American, which shows the bearing one branch of knowledge may have on another. Profs. Rucker and Thorpe have been carefully noting the behavior of the magnetic needle in various parts of England, and have found that it is deflected at times in a most inexplicable manner. The deflection was at first charged to great masses of basaltic or like rocks, the minerals of which contain a large amount of iron. Finding, however, that this peculiar behavior of the magnetic needle occurred also in tracts where no such rocks were at the surface, but which consisted of such formation as chalk and tertiary beds, these observers were led to conclude that deep under ground in those tracts there was a mass of basaltic or other high ferruginous rock that affected the needle. It seems, therefore, likely that Prof. Rucker's elaborate and scientific divining rod will come into use for the purpose of indicating what places are to be avoided in searching for coal measures under ground.

Asafœtida.

The asafœtida region is thought to include not only the whole of Southern and Eastern Persia, but also the greater part of Belochistan and Afghanistan, Turkestan and the region now under Russian control eastward of the Sea of Aral. It is, we believe, cultivated in the Punjaub also, and the bulk of it, at any rate, is brought into commerce via Bombay, where it is received either by way of the Persian gulf or through British India. The proportion of the drug consumed in the East is enormously larger than that shipped to Western countries. We find from the statistical tables of the trade of British India which have just been issued that whereas the total imports of asafœtida into that country during the last five years have been 37,306 cwts., the aggregate exports have only been 2,014 cwts., or barely five per cent of the whole. The first trustworthy account of the collection of asafœtida in Persia was given about two hundred years ago by one Engelbert Kaempfer, a German scientist; but from the reports of recent visitors who have observed the mode of collection of the drug this still remains the same in all essential particulars as in Kaempfer's time. According to that authority, the collection begins about the middle of April, when the earth is removed from the roots, which vary in thickness from a carrot to that of a man's leg, and the leaves of the plant are removed. Toward the end of May the top of the root is sliced away and the juice exudes and is scraped off. A few days later another incision is made, and this process is repeated at intervals until the beginning of July, when the crop is at an end.—Chemist and Druggist.

How Diphtheria Is Spread by Corpses.

Dr. Baker, the secretary of the Michigan State Board of Health, has issued a circular stating that in March two corpses, those of a woman and child of the same family, dead of throat disease, certified by the attending physician not to be "dangerous to the public health," were conveyed from Montmorency County to Lapeer County, Mich., where in just a week from the day the coffins were opened and the remains viewed a person who was thus exposed came down with diphtheria. Many others, says Dr. Baker, would probably have been exposed except for the action of the local health officer, Dr. C. A. Wisner, who, suspecting that the cause of the deaths was diphtheria, warned the neighbors and forbade the opening of the coffins at the funeral. He promptly isolated the first person that was attacked, and no epidemic resulted. This, Dr. Baker adds, is quite different from the result of a similar occurrence at Zanesville, O., last spring, where many deaths resulted from exposure to a corpse brought from Chicago. It shows the importance of notice to the local health officer of the arrival of a corpse, so that he may take every precaution that may be necessary.—N. Y. Medical Journal.

MR. BLAINE'S LETTER

He Writes Again to Senator Frye on Reciprocity.

THE SUGAR PLAN EXPLAINED.

Spain and Mexico Willing to Negotiate With the United States.

The Secretary of State's Present Views Given to the Ways and Means Committee Last February—He Would Like to Try Friendly Barter When Buying Sugar—A Word About Shipping.

WASHINGTON, July 26.—Senator Frye has received the following letter from Secretary Blaine in further elucidation of the reciprocity question:—

BAR HARBOR, Me., July 24, 1890.

DEAR MR. FRYE:—

I have your reply to my letter and am glad that the essential part of it has been given to the press.

You ask me what assurance I have as to Spain's willingness to enter into reciprocal arrangements of trade with the United States. Your question surprises me, for you cannot have forgotten that only six years ago the Prime Minister of Spain, in his anxiety to secure free admission to our markets for the sugar of Cuba and Porto Rico, agreed to a very extensive treaty of reciprocity with Mr. John W. Foster, then our Minister at Madrid.

A year before—in 1883—a very admirable treaty of reciprocity was negotiated by General Grant and Mr. William H. Trescot, as United States Commissioners, with the Republic of Mexico—a treaty well considered in all its parts and all its details—whose results would, I believe, have proved highly advantageous to both countries.

In view of the pending discussion it is a somewhat singular circumstance that both these treaties of reciprocity failed to secure the approval of Congress, and failed for the express reason that both provided for the free admission of sugar. Congress would not thus allow a single pound of sugar to come in free of duty under any circumstances whatever.

And now the proposition is to open our ports free to everybody's sugar, and do it with such rapidity that we are not to have a moment's time to see if we can make a better trade—a trade by which we may pay for at least part of the sugar in the products of American farms and shops.

Our change of opinion has certainly been remarkable in so brief a period. Indeed the only danger of our not securing advantageous treaties of reciprocity now is the possible belief on the part of those countries that we are so anxious for free sugar that by patient waiting they can secure all they desire without money and without price.

Fearing that result I sought an interview with the eight Republican members of the Committee on Ways and Means more than five months ago—to be exact, on the 10th day of last February. I endeavored to convince them that it would be expedient and wise to leave to the President, as the treaty making power, an opportunity to see what advantageous arrangements of reciprocal trade could be effected. I was unable to persuade the committee to take my view. I mention this circumstance now because it has been charged in many quarters that the suggestion for reciprocity came too late. In fact, my effort was made before the Tariff bill was reported to the House or even framed in committee.

It is, I think, a very grave mistake to oppose this reciprocal proposition touching sugar from the fear that it may conflict in some way with the policy of protection. The danger is, I think, wholly in the opposite direction. Let us see what is proposed. Our Government has heretofore collected a heavy duty from sugar—amounting one year, in the aggregate, to $58,000,000 and averaging $50,000,000 per annum for a considerable period. We wish now to cheapen sugar by removing the duty.

The value of the sugar we annually consume is enormous. Shall we pay for it all in cash or shall we seek a reciprocal arrangement by which a large part of it may be paid for in pork and beef and flour, in lumber and salt and iron, in shoes and calico and furniture, and a thousand other things? In short, shall we pay for it all in cash or try friendly barter in part? I think the latter mode is the highest form of protection and the best way to promote trade.

I address this note to you, as I did my first, because you have taken an active and most intelligent interest in the increase of our trade with South America. When shall we enlarge our commercial intercourse with the great continent if we do not now make a beginning? If we now give away the duty on sugar, as we have already given away the duties on coffee and hides and rubber, and get nothing in exchange which shall be profitable to the farm or the factory in the United States, what shall be our justification for the policy?

You have recently received congratulations—in which I cordially joined—on carrying the Shipping bill through the Senate. Do you think that a line of ships generously aided by the Government will have a better prospect for profit and permanence, if we can give them outward cargoes from the United States and not confine them to inward cargoes from Latin America?

I am, sincerely yours,

JAMES G. BLAINE.

Among the Lightweights.

NEW ORLEANS, July 26.—Andy Bowen and Jimmy Carroll have signed to fight for $2,000 to take place in the Olympic club in six weeks. McAuliffe writes to Bowen making several propositions, neither of which is acceptable. Bowen will challenge him for $1,000 and the championship on any battlefield. Brennan, of Memphis, wants to fight Danforth at 130 pounds.

THE CATHOLIC CONGRESS.

The Committee Decide to Hold It in Chicago in 1893.

BOSTON, Mass., July 26.—The committee appointed at the last congress of the Catholic laity of America to decide on the matter of future congresses, held a business meeting at the Parker House, Judge Morgan J. O'Brien, of New York, presiding. The following dignitaries were present: Archbishops Ireland, Riordan, Janssens and Elder, and Bishops Foley, Maes and Spalding, and Rev. Father Montgomery of California. Thomas B. Fitz, president of the Catholic Union of Boston, was present by invitation.

The session was held with closed doors and lasted three hours. After the meeting adjourned it was learned that the committee had decided to hold the next convention in Chicago in 1893. The arrangements for this convention were left to a committee to be appointed by Judge O'Brien.

The visitors were given an informal dinner at the Parker House by prominent Catholic laity of Boston. Hon. P. A. Collins presided.

A SYMPATHETIC STRIKE.

A General Tie-Up Ordered by the Building Trades of Brooklyn.

BROOKLYN, July 26.—Delegates representing the building trades of this city have decided to call out all union men employed on all buildings now being erected here. This action will result in serious loss to the contractors. For the past month buildings all over the city have been standing in an unfinished condition, and have sustained more or less damage. Owners have become clamorous for the completion of their houses, and will also sustain great losses in prospective rents.

When the roofers made their demand for shorter hours and no reduction of pay they were met with a flat refusal from the majority of the employers, and they quit work. All efforts at arbitration failed, and the present general tie-up is inaugurated to bring the boss roofers to terms.

HORSEWHIPPED AGAIN.

The Mayor of Cape May Lashed by a Doctor's Son.

CAPE MAY, N. J., July 26.—Mayor James Henry Edmunds, proprietor of the Wave (newspaper) was horsewhipped again by William Marcy. Two weeks ago ex-Tax Collector James Taylor horsewhipped Mayor Edmunds.

The Wave contained an article reflecting on the medical sheet of Drs. Marcy and McCray, two of the leading physicians of the city. William Marcy, son of one of the physicians, went to Edmunds' house where an animated discussion took place, and finally Marcy took a horsewhip and lashed Edmunds about the face and neck.

So far no arrests have been made.

Massachusetts Republican Convention.

BOSTON, Mass., July 26.—The Republican State Committee decided to hold the State Convention at Tremont Temple, Boston, Sept. 17. Congressman Frederick T. Greenhalge was chosen to act as chairman of the convention, and Hon. Frank P. Goulding, of Worcester, for chairman of the Committee of Resolutions, with J. L. Shipley, Hon. Charles W. Clifford of New Bedford, Hon. N. P. Hallowell of Medford, and Dudley L. Pickham of Boston, as members at large of that committee.

A Divorce Recommended.

TRENTON, N. J., July 26.—Vice Chancellor Pitney advised a divorce in the case of Mary Fauratte, formerly Mary Hughes, of New Brunswick, whose mysterious disappearance for a time last winter caused quite a sensation. The girl is only 16 years old and was kidnapped by old John Fauratte, who forced her to marry his 35 year-old son, and threatened to kill her if she refused.

The Escaped Lunatic Goes South.

PHILADELPHIA, July 26.—Alphies T. Reeves, the escaped lunatic, who killed Father Ashfield at Memphis a year ago, was handed over to Sergeant Edward Kehoe of the Memphis police force this morning. Kehoe arrived here yesterday with requisition papers for Reeves and will start for Memphis with his prisoner immediately.

A Young Man Murdered.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., July 26.—The dead body of Edward Ludwig, 18 years old, was found on the bank of the Oswego canal in the northern part of the city early in the morning with a bullet hole over the heart. It is thought to be a case of murder. The young man had been missing since Tuesday night.

Farmers to Build Their Own Machinery.

PEORIA, Ill., July 26.—A meeting of the Co-operative Industrial Union, comprising delegates from the labor organizations and farmers' alliances held a meeting here yesterday and decided to build a manufactory which will be started on a $25,000 basis. The object is to manufacture all sorts of farming implements and furnish them to farmers in the union at cost of production.

Population of Colorado.

WASHINGTON, July 26.—The census enumeration of Colorado has been so far completed as to indicate that the population of the State will be close to 400,000.

Passed the Heligoland Bill.

LONDON, July 26.—In the House of Commons last night the Heligoland bill passed its second reading by a vote of 209 to 61.

Ex-Minister Phelps Silent.

BURLINGTON, Vt., July 26.—Ex-Minister Phelps, who was approached regarding the Behring Sea troubles, declined to express any opinions or engage in any conversation on that topic.

WASHINGTON TOPICS

No Official Information From Central America.

ADVICES ARE HOURLY EXPECTED

Congress to Make War Upon the Lottery Evil.

Congressman Mills Opposes the Boycott. Indians in Need of Food—Action on the Clayton-Breckinridge Contest Postponed Until Next Week—Secretary Noble's Alien Land Claim Decision.

WASHINGTON, July 26.—No official information has yet been received from the Guatemala-Salvador revolution at the Department of State, although advices are hourly expected. The department has instructed the United States Minister at Salvador to forward promptly all information bearing upon the situation, but nothing whatever has yet been received from him.

Central American dispatches received at the Costa Rican Legation confirm the reports of battles between Salvador and Guatemala troops already described in these dispatches. Last night's mails brought additional intelligence showing that the Barillas government is almost certain to be overthrown, even should General Ezeta and his army fail to capture the Guatemalan capital.

Little stock is taken in diplomatic circles as to the report of the seizure by the Guatemalan government of rifles aboard the Pacific Mail steamer Coima.

THE LOTTERY EVIL.

Congress to Make War Upon the Louisiana Corporation.

WASHINGTON, July 26.—There is very strong feeling here among Congressmen and Senators in regard to the lottery business.

Despite the fact that the Louisiana Lottery charter has been practically extended by the Legislature of that State, Congress will surely enact stringent legislation against that corporation.

The House Committee on Postoffices and Postroads, at a late hour, decided to submit a sweeping bill to the House which will make the lottery business decidedly dangerous.

The bill is prepared with the idea of absolutely prohibiting the use of the mails, under any circumstances by the lottery companies for the transmission of tickets, money or printed matter appertaining to their business.

It makes it a penal offence, punishable by a fine of $500, for depositing in any mail box any mail matter relating to lotteries in any manner. There is no doubt that this bill—sweeping as it is—will pass, and, in fact, it may even be made still more severe by coupling a term of imprisonment with the penalty of a fine.

In the new bill the Postmaster-General is authorized, upon evidence of the existence of a lottery or gift enterprise, to cause registered letters directed to the company to be stamped "fraudulent" and returned to the sender, and he may also forbid the payment of money orders addressed to a lottery or gift enterprise company.

Alien Land Claim Decision.

WASHINGTON, July 26.—The old principle that an alien cannot acquire public lands under any of the land laws is just asserted by Secretary Noble in a decision rendered in the appeal case brought by Henry Booth and James P. Robeson, who had located homstead and preemptive entries upon lands within the grant of the Central Pacific railroad company in the Salt Lake City land district, Utah. The Secretary denied the appeal, holding that the settlement and residence of an alien upon the lands does not except the same from the grant.

Congressman Mills Against It.

WASHINGTON, July 26.—A dispatch from Dallas, Tex., says that Hon. Roger Q. Mills, in an interview on the boycotting of the North suggested by the Atlanta Constitution and indorsed by Gen. Gordon, should the Lodge bill become a law, says: "It would not only be a folly but a criminal folly to attempt such a project. It would injure us as much as the North and the merchants and business men of the South should come out and denounce it."

Indians in Need of Food.

WASHINGTON, July 26.—Word from Chamberlain, S. D., says the delay in the passage of the Indian Appropriation bill has resulted in the beef supply at Crow Creek and Lower Brule becoming exhausted. A number of other staple articles of food are also gone and the Indians are complaining.

The Clayton Breckenridge Contest.

WASHINGTON, July 26.—The House Committee on Elections postponed action on the Clayton-Breckenridge contested election case until next week, owing to a desire on the part of the Democrats to more fully examine the figures in the case.

Governor Hill Appoints a Judge.

ALBANY, N. Y., July 26.—Governor Hill has appointed Hon. George S. Wood of Plattsburgh to be Judge of Clinton County, in the place made vacant by the resignation of Hon. Alonzo. Kellogg.

Took Strychnine and Died.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., July 26.—Mrs. Ed. Tracey, of Afton, N. Y., took strychnine early in the morning and died about 11 o'clock. The cause for her act is not known.

Return of Minister Douglass.

NEW YORK, July 26.—Fred. Douglass, United States Minister to Hayti, arrived here on the Dutch steamer Prins Frederick Hendrick, from Port-au-Prince.

THE DEFUNCT SUGAR TRUST.

The Circular Sent Out to Certificate Holders Made Public.

NEW YORK, July 26.—The Trustees of the Sugar Trust have made public the circular sent out to certificate holders in connection with the proposed reorganization of the company.

The circular states that inasmuch as the recent decision of the Court of Appeals in the case of the People against the North River Sugar Refineries Company makes it necessary that the trustees terminate their trust and that the business be reorganized in accordance with the law as laid down by the Court of Appeals, the trustees propose to wind up the trust and have taken the necessary steps to secure that end and protect the interests of the certificate holders.

The trustees propose that Messrs. Havemeyer, F. O. Matthiessen, J. B. Thomas, John E. Searles, Jr. and J. A. Stursbery, together with such bankers as they may select be appointed a committee by the certificate holders with full power to represent them in the pending proceedings and to form a new organization for the purpose of protecting the property and promoting the interests of the certificate holders.

The circular continuing says: "All certificate holders who favor this proposition and desire to co-operate in the plan of reorganization may send their certificates with transfer to the Central Trust Company of New York with a power of Attorney duly executed.

The Central Trust Company will issue, in lieu of the certificates of the Sugar Refineries Company deposited, their certificates, which will be negotiable with the same facility as the present certificates of the Sugar Refineries Company.

THE PORTE ALARMED

Russia Sends a Note That Creates Uneasiness.

OPPOSING BULGARIAN DEMANDS

No Desire to Strengthen the Tottering Throne of Prince Ferdinand.

President Barillas Formally Declares War on San Salvador—A Bitter Arraignment of the English Aristocracy by Lady Dunlo's Counsel—Thirty Arabs Killed by Spaniards.

CONSTANTINOPLE, July 26.—M. Nelidoff, the Russian Ambassador to Turkey, has presented a note from Russia to the Porte declaring that the granting by Turkey of the concessions demanded by Bulgaria would humiliate the Sultan.

The Bulgarian demands, the note says, are manœuvres to strengthen the tottering throne of Prince Ferdinand and his illegal rule. Furthermore, it says that Bulgaria is hostile to Russia, and that the Porte's condescension to that principality would be an unfriendly act toward Russia, and might lead to serious consequences.

The attitude of Russia, as displayed by the note, seriously exercises the Porte.

SCORING THE NOBILITY.

Lady Dunlo's Counsel Gives the English Aristocracy Hard Raps.

LONDON, July 26.—Mr. Lockwood, counsel for "Belle Bilton" or Lady Dunlo, in his opening address for his fair but perhaps frail client, gave the nobility such a scoring as that superior class has seldom been subjected to.

After listening to the biting invective of the distinguished Q. C. one's natural impression of a Lord, or a Viscount, would be that of a fiend in human shape, whose almost sole aim in life was to drag innocent concert hall singers down to ruin. Mr. Lockwood's view of the English aristocracy is a very pessimistic one, but it will probably become modified should his services ever be needed by any distressed member of that class.

Lord Clancarty seems horrified at the attacks upon his order which he was obliged to listen to, while his son, the plaintiff, Viscount Dunlo, fairly writhed under the sarcasms aimed particularly at himself.

There is a rumor that if the divorce is not granted, the plaintiff's family will abandon their attitude of hostility to Lady Dunlo, and will let the young couple go to Australia or some distant point and settle down. This would undoubtedly suit the Viscount immensely, as he is as much in love with "Belle" as ever, and never would have sued for divorce had not his father compelled it.

Indignation in Halifax.

HALIFAX, N. S., July 26.—There is excitement and indignation here over the coming to this garrison of the Seventeenth Leicester regiment. The cause is the bad blood that has existed for more than a quarter of a century between the Halifonians and the regiment in question, owing to the mutiny and riots of 30 years ago. It is said a petition will be presented to the military authorities asking that the exiled Conadian Gnards be sent here in place of the 17th. Should the 17th come here an outbreak of the old hostilities is almost sure.

Kaiser William's Visit to England.

LONDON, July 26.—According to present arrangements, the Emperor of Germany will reach Cowes in the yacht Hohenzolern on Aug. 4. On the following day he will witness a series of naval manœuvres in the neighborhood, and on the 6th he will visit Portsmouth dockyard. His entire sojourn in England will probably not extend beyond five or six days.

Crops Destroyed by Rains.

PARIS, July 26.—Incessant rains have destroyed the crops throughout the country except in the section east of the Rhone. Official reports from the great wheat district of La Blange state that the crop is rotting, and the losses are estimated at 500,000,000 francs. Dealers in grain are already discounting the scarcity, and the price of bread is rising.

Trouble Over a Street Railway.

ERIE, Pa., July 26.—A dispatch from Ashtabula says that the great street railroad war is still on. J. N. Stewart, owner of the railway line torn up by the city authorities, petitioned the Circuit Court for a restraining order to keep the council from interfering with him when he attempted to relay his tracks. The case was on for two days and was decided against Stewart. Notwithstanding this, he announces his intention of at once relaying the tracks, while the authorities say he will not. A conflict is expected.

Sister Harriet's Will.

LOCKPORT, N. Y., July 26.—Harriet Dayton, known throughout this country as "Sister Harriet," the first of the Order of Episcopal Deaconesses, has left a will at the Surrogate's office in Lockport which will be admitted to probate September 1. She left considerable property, though she is known to have given nearly $200,000 to the poor.

Domestic Troubles Caused His Death.

NEWARK, N. J., July 26.—The dead body of Martin Blechschmidt was last night found in a room of the house No. 22 Somerset street, where it had been lying for two days. The deceased committed suicide by taking poison. He had been annoyed by family troubles.

ANNIE GOODWIN'S MURDER.

The Coroner Taking Testimony To-Day in the Sensational Case.

NEW YORK, July 26.—The formal inquiry into the cause which led to the death of Annie Goodwin, the cigarette girl, was resumed this forenoon by Coroner Messemer.

Dr. McGonegal, the most notable prisoner in the case, is represented by Henry C. Allen, William T. Burtsell and James Oliver. They also represent Mrs. Shaw and the colored attendant, Davidson.

Mrs. Halliday, sister of the deceased, testified to having identified the remains of her sister at St. Michael's Cemetery in Astoria; she recognized a mark on her sister's right cheek similar to one which appeared on her own. She had known Harrison since a year ago last Christmas, but knew no good of him. Mrs. Halliday said that on Feb. 13, 1889, Harrison brought in a bottle of wine, which took effect on Annie, who said to Harrison: "Oh, Gus! If my father knew this he would shoot you." To this Harrison replied: "Oh, that's all right. Two can play at that game. I carry a 'pop' myself."

On the day following this conversation Harrison took Annie to a picnic of the "Cuckoos" and on the next day they went out driving and when Annie came home she was intoxicated.

Sadie Traphagen came next and said she knew nothing of Gus Harrison and had never seen anything improper between Annie and himself.

In reply to Judge Bedford, the witness said she had accompanied Annie to various places when she roomed at Mrs. Collins'. Witness had called at Mrs. Shaw's house to see Annie on the 9th or 10th inst. She found Annie in bed, and left in about five minutes.

Andrew L. Fanning, although cautioned that what he said might be used against him, insisted on being sworn. Fanning told the story of his connection with the dead girl and said that her conduct when with him had always been ladylike and modest. Witness said that when, in response to Annie's summons, he went to see her at Mrs. Collins', she told him she was very sick. He wanted to call in his family physician or some other doctor, but she insisted on having Dr. McGonegal. Fanning related how Mrs. Collins compelled her to leave her premises and how he saw Dr. McGonegal carry the young woman away in his gig. He was compelled to carry her on his shoulder as she was unable to walk. He had never seen Annie after that. While not engaged to be married to her, the witness had held a very high opinion of Miss Goodwin whom he frequently took to places of amusement.

Albert Harris, the boy employed by Mrs. Shaw where the girl died, testified to seeing McGonegal carry the dead body out of the house wrapped up in a quilt at 2 o'clock on Sunday morning.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

Nelson W. Reynolds, aged 20, died at the city hospital in Boston during the morning from the effects of a sandbagging inflicted last Saturday by some unknown persons.

At Edwardsville, a small town about three miles from Wilkesbarre, Pa., Evan's brick block, containing the hall, and W. J. Servis' dry goods store was burned yesterday. The total loss will reach $20,000, partly insured.

Chief Justice Doe of New Hampshire delivered a lengthy opinion on the petition of Mrs. Marisia Ricker, of Dover, for admission to the bar. The court decides that sex is no disqualification for membership.

The Lehigh Valley Coal Company has rescinded the order that all collieries owned by the company would be run on half time. The various mines will continue to work on full time. Over 8,000 miners are employed by the company.

Pugilist La Blanche, the Marine, returned yesterday to San Francisco from his hunting trip in the mountains. He was at once arrested on a warrant charging him with grand larceny for appropriating $500 in a recent foot race. La Blanche was bailed out.

The death is announced of Brother Vincent of Notre Dame University, South Bend, Ind., aged 100 years. He had been blind for many years, but his other senses were not enfeebled by his great age. Brother Vincent was one of the four Frenchmen who came to the spot where the famous Notre Dame now is with Very Rev. Father Soren in 1842.

Weather Indications.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 26.—For New England: Showers; warmer in western portion, stationary temperature in eastern portion, southerly winds.

For Eastern New York and New Jersey: Showers; Southerly winds; warmer.

For Western New York: Showers, followed by clearing fair weather to-morrow; stationary temperature; southwesterly winds.

J. A. DEMAREST, - - MANAGING EDITOR.

BY THE WAY.

—Now that the S. P. C. A., is getting to work, what is the matter with investigating the manner in which animals are handled at the freight house?

—A courageous German publisher of light literature has issued the "Aegptisch-Indoeuropalsche Sprachverwandtschaft." A burial permit goes with every volume.

—George Thatcher's Minstrels opened at Hartford, last evening. The programme was a decided success. In spite of pouring rain, the box receipts were $1,027.

—John Kane struck John Kelly over the head with a shovel, last evening, on Broad street, Westfield. Dr. Gale dressed the scalp wound that resulted. There were no arrests.

—Shareholders of the Plainfield Building and Loan Association will hold their regular monthly meeting, for the payment of dues, etc., in Cutter's Hall, Monday evening next at 8 o'clock.

—The United Tea and Coffee Growers' Association at 29 West Front street, have a fine lot of melons and a full stock of everything else on hand this evening. Their store is always open.

—The regular meeting of the Plainfield Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, will be held at the office of the Secretary, No. 34 West Front street, next Monday evening at eight o'clock.

—Mizpah Lodge, No. 1, Independent Order of Odd Ladies, hold a public installation of officers, Monday evening, at the Howell Division rooms. Grand Officers from Boston will be in attendance.

—Bear in mind the annual excursion of the Reform Club to Rockaway Beach, on Thursday, August 7. It will be a splendid ocean voyage to one of the finest of surf washed shores, and on board a staunch and thoroughly equipped steamer, the "Grand Republic."

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Batchelor John Mantz, of Mantz Bros., Front street, is quite an aquisition to the gay throng of Asbury Park. He is registered at Hotel Albion.

William N. Fine, only son of Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Fine, is very ill of brain fever at his home on East Front street. Grave apprehension is felt for his recovery.

During the month of August Prof. Green, of Brooklyn, who has preached with great acceptance in former years, will occupy the pulpit of the Park Avenue Baptist church.

The Elizabeth Herald says: "Col Julian Scott of Plainfield, called on friends in this city yesterday. He left today for the Indian territory, where he will remain for six or seven weeks, taking sketches of the most interesting localities and features of that part of the Union."

Another paper in republishing THE PRESS' exclusive news of the journalistic advancement of a Plainfield bred boy, says: "The New York World, has a new city editor—Mr. Ernest O. Chamberlin, for a long time one of the best reporters and correspondents of the Sun. It was only by the offer of a very large salary that Mr. Chamberlin was induced to leave the Sun, where he had done remarkable work, such as descriptions of the disaster at Johnstown, Pa., of the inauguration of General Harrison, of the Centennial celebration, and of the labors of General Harrison to construct his cabinet at Indianapolis after his election in 1888."

George W. Marshall, whose dangerous illness was mentioned in these columns yesterday, died this morning at one o'clock. He was unconscious at the time, and had been so since yesterday morning when he last recognized his brother, J. Lot Marshall, and their mother, wife of the late Daniel J. Marshall. The cause of death was an abscess on the brain supposed to have come from worriment since the deaths of his wife in the Spring of last year, and both his father and uncle a few months ago. He was in the 55th year of his age, and leaves two sons and a married daughter, Mrs. F. W. McCully, of Newark. Funeral services will be held at the home of his mother, 59 Park avenue, Monday morning at eleven o'clock.

Tryon to Fill Eugene Lorton's Place.

L. S. Menger, a civil engineer of Paterson, has been appointed G. K. of R. and S., of the Grand Lodge Knights of Pythias, to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Eugene V. Lorton, of this city. Mr. Menger is an enterprising man, and will undoubtedly make a good officer.

THE NEW HOWARD CAR.

It Will Cost Over $15,000, and Begin to Roll in September.

Last Sunday's New York Herald contained an excellent article, profusely illustrated, on the subject of cars used by commuters' clubs, especial reference being made to the three cars of this character run on the Central road between Plainfield and New York.

But the club of which L. E. Howard is the President, and which inaugurated the private car idea, is to have a new car. It is now almost completed after the following plans:

It is seventy-two feet long and sixty-six feet in length in the frames exclusive of the platforms. It rides on twelve wheels and weighs between seventy and eighty thousand pounds. It has seventy-five chairs of mahogany and leather, none of which are stationary. The decorations consist chiefly of quartered oak and mirrors. Each card table has above it on the wall a locker, furnished with a lock and key.

The lavatory and heating room are as perfect as money can make them. Even the carpets share in the general luxury and are as fine and durable as it is possible to secure.

The car is connected with Joe Case, the engineer, by a special bell cord, independent of the methods of signalling used in other coaches.

When the new Howard comes out, which will be early in September, it will be the pride of the road.

The cost of the car will be between $15,000 and $18,000 and it will be in charge of Conductor Samuel Johnson, who has run the special train ever since the club was instituted.

Mr. Coudert Probably Lamed for Fife.

The injury to Frederic R. Coudert, who was thrown from his horse at New Market Monday, is more serious than has been represented, and will probably result in his being lame for life. The bone forming the entire upper part of the ankle joint had to be removed, and on account of Mr. Coudert's age, fifty-eight, it is doubtful whether the lost bone will be restored by new growth.

The physicians hope, however, that the ligaments will be thickened sufficiently to perform, at least partly, the function of the bone. In any case, a long time must elapse before the foot can be used. The injury is to the left leg.

Mr. Coudert was fortunate in securing within a short time after the accident the services of a capable surgeon from New Brunswick, Dr. Donohue. The first medical man to reach him was a country doctor who wanted to amputate the foot, but a messenger had been despatched to New Brunswick, seven miles distant, for Dr. Donohue and Mr. Coudert decided to defer amputation until his arrival.

Reduced Rates to the G. A. R. Encampment at Boston.

The National Encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic will be held at Boston, August 10 to 16, and for the benefit of comrades and the public the Pennsylvania Railroad Company will sell excursion tickets from all principal stations on its lines to Boston, August 8 to 11 inclusive, valid for return until August 20, at greatly reduced rates. By an arrangement entered into by all the lines, however, the return limit may be extended to September 30, if the return coupons are deposited with the Joint Agent of the Terminal Lines at Boston between August 12 and 19. Through tickets may be purchased for use on any of the rail or boat lines East of New York. For specific rates from each station consult ticket agents of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company.

The Whistling Nuisance Still Continues.

Superintendent Peddle of the Central road, who will do anything and everything in his power to please his patrons, has promulgated the following order:

SPECIAL NOTICE No. 81.

To Engineers and Brakemen: The whistling nuisance is again assuming unwarrantable proportions and recent serious complaints of same have been made by residents of Cranford and North Branch, who are much annoyed during the night. Unnecessary and noisy demonstrations are prohibited. Use the whistle as little as possible particularly during the night, and make no unnecessary noise at any point of the road which will cause annoyance to people living adjacent to our lines.

Loud and boisterous conversation is unnecessary, and profanity will not be tolerated under any circumstances.

W. H. PEDDLE,
Superintendent.

July 19, 1890.

After the Sabbath Breakers.

Young men who have long troubled the isolated parts of the city by their Sunday antics are being made to understand that the new police regime will not tolerate their offensive Sabbath breaking. Policeman Patrick Lynch has identified several of the offenders who, gathered in vacant lots, have raised disturbances over games of chance, the past two Sundays, and next Monday will present several of the noisy gamblers before City Judge Codington for sentence. Four have already been apprehended, and finding the evidence so strong against them, have pleaded guilty. It is not true that the fellows were identified by garments and letters left behind when chased by officers. Sergeant Lynch secured his evidence through shrewd detective methods.

The people's remedy for the cure of Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Hoarseness, Bronchitis, Croup, Influenza, Whooping Cough, Incipient Consumption, is Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup, the old reliable. Price 25 cents.

THE ALLERTONS APOLOGIZE.

If They Come to Plainfield Again, They Expect to Redeem Themselves.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—The Allerton B. B. C. deems an explanation due the patrons of the game at Plainfield. At 11 A. M of Saturday last, the Manager received word that his catcher was unable to get away on account of sickness, and at the same time the change-catcher and third baseman, McGowan, was unable to get away on account of an accident. We were also short the services of our first baseman, Demlein. All that was possible to be done was done in so short a time to repair the damage.

McGrury went behind the bat under protest, and did the best he could. In justice to Wade I should say he did not want to play the infield as his hand was in bad shape from an injury. The radical changes in the team made a great difference in their playing, and they feel the sad showing they made keenly, as the audience were very lenient under the circumstances, and the boys appreciate it very much.

If they ever strike the town again they will try to redeem themselves. With all their bad playing luck seemed against them too. Mr. Bowman should get in the infield once in a while; it might make some difference on base decisions.

The regular team of the Allertons is as follows: Warner, c; Murray, ss; Demlein, 1b; Kinzie, 2b; Paasch, 3b; Green, lf; Lever, cf; Pixley, rf; Swaback, p; McGowan and Roberts, extra.

If you will kindly give this space in your paper I will feel greatly obliged.

J. A. VANVALKENBURG,
Manager Allerton B. B. C.

RESTRICTIONS OF THE NEW BALLOT LAW.

When the Judge or Inspector is Absent, His Place Can Only be Filled by the County Board.

In the nomination and appointment of precinct officers under the new ballot law, there are these restrictions that apply to Plainfield, and which every citizen should be acquainted with:

First—Not more than two members of a precinct board may belong to the same political party.

Second—When the Chairman of a County Committee nominates, he must do so from the ranks of his own party. Where the County Board is called upon to select, the precinct officers may be taken from any party, provided that not more than two shall be of the same political faith.

Third—Precinct officers must not hold any other public office and must be legal voters and resident within the election district for which they are appointed.

There is one point to which the attention of County Boards may be specially directed. Under the old election law, if, at the opening of the polls, a "judge or inspector of elections" was absent or disqualified or refused to serve, the voters present could fill the vacancy. The present law does not provide for this emergency—or, at least, not properly. If a vacancy occurs on election day in a precinct board it must be filled by the County Board, the members of which should, in each county, make arrangments to be at a point accessible from all parts of the county on election day.

The act does not provide for the taking of an official oath by the members of County Boards, but it does provide that they shall serve without compensation.

It does not provide for the expenses which the County Boards must make on notifying their appointees, for stationery, etc, but these matters can be arranged with the Chosen Freeholders of the counties.

The "Board of Registry and Election" for the precincts being appointed, they are directed to select, for each precinct, two registry or poll clerks, not of the same political party, who are forbidden to hold any other public office. The members of the precinct boards, and their clerks, must, before entering upon their duties, take an official oath and cause the same to be filed in the office of the County Clerk. This done, the precinct boards are ready for organization and official duty.

We Mustn't Worry About Westfield's Head.

(From the Union County Standard.)

The Plainfield Press of Saturday, July 19, accuses Westfield of having a "Swelling Head" because we want to see our base ball team pitted against the famous Plainfield Crescents.

Now, it is just like this:—Our heads are swelling and they grow larger every time we go to Drake Park and see the team of The Westfield Athletic Club play ball. Every week shows improvement, strong fielding, harder hitting, better base-running, more intelligence and head work; and we want to say right here, that when Westfield faces the Crescents, our blue and gray team will be "in it," for sure. Mr. Plainfield Press, don't you worry a bit about Westfield's head.

Our Ungallant Contemporary.

The Central Times naively says:

—A young lady from Hackettstown is visiting Plainfield this week, and her morning costume consists of a semi-mannish attire which does not ill become her. A collar, bosom shirt, necktie, diamond stud and cuffs are all the style, she says, in Hackettstown. Now, all the Plainfield girls will be expected to follow suit.

We can overlook the frightful pun on "suit," but the reflection that our girls must learn their fashions from Hackettstown is too much for mortal man. The Times, to say the least, is ungallant.

—The "Young Cuban Giants," of this city, defeated the "Young Star Athletics," of North Plainfield, last Tuesday morning, by a score of 13 to 11.

The Jersey Central's Move.

EASTON, Pa., July 26.—All the officials along the Jersey Central Railroad have been notified by the company that the employes must abstain from the use of intoxicating liquors, both when on and off duty, on pain of dismissal. The order has created consternation among the men.

Frightened by a Cave-in.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., July 26.—Some of the families who live near the cave-in, which occurred last Wednesday, are becoming alarmed and are now moving their household goods to another part of the town. The cave-in appears to be extending and is now over 20 feet deep.

License Refused After 350 Years.

LONDON, July 26.—The Horse and Trumpeters, a public house in Crutched Friars, London, which has been permitted to sell ardent spirits for about 350 years past, has had the renewal of its license refused, as there is no longer a demand for a public house in the neighborhood.

Honors for Americans.

PARIS, July 26.—Messrs. Riggs and Reitlinger, Americans, have been created Knights of the Legion of Honor for their services to French trade, but more especially for the work they done in connection with the French Exposition of last year.

Seventy Cases of Asiatic Cholera.

ODESSA, July 26.—It is officially stated that 70 fatal cases of Asiatic cholera have occurred in Baku and vicinity. The heat in that region is intense.

War Declared.

CITY OF MEXICO, July 26.—Senor Digues, the Guatemalan Minister, has received a message from President Barillas, announcing the formal declaration of war against San Salvador.

Thirty Arabs Killed.

MADRID, July 26.—Thirty Arabs were killed during the recent attack upon the Spanish convict settlement of Melilla, on the Morocco coast.

Proclamation to Ball Players.

BUFFALO, N. Y., July 26.—Sheriff Hodgson has issued a proclamation warning the baseball players not to violate the Sunday laws, and stating that he would insist upon its enforcement in view of the recent decision of the case in the courts.

The Sea Wing Disaster.

ST. PAUL, Minn., July 26.—At the investigation now in progress of the Sea Wing disaster, it was shown that there were 208 persons on the steamer instead of 147 as reported by the captain.

ADVICE FOR YOUNG MEN.

A MAN may be about what he makes himself nowadays, and if he chooses to become a sot, the way is open; if he chooses to become a power in the land, he can do so by going to work in that direction and keeping at it.

A MAN who is always tinkering around, making something or other in the mechanical line, is never found spending his leisure hours in a gin-mill or saloon. The young man whose hobby is study will be found at his books as soon as his day's work is done and supper is swallowed.

LET the young men awake to the idea that the advance of the world depends upon them personally; that the years to come may be better or worse as they choose to study or to be idle, and it seems as though they would quit beer-drinking, dice-shaking and card-shuffling instantly, to avail themselves of the privileges before them.

MANY young men ride a mechanical hobby, and are often building experimental machines, and making "young" steam engines. To such men, electricity possesses a most enticing field. There is no end to the directions in which thought may be profitably turned in connection with electricity. Well developed as it is, electricity is as yet an almost unknown thing, which will require life-times of study to reduce to the full understanding of all. Electricity is the future power of the world, as it has always been its life, although unknown and uncomprehended for ages.

Physicians and Agnosticism.

A New York paper has been catechising the physicians on the subject of the prevalence of skepticism. It has been claimed, with some appearance of truth, that in the profession of medicine unbelief was making rapid progress. The questions, which were submitted to a number of gentlemen of exceptional opportunities for intelligent reply, professors in medical colleges and superintendents of hospitals, as well as practitioners, were as follows: "1. Is there, in your opinion, a tendency to unbelief or agnosticism among physicians at the present time? 2. Do you believe that such a tendency would be detrimental to the profession of medicine? 3. In what way, if any, does a belief in Christianity make physicians more efficient in their profession?" The replies to each question were unexpectedly favorable and gratifying to Christian believers.—United Presbyterian.

A Prospective Encumbrance.

Snodgrass (looking at a building with a decided inclination towards Snively's house)—Seems as though it would fall, doesn't it?

Snively—Yes; I am afraid I am going to have a lean on my property.—West Shore.

A Clerical Error.

Merchant—So you want to attend to the correspondence. Have you had much clerical experience?

Applicant—Well, I've got a brother who is a preacher. I'm not a cleric myself.—Texas Siftings.

Carrying Coals to Newcastle.

This is considered folly, but it is an astounding fact that Speer's Wines raised at Passaic, N. J., have acquired such a reputation for purity and excellence abroad, that they are shipped by steamers that leave New York for Europe. It is enjoying an enviable reputation at home and is used by the leading physicians in America, as well as in Europe.

HACKED AWAY AT CAT AND DOG.

A Case of Genuine Cruelty Which Local Humanitarians Might Investigate.

One of the smart young men in a family living at Netherwood has been having questionable sport at the expense of the household animals. Early this week the idea that it would be a great joke to remove every trace of hair from the hide of the faithful watch dog, found lodgment in his head. To put it into practice he procured a pair of dull scissors and a razor which had lost its edge through frequent service as a carpet-tack puller. Putting a muzzle on the dog, tying it fast to a tree, and pinioning its legs, he first chopped away what hair the scissors would operate on and then put the razor to use. The shearing had been intensely painful for the dog, judging from the howls of the animal as the steel blades had slashed away over him, but the second hirsute amputation, with the razor, was agony. Pieces of skin and flesh were frequently removed, and the cries of the animal were pitiful. The half-butchered creature has howled with pain almost continually since the operation, and whenever he has lain down his wounds have begun to bleed. Then, too, the flies get into the sores and add to the frenzying pain. Netherwood may soon have a mad dog case as the result.

Today the smart young man continued his clumsy surgical practice by operating on the family cat. His next whim may be to attack the cows and horses.

While the Plainfield Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals is at work it would do no harm to investigate the case. To judge of the intensity of the torture one has only to reflect on the fact that the smart young man values his own feelings too highly to shave himself.

Good News About Mr. Plummer.

A story is published in the New York Tribune about John F. Plummer that will be read with genuine pleasure by his multitude of friends and acquaintances, including hosts in this city. It said that Mr. Plummer was in Tacoma managing the interests there of John D. Rockefeller, and that furthermore he was on the high road to regain wealth and prosperity. One of the best features of this story is that it rests upon an excellent foundation of fact. Mr. Plummer is in the State of Washington looking after affairs in which his warm personal friends, Mr. Rockefeller and Charles L. Colby, are interested. He went there in the Spring and, save a short trip East, has been there ever since. That he is doing well may be judged from the fact that when his name was put forward recently for Merchant Appraiser he refused to consider it, saying that before long he could do better for himself and his family in business.

Mr. Plummer's great desire now is to regain his lost wealth so as to pay up every dollar he owes, and his friends are confident that he will realize this laudable ambition. He is in excellent health and spirits. In a letter from one of Mr. Plummer's friends in Washington recently this was said of him: "He is looking well, more solid in flesh than ever, and with a pluck and nerve surpassing anything he ever showed before. He has come to believe in his future and is bound to succeed."

Women's Wear When Cycling.

Now that so many Plainfield young women ride bicycles it may be interesting to note the opinion of an authority concerning the kind of a bicycling costume to wear:

"The skirt is very full, four yards, which gives free action to the feet. The material chosen should be one that will not readily catch the dust. The skirt is a kilt, in wide or narrow pleats, from the waist down, except in the back breadths, which are shirred three or four times across. No reeds whatever are called for, and tournures are out of date in the drawing-room and on the street, as well as totally uncalled for on a bicycle. The blouse or body waist is very full. The best shoes are those with rubber soles. A hat with a visor that will shield the face from sun and wind is better than a Tam O'Shanter."

Mr. Page Cannot Get the Money.

Transactions in stock and grain speculation between Henry Allen & Co., and J. P. Page of this city, were concluded with a claim of $14,525.05 in favor of the brokers against Mr. Allen. They have sued for that amount, and finding that Mr. Page was entitled, as next of kin of his son, who died not long ago, to $5,000 from the gratuity fund of the Produce Exchange, they applied for an attachment covering Mr. Page's property in New York State. The attachment was issued yesterday by Justice Andrews of the Supreme Court.

His Greatest Discovery.

Said Emin to Stanley, as both of them stood
On the verge of an African grainfield,
"Can you find what you want anywhere on this Earth?"
"Yes," said Stanley, "at Collier's in Plainfield."

Woman's Smiles and Woman's Tears.

One to enliven, the other to soften the hearts of mankind. An old bachelor once said women were either "all smiles or all tears," but this cannot be true for what would there be "twixt a tear and a smile." Women have enough to bear to make them "all tears" and enough to hope for to make them "all smiles." When afflicted with nervousness, sick headache, and the numerous diseases peculiar to their sex there is necessity for contemplation, and for "tears," but when they consider that there is a sure remedy in Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription for all such complaints, there is reason for "smiles."

SUNDAY SERVICES.

Warren Mission Sunday school to-morrow at 2:30 P. M. Praise service at 7:30, led by M. M. Dunham. The Rev. D. J. Yerkes, D. D., pastor of the First Baptist church, will preside and preach at the regular service commencing at 8 o'clock. Young People's meeting Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock. All are invited.

Gospel temperance meeting at 73 West Front street, to-morrow at 9:15 A. M., and 4 P. M. Afternoon meeting led by Mrs. J. C. Fernald. Saturday, 7:30 P. M. All cordially invited.

New York Theatrical Notes.

"Castles in the Air," the expressive pantomimic display of DeWolf Hopper at the Broadway theatre, and the graceful pedal and vocal display of Marion Manola, are leading features only of an entertainment which embraces about all there is in modern comic opera for the satisfactory gratification of eye and ear. Then, too, when the curtain is down there is an artistic study before you—not a disproportionate, gaudy daub. The seats are comfortable, the ventilation perfect, the temperature low, and the means of egress numerous and immediate.

Minnie Palmer arrived in America July 6, and immediately took up her residence at her flat in Gramercy Park, where she will rest quietly until her season opens, September 22. Miss Palmer brought over a pack of greyhounds, a Scotch collie, two King Charles spaniels and a royal pug dog. It is unnecessary to state that these animals do not appear in her plays.

Gypsy Girls Snub Plainfield Boys.

Young men who think they can flirt with every free-mannered girl they see are sometimes mistaken. A great many gypsies have passed through Plainfield recently, and among each band have been numerous laughing, frolicsome damsels who for a day or two have been familiar objects on the streets. The average youth jumps to the conclusion that these merry, roving lasses may be readily and willingly conquered by smiles and leers, and more than one store clerk or gentleman of leisure has leered repeatedly at the swarthy fair ones, anticipating reciprocation. In every case, however, the object of the callow simperer's admiration has haughtily ignored his audacity, or has severely frowned it down. The gypsy girls want none of the cigarette-smoking pale-faces of civilization. They prefer lovers of their own tribe.

These Who Ride Demand Perfection.

Bicyclers and drivers who are loud in the praises of the completed county road from Westfield to Fanwood, are just as loud in their complaints of the continuation of the road from the Fanwood boundary through Netherwood, which they claim is greatly in want of repair. The Plainfield Street Commissioner is gradually working his way out to the suburbs with his road improvements, and it is expected that the neighborhood of the Netherwood station will soon be reached by the repairing gangs.

Superintendent Peddle Says Gambling Must Stop.

There has been a good deal of gambling this season on the trains going down to the Monmouth races, and Superintendent Peddle of the Central of New Jersey has issued a notice instructing the conductors to keep a sharp lookout, and special detectives have been appointed to watch the race trains. Another notice proclaims that gambling must cease among the trainmen, and the company will make an example of anybody caught at it.

The market is flooded with decoctions under the head of Root Beer. Why should you experiment on such goods when the genuine Hires' Root Beer can be had? It is known to be a safe, delicious, and healthful temperance drink.

OUR YOUNG FOLKS.

THE TOAD'S BAGPIPE.

Something Concerning a Musical Little Fellow Whose Accomplishments in This Direction Are Not Fully Appreciated.

Early in March the swamps sounded their first welcome to spring in the shrill peep of the hylodes, or whistling frogs, and from week to week since new broods of peepers have come and gone, filling their brief nuptial period with their own peculiar music, until the late April marshes were palpitating with their teeming din.

Among these various sounds we might have heard the lingering peepers, the occasional "t-r-r-r-r-r-r-rdt" of the gray tree-toad, the harsher note of the green clucking frog, the spasmodic wavering croak of the black-cheeked wood frog, and a certain strange, shrill rattle, which we may catch occasionally even now, but whose animated source I have not yet satisfactorily ascertained. It is a peculiarly high, vociferous, exclamatory trill, with an ascending scale and a high crescendo, and may be imitated by means of that noisy toy which we boys were—and doubtless you boys are—familiar with, and which is called a "locust." As we used to make it, it was composed of the tip of a bottle neck, or a small tin spice box with the bottom removed, having a piece of kid tightly stretched across its opening. A doubled horsehair was knotted to the center of this small drum-head, and the slip loop at its other end passed round the tip of a small smooth stick, on which a groove was made to receive it.

When this groove was wet and the drum revolved in the air the "locust" spoke for itself, to the joy of the small boy even if to the nuisance of every one else. If this drum be held firmly in one hand and the stick in the other—the horse-hair being very tightly drawn—a quick twist of the handle, accompanied with a tighter pull on the hair will almost exactly reproduce the toad song in question, and the little toy may be made to mimic a number of the frogs and toads. I hope some day to decoy and identify my mysterious frog by this device, though I suspect he may turn out to be an old friend who has been making sport of me all these years.

But the early musicians are now forgotten. A new singer has come upon the scene, and his mellow nocturne in the twilight marshes brings a message unknown to his predecessors. This is no shrill peep that stirs your blood and sets your ears a-tingle, no bubbling rattle or vibrant croak that cries "quivive" to your eager senses, but a drowsy drool that brings your feet to loitering in the deepening dusk, and whose distant music from the swampy lowlands lulls you on your pillow. It is to me the sweetest sound in nature, the faithful chosen voice of the twilight, one of the most characteristic sounds of late spring, and yet, like the sprightly welcome of the hylodes which ushers in the vernal season, it still remains unsung by our poets.

Who will immortalize in verse the pensive witchery, "most musical, most melancholy," of this tremorous song of the toad, for it is in truth the uncouth and ill-favored toad that now swells his bagpipe in the marshes and fills the night with music? It is one of the beneficences of nature that the twilight glamour throws a vail of obscurity over the performer while it emphasizes its music.

I have spoken of the toad's bagpipe. Those who recall the dual tone of that instrument, with its continuous drone and accessory variations and the inflated source of the combined music, will readily appreciate the allusion as applied to the toad.

There are few who have discovered the peculiar art by which the toad expresses his emotion. Often I have coaxed an encore from him at midday by decoying him with a mimic song, which may be almost perfectly produced by combining an ascending prolonged whistle, beginning on the tone of second D above middle C and running up to A, with a droning sound of the voice near the tone of the second F below middle C, although a strict adherence to either tone is not necessary.

It is a surprising and saucy response that we receive down there among the lily-pads, as may be conjectured from my truthful portrait, and the familiar sound that comes up to us thus robbed of its twilight attributes gains nothing by being out of season. But this picture is for naturalists, not for poets. It is the song and not the singer that concerns the poet.

I can not close this batrachian article without offering my commiseration to my friends of the South. The frog music of Louisiana and Florida, as I heard it two years ago, has left its scar upon my memory; for while I recognized many familiar voices and instruments struggling in the din of those rainy nights, the great burden of the orchestration seemed borne by a legion of nameless instrumentalists, who, judging from their performances, operated on a sort of primitive guitar, which I imagined might have consisted of rubber strands stretched across a tomato can. Yes, as I have said, the spring song of the frog has yet to find its poetic interpreter. But, oh, my poet of the flowery land, beware! A sonnet from you on this theme would forever blast your hopes for poetic fame, though it might exalt you as a humorist.

I have a little group of Japanese paper frogs playing on guitars, which with very slight liberties might serve as an illustration to such a Southern poem, while in the foreground I have pictured a double whistle which produces the two veritable tones which the toad voices from his inflated bagpipe. It is evident that the Japanese have a toad song similar to that of Bufo Americanus.

We hear of the toad "swelling its throat" in song like a bird, but few of them who have seen the white flashes at its mouth during that song have imagined the true nature of the toad's bagpipe. — William Hamilton Gibson, in Harper's Young People.

THE BEETLE AT PLAY.

How He Lived in the Glass Jar and How He Took His Meals.

The glass jar in which my beetle lived had a paper label on one side, near the bottom. The day after I put the beetle in the jar, I found him dull and faded.

He had hidden behind this label for shelter. I gave him fresh water, but he felt no better.

"Poor fellow!" I said, "you are hungry."

So I killed a wasp, a gnat and two blue-bottle flies, and put them on the water.

Soon the beetle came slowly up for air. He did not seem to see nor smell his food.

But he swam against the gnat. He took the end of the gnat's body in his jaws, and made one mouthful of it.

Next he found a fly. He took that in his fore feet, dived down to the shade of the label, and neatly cut off the head, wings and legs of the fly.

The fly was now a tidy little bundle. Next the beetle held the fly in his fore feet, pressing it close to his jaws.

He did not chew the fly; he sucked it until the body was a dry shell. Then he let it go, and it floated up to the top of the water, where the legs, wings and head had gone.

Up came the beetle, cruising around until he found the other fly. He returned to his chosen dining-room and sucked it dry.

Still hungry, he secured the big wasp. He cut off the head, chest and legs and let them go.

Then he held the body of the wasp to his mouth. It looked just as if he were drinking out of a long, blue bottle. It made me laugh.

He sucked the wasp's body dry; just the ringed husk was left. After that he ate a bee, a hornet and three ants.

He was such a hungry beetle. He carried all his food to the same place to eat, and he trimmed all up neatly before he began.

Next day I put some raw veal, cut in small bits like dice, in the jar.

The veal lay on the bottom, and in diving he happened to dive into it. Oh! how glad he seemed.

He took the meat piece by piece, in his front feet to his eating place and sucked all the red juice from it.

I could see the juice go out of the meat at each strong pull he gave.

He did not finish his dinner until there was no veal left but pale shreds.

I found that my beetle liked raw veal best of any food. Next best he liked blue bottle flies.

Cooked meat he would not touch.

I kept the beetle for some days while I studied him. Then I thought it was not fair to keep him longer from his home among the weeds, and water spiders, and frogs, and tad-poles in the pond.

I took him back and let him dive off into his own home.—Santa Claus.

Contrary to Precedent.

"Emily," said the Congressman, sharply, to his daughter, "that young squid of a Hankinson must have been here again last night. These two easy chairs are uncommonly close together. You might at least have put them back in their places after he left."

"Father," replied the imperious young woman, "I arranged the furniture of this apartment last evening to suit myself. If you don't like it you can replace it as was before. It is not the province of the weaker party to undo a gerrymander."

And she swept haughtily from the room.—Chicago Tribune.

The warm weather poets are lisping now in great numbers.

The Race is Always to the Swift

IF HE RIDES A

"Why?"

"Because, it is so light that every ounce of pressure on the pedals tells."

"How light is it?"

"It weighs only 33 pounds."

"How much do other safeties weigh?"

"From 46 to 51 pounds."

"That's only a difference of 13 to 18 pounds."

"ONLY! Why, it means that you must propel that many pounds more with each revolution of the wheel, and there are 400 revolutions in each mile."

"Is that the reason you consider the CATFORD cheaper at $140 than any other Safety at $135?"

"That is one of many reasons."

"Have you a Ladies' Safety?"

"Yes; and for SWEET, ATTRACTIVE GRACE, there is nothing like our SPECIAL LADIES' PREMIER, especially when the lady is riding it!"

IN THE SANCTUARY.

We sit together in the pew,
Drawn from the week-day world away;
The lesson o'er, the sermon through,
Close side by side we kneel to pray.
Then rise, as loud from pipe and reed
The swelling organ notes ascend,
And banded maiden voices lead
The music onward to the end.

Low bending near, I hold her book,
Though little heed I pay to it;
Her voice, a timid warbling brook,
Lures all my thoughts away to it:
"Above all others, One is known
Who well deserves the name of Friend;
Beyond a brother's love is shown
His love, free, costly, without end."

Sweet is that sweeping choral tide,
And throbbing sweet those organ chords;
But sweeter far than all beside
Sound Lucy's gentle, saluted words.
Pitched soft and meek, her trustful tone
Gives to my life a nobler trend:
"Above all others, One is known
Who well deserves the name of Friend."

The people next us do not hear
The burden of that still small voice;
And yet it bids me plain and clear
To make this childlike soul my choice.
And sudden yearnings rise intense,
And fitly with her singing blend,
That, some day, in a human sense,
I may become—her more than friend.

A TALE OF THE ORIENT.

Strange, Weird Experience with a Miracle-Worker.

India marshals many mysterious sects among her sons. I saw a "miracle" performed by a priest of one of these in the semi-independent State of Alwur during the year 1877.

Harris Stanton and I were visiting Michael Bojardo, whom Stanton had met, and to whom he had rendered a slight service, some few years before in England. Michael Bojardo was a dealer in precious stones, and he claimed to be of Spanish descent. This was probably true, in view of his dark complexion, jet-black hair and mustache, and bright, black eyes. He had lived in India almost all his life. Sometimes it was whispered that he had forsaken the Cross for the religion of the three-faced god. But few people knew him thoroughly. He did not seem reserved, but open and apparently of a confiding disposition, yet after living under his roof a week the impression was forced upon me that I did not really understand him, and that he kept a strict watch over his true thoughts, and in his fascinating way only presented that side of his character to me which was congenial.

Of Stanton little need be said. He was an American thoroughly denationalized—a citizen of the world—to most people of a genial turn of mind; yet, as Stanton's private secretary, I knew him to have a decided character under the polish which association with every class of men had given him.

On the eighth day of our stay we remained in-doors from sunrise to sunset. The day had been uneventful, and in the evening as I sat alone in Bojardo's reception-room, partaking of a sherbet and smoking a cigarette, the desire to know the history of the strange weapons hanging in such graceful groups around the walls came over me. What was the story of that dirk with the curved blade? What dark-skinned hand, grasping the bejeweled hilt, had made it the servant of his passions? Had those four curved cimeters ever struck that embossed silver shield at which they pointed? The light from the hammered-brass lamps, falling through curiously-colored globes, threw shadows and shapes on the walls. As I half dozed I thought what if, at the wand of some weird power, spirits should animate those fantastic shadows, seize the bejeweled hilts and engage in a melee?

While in this state of mind, Bojardo and my patron entered the room. Both seemed to be considerably excited.

"I do not believe it," said Stanton, emphatically.

"Pardon! but you are mistaken; we will convince you if you wish. Remember, my friend, you are in the land of the Brahma. What your ancestors call the black art may not flourish where they hanged witches. We have advanced far beyond pulling a globe of gold-fish out of an empty hat," said Bojardo, with a smiling face, yet his eye slightly betrayed the anger he felt at receiving the almost direct lie to his statement.

"True," replied Stanton. "Your pardon, my host. I did not intend to doubt your word"—with increased vehemence. "I will leave the statement you made to Palmer, here, and see what he says."

"Ah, no! It is not necessary. Allow me to prove the miracle, or whatever you may call it—but I lack a subject for my conjurer. If I use one of my servants you might say: 'Ah, bah! it was all fixed.' Perhaps you would be willing to have Senor Palmer try the experiment."

"Now, Bojardo, if I should try myself I would be convinced. But I was wrong to allow myself to go so far. Is the return match at polo to be played to-morrow?"

Thus they drifted away from the dispute, and I thought the matter had there ended.

When we were settled for the evening, the black servant brought in the hubble-bubble for our host, and by dint of coals and blowing, kept the fragrant mixture alight. The black, squatted with legs crossed and bent body before the pipe, appeared among the strong shadows of the indistinctly lighted room more like one of the strange furnishings than a human being.

For some time we had been smoking in silence. My own thoughts were wandering back to the broken portion of the conversation I had heard. What could have made Stanton so forget himself? I had been with him two years, and had never seen him show so much temper. As I looked at him I realized that he had evidently been busy with the same subject that had excited or irritated him when he entered the room. By the expression on his face I could see he had reached some decision. He looked at Bojardo, and catching his eye, said:

"The conjurer may try the 'miracle' on me."

"Ah! as you please," was the only response. At the time I did not like the triumphant, malicious gleam that shone in Bojardo's eyes as he turned half around, but it might have been a mere reflection from the lamp. Lifting the slender stick, capped with a padded chamois ball, he struck a single blow on a gong. The brazen reverberating note with its overtones touched the chord of fear in my bosom. A few words from our host to the native who answered the summons caused him to salaam deeply and then retire.

We waited perhaps half an hour. I did not feel like talking, and neither of the others spoke. What was it? Had they quarreled? What was the cause? What was this mysterious something?

By degrees I became conscious that some strange presence was in the room. At first I did not see any thing, but the native pipe-bearer arose, salaamed to a figure, which I perceived for the first time, and then withdrew. The outline of this figure was plainly discernable against the dark background. It was that of a Hindoo. The face was striking, the eyes piercing, the skin shriveled and wrinkled like uncompressed parchment: high cheekbones, a long silvery beard, and the head surmounted by a large white turban, completed the picture. His robe was of pure white, and evidently concealed a spare, though tall, frame.

Stanton, as he half reclined on the couch-like divan near the center of the room, could not see him. Bojardo sat cross-legged a little to the rear, I to the right, and the white-robed figure was near the left corner. Bojardo asked Stanton if he was ready, and receiving a reply in the affirmative, took a curious green bottle, richly cut, from his vesture, and carefully wetting the tips of his fingers with the liquid it contained, touched each of Stanton's eyelids. Even as he did so the lids closed.

"Can you open your eyes?" asked Bojardo.

"No; yet I can control my will," was Stanton's reply.

The miracle-worker, as Bojardo called the man in white, stepped between Stanton and myself. He made one or two passes with his hands, and Stanton sank back on the divan apparently asleep. Then the strange figure began a low, crooning nasal chant in some unknown tongue. He kept this up for what seemed to me an hour. I, too, began to feel sleepy, and believe I should have gone into a trance had he not suddenly stopped. Taking a box from under his robe he placed a powder in Stanton's nostrils, and after a low incantation withdrew from the room. It seemed as if I were under some spell. I could not speak to Bojardo nor feel inclined to action of any kind. I noticed Stanton's face was of ashy pallor, and his veins were invisible beneath his deathly-white skin. Finally Bojardo slowly rose. Going over to Stanton he placed his hand under the loosely-buttoned coat over the heart. Something in the action aroused me, for I stepped beside him.

"His heart does not beat," said Bojardo. Quickly I grasped Stanton's wrist. I could not feel any pulse. I tore open his coat. After a minute of breathless waiting I found his heart had ceased beating. He was dead!

"Wretch!" I gasped, as, turning my face toward Bojardo, I saw his swarthy Southern features illuminated with a cruel smile of triumph, and realized in an instant how easy it would be for this man to wreak vengeance on Stanton for giving him the lie; how easy it would be for him to commit any crime in this country, where the British authority was purely nominal, and where no inquiry would be made concerning the fate of two unknown Americans. What more I might have said I do not know, had not the awful old man again entered the room. After the exchange of a few low-spoken words with Bojardo, the part of which I heard enough to translate was, "return of Al Borak," the weird conjurer again made a few slow passes with his bony hands over Stanton and withdrew.

Ah! there was a movement; the muscles of his face were terribly distorted; I could see the blood slowly come into the veins, and as it crept along each muscle seemed to knot itself into iron-like stiffness. It was terrible. I never witnessed so much dumb suffering. The hands clinched, then slackened, the fingers nervously twitched, shook loosely, rapidly and vibrated as if under the influence of an electric current. I could not look upon my friend. I turned my face away. When I again ventured to look around he was lying with his eyes wide open, but apparently in a dazed condition. I sprung to his side. He motioned me to silence. I helped him to sit up. Bojardo bowed and withdrew.

"Palmer," he said, "I could not believe it possible; ask me nothing about it," was all Stanton said, and, rising from his couch, he bade me "good-night" and retired.

The affair was never afterward referred to between the two men in my presence, and we left Bojardo's place the next week. It may have been a year later when, one night in New York, Stanton asked me to relate what happened while he lay there in a trance. He then told me that as soon as he heard that chant his soul separated from his body. For a moment it hovered above it, and he knew he saw his lifeless flesh lying there soulless. Then he received a new shape and traversed immense distances through space and darkness, upward, ever upward, and presently he saw a glorious light and heard the sound of music so grand, so solemn, that nothing could be compared to its harmony and its cadence. As he approached this glorious light vivid colors, brilliant and changing, fading to softness, shone on the clouds around. Suddenly the light melted into a golden hue, then merged to silver, then a blur painfully cut off his sight. This much he told; more he said he could not reveal. He firmly believed he had seen the Giver of all light and life.—Leslie's Newspaper.

Origin of "Bankrupt."

Money-lenders in Italy used to display the money they had to lend out on a "banco" or bench. When one of these money-lenders was unable to continue business his bench or counter was broken up, and he himself was spoken of as a "bancorotto," i. e., a bankrupt.

INDIA'S ENEMIES.

What the Native Population Has to Contend Against.

FRIEND of mine had a summer residence about nine miles from Lucknow, and I accepted his invitation to spend a few weeks with him. He had about 300 acres of land, a large part of which was forest and thicket, with a creek running across a portion of the estate. The idea in India is to keep cool. Therefore, every house is built with this idea, being provided with as many windows as possible, and always surrounded with verandas. I had never seen a cobra, except in zoological gardens, when I went out there, but I was fated to have an adventure almost as soon as I arrived. My bedroom was at a corner of the second story of the bungalow and contained three windows. These were screened with wire and the sashes taken out. A hammock was slung to hooks in the ceiling, and the room was fairly comfortable even on a very hot night.

On the third morning, just at daybreak, I was aroused from sleep by a noise on the veranda which ran along under my bedroom windows. My hammock was within two feet of one of the windows, and of course the wire cloth admitted every sound from the outside. As the grounds were guarded by two chowkadars, or watchmen, I had no fear of thieves, and therefore had no arms within reach. I lay facing the window, with my face not over thirty inches from the screen, and was wondering what had caused the noise, when a big cobra suddenly lifted his head against the outside of the wire, and his eyes looked into mine. For half a minute it seemed as if my heart did not beat at all. Had the window been unguarded I could not have raised a finger to ward off the attack. The serpent hissed at me and moved his hideous head all over the screen, looking for some break in its surface. It bulged in as he pressed on it, and, knowing how slovenly work is done by Indian servants, I expected it to give way at any instant. After a couple of minutes the snake went to the second window, and then to the third, searching every square inch in hopes to find a way into the room.

After he left the window directly in front of me I might have dropped out of the hammock and got my revolver from the bureau, but it occurred to me that if I provoked the cobra he would be pretty sure to make a more vigorous attack. I therefore lay perfectly quiet, closed my eyes so that I could just peep at him, and after going over all the windows a second and third time, I heard him crawling around the veranda. I then dropped out, opened the door and called to my friend, and he seized a double-barrel shotgun, and passed through the halls until he found the serpent on the other side of the house. He had given up seeking an entrance by the windows, and was mounting to the roof when a charge of buckshot fired at close range through the screen cut him almost in two. No one was at all excited. The incident seemed to have no more weight than the visit of a bat.

A week later two of the servants accompanied me on a hunt around the neighborhood after birds. Neither was armed, and both were barefooted, barelegged and barearmed. In the marshy ground along the creek I shot several birds of the snipe species, and we were about to cross it when one of the natives, who was in the lead and following a path, halted, turned back, and quietly said:

"We had better go another way, sahib."

"But why?"

"Because the crocodile might do us harm."

I advanced to the spot where he had halted, and at once made out a huge

HIS EYES LOOKED INTO MINE.

saurian lying in the creek right across the path, and evidently waiting for some one to cross. This was not over a quarter of a mile from the bungalow, and the saurian had evidently come down the creek from a small lake about two miles away. I made ready to fire at him, but one of the natives touched my arm and respectfully said:

"Please don't, sahib. If you anger him he will bring others to make us trouble."

"But he ought to be driven away or killed."

"Yes, but when there are a thousand more in the lake what would you gain?"

He seemed so earnest about it that I turned away. That night a number of the servants crossed the creek to attend some sort of a party, and in the morning a young man was missing. After considerable inquiry it was decided that the crocodile had seized him as he attempted to cross the path. I said to the native who had restrained my fire:

"Now you see what you did. Had I killed the reptile the young man would have been with us this morning."

"Ah, sahib, but you might not have killed him, and then he would have taken two of us."

About six miles below Patna, on the Ganges, in the Bengalee district, a couple of English officers with whom I was acquainted had a shooting box, and I went up with a party to enjoy some sport. It was a wild strip of country along the stream, and although so near to a village this fact did not render game any less abundant. A dozen tigers, three or four panthers and a score of hyenas had been bagged there within two years, but it still remained a favorite lurking ground for big game. As a matter of curiosity I hunted up the returns made to the Government from this place, and found that the average of natives bitten by serpents, devoured by crocodiles, or slain by wild beasts was over three per week the year round. These were the figures reported, but only one loss in three is reported by the natives, as they persist in believing that the blanks sent in by officials are somehow connected with taxation or official surveillance. Two days before we started a native came in to the civil authorities to report a case. He said:

"We were going to see our father and mother at Mugador (a village seven miles away), my brother and I. We were in a path crossing the forest to save distance. He was ahead. It was about two hours after daylight. We were very happy, and he was telling me a story which his wife had told him, when a tiger suddenly sprang upon him. I stopped. The liger stood over him, with both paws upon his breast, and looked at me and growled and switched his tail. I could do nothing. I walked backward in the path, and the tiger seized my brother by the shoulder, gave him a half whirl, and then trotted away into the thicket. I have been told that it is my duty to report this."

We had been at the shooting box three days, and had killed a dozen hyenas, a panther, and a couple of big snakes. There were four white men of us in the party, and we had eight or ten native trackers and servants. On the fourth morning, before breakfast, I ran a thorn into my foot, and was advised to lie quiet during the day. The house was divided into two rooms, each about twelve feet square, and each having two hammocks in it. The first room was used to store provisions in. The door between the two was a frame covered with wire cloth. There was only one window in each room, and that was provided with a sliding sash, with wire cloth tacked over the outside. The outside door was also a screen, but this was left standing open during the day.

After breakfast one of the natives fixed a poultice of leaves for my wound, and I lay down in a hammock in the inner room. The three other white men went off up the river, accompanied by all the natives except two, one to attend me and the other to see to the cooking. I lay facing the doors, and had a view of the fire and a strip of country beyond it. At nine o'clock we heard the reports of rifles far away. Half an hour later, just as I was elevating my head so that I could read a book which was at hand, I saw a tiger spring upon the two men. They were not at the fire, but a few feet away, under a tree, and their faces were toward me. The animal had therefore approached unseen. He knocked both down, and struck them after they were down, and then stood over their prostrate bodies, and looked at the forest. This was hardly ten feet from the open door. It was so sudden that I lost half a minute, and by the end of that time the tiger left the men and came to the door and looked in. He probably scented me, for he switched his tail and growled, and while he stood there I saw blood on his neck.

My hammock had ceased swinging, and I kept very quiet in hopes the brute would go away. He stood and growled and stared for a minute, and then advanced to the inner door and pushed against it. Had it opened toward me he could have entered, but it opened the other way. With his eyes and nose against the wire he growled in a way to send the chills over me, but I feared to move a finger for fear he would make a dash and come through the cloth. He did rake his teeth along the surface, and also strike the wire two or three times with his paw. He must have hit the sharp ends of some of the wires the last time, for he uttered a yelp and drew back, and after licking his paw for a moment retreated through the open door. As my rifle was in the further room I felt it prudent to lie quiet for a time, and when I did get up the beast had disappeared. I found one of the natives dead, his skull having been crushed by a blow, while the other had received a bite in the shoulder, but was "playing dead" to deceive the beast.

Just before noon the party came in, and then I learned that they had started a pair of tigers out of cover about a mile above. The female had been killed in a gully, but the male, after being wounded, had bolted out of sight. He was the chap who had paid the camp a visit and revenged himself for the insult.—N. Y. Sun.

PRESERVING HUSBANDS.

How to Treat Men So That They Will Prove a Joy Forever.

At a recent meeting of the Woman's Club at Marshalltown, Ia., Mrs. H. C. Young caused quite a stir by her response to the toast: "Our Husbands." Quoting Burns, Mrs. Young began:

"Husband, husband, cease your strife,
No longer idly rave, sir;
Though I am your wedded wife
Yet I'm not your slave, sir."

"How shall we preserve our husbands?" continued Mrs. Young. "In selecting your husband you should not be guided by the silvery appearance, as in mackerel. Nor by the golden tint as found in salmon. Be sure to select him yourself, as tastes differ. Do not go to market for him, as the best are always brought to your door. It is far better to have none, unless you know how to preserve them. Some women do this by keeping him in hot water. Others let them freeze by their carelessness and indifference. Some keep them in a stew by irritating ways and moods. Others roast them or keep them in pickle all their lives.

"It can not be expected that any husband will be tender and good managed in this way. The only true way to do with him is to preserve him. To do this your must have a preserving kettle of the finest porcelain; or, if that is unattainable, an earthenware pipkin will do with care. See that the linen in which he is to be preserved is nicely prepared. Tie him in the kettle with a strong silk cord called 'comfort,' as the one called 'duty' is apt to be weak, and he might fly out of the kettle and be burned. (You must remember that husbands are like crabs and lobsters, they have to be prepared while alive.) Make a clear, steady fire out of love, neatness and cheerfulness. Set him as near the fire as seems to agree with him. If he sputters and fizzles, do not be anxious. Some husbands will do this until they are quite done. Add a little sugar occasionally in the form of what confectioners call 'kisses,' but be careful to avoid pepper or vinegar, as these things spoil the flavor. A little spice improves them, but it must be used with good judgment. Do not stick any sharp instrument into him to see if he is becoming tender. But stir him gently, watching the while lest he lie too flat and close in the kettle, for then he soon becomes spoiled and useless. Watch him carefully and you can not fail to know when he is done.

"If thus treated, you will find you have a well-preserved husband that will prove a joy to you and the children, and he will keep as long as you need him unless you become careless and set him in too cold a place.

"'A king for the beautiful realm called home,
And a man that the Maker, God,
Shall look upon as he did the first,
And say—it is very good.'"

CURED BY LAUGHTER.

One of Joseph Jefferson's Funny Experiences in London.

Joseph Jefferson relates in the Century the following concerning a London experience of his: "My approaching appearance was the important dramatic event of my life. I had been five years from America and was on my way home, and I felt satisfied that if this new version of 'Rip Van Winkle' succeeded in London my way was quite clear when I returned to the United States.

"On Sunday evening, being alone in my lodgings, I got out for my own admiration my new wig and beard, the pride of my heart, and which I was to use in the last act. I could not resist trying them on for the twentieth time, I think; so I got in front of the glass and adjusted them to my perfect satisfaction. I soon became enthused, and began acting and posing in front of the mirror. In about twenty minutes there came a knock at the door.

"'Who's there?' said I.

"'It's me, if you please,' said the gentle but agitated voice of the chamber maid. 'May I come in?'

"'Certainly not,' I replied; for I had no desire to be seen in my present make-up.

"'Is there any thing wrong in the room, sir?' said she.

"'Nothing at all. Go 'away,' I replied.

"'Well, sir,' she continued, 'there's a policeman at the door, and he says as 'ow there's a crazy old man in your room, a-flingin' of his 'arnds about and a-goin' on hawful, and there's a crowd of people across the street a-blockin' up the way.'

Couldn't Get Rid of Him.

"An Auburn man," says the Lewiston (Me.) Journal, "thinks just twice as much of dog intelligence now as he did a week ago. He owned a dog and had tired of him, and had agreed to transfer him to a friend who lives in the south part of the city. He took him in his arms, tied a rubber coat over his head and carried him down and delivered him. It was a long distance, and he had no idea that the dog would ever show up again about his own premises. That night on reaching home the dog lay on his accustomed place on the rug, while the Auburn man's wife wore a curious smile of amusement. The conundrum in the family is: How does a dog know the way home?"

VIEWING THE RUINS

Thousands of People Visit Storm-Swept Lawrence.

A VAST AREA OF DESTRUCTION.

Fully 300 People Homeless, Some in Destitute Circumstances.

The Number of Killed Now Known to Be Nine—Fully Seventy-five Were Injured—Relief for the Needy Coming In—Over $2,000 So Far Received—Caring for the Injured.

LAWRENCE, Mass., July 28.—Work in the ruins caused by the terrible storm of Saturday morning has been carried on without abatement, as it was believed that other victims might still be buried beneath the debris. All day yesterday and this morning thousands of people have visited the devastated section, many of them coming from distant places. A conservative estimate of the people present yesterday places its number at 40,000.

The Mayor, Aldermen and officials of surrounding cities congregated at military headquarters and remained all day issuing passes, which were required of all coming within the lines; also requisitions for supplies for the afflicted families.

Company L, Eighth Regiment, North Andover, tendered the Mayor its services for guard duty. The men were served with their rations at the headquarters.

Captain Duchesney, of Battery C, was ordered by the Adjutant General to take charge of all the military.

More than $2,000 has already been subscribed to a relief fund. Collections have been taken in all of the churches.

A mass meeting has been called at the City Hall for this evening. The Elks and other charitable organizations have also called meetings to raise money for the sufferers.

All the patients in the hospital and orphan asylum are doing well. It is thought that the little Quin girl may live.

The total number of people killed are now almost definitely known to be nine, and the injured will number fully seventy-five.

Springfield street, where the cyclone struck, contained many of the handsome residences of the town. The work of the tornado on this street was clean cut and after it had passed but three houses of all between Blanchard and South Union streets were left standing.

All the others on both sides of the street were either mowed completely down or partly demolished and 20 people were injured on this street alone.

The windows of St. Patrick's church were blown in, trees, chimneys, signs, fences and roofs are torn away outside of the path of the storm, while in its direct route everything was laid flat.

It is now estimated that fully three hundred people have been rendered homeless and some of them are in destitute circumstances.

THE CRUISER PHILADELPHIA.

The United States Took Formal Command of the Vessel at Noon To-Day.

PHILADELPHIA, July 28.—The cruiser Philadelphia was put in commission today. At noon Capt. Bradford, in the name of the United States, took possession and command. Her crew until she gets to New York city will not be full. She will remain here until Thursday or Friday of this week to get the finishing touches.

Among her officers will be Lieut. Fremont, a son of the late Gen. John C. Fremont. The guns of the vessel—twelve 6-inch—were all placed aboard Saturday ready for handing her over to the Government's representatives.

The expense bill of the Philadelphia's recent trial trip has been transmitted to the Navy Department. It includes a very large number of items and foots up $17,427.6s; the item for feeding the officers and men being $2,919.84.

Probably Burned at Sea.

PHILADELPHIA, July 28.—There is now little hope manifested for the safety of the Norwegian bark Lloyd, which sailed from the port of Guantanamo, on the south side of Cuba, June 14, bound to this port with a crew of fourteen men and 4,500 bags of sugar, and has never since been heard from. Vessels which left a month afterward have arrived at their destinations, but no tidings were received from this craft. It seems to be the general belief that this vessel has met with disaster and gone down with all on board. The Lloyd is 454 tons register, and was built in Lillesland in 1876, where she is owned by G. B. Birkland. It is feared that the vessel has been burned, as there has been no heavy weather reported in the route the vessel would have taken.

Won't Admit Our Armed Men.

WASHINGTON, July 28.—The National Rifles, of this city, have been contemplating for some time a trip to Europe this summer, and application was made recently for passports. The application was held up, however, until the foreign Governments could be heard from. Germany at once absolutely refused admission within her borders to any armed company from the United States, and England said that the Rifles could not enter Ireland. Of course this ended all talk of the European trip among the soldier boys.

Died of Cancer, Aged 111 Years.

CHEYENNE, Wy., July 28.—Mrs. Hannah Sullivan died at her home at Newcastle, Western County, yesterday, of cancer, aged 111 years.

PILGRIM FATHERS.

A Monument to Be Erected to Their Memory at Delft Haven.

KINGSTON, N. Y., July 28.—Judge A. T. Clearwater, of this city, is chairman of a committee appointed by the Holland Society, of New York, to act, in conjunction with a committee of the Congregational Club, of Boston, of which the Rev. William Elliott is the chairman, to consider and arrange for the celebration of the approaching four hundredth anniversary of the discovery of America.

It is proposed in 1892 to erect at Delft Haven, in Holland, a monument commemorative of the sailing of the Pilgrim Fathers from that port in 1620. The spot proposed to be marked is that where the canal from Leyden through the city of Delft enters the River Maas at Delft Haven. It will thus be a landmark visible on entering Rotterdam from the North Sea.

The Government of the Netherlands is warmly interested in the matter, and the Dutch Minister of Foreign Affairs has assured the American Minister at the Hague, the Hon. S. R. Thayer, that it "will joyfully render any assistance in its power to facilitate the accomplishment of the undertaking."

A REMARKABLE CASE.

A Woman Who Has Fasted and Not Slept for Many Days.

ALLENTOWN, Pa., July 28.—Mrs. Adam Wuchter, of White Hall, Lehigh County, has gone 120 days without food or drink.

Her eyesight has totally gone, and the pupils of both eyes have turned white.

The attendants at the sick woman's bedside say that she has not enjoyed fifteen minutes' actual consecutive sleep for nine months. She invariably refuses to take any nourishment when it is offered her.

Killed His Wife and Himself.

PITTSBURG, July 28.—A despatch from Bellefontaine, O., says: During Saturday night a farmer named Albert Parmenter, who lived eight miles east of here, shot his wife and then himself, dying almost instantly. His wife lived only four hours. They left two children who are being cared for by the neighbors. Parmenter was in failing health and the fear of a long and expensive illness, ending in death, and that thereby his wife and children would be left to struggle and suffer alone, unbalanced his mind.

Fatal Falls in New York.

NEW YORK, July 28.—Thomas McHugh, 27 years old, fell from the roof of his residence, No. 259 East Nineteenth street, yesterday afternoon, and was killed. [illegible], 21 years old, fell out of the third-story window of 431 West Thirtieth street, and was killed. John Callahan, aged 35, fell in the hold of a ship lying in dry dock at Pier 43 East River, and died shortly afterward. John Huber, 30 years old, a driver, fell from his team and was killed. Henry Morse fell from a second-story window at 449 Ninth Avenue and fractured his skull.

Died in a Cell From Drink.

JAMESTOWN, N. Y., July 28.—Frank Callahan, aged 17 years, died in the lockup during the night. Death is said to have been caused by exhaustion and the use of alcohol. It is said the police used unnecessary violence in arresting Callahan, and afterwards in restraining him during attacks of frenzy. The coroner will investigate the case.

Somebody Stole the Elephant.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., July 28—Recently Colonel John F. Tyler, of this city, was appointed receiver for the Sells & Andress circus and menagerie. Last night somebody drove off the elephant, two camels and seven horses and no clue to their whereabouts can be found. It is thougnt Andress has taken them away.

The Atlantic Association Schedule.

NEWARK, N. J., July 28.—The Schedule Committee of the Atlantic League held an all day session in Newark, and completed the schedule for the balance of the season, which ends early in October. Many changes were necessary because of the transfer of Newark to the western circuit and placing Harrisburg in the eastern.

To Proclaim Bulgarian Independence.

LONDON, July 28.—The Daily News' Vienna special says that Premier Stambouloff, of Bulgaria, has summoned the colonels of all regiments, and deputies of all the leading towns, to assemble at Sofia, August 3rd, when Bulgaria will be proclaimed independent, with Ferdinand as King.

Death from Hydrophobia.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., July 28.—Daniel McCormick, of Pawtucket, died late Saturday night of hydrophobia. He was bitten by a dog some time ago, and had been confined to his bed for some time past with no hope of saving his life.

Big Stakes Decided Upon.

LEXINGTON, Ky., July 28—Two great stakes have been decided upon by the directors of the Kentucky Trotting Horse Breeders' Association. The first, a stallion representative stake for this year's foals, to be trotted here in 1893, guaranteed to be worth $10,000 to the winner; the other a futurity stake for next year's foals, to be trotted either in 1893 or the year following, guaranteed to be worth $25,000 gross.

Culminated in a Riot.

LONDON, July 28.—The Union meeting at Armagh, called for the purpose of denouncing the course of Mr. Corry, M. P., in blocking the Dock bill, was a very stormy one, and culminated in a riot. The police dispersed the crowd, and in the melee many persons were more or less injured.

WASHINGTON TOPICS

What Congress Will Do the Coming Week.

TARIFF TALK IN THE SENATE

Most of the Other Important Business Out of the Way.

The Committee About Ready to Report the Lodge Bill to Caucus—The Marine Bill—In the House an Effort to be Made to Push the Contested Election Cases to a Settlement.

WASHINGTON, July 28.—The Senate has finally set about the discussion of the Tariff bill in earnest, having disposed of all of the appropriation bills with the exception of the Deficiency bill, which has not yet come from the House. All of the appropriation bills have gone to the President with the exception of the Indian bill, which passed the Senate and now goes into conference, the Fortifications bill which this week is in conference, the Sundry Civil bill which has passed both Houses and will go into conference this week, and the Deficiency bill which is now on the House calendar.

There is very little to interfere with the continuous discussion of the Tariff bill, therefore, except the River and Harbor bill if it should be taken up and the reports of conference committees which have right of way.

No determination has been reached about taking up the River and Harbor bill, and during the early part of the week the consideration of the Tariff bill will proceed regularly each day with the understanding that there will be an adjournment at 5:30 o'clock, the Senate meeting each day at 11 o'clock.

The Republican members of the Committee on Privileges and Elections have almost completed the consideration of the Federal Election bill, and they will be prepared to report to a caucus in the near future. If this caucus is held before the end of this week, an order of business may be agreed upon which will displace the Tariff bill for the River and Harbor bill. It is estimated that this bill cannot be disposed of in less than three or four weeks.

In the morning hour Mr. Gray will insist upon the consideration of the bill for the transfer of the revenue marine to the naval service, with chances in favor of passing the bill before the end of this week. Other miscellaneous business will be considered in the morning hour during the week.

WORK BEFORE THE HOUSE.

Contested Election Cases to Be Forced to a Settlement This Week.

WASHINGTON, July 28.—Reports on the election cases are matters of privilege in the House and may be called up at any time. For several weeks past the Elections Committee has had three cases ready for settlement, but, although anxious to have them disposed of, the committee has deferred to the wishes of the Committee on Rules and allowed other matters to intervene. This week, however, the committee has determined to have its innings, and it will call up the first of its cases on Tuesday, or as soon as the Sundry Civil bill is out of the way.

This is the case of Chalmers (Rep.), against Morgan (Dem.). It will take but two or three hours to dispose of this case, as the committee's report is unanimous in favor of Mr. Morgan, the sitting member.

The Agricultural Committee wants to dispose of some bills during the week, and it may endeavor to oppose the Elections Committee concerning the arrangement of time.

The Compound Lard bill and the bill taxing meat products are the measures that the Agricultural Committee wants to dispose of, and as these affect the farmers, the Elections Committee may be defeated in its endeavor to secure consideration of its business, provided, of course, that the Agricultural Committee decides to oppose it. If the Elections Committee is allowed right of way it will bring up also the cases of Miller (Rep.) against Elliott (Dem.) from South Carolina, and of Langston (Rep.) against Venable (Dem.) from Virginia.

There is a possibility that the Deficiency bill may be brought up for discussion.

Congressional Campaign in South Carolina.

WASHINGTON, July 28.—A Charleston S. C., special says: The race for Congress from this State has set in early, and is now raging with all the warmth that characterizes the State canvass. As already stated, the Alliance, which seems to have things pretty much its own way in this State, politically, has taken a hand in the fight, and it is not improbable that the Palmetto State will send an almost new delegation to the next Congress.

The Squadron of Evolution Coming Home.

WASHINGTON, July 28.—The United States war ships comprising the squadron of evolution are expected to reach New York during the latter part of this week.

English Miners Threaten to Strike.

LONDON, July 28.—The miners of Lancashire have notified the mine owners that they consider themselves entitled to an advance of five per cent. in their wages, owing to the present market conditions. If the demand is not promptly acceded to, the miners will strike at once.

Perishing for Lack of Water.

SUAKIM, July 28.—During a hurricane the chimnies of the condenser water works were blown down, causing a partial cessation of the water supply. The natives in the vicinity are perishing for the lack of water.

No More Sunday Games in Rochester.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., July 28.—There was no baseball game at Windsor Beach yesterday. Sheriff Hodgson had issued a proclamation, stating that he and his deputies would prevent the game being played and the Rochester Club gracefully yielded to the inevitable. The game with Louisville will be will be made to play on Sunday.

A Desperate Murderer.

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y. July 28.—Patchello Bouchette, an Italian, shot and killed Francisco Frank, aged 30 years, shortly after noon. Frank was married about seven months ago to a young Italian girl, and Bouchette has been infatuated with Mrs. Frank for some time. During the afternoon Bouchette went to Frank's house and advised Mrs. Frank to leave her husband and go and live with him. Frank ordered Bouchette out of the house and attempted to put him out, when Bouchette drew a revolver and fired four shots into Frank killing him instantly. Bouchette was arrested.

News of the Sealing Fleet.

WASHINGTON, July 28.—The schooner Dashing Wave, just arrived at San Francisco from Sand Point, Alaska, brings news of the sealing fleet. The vessels have all done well and have caught from 600 to 1,200 seals each. The rendezvous for the fleet this year was at Konishi Island instead of Sand Point. The sealers, seventeen in number, have left for Behring Sea. The British schooner Lily did not appear, and fears are entertained for her safety. The revenue cutter Richard Rush arrived at Sand Point on July 10 and left two days later for Ounalaska.

Denies the Report.

PITTSBURG, Pa., July 28.—Regarding the rumors in circulation for some time that an employe of the Linden Steel Co., had placed the Government inspector's stamp on an inferior quality of steel to be used by the Government, Mr. Lewis, president of the company, said: "The report does our firm a great injustice, and is absolutely without foundation in facts. The facts are that somebody started the rumor. It was promptly investigated by the Navy Department officials at our request and was pronounced by them to be without foundation."

105 Degrees Above Zero in North Dakota.

DICKINSON, N. D., July 28.—Intense heat prevailed Sunday and to-day in this whole section. The thermometer stood at 105 degrees. It is feared that great damage has been done to the crops. The probability is that the hot spell will continue.

Another Mine Cave-in.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., July 28.—An extensive cave-in has occurred at Colliery No. 14 of the Pennsylvania Coal Company, fifty acres being affected. No one was injured. The damage to the mine will be heavy.

A Whole Family Killed.

GRAFTON, W. Va., July 28.—William Golden, his wife and three children, comprising the entire family, were killed by the fast express while crossing the railroad tracks at this place yesterday.

Wallace, Idaho, Burning.

PORTLAND, Ore., July 28.—A Spokane Falls despatch says that the town of Wallace, Idaho, is burning down. No particulars have yet been received.

FIGHTING CONTINUES

The Argentine Revolt Growing More Serious.

SPREADING TO THE PROVINCES.

The Insurgents Gaining Recruits and Sympathy from the Populace.

Militia Joining the Rebellious Government Soldiers—The Navy Remains Neutral—The Government Worsted in the Street Fights—A Number Killed and Many Wounded.

BUENOS AYRES, July 28.—Another battalion has joined the insurgents. The revolutionists are commanded by Manuel Campos and Arredontio. Their numbers are increasing.

The result of Saturday's street fighting was adverse to the Government.

The navy remains neutral. Pellegrine has assumed the presidency.

Fighting continues, and many of the combatants have either been killed or are wounded.

BUENOS AYRES, July 28.—Generals Campos and Arredontio, commanding the insurgents, have seized the arsenal, barracks and Plaza Lavelle. Their forces include five military and two citizen battalions and the cadet corps. The Government commands seven battalions and expects reinforcements from Zarate. The street conflicts on Saturday were adverse to the Government. The losses on both sides were heavy. Many buildings were destroyed. The navy remains neutral. Senor Pellegrini, the vice president, has assumed the presidency.

The populace support the revolution, which has extended to the provinces. The autnorities are negotiating with the insurgents.

LONDON, July 28.—A despatch to the Times from Buenos Ayres says that early on Saturday the artillery, joined by some civilians, took the first steps to overthrow the Government.

The troops and the police parleyed. Firing was opened at Palermo and soon extended to the Plaza Lavalle.

The infantry and artillery, with mitrailleuses, kept up a heavy firing all the morning. The police fired at and dispersed a crowd around the the Government House, but the people kept firing from houses.

A determined group of men stood pluckily to their arms in front of the Government House while the roar of cannon and rattle of musketry came nearer and nearer.

A policeman in mere wantonness split an Englishman's head open with his sabre, and a bystander shot the policeman down.

In the afternoon the revolutionary Government issued its first decree. This ordered the mobilization of the National Guard and appointed Nicolas Menales Chief of Police.

At 5 o'clock on Saturday afternoon two attacks were made by the Government troops on citizen battalions.

The troops were repulsed both times. Policemen and artillerymen are lying dead in heaps.

The Chief of Police, Capde Vila, is wounded. The Minister of War is reported killed. Sharp fighting continues around the artillery barracks.

THE CENTRAL AMERICAN WAR.

Guatemala Said to Be Willing to Fight Till She Whips San Salvador.

RICHFIELD SPRINGS, July 28.—A cipher dispatch received here by an official of the Guatemalan Government says that Guatemala accepts the war provoked by San Salvador, and will continue it until San Salvador elects a legitimate president in place of Ezeta. The battle fought on the 23d inst., the dispatch says, resulted in the rout of the San Salvadorians, but, as Salvador commands the cable to Central America, the Government only allows dispatches favorable to itself to be sent abroad.

The telegram further asserts that the arms taken from the steamer Colima were taken with the consent of the Pacific Mail agent and the American Minister, by virtue of article 17 of the Pacific Mail contract.

Honduras, the despatch further says, will remain neutral for the present, but may join with Guatemala if events require her. Guatemala has 40,000 men under arms and Honduras 6,000, while San Salvador has only about 10,000.

CITY OF MEXICO, July 28, via Galveston.—Several revolutionary bands are marauding near the Mexican frontier in Guatemalan territory. Both Guatemala and San Salvador are trying to mass troops with the utmost haste, but Guatemala finds difficulty in the dissatisfaction of her soldiers.

Jail Breakers Captured.

MONTPELIER, Vt., July 28.—The four desperate prisoners who escaped from Washington County jail Saturday night by sawing out the grating of a window have now all been recaptured. The men were J. M. Weaver, imprisoned for horse stealing; William Jenkins, committed for attempted rape; James Hathorn, committed for highway robbery; Peter Amour, committed for keeping a house of ill-fame.

A New Jersey Girl's Strange Absence.

TRENTON, N. J., July 28.—The village of Pennington is excited over the disappearance of Miss Lizzie Lewis, a school teacher, who left her boarding house seventeen days ago to visit a friend in a village four miles away. She was last seen on a train going toward New York. The day she disappeared she visited her grandmother and told her she was going to take a position in a hotel on Long Island. The lady's grandmother has forgotten the name of the hotel.

HIS FAREWELL SERMON.

Dr. Burtsell Advises His Former Parishioners to Be Faithful To the Church.

NEW YORK, July 28.—Dr. Burtsell preached at the 11 o'clock mass at the Church of the Epiphany, Second avenue and Twenty-second street, yesterday.

It was expected that he would deliver a farewell discourse inasmuch as he has been removed from the pasterate on account of his sympathy for Dr. Edward McGlynn.

The Doctor spoke for three quarters of an hour, and at the conclusion of his sermon he referred to his leaving the parish. He satisfied himself, however, with counselling the people to avoid action likely to bring them in conflict with the authorities of the Church. He asked for his successor the same loyal obedience and affection which they had always shown to him. If they did not continue in the same path of duty to their church that they had always pursued since he had been their pastor, the Doctor said he would feel that his labors among them had been wasted."

The talk was characteristic of Dr. Burtsell and was in the form of fatherly advice.

The people were much affected by the kindly words of their beloved priest.

OFFFRED POSITIONS.

World's Fair Commissioners After Census Supt. Porter and Prof. Browne Goode.

WASHINGTON, July 28.—The Commissioners of the World's Fair, during their recent visit to this city, tendered to the Hon. Robert P. Porter, now superintendent of the census, the position of chief of the Bureau of Awards, and to Prof. G. Browne Goode, now assistant secretary of the Smithsonian Institution and in charge of the National Museum, the position of chief of the Bureau of Classification and Catalogue for the forthcoming exposition.

Next to the director-generalship of the Fair, these are the most important positions connected with the exhibition.

The Bureau of Awards during the Centennial of 1876 was in charge of Gen. Francis A. Walker, and the Bureau of Classification and Catalogue in charge of Mr. Dorsey Gardner.

It is not known definitely whether Mr. Porter or Prof. Goode have accepted the positions tendered.

Population of Buffalo.

BUFFALO, N. Y., July 28.—It appears from such figures as are obtainable that the investigation of Special Census Agent, P. T. Wood, will add about 400 names to the census of Buffalo, and that the previous estimate of this city's population by Supervisor Douglass as 255,332 will be increased over 2,000 names, making the population of Buffalo approximately 254,000.

To Build a Mammoth Coal Breaker.

DREXTON, Pa., July 28.—Coxe Bros. & Co. have completed surveys and will at once begin the erection of a new coal breaker to be constructed wholly of iron and to have a capacity of 3,000 tons per day. When completed it will be one of the largest in the anthracite coal fields. It will cost over $150,000.

Declines to Run Again for Congress.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., July 28.—A card from Hon. Charles S. Baker is published, announcing his retirement from the canvass for renomination for Congressman. His competitor is Hon. John Van Voorhis, an ex-member of Congress.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

Tony de Kruif, of Zeeland, Mich., has sold his registered trotter Woodlark to Eastern parties for $8,500.

At a picnic given at Pilot Point, Tex., Sunday, a large number of people were poisoned by ice cream made poisonous by staying too long in the can. Fifteen persons will die.

Nellie Baselville, aged 26 years, of No. 544 Eleventh avenue, New York, was so severely burned about her legs and body yesterday that she died shortly afterwards.

Caral Schoon, assistant engineer of the German tank steamer Energie was seized with cramps while bathing in the Schuylkill River at Philadelphia yesterday and was drowned.

The United States revenue cutter Walcott has arrived at Portland, Ore., from her cruise. It is supposed she has been on the lookout for parties attempting to smuggle Chinese over the border.

Herndon Morsell, the well known tenor, has accepted the first tenor part in the new opera, "The Red Hussar," which is to be produced at Palmer's Theatre, New York, by the Duff Opera Company in August.

The re-count made under the authority of the City Council gives Fort Smith, Ark., a population of 13,389, an increase over the Government's census of 2,826. The Council insisted on having the Government make a re-count.

Judge Samuel S. Marshall is dead at his residence in McLeansport, Ill., aged 63 years. His death was due to a general breaking down of his nervous system. He represented the Nineteenth District in Congress from 1863 until 1869.

The oil well, known as the O. C. Harris well, four miles north of Findlay, Ohio, came in last night. The well began flowing at the rate of 150 barrels an hour and went as high as 168 barrels per hour. The well is still flowing heavily.

Weather Indications.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 28.—For Massachusetts: Fair; westerly winds; stationary temperature; warmer to-morrow.

For Connecticut, New Hampshire, Rhode Island, Vermont, Eastern New York and New Jersey: Warmer; fair; southerly winds; warmer to-morrow.

For Western New York: Warmer; fair; southerly winds; warmer to-morrow.

BY THE WAY.

—Meeting this evening in the parlor of Mrs. Poole at 8 o'clock. All are invited. 22 West Third street.

—The issues of the Perth Amboy Herald of last Wednesday, Friday and Saturday, all arrived at this office by this morning's mail.

—A regular meeting of Plainfield Council, Royal Arcanum, will be held this evening in the Council room at eight o'clock.

—Smokers are advertised to read the advertisement of N. H. Guttman published in another column. He is giving away match boxes, tobacco and pipes.

—The Lamp Committee of the Borough are looking for the owner of a horse and wagon that collided with and destroyed the street lamp and post on the corner of Grove street and Park place.

—The Rev. N. W. Cadwell, of Westfield, exchanged pulpits last evening with the Rev. Cornelius Schenck. The former delivered an able, interesting sermon on the life of Job, and the latter treated the Y. P. S. C. E. of Mr. Cadwell's church to a report of the national convention recently held at St. Louis.

—The tomato pack in New Jersey this season will be large. The fruit has been plentiful enough to permit of considerable exporting, and the packing factories throughout the State have been busy since the season opened. The industry is a profitable one and gives employment to many hundreds of young people during the Summer.

—All those who were present at the meeting of the Christian Endeavor Society of Warren Mission, last Tuesday evening, will be pleased to know that Madame Lutty, her brother and his son and daughter, all of Damascus, will be present at the meeting to-morrow evening. After the adjournment of the regular meeting (which is a consecration service), the four persons named will appear in their native costumes and will speak of the customs of their country. A cordial invitation is extended to all.

Good Speeches Before a Plainfield Club.

The address delivered Sunday evening at the Reform Club meeting were highly interesting. The first speaker was Doctor J. B. Burnett, who ably reviewed the liquor question, and expatiated on the extreme methods adopted by the liquor men to perpetuate a traffic which in his opinion was directly adverse to the welfare of the people. He predicted an overwhelming revolution for total abstinence, and the popular vindication of right over wrong, through the mighty influence of the numerous temperance organizations, the Woman's Christian Temperance Unions, through the great educational power of Christian Endeavor Societies, and through the power of the nine millions of Sunday school pupils in this country. The Doctor's remarks were listened to with much satisfaction.

He was followed by Mrs. Houseman, President of the W. C. T. U. of Key East, New Jersey, who in a very impressive manner bore testimony to the cause of temperance as God's chosen work, and urged upon all the imperative necessity of discharging duty at all times and in every place. The experiences related by Mrs. Houseman concerning the ravages of liquor among the homes of our land were in many cases exceedingly touching.

President Harper presided. The blessing was invoked by Geo. M. Angleman. Mr. and Mrs. King, Miss Alice Smith and Mr. Spencer composed the efficient choir.

Killed Herself With Milk.

Mary Goldsmith, who died last Monday morning aged 50 years, as announced in THE PRESS of the next day, is believed to have killed herself with milk. She drank not even quarts alone but gallons, and of the very richest quality. Mary was cook for Mrs. Gen'l Schwenck at the Holly Grove farm, the milk of which is renowned all over the country. Heart failure was the cause of death, and a post mortem showed layers of fat about the heart, six inches thick.

Everybody Will Smile at This.

The publishers and editor of THE PRESS were served with papers today in an alleged libel suit brought by ex-Captain Carey. Considering the source of the complaint, the public will be able to judge how much of it is "bluff" and how much because of wounded spirit. All hands waived examination, and Councilman Roberts and A. Swalm gave bonds for their appearance if ever wanted.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Miss Cora King of Newark, is visiting relatives in this city.

Mrs. Frederick Mead's little son is quite ill since their arrival at Colorado Springs.

Misses Burt and Estelle Stokes of Philadelphia, have gone home after a visit with their uncle, George W. Force of West Second street.

Charles P. Leggett officiated as organist in Trinity Reformed church, yesterday morning and evening, in a very acceptable and satisfactory manner.

Dr. T. S. Davis and family of Park avenue, will sail for Europe, next Saturday, on the "Umbria." Mulford Estil will leave on the same steamer.

S. A. Vail, a native of this city and a member of the firm of Bean & Vail Bros., Philadelphia Novelty Perfumery Co., visited Plainfield today.

The Rev. Edward Love preached in the pulpit of the Crescent Avenue church, last evening, and the Rev. Mr. Richards addressed the Hope chapel mission.

Wm. D. Murray writes from Trondhjem, Norway, that he and his sisters are very well, thoroughly enjoying themselves, and are on their way further North.

E. Haviland, Mrs. Nevius and Miss Nevius, of Plainfield, are among the guests recently registered at the Kittatinny House, Delaware Water Gap, Pa.

Miss Jessie Utter starts today for Westerly and Noyes Beach, where she will spend a month. While she is absent E. W. Hedges will supply her position as organist.

The Rev. P. Le Bas Cross, of St. John's church, Elizabeth, conducted the services at Holy Cross church yesterday, the Rev. T. Logan Murphy officiating at the Church of St. Peter-in-Gallico, Monmouth Beach.

Miss Mattie Humble gave a party to about thirty of her friends, at her home on Somerset street, last Friday evening. Guests were present from Bound Brook, Somerville and other places. Supper was served.

The arrivals at Netherwood Hotel for the past week, were: Arthur C. Rice, R. K. Mackey and wife, Mr. and Mrs. F. Reiset and family, W. H. Trafton and family, of New York; Miss F. Forker, Miss B. Forker, of Brooklyn; Walter M. Smith, of New Banford, Conn.

The Rev. R. S. Holmes, formerly of this city and now pastor of the largest congregation in Pittsburgh, will occupy the pulpit of the Crescent Avenue church during the month of August when the Rev. Mr. Richards will be absent with his family in the White Mountains.

Savilla M. Coddington, mother of Wm. A. Coddington, Attorney-at-law, of this city, died at her home in Bound Brook, yesterday morning, of typhoid fever. She was in the 48th year of her age, and the widow of Israel A. Coddington. Besides the son mentioned, there is left a daughter, Lizzie F. Coddington. The funeral will be held at two o'clock to-morrow afternoon at the house, and 2:30 at the Congregational church, Bound Brook.

The death of Maria M. Moffett, widow of Simeon V. Moffett, and sister-in-law of Constable Amos Moffett of this city, occurred at Elizabeth, Saturday. She was in the 78th year of her age, and died of paralysis. Mrs. Isaac A. Connett of Peace street, is a daughter of Mrs. Moffett, as is also Mrs. Philip Breen, wife of the ex-Chief of the Plainfield police. Mrs. Moffett will be buried from the home of the latter, 534 Adams avenue, Elizabeth, to-morrow afternoon at 1:30 o'clock. Interment will be made at Scotch Plains.

Some Stuff Sold for Food in Jersey.

State Dairy Commissioner William K. Newton of New Jersey has issued his annual report on food products of this state. A portion of it is devoted to adulterated food. He says that out of 2,507 samples of various kinds of food purchased in stores and markets in the State, 1,078 were found to be adulterated.

Bologna sausage was the most susceptible of adulteration. Twelve samples, purchased in stores in Jersey City, were found to have been boiled in a coloring compound. This gave them a brown color. They had afterward been coated with a varnish compound of shellac, resin, oil, and alcohol. The report warns the people not to purchase cheap jellies. Most of them are made of starch, water, acetic acid, currant flavoring, extract glucose, and bad coloring matter.

The Athletic Waiters The Netherwood Will Entertain the Guests.

On Saturday afternoon of next week, between three and four o'clock, there will be athletic games held in front of the Hotel Netherwood, for the amusement of the guests by the waiters of the hotel.

The programme will include: 1st race—One mile and a quarter; 2d race—one hundred yards dash; 3d race—3 legged race—one hundred yards; 4th race—2 hundred yards—handicap; 5th—sack race; 6th—tug of war; 7th—potato race. Edward Borne is treasurer and J. Dillon, manager of the affair.

An endless chain of certificates verify the excellence of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup. Price 25 cents.

BULLETS AND COBBLESTONES.

Pleasant Deaths Promised Each Other by Next Door Neighbors.

An exhibition of the way they give each other tongue lashings over the fence which separates their respective back yards at home was afforded by Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Bergen of East Third street, and Mary Morris, their next door neighbor, in the police station, before City Judge Codington, this morning. It wasn't exactly the fault of the Bergen family that their neighborly spats were thus publicly aired, although Mrs. Morris laid everything to them. They had complained against Mrs. Morris several days before, and had had her fined for using unsavory language, and Mrs. Morris, evidently anxious to get square, now sought to have Mr. Bergen punished.

Just what Mr. Bergen had done was a long story for Mrs. Morris to tell. He had said many bad, bad things, had called her husband a Dutchman with profane uncomplimentary adjectives, had promised to see to it that the aforesaid Dutchman should repose next Autumn beneath the daisies, and had threatened to dash out the deponent's brains against the cobblestones, "if he got seven years for it."

Mrs. Morris became very vehement in giving her testimony, and after all hands had warmed up and all tongues had begun their babel of protests and denunciations, indicative of what did or did not occur at the Morris-Bergen orgies, several varieties of sensational emotional theatricals were displayed. Fingers were shaken in each other's faces, voices waxed strenuous and loud, and bodies swayed back and forth with great agility if not grace. The Court hammered away at the bench till a crash was heard among the bottles of the miniature barroom of dangerous fluids taken from bibulous prisoners, and Sergeant Lynch yelled for order the red in his face ran all the way down his shirt front, but no peace could be had till all parties had been sent away.

Mrs. Morris couldn't be induced to contradict herself, but she had no witnesses to sustain her, while four or five appeared for the Bergens and cleared Patrick of the accusations.

The case had scarcely been dismissed by the Court when Mrs. Bergen wanted to know if she couldn't have the law on Mr. Morris for threatening to put seven bullets through Mr. Bergen. Just why Mr. Morris had announced this definite mathematical restriction, or why he had chosen to give evidence of poor ability as a marksman, or of an extravagant spirit in wasting six bullets over one efficacious one, Mrs. Bergen was not given time to explain. The Court ordered the neighbors to go home and behave themselves and mind their own affairs exclusively, or be prepared to suffer heavy punishment.

BRASS BUTTONS INSTEAD OF BEER.

Sergeant Lynch Too Clever for Plainfield's Sabbath Breakers.

A gang of hoodlums of various ages were making merry in their own peculiar way in the open fields in Plainfield's outskirts, last week Sunday, expecting certain delectable liquid refreshments. One of the gang had promised to bring "the stuff" in a hack, and when the vehicle arrived the crowd hailed it with happy cries. Their joy was quickly changed, however, to consternation, for as the hack door opened there appeared, not their coveted beverage, but the giant form of the valiant Police Sergeant, Patrick Lynch. Mr. Lynch, discovering the plans of the Sabbath desecrators, had decided to disguise himself as the expected "growler," and his scheme worked to perfection. Before the scamps could vanish from view he had identified the majority of them, and as a consequence five of the offenders appeared before City Judge Codington this morning charged with violating the city ordinances by destroying the Sabbath peace and quiet. George Neal, Thos. O'Gorman, Frank Mowry and John Morecraft pleaded guilty and were fined one dollar apiece. All of them were "broke" except O'Gorman, who had two silver cartwheels and two one-dollar bills. He paid his own and Neal's and Mowry's fines with extreme cheerfulness, counting on getting paid back. He offered to pay Morecraft's, but Morecraft was on a high horse and said he didn't care whether his fine was paid or not. The Court replied with much emphasis that if Morecraft's fine remained unpaid Morecraft would go to jail for ten days. Morecraft consented to O'Gorman's offer of a loan.

Mike Heffernan, the smallest and toughest-looking prisoner in the lot, insisted that he didn't have anything to do with the case. Sergeant Lynch said Heffernan was the most guiltiest of the gang. Heffernan wriggled his nose defiantly, pleaded not guilty, had his trial set down for Saturday morning at ten o'clock, and turned away with the air of one who will worry the law for all he is worth.

Never Have Burglars in Plainfield.

Another attempt to enter the house at 149 Broadway, now occupied by Mrs. E. Dezendorf and family, is reported as having taken place last night. The inmates were awakened by what they supposed was somebody trying to get in. This is the second time that this has occurred, but it cannot be burglars. The robbery of the postoffice some time ago by men who came here for just that purpose, is the only case of burglary in this city in twenty years.

They Must Abstain Off Duty, Too.

All the officials along the Jersey Central Railroad have been notified by the company that the employees must abstain from the use of intoxicating liquors, both when on and off duty, on pain of dismissal. There is already a standing rule against indulging in liquor while on duty, but the new order has occasioned much consternation all along the line as but few of the hundreds of employees are total abstainers.

Why "Iced Cocoa" but Not Iced Cream.

The following item is going the rounds of the papers: "Iced cocoa is a new beverage for the Summer lunch table. It is made for breakfast, sweetened and frozen, frappe—that is iced, but not so solid as ice cream. Iced cocoa should be served in little cups set in saucers with a teaspoon of cold whipped cream on each."

A Plainfielder on Original Packages.

Editor Aaron M. Powell, of East Sixth street, this city, made a lengthy address before the Friends' Quarterly Meeting at Westbury, Long Island, yesterday. He alluded to the recent Original Package decision of the Supreme Court as "The Dred Scott decision of the liquor traffic."

The Brooklyn Roofers' Strike Over.

NEW YORK, July 28.—The roofers' strike in Brooklyn, which has been in progress in that city for a couple of months, and which affected about one thousand men, was settled last night. The Roofers' Union met and ratified the agreement of the joint committee settled upon Saturday. The men went to work this morning. They will work nine hours a day until September 15, and after that date eight hours a day at the same wages for which they formerly worked ten hours per day.

To Colonize Negroes in Mexico.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., July 28.—It is understood that a syndicate of wealthy men have purchased 20,000 acres of ground from the Mexican Government, not a hundred miles from the City of Mexico, in one of the many fertile valleys that abound in that portion of the country, and intend to settle it with negroes from the United States. The Government promised protection from the natives and gave other guarantees.

Murdered by a Lunatic.

LOCKPORT, N. Y., July 27.—At Wolcottville, a German village ten miles southeast of this city, a lunatic named Yago beat Poormaster Schultz so severely with an ax that Schultz died in the evening. Schultz, accompanied by a constable, went to Yago's house to take him to the asylum, when he attacked Schultz as above stated. Yago then fled to the woods.

Disease on Board.

NEW YORK, July 28.—The steamship La Bourgogne, from Havre, was detained at quarantine all day on account of having a contagious disease on board. The nature of the disease is not stated.

Dead at the Age of 101 Years.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., July 28.—Mrs. Elizabeth Larned, who died Saturday evening in Central Falls, was in her 101st year.

Governor of New South Wales.

LONDON, July 28.—The Earl of Jersey has been appointed as Governor of New South Wales.

THINGS ANTIQUATED.

IN the residence of the late Simon P. Fitz in Auburn, Me., is a chair over two hundred years old.

MRS. MORRIS, of Sheboygan, Wis., has in her possession a meerschaum pipe that belonged to a King of Denmark 238 years ago.

MRS. WINDOM, wife of the Secretary of the Treasury, is the possessor of a sofa which came from Washington's headquarters at Valley Forge.

AN English lady, long resident in Syria, reports the discovery in a village between Beyreuth and Damascus of an ancient bedstead made of silver and richly inlaid with jewels.

THE historian tablet which the Chinese Government has taken measures to preserve has been known for more than 250 years, and according to its own inscription was erected 1,000 years ago.

THE Baron de Cosson, who surprised and disgusted many persons by showing that the greater part of the old armor preserved in public museums in Europe is work of the present century or of the last century, has sold his own collection in London. One of his treasures is the Highland pistol which belonged to the Earl of Montrose, (1615).

DR. J. JACKSON CRIDER, of Ottumwa, Ia., has an autograph of General Andrew Jackson attached to a warrant for the arrest of "Thomas Hendryx for stealing a horse valued at £5 from one Philip Shickler," in Davis County, North Carolina. It bears the date of 1788, when General Jackson was State's Attorney in North Carolina.

THE German Emperor has presented some interesting relics to the Beethoven house at Bonn—the four ear-trumpets which were made by the Court instrument maker Maelzel for the great master in the year 1814. The ear-trumpets, which are made of brass, are of an extraordinary shape; two of them being of unusual length, about seventy centimeters long. They still possess the identical silk ribbons which Beethoven used to fasten them on with.

A STRANGE discovery was made at one of the towns on the upper Niger by Commander Davoust and his comrades. They found a piece of evidently very old European pottery. It was fired upon the summit of a mosque, and the Mohammedan natives told the travelers that it had been given to them near the beginning of this century by a white man who was going down the river. From all the information the travelers collected they could reach no other conclusion than that the donor of this little vase was Mungo Park, the pioneer of African exploration in the last hundred years.

A Colored Preacher Fatally Shot.

TRENTON, N. J., July 28.—Charles Long, a colored desperado, yesterday shot Theodore Ayers, a local colored preacher, during a quarrel about the preacher's wife. Long was arrested. It is thought that Ayers will die.

Lifeboats Picked Up.

BOSTON, July 28.—The steamer B. H. Miller, from Baltimore, reports having picked up two lifeboats marked Charles Meerand, off Five Fathom Bank lightship on July 26th.

Coal and Coke Works Burned.

PENFIELD, Pa., July 28.—The Elk Coal and Coke Company's works, at Glenfisher, Elk County, seven miles from here, has been destroyed by fire. One hundred are thrown out of employment, and the loss is $[illegible]0, with an insurance of $12,500. The works will be rebuilt at once.

Several Suicides.

July 28.—Thomas Nev[illegible] of construction on the new [illegible] Susquehanna & Schuylkill R[illegible], shot and killed himself yesterday. No cause is assigned for the deed. He leaves a widow and four small children.

WASHINGTON ROCK.

The Monumental Association Still Exists and Its Worthy Purpose is Not Yet Abandoned.

To the residents of Plainfield and vicinity there is no spot more beautiful and interesting than that overlooking mountain eminence known as Washington Rock. Rich in natural scenery, yet richer far is it in historical renown, because personally associated with one whom all Americans justly revere, the great Commander of the Revolution, who, when war clouds hung dark and heavy, stood on that rocky pedestal a faithful sentinel in the struggling cause of Independance, and there a monument, even though of modest proportions, should be reared in memory of the illustrious Washington and the grand results his patriotic devotion achieved.

THE PRESS learns with pleasure from a gentleman prominently connected with the Monumental Association, that the organization still exists and that its worthy purpose has not been abandoned. Right here is an opportunity to comply with a request to make public the following poem, well written by a Plainfielder, Ellis Ayres, many years ago:

WASHINGTON ROCK.

I have climbed the mountain summit,
I am standing on its brow;
On this hallowed spot and sacred,
Which my feet are pressing now,
Stood a warrior and chieftain—
One whose proudly honored name,
Is the brightest jewel gleaming,
In the coronal of fame.

Here, in years long since departed
To the mist-realms of the past,
Stood the Hero, noble-hearted,
Mailed in armor girded fast;
Watching here when danger threatened,
From this cliff-tower mantling high,
He upon his country's foemen,
Calmly bent his eagle eye.

Here, when clouds of war and carnage
Densely shrouded freedom's morn,
Stood the patriotic Father
Of a nation newly born.
He whose faith could never falter,
He the brave, the true and good,
Consecrated this Rock-altar,
In this mountain solitude.

While around me forest minstrels
Warble forth their songs of praise,
What a gorgeous scene of splendor
Bursts upon my ravished gaze.
I behold bright fields elysian,
In a wide successive train,
And I feast insatiate vision
On the glories of the plain.

All is one vast scene of beauty,
From the hill-top to the strand;
Town and city cluster gaily,
Here and there on either hand.
At my feet and far beneath me,
Wave the kingly forest trees,
And their leaf-crowned heads are bowing,
To the mandates of the breeze.

Myriad orchards, sweetly blooming,
Deck the bosom of the vale,
All the atmosphere perfuming,
Pouring incense on the gale.
Flora's gifts are strewn profusely
O'er her green and gilded bowers,
Town and villa half entombing,
In a sepulchre of flowers.

Yonder graceful winding river
Gently glides along its way,
And its wavelets flash and quiver
In the noon-god's golden ray;
Far away the waves of ocean
Dashing shoreward wreathed in foam,
White winged treasures, bearing proudly
Many loved ones to their home.

Farther still, the spiral columns
Of the "Empire City" rise,
Upward rolling, smoky volumes
Loom against the Eastern skies;
While the ocean-girded islands,
By the sea-born waves caressed,
Seem to rest in tranquil silence,
Pillowed on her billowy breast.

Loving skies, which o'er me bending,
Boundless, beautiful and true,
Seem with earth and ocean blending,
In the far off misty blue.
Golden rays of sunset glitter
On the gleaming village spires,
Glowing bright as sparkling fragments,
Scattered from celestial fires.

Silver-fringed and crimson cloudlets,
Floating high on pinions bright,
Downward pour o'er all the landscape,
Mingled floods of mystic light.
Azure tints of rainbow glory
Gild the flower-girded plain,
But mine eye so faint with gazing,
Sinks within itself again.

And my soul, in deep emotion,
Lifts above her spirit eye,
From the beautiful in nature,
Up to "Nature's God" on high;
And there comes a voiceless whisper,
Breathing from pure depths of thought;
Oh how richly fraught with glory,
Are the works Thy hand hath wrought!

Pur ple shades and pale vermilion
Linger where the sun hath flown,
Night flings out her star pavilion,
"Luna" mounts her spangled throne;
Yet upon this shrine I linger,
Flying time is heeded not,
For I linger yet, and linger,
On this consecrated spot.

Aye it is a "consecrated spot."

John Davidson, Esq., of Elizabeth, in his oration of February 22, 1867, delivered in the old First Baptist church, Plainfield, thus spoke of it: "At early dawn, by the gray light of the morning, our great chieftain repaired to this rock, and with telescopic vision viewed the marchings and countermarchings of the foe. Passing silently, noiselessly, and alone, through the camp, while others slept, giving the countersign to the guard in a whisper, Washington proceeds to this rock; and, ere his eyes seek the position of the enemy, on his bended knees, his heart seeks the throne of God in prayer; and who that now liveth shall tell us of the secret and silent appeals for aid, for grace, for strength, for guidance from on high, which as ended from that rock to the throne of the Infinite?"

Some favor a tariff for revenue only, some a tariff with incidental protection, and some a tariff for protection, per se; but a large majority favor the free use of Salvation Oil for cuts and bruises.

The Dunellen School Trouble.

The New York World of recent date contained a highly colored romance about the Dunellen school. It makes it appear that a great war is raging there. The facts in the case, as told those in a position to know, are said by the New Brunswick Times to be simply these: The old time residents form an element of old timed ideas, while the later residents, who are composed principally of New York business men, favor modern improvements in educational, as well as mercantile affairs. These two elements have met and clashed and they are encouraged to keep up the fight by their respective supporters.

Miss Lane, who is a teacher and one of the leaders in the fight, has placed herself outside the pale of the school by defying the trustees, who are the representatives of the people. She taught the primary annex, and opposed, it is said, the idea of building a new school. When a new school was erected and the trustees decided on looking elsewhere for teachers—she experienced a revulsion of feeling. On making the state of her mind known she was informed that it had been decided upon that she should remain where she was. She declined to do this and told the trustees, it is said, that she would get in the new school in spite of them.

A committee did wait on Mr. Willis and he did advise them, but he advised them to try and get along without any kicking for the rest of the year.

Supt. Oley is no longer wanted by the majority. He is qualified by education but not by executive ability, and they declare that he must go. There is no real telling how the matter may end. But the people should stand by the trustees whom they elected.

The First Testimonial Chancellor Vincent Has Ever Accepted.

A letter received from Bishop J. H. Vincent, formerly of Plainfield, tells of his visit to the State Prison at Wauseka, Minn., where there is a Chautauqua Literary and Scientific Circle class among the convicts. He made them a little speech, at which they "laughed, cried and applauded." An engrossed copy of an address and a large velvet sofa-pillow made in the prison, were presented to him by the criminals. This is the first testimonial the Bishop has ever accepted for his services in connection with Chautauqua, and it furnishes a touching proof of the appreciation of his unselfish labors among the most depraved.

The incident recalls an unrelated anecdote of the Bishop and Mr. Mahaffy. "Do you know," said the professor, loftily, after oraculary declaring that hereditary vice was incurable. "When I have gone through prisons in Europe and looked on the brutal countenances and narrow foreheads of the inmates. I have been convinced that efforts to uplift them would be utterly thrown away." "That isn't the idea of Chautauqua," returned the Bishop, quietly. "We hold that no man is too humble to help or too degraded to be taught to rise to higher things."

A New Lien Law.

An amended lien law will go into effect September 1, which provides for recording all contracts in the county clerk's office, and requires the contractor upon payment of the whole or any part of the sum agreed upon, to deliver to the owner of such building the release of all persons who may then have furnished materials used in the erection of the building, and of journeymen and laborers. These releases must be made before any person authorized to administer oaths. The law it is said is hard on loan associations, and the New Jersey Law Journal says: "The law will probably result in every firm of builders having to retain a lawyer for the purpose of drawing affidavits, and even in that case it may seriously embarrass building operations."

They May Get Around It.

Only in three counties in New Jersey can the Prohibitionists this year file certificates of nominations which, under the law, can entitle them to nominate candidates. These counties are Cape May, Cumberland and Hunterdon, where at the last election the Prohibitionists polled 5 per cent. of the total vote. The difficulty can be got around, however, in other counties, by the petition of 5 per centum of the legal voters in the county or Assembly districts in which the nomination is to be made.

New Brunswick's Chief Praises Plainfield's Department.

Chief Acker of the New Brunswick fire department was in Plainfield yesterday, visiting Mr. Newman of Fifth and Liberty streets. Chief Doane showed him around the department here. Chief Acker expressed himself very much pleased with every thing he saw, and confessed that this city was way ahead of his. He will recommend many things for New Brunswick that he saw here.

Excitement at Westfield.

Wm. Kelly's team of grays ran away with his big truck at Westfield, just after breakfast, this morning. There was a number of other vehicles on the streets but no damage resulted. The section hands at the Broad street crossing turned the runaways into a vacant lot, where they were captured.

THE TWO-LEGGED HOG.

One of the Mysterious Dispensations of Providence.

Fellows Who Reverse the Golden Rule and Do Unto Themselves What They Would Have Others Do Unto Them —A Possible Cure Suggested.

The New York papers are just now engaged in a very vigorous crusade against the hog. It is not the hog who lives in a pen and eats from a trough, and who generally minds his own business as long as he is supplied with a sufficient quantity of very coarse and poor food—it is not this kind of hog at all that is troubling the New York journalists; but a hog of an entirely different variety—the human hog.

It would seem from a very cursory reading of the New York journals, says the Yankee Blade, that the human hog is very numerous in that metropolis, and out of the one million six hundred thousand people which the new census informs us are found in that populous city, we should judge that at least one hundred thousand of them were human hogs. If there are one hundred thousand of these hogs in New York City, there are probably one million of them in this Republic, or a number about one-third as large as the entire population of the country at the time of the revolutionary war. This is certainly enough to leaven the whole lump, and furnish one hog to every neighborhood.

So the human hog, like the poor, we have always with us, and every one has a chance to make his acquaintance. He is more objectionable than the real hog, for it is perfectly legal to kill the real hog every autumn and bury him in the pork-barrel. The laudable practice has not been sanctioned in regard to the human hog, and so his tribe increases rapidly.

The human hog reverses the Golden Rule and does unto himself as he would have others do unto him. He showers all his treasures upon the one he loves; namely, on his own self.

He dotes on himself, he loves himself, he worships himself with a fervent adoration that can not be expressed. He himself is the only man in the world; all the others he simply ignores, or makes them servile ministers of his own porcine majesty.

What will cure the hog? The criticism of the New York newspapers will have little effect, for the human hog is as impervious to criticism as a sound rubber boot is impervious to water. The most pointed insult does not shock his sensibilities, for the very good reason that he has no sensibilities; he is born without them as babies are born without hair; but, unlike the baby's hair, the hog's sensibilities never develop. If it were permissible to confine him in a pen, like the other kind of hog, the problem would be easily solved. But our negligent and dilatory legislators have not yet put any such law upon our statute books, and the human hog is still allowed to roam at large, with the whole world for his pen, and to levy on all mankind to bring food to his trough.

The human hog in every neighborhood is regarded as a local visitation of fate that must be borne, along with the other mysterious dispensations of Providence. Property immediately depreciates in value in any neighborhood in which he may chance to settle, for the human hog is generally regarded as incurable—you can change a leopard's spots as easily as you can his nature. The hog is incurable simply because he is unconscious that he is a hog. If he were conscious of the fact, his own hideousness would scare him into reformation.

Just here comes in a possible cure for the hog. If the hog is unconscious that he is a hog, how does any man know but he may be a hog himself? Does not this awful uncertainty stare each one of us in the face? Now, if every man and woman in the country will assume that he or she is a hog, and begin to reform every selfish trait in his or her personal character, the universal hog problem will soon be settled. For the sake of the universal race, let each one of us assume that he is a hog, and at once commence a vigorous self-reformation. If everybody does this, the hog will soon be reformed out of existence. If everybody does not do this we see no means of curing the evil.

A Northern Man Surprised.

A Fredericksburg (Va.) paper tells a story at the expense of a Northern gentleman who was inspecting horses in a stable there with a view to purchasing. He undertook to try one of them, but as he was not familiar with either the horse or the mode of saddling and bridling him was about to forego the pleasure of a horseback ride, when one of the local beauties came to the rescue and in a moment showed the Northerner what a true Southern girl was capable of doing. Entering the stall, she removed the halter, adjusted the bridle, led the animal out of the stable, and, throwing the saddle on his back, buckled the girth and ordered the blushing Northerner to mount while she held the stirrup for him. He was stunned, but enjoyed the ride immensely, doubtless surprised that a woman so fair could be so handy.

Baby Hidden in a Carpet.

Recently while a Buffalo family was moving the mother suddenly missed the baby. The infant could be heard crying, and the mother finally conjectured that she was inside of a roll of carpet. It was true. The baby had been left in the middle of the sitting-room floor, and the men who took up the carpet tossed a breadth over her without observing her, rolled her up in it and stood the carpet up in the hall. The child when rescued was punctured here and there with rusty tacks, and her mouth was partly stuffed with carpet dust, but otherwise she was all right.

A Minister's Invention.

A Pennsylvania minister has invented an air brake that will apply to any kind of a vehicle, it is claimed. If it can be applied to travel on the road to ruin it will meet the great need for which pulpits operate.

GLEANED IN ART CIRCLES.

MR. WATTS has just painted from life a portrait of Lord Tennyson which he will give to Trinity College, Cambridge, and he will give a replica of it to the National gallery.

THE Czar has graciously authorized the use of the Government buildings at Moscow used during the exposition of 1882 for a French exposition. They consist of a large central pavilion, a garden, and eight courts and eight smaller pavilions grouped about the central building.

A PARIS dealer sold a violin this spring to Hall & Son, of London, for $10,000. It is a Stradivarius called "The Messiah," and was shown in 1873 at the South Kensington Museum, when its estimated value was $3,000. Musical instruments are beginning to rival pictures as costly objects to look at, for such pieces are rarely used.

THE Greek Government proposes to raise a monument in the form of a mausoleum to the French, Russian and English who fell fighting for Greece during the war of independence. Land for a cemetery and uncut marble for monuments have been voted in honor of the French soldiers and sailors killed at the battle of Navarino.

THE Bavarian Parliament proposes to reduce the annual appropriation of 100,000 marks for the purchase of works of art to 60,000 marks. The Clerical party is particularly hostile. But recently Prince Louis, the son of the Regent of Bavaria, made a strong effort to have the old appropriation continued and has succeeded. Prince Louis advocates the annual exhibition at Munich, and points out many gaps in the museums of the State which ought to be filled.

THE great megalithic underground building at New Grange, Ire land, shows signs of caving in. The entrance to this strange building is so low, long and filthy that very few persons have ever penetrated it. Mr. George Coffey, of Dublin, proposes to take photographs of the interior by the flash light and keep a record of its actual appearance. Those who are anxious for the preservation of prehistoric monuments in Ireland demand that steps be taken to prevent New Grange from collapse.

ACQUISITIONS of the Louvre include a "Virgin Mary" by Germain Pilon, a sculptor of the sixteenth century, which has been in the chapel at the military school of St. Cyr; a "Calvary" in oakwood containing life-size figures of Christ, Mary and St. John, by an unknown Flemish sculptor of the early sixteenth century, which has been in a church at Nivelles, and a marble "Virgin Mary" from Ecouen, which has been for half a century at Versailles in St. Louis Church. When such objects are removed the Department of the Fine Arts supplies their places with modern works of a similar subject. But in the case of "Virgin Mary" from St. Cyr the school has received in exchange a painting by Protais called "The Reserves."

ONE of the finest works by Rubens, now owned by the Belgians, is the "Four Heads of Negroes," sold for $11,000 at the dispersal of Prince Demidoff's gallery. In the last century this picture was in the private gallery at Pummerfelden, some leagues from Bamberg, where it was wrongly attributed in the catalogue of 1719 to Van Dyck. It was sold in this century to a Russian amateur for $7,000, and is now in the National Museum at Brussels. The four negroes are quarter length and in European dress. Three form a group on the right; the fourth, who looks upward as if admiring something, is by himself on the left. The middle one of the three is in a black plane of the picture; he looks out of the canvas, showing a row of brilliant teeth. They are four studies of negroes, not a composed picture, but the grouping is agreeable nevertheless. Art critics and amateurs unite in chanting the praises of this work.

OUT OF THE ORDINARY.

STANDING near the yard at Jonathan Farmer's, in Oglethorpe County, Ga., is a red oak tree which measures 27 feet in circumference two feet from the ground. It is hollow, and the recess within is sufficiently large to accommodate a half dozen men.

AN immense double watermelon attracted attention in a Georgia grocery. Double watermelons are exceedingly rare, and all who saw this, including a Southern darky, who has seen many a melon patch, declared it the first they had ever seen.

A LIVE frog was found, not long since, imbedded in the center of a fourteen-inch stick of timber, at the Omaha mine, near Grass Valley, Cal. The timber was sound, with no opening whatever in it, and the frog only came to view when a saw revealed its habitation.

THERE is a real floating island in Norway lake, Me. It has an area of one and one-eighth acres, formed of a quagmire made up of a mass of roots, weeds and fibers and a growth of small trees. It has for years been the breeding place for hens, ducks and other birds.

MR. MURRAY, of the Pittsburgh mine, near Grass Valley, split open a large log. He found a muzzle-loading shotgun that appeared to be all right, but when he tried to pull it from the hole the stock crumbled to pieces. The barrels are of fine make and the gun was evidently stolen and hidden many years ago.

WHILE two men were hunting cows near Fort Myers, Fla., their dogs treed a large black bear. They determined to secure the animal, but had no weapons except pocket knives. These they tied to long poles, and, climbing the tree after the bear, thrust their knives into its neck until they cut an artery, when it bled to death.

A PRETTY sight often seen on St. Charles avenue, New Orleans, is a little boy riding his bicycle with his black-and-tan dog standing behind him. The dog holds on by resting his front paws on his master's neck, and appears to have no fear, no matter how rapidly they travel. The Picayune says that the other day the dog grew weary of the sport before the boy; so, without any ado, he tucked his head down on the boy's shoulder and went to sleep.

A BACKWOODS SUNDAY.

A Charming Picture of Life Amid Rural Scenes.

SUNDAY in the backwoods of Tennessee, viewed by one whose feet rarely stray from the worn paths of active life, may hold nothing attractive, but to the old men and women—the youth and maiden of the soil—it is a poem that comes once a week to encourage young love with its soft sentiment and soothe old labor with its words o' promise. In the country where the streams are so pure that they look like strips of sunshine, where the trees are so ancient that one almost stands in awe of them, where the moss, so old that it is gray, and hanging from the rocks in the ravine, looks like venerable beards growing on the faces that have been hardened by years of trouble—in such a country, even the most slouching clown, walking as though stepping over clods when plowing where the ground breaks up hard, has in his untutored heart a love of poetry. He may not be able to read—may never have heard the name of a son of genius, but in the evening, when he stands on a purple "knob," watching the soul of day sink out of sight in a far-away valley, he is a poet.

When the shadow of Saturday night falls upon a backwoods community in Tennessee, a quiet joy seems to lurk in the atmosphere. The whippoorwill has sung unheeded every night during the week, but to-night his song brings a promise of rest. The tired boy sits in the door, and, taking off his shoes, strikes them against the log door-step to knock the dirt out, and the cat, that has followed the women when they went to milk the cows, comes and rubs against him. The humming-bird, looking for a late supper, buzzes among the honeysuckle blossoms, and the tree-toad cries in the locust tree. The boy goes to bed, thrilled with an expectation. He muses: "I will see somebody to-morrow."

On the morrow the woods are full of music. The great soul of day rises with a burst of glory, and the streams, bounding over the rocks or dreaming among the ferns, laugh more merrily and seem to be brighter than they were yesterday. Horses neigh near an old log church and a swelling hymn is borne away on the blossom-scented air. The plow-boy, sitting near the spring, heeds not the sacred music, but gazes intently down the shady road. He sees some one coming—sees the fluttering of a gaudy ribbon and is thrilled. A young woman comes up the road, coyly tapping an old mare with a dogwood switch, and eager lest some one else may perform the endearing office, he hastens to help the young woman to alight. He tries to appear unconcerned as he takes hold of the bridle rein, but he stumbles awkwardly as he leads the animal toward the horse-block. When he has helped her down and has tied the horse it is his blessed privilege to walk with the girl as far as the church door.

"What's Jim a-doin'?" he asks as they walk along under the embarrassing gaze of a score of men.

"Plowed yistidy; ain't doin' nothin' to-day."

"Be here to-day, I reckon," he rejoins.

"No, went to preachin' at Ebeneezer."

"What's Tom a-doin'?"

"Went to mill yistidy; ain't doin' nothin' to-day."

"Be here to-day, I reckon."

"He 'lowed he mout, but I don't know whether he will or not."

"What's Alf a doin'?"

"Cut sprouts an' deadened trees yistidy; ain't doin' nothin' to-day."

"Be here to-day, I reckon."

"Yes, 'lowed he was a comin' with Sue Prior."

"Anybody goin' home with you, Liza?"

"Not that I know of."

"Wall, if nobody else ain't spoke I'd like to go."

"We'll see about it," she answers, and then enters the church. He saunters off and sits down under a tree where a number of young men are wallowing on shawls, spread on the grass. The preacher becomes warm in his work and the plow-boy hears him exclaim: "What can a man give in exchange for his own soul?" But he is not thinking of souls, or of an existence beyond the horizon of this life; his mind is on the girl with a gaudy ribbon, and he is asking his heart if she loves him. The shadows are now shorter and hungry men cast glances at the sun, but the preacher, shouting in broken accents, appears not to have reached the first mile-stone of his text, and it is evident that he started out with the intention of going a "Sabbath day's journey." One young fellow places his straw hat over his face and tries to sleep, but some one tickles him with a spear of grass. An old man who has stood it as long as he could in the house, and who has come out and lain down, gets up, stretches himself, brushes a clinging leaf off his gray jeans trousers and declares: "A bite to eat would hit me harder than a sermon writ on a rock. Don't see why a man wants to talk all day."

HE TRIES TO APPEAR UNCONCERNED.

"Thought you was mighty fond of preachin', Uncle John," some one remarks.

"Am, but I don't want a man to go over an' over what he has already dun said. If my folks wa'n't in thar I'd mosey off home an' git suthin' to eat."

"Good book says a man don't live by bread alone, Uncle John."

"Yas, but it don't say that he lives by preachin' alone, nuther. Hol' on! they are singin' the doxology now, an' I reckon she will soon be busted."

The plowboy goes home with his divinity — Uncle John's daughter.

"THOUGHT YOU WERE MIGHTY FOND OF PREACHING?"

"Reckon Jim will be at home?" he asks, as they ride along.

"He mout be. Air you awful anxious to see him?"

"Not so powerful. Jest 'lowed I'd ask. I know who's yo' sweetheart," he says, after a pause.

"Bet you don't."

"Bet I do."

"Who is it, then, Mr. Smarty?"

"Aleck Jones."

"Who, him? Think I'd have that freckle-face thing?"

"Wall, if he ain't I know who is."

"Bet you couldn't think of his name in a hundred years."

"You mout think I can't, but I can."

"Wall, who, then, since you are so smart?"

"Morg Atcherson."

"Ho, I wouldn't speak to him if I was to meet him in the road."

"But you'd speak to some people if you was to meet them in the road, wouldn't you?"

"Yes, of course I would."

"Who would you speak to?"

"Oh, lots of folks. Did you see that bird almost hit me?" she suddenly exclaims.

"I reckon he 'lowed you was a flower."

"Oh, he didn't, no such of a thing. You ought to be ashamed of yo'se'f to make fun of me thater way."

"I wa'n't makin' fun of you. Ho, if I was ter ketch anybody makin' fun of you it wouldn't be good for him."

"What would you do?"

"I'd whale him."

"You air awful brave, ain't you?"

"Never mind whut I am; I know that if any man was to make fun of you he'd have me to whup."

A number of people have stopped at Uncle John's house. They sit in the large passageway running between the two sections of the log building, and the men, who have not heard the sermon, discuss it with the women who were compelled to hear it from halting start to excited finish. The sun is blazing out in the fields and the June-bugs are buzzing in the yard. It is indeed a day of rest for the young and old, but is it a restful time for the housewife? Does that woman, with flushed face, running from the kitchen to the dining-room and then to the spring-house for the crock jar of milk, appear to be resting? Do the young men and women that are lolling in the passage realize that they are making a slave of her? Probably not, for she assures them that it is not a bit of trouble, yet when night comes—when the company is gone—she sinks down, almost afraid to wish that Sunday might never come again, yet knowing that it is the day of her heavy bondage. Old labor has been soothed and young love has been encouraged, but her trials and anxieties have been more than doubled.

It is night and the boy sits in the door, taking off his shoes. To-morrow he must go into the hot field, but he does not think of that. His soul is full of a buoyant love—buoyant, for the girl with the gaudy ribbon has promised to be his wife.—Opie P. Read, in Arkansaw Traveler.

HE WASTED NOTHING.

An Old Fellow Who Tried to Dicker with a Dentist.

An old fellow that very much resembled the type of a countryman found in the comic pictures of the irreverent illustrated weeklies, stumbled about on the stairway leading to a dentist's office, and finally discovered the door, knocked upon it until the dentist invited him, in a tone by no means gentle, to enter without going to the trouble of knocking down the house.

"Wall, you air about the hardest man to git at I ever did see," the visitor remarked as he entered the room. "Been a-stalkin' round here for a good bit."

"You have found me, and now what can I do for you?"

"You pull teeth, I reckon."

"Yes, that is a part of my business."

"All right. I have been bothered a good deal lately with a fetch-taked snag of a thing, an' I thought that if we come to some sort of a understandin', I mout have it snatched out. I never go to expense if I can help it—economy is my motto in all things. I'm a ole liner myself—vote for the tariff an' save all I can. What air you holdin' teeth at now?"

"I don't understand you."

"What air you holdin' teeth at—what is it worth to pull 'em?"

"Fifty cents apiece."

"That is for a whole tooth, I reckon. This here one"—and he opened his mouth with an awful grin—"ain't more than half a one, you see. I reckon you will lift her out for about half price."

"No, full price. I'd rather pull a whole one than a snag."

"Ah, hah! I didn't know but I mout git up some sort of trade with you. I see down-stairs that you've got a lot of teeth fixed on a thing that looks like the ruff of a feller's mouth, an' I have hearn that folks can chaw with them as well as they can thar nat'ral teeth."

"Yes, just the same."

"Wall, now, I've got a lot of teeth at home that mout be of a good deal of service to you. You mout fix them on a ruff and sell 'em at a good figger. My wife—an' she uster have putty good-lookin' teeth, too—tuck the newralgy some time ago, and Dock Wilson 'lowed that she better have all her teeth pulled out. She done it, an' was goin' to throw the teeth away, but I told her to hold on. She hil' on an' then I said: 'Now, look here; you know the principles of this household as well as I do, an' I don't see why you want to throw these here teeth away. They tell me that thar air fellers in town that take teeth an' fix them on a thing so that folks can chaw with them, an' mebbe we can sell these teeth for a little something.' Now, to tell you the truth," the old fellow continued, "I have brought them with me—five of them an' all sound, you see'—he began to unwrap a piece of paper—'an' if you'll pull out this here tooth of mine, I'll give them to you. Ain't a crack in 'em; see? They air of the best, for before wife had the newralgy she uster crack hickory nuts with them. What do you say?"

AN' IF YOU'LL PULL OUT THIS HERE TOOTH.

At first the dentist was horrified, but after a time he said, with a smile: "No, I don't deal in second-hand goods."

"Wall, but whar do you git all your teeth?"

"Make them."

"You don't tell me that they air makin' folks' teeth now."

"Yes, that's what they are doing."

"That beats my time, cap'n. Reckon after while they will be makin' tongues. So you don't want these here puffeckly sound teeth—ruther make 'em, as it war."

"Yes, rather make them."

"All right, that part of my business is settled. Now for another drive. I ain't slept none for five nights. Jest as soon as I would lay down this thing would begin to jump like a skeered frog, an' sleep was out of the question. I rubbed my jaw with all sorts of liniment an' hil' all sorts of bad tastin' stuff in my mouth, an' now I can't afford to lose any more sleep, for I've got to dig a well an' do a whole lot of other work. I'll give you twenty-five cents to jerk this thing out. Won't take you but a minit, an' you will be better off by that amount. What do you say?"

"I say fifty cents."

"Look here, out on my place I've got a blacksmith shop an' tinker a good deal, fust and last, an' I sharpen a plow for twenty-five cents, an' it sometimes takes me more than an hour. You can sartinly afford to do something for a quarter that won't take you two minutes."

"Oh! yes, could afford it, but I won't. I won't underbid my neighbors, you know."

"Wall, then, I reckon we'll have to call this trade off. Good day."

He blundered down-stairs, and half an hour later, while the dentist was rubbing up his instruments of torture, there came another thump at the door. The "old liner" had returned. "Look here," said he, "I thought I'd talk to you a little farder about this tooth. I went around to the lot whar I had my hoss tied, thinkin' I'd go on home an' worry the thing out, but it got to hurtin' me so that I couldn't stand it. Now, tell me, what is the very best you will do?"

"Fifty cents."

"Well, we'll call it fifty cents providin' you take these here teeth for half payment."

"I don't want the teeth. Throw them out."

"Oh, no; that would be a waste, an' my motto is never to waste nothin'. Fifty cents is a good deal of money to a man that sweats between the corn rows. Never plowed none, I reckon?"

"No."

"Wall, if you had you'd know that fifty cents is a good deal. Suppose we say thirty cents?"

"You may say it if you want to, but I won't."

"Humph! you air a hanger on if ever I did see one. How would forty strike you?"

"Won't strike me at all."

"Must have fifty, I reckon?"

"That's what I said."

"This tooth is about to kill me, man."

"All right; give me fifty cents and I will snatch it out."

He studied a few moments, and then, shaking his head, replied: "No, blame if I do. I can go to the circus for fifty cents—can't stay to the concert, but I can see the monkeys an' hear the clown sing an' see the fellers jump an' see the beautiful gal ride the hoss, an' will have something to talk about till fodder-pullin' time. Well, good-day. Reckon I'll go to the show."—Opie P. Read, in Arkansaw Traveler.

GAME TO THE LAST.

A Woman Who Was Proof Against the Tyranny of Her Husband.

In a Jefferson avenue stairway, directly back of a fruit stand, a man and a woman sat on a step yesterday. He had several bananas and oranges on his knees, and a policeman who halted to mop his heated brow was to led to remark:

"Well, old man, you seem to be having a good time."

"Yum!" was the reply, as he buried his nose in another orange.

"Are you his wife?" was asked of the woman.

"Yes."

"And you don't like fruit?"

"Yes, I do."

"Then what kind of a game is he playing?"

"We are on an excursion," she explained. "He got mad and I got mad. He says I've got to eat dirt first. I've said I won't, and I won't. He thinks he'll bring me to time."

"Sass!" growled the husband as he gnawed close to the rind.

"I'll never give in!"

"More sass!"

"I don't care! I figured on this and came fixed for it?"

And she slipped off her shoe, took a Canadian quarter out of it, and beckoning to the fruit-man, she said:

"Oranges, bananas, peanuts, taffy and lemonade! We'll see who bosses this job before I get through! Got a whole dollar back of this, and if that isn't enough I'll pawn my parasol for more!"

And as the officer walked on the husband was ripping the veneering of his third banana, and the wife had bitten the broad side out of a nickel-plated orange.—Detroit Free Press.

DINING ON THE RAIL.

A Gossipy Chat About Life on Board a Dining Car.

What a White-Aproned Waiter Knows About His Business—"Spotting" a Newly-Married Couple—Their Actions Always Reveal the Secret.

A brief journey in a dining car is appreciated by almost all persons who travel.

It is, of course, taken for granted that they have the "wherewithal" to pay for the gratification of the palate. While dining, the eyes wander anon to the ever-changing scenery as the train speeds along, thus feeding the mind at the same time. One becomes conscious of the fact that he is in a veritable hotel on wheels. Waiters hurry hither and thither, the car conductor and his assistant watch with eager eyes to detect a fault in the waiters' work, and through a little window opening into the kitchen many sable faces topped off by pure white linen caps can be seen. The dining car contains subject matter for a day's study.

A Chicago News reporter recently wandered into the Rock Island passenger yard, where a great many "diners" are kept. Here they are provisioned, and made up into the through trains. Groups of colored men could be seen sitting within the cars. It did not take long to become acquainted with the dining car men, as they are a most genial class of fellows.

"Want ter know sumpin 'bout our life in de feed cah, eh?" asked a big colored cook, who wore a watch chain that hung in ten loops over the broad expanse of his shirt bosom. "Well, yoh cain't do better than ax Luther Grant a few questions. He done bin a secretary toh one ob dose trabbeling newspaper men, an' hez bin on de road foh some yeahs."

Luther Grant, the individual mentioned, was a tall mulatto, whose features express considerable refinement. He had long since ceased to gamble and "sport" as most of his companions do.

"I can tell you about our life in the kitchen, Mr. Reporter, but if you want the real romance you will have to talk to the gentlemen who brush crumbs into your lap and snatch fees before the backsheesh is out of your pocket. We have our regular runs. One crew is assigned to each diner, which goes a certain distance on one train, and then is cut out to return on another. This constitutes a trip."

People are familiar with the important-looking person with a silk skull cap, who walks through the train announcing that "dinner is now ready in the dining car. Pass through to the rear." He is not near as noticeable as the waiter. The latter is the person who learns to read human nature so well that he can tell how many postage stamps are stuck to the lining of your pocket-book. Note how tenderly he arranges the silverware and how he bluffs young married couples who desire to sit beside each other. Except in cases of emergency, the dining car officials request gentlemen to sit opposite their female companions. How many spoony couples have been forced to eat their ice-cream with two spoons because of this order. "If they don't like the order of things," laconically remarked a waiter, as he melted a section of a steel rail by directing the rays from his twenty-cent "sparkler" upon it, "let them dine upon love and lunch upon scenery. How can I tell a couple on their bridal trip? Why that is easier than playing policy. In the first place, the caller generally leads them into the car. Then he always walks first, and I tell you they do get powerfully bashful. This only goes for those who have not been used to living in big hotels. After we get 'em rested, they examine every thing on the table, especially the silverware, and the lady takes notes for her next shopping tour. I hand them a mean card. Then the fun begins. He tips me before he orders, and wiping the blushes off with his napkin asks her what she will have.

"'Oh, I ain't hungry, George,' she usually says. 'But you must eat, dearie.' Then let me have a piece of beefsteak and a cup of tea.' She, with a great display of superiority, replies that dinner is being served, and there are no such dishes on the card. Fact is, she wants him to order. He orders for two, and this is a fair sample of the order: Little Neck clams, consomme; baked red snapper, sliced tomatoes, compote of apple with rice, boiled chicken, cream sauce; string beans, spinach, green peass, cauliflower, and pineapple sorbet. The dessert course is then tackled. Gooseberry pie, strawberry ice-cream and berries, fruit, cheese and coffee.

"Of course, he eats nearly all of his order, but she feigns loss of appetite, but invariably carries away a couple of oranges in her handkerchief. All of the boys practice their sweetest moves when 'producers,' as the new couples are called, arrive."

A trade secret was next imparted, after which the waiters strolled to their rooms after their grips and patent-leather shoes. Most roads allow their waiters to carry home scraps and fragments left by the diners. This custom has led to a system of "double ordering," or getting more than the guests order, and "planting" the extras in a grip. It is the car conductors duty to check this procedure.

"Waiting is a heap better on a car than in a hotel," said one knight of the platter as the reporter left.

Self Track-Laying Plow.

A novel contrivance, which is claimed to give improved tractive power, is reported from Chicago. The machine, which is about fifty feet long and about fifteen tons in weight, runs on a track which it lays for itself, and which consists of a belt of steel plates or laths four and a half feet long, enclosing four large cog-wheels which play into the sockets of the plates and urge the machine forward. It is available for agricultural and other purposes, and the inventor declares that with it he can plow one hundred acres per day, in ground too soft for a horse to walk, at a nominal cost.

PANIC ON A STEAMER

A Crowded Excursion Boat in a Collision.

HUNDREDS OF LIVES IN PERIL

Several Persons Reported Dead and Many Were Wounded.

A Number of Passengers Jumped Overboard—The Scene on the Vessel An Awful One—The Collision Nearly Turned the Boat Around—The Captains Blame Each Other.

BALTIMORE, July 29.—The steamer Virgina, of the Bay Line, leaving here last evening for Norfolk, collided in the bay with the excursion boat Louise, badly damaging both boats.

Several of the passengers jumped overboard and many of them are reported drowned. A number of others were more or less injured in the rush and excitement and were conveyed to their homes and hospitals.

Capt. Bohannon said that his boat, the Virginia, struck the starboard quarter of the Louise about the aftergangway. The collision nearly turned the Virginia around, so great was the force. There was no great excitement aboard his boat, although when the collision occurred a man, one lady and a child climbed over. They did not return.

The captain of the Louise disclaims all responsibility for the accident, and intimates that the blame is entirely with the Bay Line steamer.

The Louise was carrying 1,450 passengers, and the scene on board was an awful one. It will not be possible to learn until this afternoon, if then, the number of missing and probably drowned. Four are known to be dead and eight are now missing.

According to the story of an eye witness, the Virginia was at fault. She came head on and, without trying to get out of the way, struck the Louise. As her bow entered the latter's side a number of her passengers sprang on board. The Virginia then pulled out and started down the bay, leaving a big hole in the Louise's side. Carpenters quickly got to work to prevent the latter's sinking, and a towboat near by came to her assistance and brought her in.

Knights of Pythias Meeting.

RONDOUT, N. Y., July 29.—The meeting of the Grand Lodge Knights of Pythias opened here this morning. Grand Chancellor Delamare and other grand officers are quartered at the Eagle Hotel. It is not likely that there will be a contest over any elective office unless it may be that of Prelate, for which Charles H. Klee and Frank Martin of New York, F. W. Sarauw of Albany, and S. F. Hull, of this city, are aspirants. Prominent features of the occasion will be a parade and a drill of the uniformed division to-morrow, followed by a banquet in the evening at the Academy of Music.

FRIGHTFUL ACCIDENT.

Ten Men Killed and Sixty Badly Injured in a Railroad Collision.

MANCHESTER, Eng., July 29.—A fearful accident happened in the new Manchester ship canal which will entail a heavy loss of life. Two workmen's trains, through some unexplained stupidity [of a switchman, met in collision.

Ten workmen were instantly killed and sixty others injured, of whom twenty, it is said, will certainly die.

Of the sixty injured, it is now believed that at least thirty are fatally hurt.

Preparing to Welcome Henry George.

LONDON, July 29.—Henry George, returning to America from his Australian tour, arrives in England August 8, and on the next day will address a meeting called in his honor in Epping Forrest. The gathering is expected to be an immense one, as nearly all the reform societies and labor organizations are taking an active part in the preparations for the event.

Plot Against Zanzibar's Monarch.

ZANZIBAR, July 29.—The Sultan's brother is said to be implicated in a conspiracy to overthrow the reigning monarch. He is believed to have powerful backers. The crisis may prove to be important for Zanzibar, for should civil war or anarchy result, an excuse would be offered for the intervention of England and Germany and the possible extinction of Zanzibar nationality.

Her Jewels Stolen at Sea.

LONDON, July 29.—It has just leaked out that Miss Eastlake, who arrived from New York with the members of the Wilson Barrett troupe last Thursday, suffered the loss on the passage of jewelry valued at £100. It is supposed that she was the victim of some professional ocean thief.

Bulgaria's Strike for Independence.

VIENNA, July 29.—Premier Stambouloff, of Bulgaria, has summoned the colonels of all regiments, and deputies of all the leading towns, to assemble at Sofia, August 3rd, when Bulgaria will be proclaimed independent, with Ferdinand as King.

No Recount for St. Paul.

ST. PAUL, July 28.—At a meeting of the Chamber of Commerce resolutions were adopted indignantly protesting against the issuance of any order for a recount of this city based on such insufficient grounds as have thus far been stated and requesting the authorities at Washington to suspend such orders pending further investigation by the census officials.

M'GONEGAL IS HELD.

The Coroner's Jury Says He Caused Annie Goodwin's Death.

NEW YORK, July 28.—After considerable legal sparring by the counsel employed by Dr. McGonegal, the accused murderer of Annie Goodwin, the case was given to the jury by Coroner Messemer.

While the jury were out the prisoners chatted pleasantly with one another.

The jury soon returned and Foreman Glass asked if the jury could find Harrison an indirect accessory. Coroner Messemer replied that as Harrison had given the girl pills he was a principal. Counsel for Harrison objected to this, and then the jury again retired. Five minutes later they returned and rendered the following verdict:

"We find that Annie Goodwin came to her death from an abortion performed by Dr. McGonegal. Mrs. Shaw and Harrison we find to be accessories before the fact. The coachman Davis we find to be an accessory after the fact. We recommend that Merritt, the undertaker, be most severely censured."

When the jury rendered its verdict there was much applause. Coroner Messemer committed Dr. McGonegal and Mrs. Shaw to the Tombs, to await the action of the grand jury, without bail. Harrison he held in $5,000 bail, and Davis, the colored coachman, in $1,500.

THE LAWRENCE DISASTER.

The Relief Fund for the Sufferers Swelling Rapidly.

LAWRENCE, Mass., July 29.—The work of repairing the damage caused by the recent cyclone has been going on rapidly except about the wholly destroyed houses, whose owners, for the most part, are too poor to rebuild. These people still seem dazed by their misfortune and don't now what to do.

The Packard school house still serves as a mammoth lodging house for the sufferers, as well as the headquarters of the infantry. The artillery was relieved at 6 o'clock last evening by Capt. Joubert's command of the 9th Regiment, with Lieut. Sand as officer of the day and Lieut. O'Gorman as officer of the guard.

To-day being circus day, there are large crowds in the city. The desolated 6th district is closely guarded by the battery assisted by Co. L infantry of Andover.

The relief fund for the sufferers is swelling rapidly. At a meeting of citizens in City Hall last night, Mayor Crawford presided and addresses were made by Hon. A. L. Stone, Maj. Geo. S. Merrill; Hon. Daniel Saunders and the local clergy. The total amount of subscriptions announced to-day as turned in is $7,607, and as much more is in the hands of the collectors.

THE PRESIDENT ACCEPTS.

He Will Visit Boston on the Day of the Grand Army Parade.

BOSTON, July 29.—President Harrison has written Governor Brackett an autograph letter, in which he says he hopes to be in Boston Tuesday, August 12, the day of the Grand Army parade, and, in reply to the Governor's inquiry, states that he will accept such hospitality on the part of the State as his brief stay and the exercises of the occasion will permit.

A refusal of a suite of rooms at the Hotel Vendome for the Presidential party has already been obtained by the State authorities.

Will Shut Down the Mill.

PITTSFIELD, Mass., July 29.—The Belair Manufacturing Co., has called a meeting of creditors for to-day. The indications are that the mill will shut down at once for an indefinite period. The assets and liabilities are unknown. The mill has been run by trustees in the interest of creditors since the failure six years ago, and Messrs Petherbridge & Purnell have conducted the business, employing about 200 hands. The mill has 90 looms and has been running on worsteds.

Children Cruelly Neglected.

NORTH ADAMS, Mass., July 29.—A family named Bingham, living over the Clarksburg line, was visited by an officer of the Anti-Cruelty Society. One child, nine months old, was found dead from neglect and another child was dying. The mother is away all day in Adams and the father is in Vermont State. There was nothing in the house to eat. The mother will probably be brought before the court to-day.

An Old Man Struck by a Train.

WILLIAMSPORT, Pa., July 26.—Daniel H. Saylor, aged 75 years, a resident of this city, was struck by a passing freight train at Minnequa Springs and instantly killed. He was the father of Dr. Jean Saylor Brown, a prominent female physician, who is staying at Minnequa.

Pugilist Kennard Sick.

BUFFALO, N. Y., July 29.—The Warren-Kennard fight for a purse, which was to have taken place to-morrow evening before the Erie County Athletic club, has been indefinitely postponed. Kennard is suffering from an ailment which prevents his taking part in a contest at present.

Missing Frank Ward Found.

NEWBURGH, N. Y., July 29.—Mrs. Frank Ward has received a telegram stating that her husband had been found by Detective Al. McDavitt at Chicago. It is not known in what condition Ward was found by the detective, but it is probable that he was demented.

A Boy Drowned While Fighting.

NEW YORK, July 29.—Alexander York, aged 13 years, while engaged in a fight with another boy on the dock at the foot of West 40th street, at 8 o'clock last evening, fell overboard and was drowned. His body was recovered.

1,000 TROOPS KILLED

The Revolution in Buenos Ayres Continues to Spread.

THE NAVY JOINS THE REVOLT.

Desperate Fighting and the Government Forces Badly Defeated.

President Colman is Receiving Reinforcements—British Gunboats Arrive to Protect English Inhabitants—Londoners Financially Interested and Anxious to Obtain News.

BUENOS AYRES, July 29.—The revolutionary movement is spreading rapidly. There has been more desperate fighting between the Government troops and revolutionists. The former were defeated, and 1,000 of them were killed or wounded.

The revolutionists have been joined by the navy. The Government House and the barracks were bombarded at noon by the artillery of the insurgents. The opposing forces have arranged a twenty-four-hour truce.

Insurgents Issue a Manifesto.

BUENOS AYRES, July 29.—A manifesto has been issued by the leaders of the revolution. In it they declare that the people, united with the 1st Artillery, the 9th and 10th Infantry, the cadets of the Military School and the Engineer Corps, have resolved to remove the anarchial and corrupt government of Juarez Celsman.

The National Guard is reorganized and placed under the command of Nicholas Menalez, who has been already appointed Commander-in-Chief.

Among the signers of the manifesto are provisional President Alem, J. J. Romero, Minister of Finance, and Senor Goyena.

Vice President Pellyriris of the old government still holds out but the triumph of the revolution is assured.

The Navy With the Insurgents.

The whole navy has declared in favor of the Provisional Government. The Patagans is bombarding the Government House and the Parana is shelling President Celman's residence. Gunboats command the railways from the North.

A later dispatch says the warships have ceased bombarding. Bulletins announce that the revolution has triumphed.

The British gunboats Beagle and Bramble have arrived to protect the English inhabitants.

President Celman's officials assert that the Civicos are trusting for a surrender, but this is disbelieved.

Forty-six cannons have arrived for Celman's forces; also 1,200 troops.

The News in Washington.

WASHINGTON, July 29.—The Department of State is in receipt of a telegram from United States Minister Pitkin, at Buenos Ayres, Argentine Republic, stating that revolution by force of arms is in progress, armies divided, and a state of siege declared.

England Feels a Financial Result.

LONDON, July 29.—A feeling of depression prevails on the Stock Exchange. Argentine and Uruguayian issues are practically unsalable and have declined from 4 to 9 per cent.

Intense interest is felt here in the political situation in Argentine. The bulk of the debt of the Argentine Government, which amounts to £57,000,000, is held in England, beside a great deal more stock in railroads which has been taken up by syndicates, financial houses and private persons this year. The financial collapse of the Celman Government would mean the ruin of thousands of people here, and extreme anxiety is felt concerning the truth or falsity of the reports of a successful revolution.

GUATEMALANS RETREATING.

Rumors of Another Defeat and Salvadorians Again Advancing.

CITY OF MEXICO, July 29 (via Galveston).—A dispatch from La Libertad says that the censorship over telegrams only refers to the Guatemalan Government, and that other dispatches are allowed a free course.

The Guatemalan authorities have cut the land lines connecting with the outside.

There is the greatest enthusiasm among the Salvadorians. Gen. Rivas, with 6,000 Indians from Cojutepeque, has reinforced Ezeta's army.

There are other rumors of the defeat of the Guatemalans, who are still retreating. The Salvadorians are advancing.

Fatal Falls in New York.

NEW YORK, July 29.—Thomas McHugh, 27 years old, fell from the roof of his residence, No. 259 East Nineteenth street, yesterday, and was killed. Danniel Brennan, 31 years old, fell out of the third-story window of 431 West Thirtieth street, and was killed. John Callahan, aged 35, fell in the hold of a ship lying in dry dock at Pier 42 East River, and died shortly afterward. John Huber, 30 years old, a driver, fell from his team and was killed. Henry Morse fell from a second-story window at 449 Ninth Avenue and fractured his skull.

Work Resumed in a Rolling Mill.

LANCASTER, Pa., July 29.—The fires have been lighted in the Robertown Rolling Mill, and the mill will resume to-morrow after several years suspension, giving employment to a number of hands.

A Swiss Village Destroyed by Fire.

GENEVA, July 29.—The Swiss village of Broc has been destroyed by fire. Four women perished during the conflagration and many persons were in-

Arranging the Atlantic Schedule.

NEWARK, N. J., July 29.—The Atlantic Committee Schedule League held a long session in this city, and completed the schedule for the balance of the season, which ends early in October. Many changes were necessary because of the transfer of Newark to the western circuit and placing Harrisburg in the eastern.

The Binghamton Strike.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., July 29.—The handworkers in the cigar factories, in which the rollers and bunch-makers recently struck, have been called out. The strikers paraded 1,000 strong. The situation is unchanged.

Two Baltimore Men Drowned.

BALTIMORE, Md., July 29.—John S. Tyson, a well known lawyer of this city, was drowned while fishing near Magnolia, and Wm. H. Mumford was drowned by the capsizing of a sail boat.

WASHINGTON TOPICS

Action of Last Night's Senatorial Caucus.

HOUR OF ASSEMBLING CHANGED.

To Meet Earlier Hereafter and Push the Tariff Bill to a Vote.

The Eight-Hour Bill for Postoffices to be Abandoned—Pennsylvania Census Figures Far from Complete—A Chance for the Pure Food Bill—Moving for Better Police Protection.

WASHINGTON, July 29.—At the adjournment of the caucus of Republican Senators last night, Senator Sherman in giving out an official statement of results of the caucus, said the only action of the caucus was an agreement to have the Senate meet at 10 o'clock beginning to-morrow and to push the Tariff bill to a vote.

According to all reports the Election bill, as prepared by the Committee on Privileges and Elections, was discussed only incidentally. Messrs. Hoar and Spooner, it is said, spoke of the necessity of taking action on that subject, but nothing was done.

Upon the subject of the proposed rule to limit debate, the general expression of opinion is said to have been that as yet the Democrats have manifested no purpose to filibuster, and the necessity for the enforcement of such a rule has not yet arisen.

POSTAL MATTERS.

The Bill to Put Eight Hours in Operation to be Abandoned.

WASHINGTON, July 29.—At the meeting of the Senate Committee on Postoffices and Post Roads the Postal Telegraph bill prepared at the Postoffice Department was again considered. The proviso as to the Eleventh Section was stricken out, and thus amended the bill will be probably reported to the Senate to-day.

The bill to put the eight-hour day in operation in postoffices of the first and second class and to give the clerks 15 days' annual leave has been referred to Senator McMillan. It is understood that he will report to the next meeting of the committee under instructions a bill providing that the 15 days' leave of absence be granted. The eight-hour provision will be abandoned.

Better Police Protection Demanded.

WASHINGTON, July 29.—The citizens of this city have made a demand for better police protection. It appears that there are but twenty policemen to patrol the outside parks and hundreds of suburban places, while highway robbery has become common in the inside parks and many of the most populous streets, owing to the deficiency in the number of policemen. Last week two ladies, one upwards of thirty years of age, were assaulted by negroes on prominent streets in midday and made to hand over their valuables.

A Chance for Women.

WASHINGTON, July 29.—A plan for a section in the World's Fair at Chicago to be governed by the Women's League will be immediately formulated and presented to the commissioners. President Palmer will likely call the commissioners together for definite organization and work as early as September 30. He is at White Sulphur Springs to-day and goes thence to Chicago.

Against Adulteration of Food.

WASHINGTON, July 29.—It is probable that Senator Paddock's Pure Food bill, placing all adulterated articles food on the same footing, will be substituted for the bill reported from the House Committee on Agriculture. It prohibits the adulteration of any kind of food so as to be injurious to health and compels all food articles to be sold for just what they are represented.

Com. McCann, Acting Rear Admiral.

WASHINGTON, July 29.—Commodore Wm. P. McCann has been appointed an acting Rear Admiral, and has been ordered to hoist his flag on board the U. S. Ship Pensacola, on August 4th. It is said at the department this morning that the order has no significance or bearing upon the reported assignment of the Pensacola to convey Ericsson's remains to Sweden.

The Philadelphia Census.

WASHINGTON, July 29.—There is now no possibility that the official figures of the census of Philadelphia will be ready to be given out under two weeks. The work of the enumerators for Pennsylvania is far from completed as yet, as the census official reports that there are "a large number of districts yet to hear from."

Will Fight the Brick Boycotts.

NEW YORK, July 29.—The New York and New Jersey Association of Brick Manufacturers met at the Astor House in secret session, and all information was denied the press. The meeting was called to devise some means to offset the boycott of the building trades at Verplanks, N. Y. A committee of seven, with F. G. Smith, of Haverstraw, as chairman, was appointed to conduct the war against the boycott.

A Bread Famine Averted.

CHICAGO, July 29.—The 2,000 striking bakers returned to work after being out 24 hours, their employers conceding all their demands. Bread was scarce this morning, but a famine was avoided.

A Fresh Air Fund Child Drowned.

ST. ALBANS, Vt., July 29.—Henry Straker, one of the Fresh Air Fund children from New York, was drowned in a mill pond near this place.

ARMENIANS AROUSED

Several Persons Killed During an Encounter With Turkish Troops.

CONSTANTINOPLE, July 29.—Excitement continues here over the Armenian outbreak against the Patriarch. It is claimed that the trouble was brought about by Russian emissaries.

An immense gathering of Armenians was called to protest against the slaughter of their countrymen, and the weak action, as it is considered of the Armenian Patriarch, developed into a dangerous mob, who proceeded with loud cries of anger toward the residence of the Patriarch.

That ecclesiastic attempted to stay the violence of the populace but entirely forgetting their old respect for the venerable head of the Armenian church the mob might have treated him with fatal severity, had he not sought safety in flight.

They then paraded through the streets, attacking the houses of the magistrates and others who are considered unfriendly to the Armenians.

The Turkish troops were ordered out to stay the progress of the mob. The troops used their fire-arms freely, but were unable to make much headway against the enraged Armenians, and a number of both the soldiers and rioters were killed.

The mob is believed to have been acting under Russian instigation with a view of causing an outbreak that might be too great for the Porte to deal with and thereby justifying the interference of Russia, which country, it is said, has a large body of troops ready to advance into the Asiatic dominion of Turkey while the Russian Black Sea fleet is prepared to make a demonstration on Constantinople.

A MINING TOWN BURNED.

Over 1,500 People Made Homeless by the Wallace, Idaho, Fires.

SPOKANE FALLS, July 29.—A dispatch from Wallace, Idaho, says that 1,500 people are homeless on account of the destructive fire there.

The fire started in a saloon. The high wind carried the flames to the adjoining frame buildings. The water facilities were good, but the firemen could not check the progress of the flames.

The following business houses were burned: Mason, Marks & Co., the Post Office building, the Heller House, White & Bender, general store of McElroy & Vedder, McNab & Rivers, Telephone Exchange, Joseph Carlson, J. C. McCurdy, Carter House, Club Theater, with a score of saloons and restaurants.

Wallace is the leading mining town of the Cœur d'Alene district and will undoubtedly be rebuilt.

Four Men Fall Forty Feet.

NEW YORK, July 29.—By the breaking of a scaffolding at the new extension of the Museum of National History four persons fell 40 feet and were severely injured. The following are the names: Charles O'Connor, aged 35, contusion of the ribs and sprained ankle; Edwin Brady, 32 years old, dislocation of ankle; Patrick Connor, 45 years old, contusion of hip, and Frank Ford, 32 years old, laceration of wrist and side. The first two were taken to the Presbyterian Hospital.

A New Jersey Girl's Strange Absence.

TRENTON, N. J., July 29.—The village of Pennington is excited over the disappearance of Miss Lizzie Lewis, a school teacher, who left her boarding house seventeen days ago to visit a friend in a village four miles away. She was last seen on a train going toward New York. The day she disappeared she visited her grandmother and told her she was going to take a position in a hotel on Long Island. The lady's grandmother has forgotten the name of the hotel.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

The Silica Works at Chalk Pond, Me., were destroyed by fire.

Census Supervisor Huse gives the population of New Hampshire as 377,000, a gain of over 30,000.

Miss Lizzie Long, of Mount Morris N. Y., after sleeping 15 days, died yesterday. She was 26 years old.

Westfield, Mass., cigar manufacturers have advanced the piece rate $1 on a thousand for hand-made and 50 cents on form-made cigars, and thus averted a strike.

Weather Indications.

WASHINGTON, July 29.—For New England and Eastern New York: Showers; southerly winds; stationary temperature.

For Western New York and Western Pennsylvania: Fair weather; southerly winds; stationary temperature in Western New York; warmer in Western Pennsylvania.

For Eastern Pennsylvania and New Jersey: Showers, followed by fair weather; southerly winds; warmer.

BY THE WAY.

—There is reason to believe that there will be more rabbits in Northern New Jersey this Fall than ever before.

—The Unions of Grant avenue will play the Arlingtons a game of base ball, at nine o'clock of to-morrow morning on the latter's grounds.

—Beware of agents who canvass for magazines and papers, and want to collect money in advance. If you wish to subscribe write to the publishers.

—Come to think the subject over the fact is presented that we do not have the succession of hot days that we did years ago. The Summer of 1876 was the last one in which week succeeded week in making scores up in the 90's.

—The weather reports show that in the Middle Atlantic States from Washington north to Rochester and Albany, and in portions of New England, Sunday and Monday morning of last week, were the coldest on record for the month of July.

—The crickets are alleged to be an infallible weather guide, and that their appearance indicates that frost will follow them in six weeks. The chirp of th cricket has already been heard in the land. Therefore lookout for frost about September first.

—It is decided that the plush-covered and leather-bound photograph album must go. It will be laid aside with regret. Boxes are now considered the proper receptacle, and they may be made as handsome as it is possible to make them, with paints and precious metals.

—Following upon the discovery that a bunch of clover hung up in a sitting room or a bedroom will clear it of flies, is the invention that gets rid of the unpleasant smell in a waterproof cloak by wrapping the garment in fresh hay. Both these remedies are in season at this time.

—An exchange truthfully remarks: Every column in a newspaper contains from twelve to twenty thousand distinct pieces of metal, displacement of any one of which causes a blunder or typographical error. And yet some people lay claim to phenominally brilliant minds if they can discover an error in a newspaper.

—The Lehigh Valley Railroad has just put on a $15,000,000 mortgage to the Girard Life Insurance Annuity Company, of Philadelphia, to secure the payment of 15,000 bonds at $1,000 each, and the money thus raised will be used in improving the Lehigh Valley system. The bonds bear 4½ per cent. interest, and will mature in 1940.

—A Bucks county newspaper remarks as follows: The new wheat is said to be good and makes excellent flour. A writer in a local paper thinks the reason that so many wheat heads are light is that the grains have been eaten out by English sparrows when in a soft or milky state. In England the sparrow is a great injury to the wheat crop.

—An exchange says that the best water in which to bathe night and morning is "sodative" water. Put in a quart bottle an ounce of ammonia, an ounce of camphor, a cup of sea salt, and water enough to fill up. Let it stand for a day. Then shake it well and sponge yourself thoroughly from head to foot. Two surprises awaits you. First you will be amazed at the amount of dirt removed, and second, you will be delighted at the refreshment you will receive."

Stricken Down in the Street.

As Os. Elliott, son of Richard Elliott, who lives at the corner of Clinton and Sherman avenues, was passing along North avenue about one o'clock this afternoon, he suddenly threw up his arms, swung around with his face towards the opposite side of the street, and fell backward unconscious against the bill board next to Roberts' stables.

He was picked up, carried into the stables and laid on a cot. He groaned continually, and clutched at his left side with both hands. Dr. Fritts arrived just as the unfortunate man recovered consciousness, and said the attack was neuralgia of the heart. Elliott told the doctor that he had had an attack about two hours before.

Ayer's Cathartic Pills are recommended by the best physicians, because they are free from calomel and other injurious drugs, being composed of purely vegetable ingredients. While thorough in their action, they stimulate and strengthen the bowels and secretory organs.

THEIR CLUB HOUSE RUINED.

The Plainfield Crescent League Burned Out of House and Home, but They'll Meet To-night and Have New Rooms To-morrow.

A bit of a lighted cigarette thrown by a pin-boy in the waste paper basket near the office desk in the Plainfield Crescent League club house, last evening, or the end of a member's imported cigar, smouldered until it burst into flames that spread throughout the entire lower story of the building, and the bowling alleys were a mass of fire from floor to ceiling when the casualty was discovered about three o'clock this morning.

It is all a total loss. Even the brick walls left standing must come down before the owner can build again. The interior is a sight. $900 worth of new billiard tables in the second story are ruined; the piano in the parlors above is warped and toneless, and the club's furniture throughout the house is scorched and half consumed. The suits of the ball team, and the bats, however, are safe in the buildings on the grounds, and Saturday's game will be played and won as usual. President Reed's fifty-dollar rod was rescued by Asst. Martin, and some miscreants who got inside during the morning's excitement have the billiard balls safe somewhere. The League's loss above their insurance will be not less than $1,000, but in spite of that the Trustees will meet this evening at the office of their President, Dr. J. T. Fritts, at 7:30 o'clock, and the members will meet by order of President Charles A. Reed at the Y. M. C. A., rooms at 8:30 this evening, and plan for a new club house to rise at once handsomer, more convenient and better furnished than the other.

The building belongs to Mrs. Elizabeth Ulrich, and is covered by $4,600 insurance. The League had $1,700 insurance which would about replace the bowling alleys and billiard tables. The furniture and the hundreds of dollars spent on the refitting of the interior, is a total loss.

Prof. Reilley, the orchestra leader, passed the club house about two o'clock this morning, on the way to his home on East Second street. He says he smelled smoke as he passed, but there were no signs of fire and it was raining heavily at the time, so he made no search. Who first discovered where the fire was is not definitely settled. The alarm bell was rung some time after three o'clock. Chief Doane and Assistant Martin were first on the scene. They found the interior a mass of fire, and flames were bursting forth from a side window towards Charles Bock's restaurant.

The Chief and his assistant entered the building first to see if it was safe for their men. They found that the stairs and flooring were still strong. Messrs John Murray and John Yose then brought the pipe in and flooded the building. It was one of the best handled fires of this or any other city. The building was a tinder box and burned like a shaving. On one side was the City Hotel and on the other Bock's building, yet not only was the fire kept from spreading but it was put out right where it was although there was lots of food for it.

No. 1 Steamer had two streams on the flames, from the Second street well, but No. 2 had hard luck. She dropped her suction in the Front street well that is supplied from the French mill race. But repairs were being made at the mills and the water had all been run out without notification to the department. Consequently a delay of twenty minutes resulted that might have caused the loss of thousands of dollars of property. Electrician McClurg of the Plainfield Electric Light company, was early at the fire and cut the wires where they entered the building so that the firemen might fear no danger. Electricity cannot be blamed for the fire, as there were no wires whatever where it started.

Janitor Demeza left the building safe and fastened at about ten minutes to 12 o'clock. Two of the Club's members who had been in the billiard room, went with him. One of them left his bicycle in the building and went back for it a few minutes afterwards. None of them noticed any signs of smoke or fire then.

The Original Odd Ladies Have an Event.

An interesting affair occurred in the rooms of Mizpah Lodge, No. 1, of the United Order of Odd Ladies, when the following recently elected officers of the Lodge were installed by visiting dignitaries, last evening:

N. L.—Mrs. Geo. Demarest.
V. L.—Mrs. H. C. Drake.
Chaplain—Mrs. Anesta Corwin.
R. C.—Mrs. Cox.
L. R.—Mrs. Locksley.
F. S.—Mrs. Wm. C. Smith.
Treasurer—Mrs. W. Brokaw.
A. N.—Mrs. Kauman.
J. N.—Mrs. Proesher.
Conductor—Mrs. Schuck.
Guard—Mrs. Reick.

The installing officers were: R. N. L. G., Mrs. Boynton of Hyde Park, Mass.; R. N. V. L. G., Mrs. Maxwell of Boston; R. N. Conductor, Mrs. Merrill of Charleston, Mass.

Following the installation exercises came a musical and literary entertainment in which Mrs. H. J. Buckley, Miss Tina Smith, Mrs. Carney and W. C. Smith took part.

A collation was served at the close of the evening.

—The colored hall boys at The Netherwood were discharged yesterday, and five white ones substituted.

THE CASE OF CAREY VS. THE PRESS.

He Swears That the Publication of Mrs. Fayhe's Story "Has Injured and Does Injure" Him.

As stated in these columns yesterday, a complaint had been made against the publishers and editor of THE PRESS, for alleged libel against one T. J. Carey, a furniture dealer, on West Front street. There were no arrests made. The "accused" hearing of such farcical proceeding, went to the Justice's office and waived an examination. The "complaint" was against the story told by Mrs. Fayhe and published in THE PRESS of last Friday. Carey swears:

That in said article or publication deponent is charged with having purchased of one Thomas Fayhe a quantity of second hand furniture for much less than its value while the said Fayhe was in a state of intoxication; that the wife of the said Fayhe begged of deponent not to make the purchase and destroy her home, but that deponent persisted in doing so notwithstanding and refused to return the goods for less than one hundred dollars, although he had paid only thirty dollars therefore. That the statements are made and published maliciously for the purpose of injuring deponent in his reputation and business, and said publication has injured and does injure said deponent.

Attached to the complaint was a copy of the article objected to, as published in Friday's PRESS closing with this paragraph:

Oftentimes things occur to arouse a community and to establish the belief that there is such a thing as legal injustice. Whether or not this incident of Carey's career is a righteous and honorable thing is for the public to determine. THE PRESS has merely given above the woman's story, and its columns are open to Mr. Carey for a denial, explanation or any defence he may wish to make to set himself right for once before the people.

But it seems that Mr. Carey has taken just the course that would have been adopted by a man who could not set himself right before the people. No lawyer in Plainfield is so ignorant of the law, or so ready for a fee, that their services could be secured to draw a complaint without foundation. It was done in Elizabeth, and taken by Carey to Justice V. W. Nash who was requested to issue warrants of arrest in accordance.

The Justice told Carey that it was his (Nash's) duty to inform him before taking the papers, that the woman, Mrs. Fayhe, who told the PRESS reporter that Carey bought of her drunken husband all the furniture in her house for $30 and carted it away, had also told the same story to him (Nash) in the presence of Constable Moffett. The Justice said he had sent her to City Judge Codington.

Carey replied that he "did not care a ——!" He'd "have the ——————s arrested." Justice Nash then took the complaint; and during the afternoon without any arrests being made, the publisher and editor of THE PRESS appeared before the Justice and gave bonds in the sum of $200 to appear if the Grand Jury should say so.

Not only did Mrs. Fayhe tell the story told in THE PRESS to its reporter, but she told it in the presence of other witnesses. She also told it to Justice Nash and to Constable Moffett in her search for redress. They sent her to City Judge Codington, and she told him. Yesterday morning she told another officer of the city—in the presence of another witness—that she would go on the stand and swear to it.

And besides all this (and more, from her) Thomas Fayhe, the husband who sold the household goods, owned up to it all in THE PRESS office after the story was published. He said in the presence of the editor, a reporter and three prominent business men of this city, that he did sell his household furniture for the price stated; that he was drunk and proposed to stay drunk; that it was nobody's business, as the furniture was his; and that his wife had once sold him out for $17 and he had beat her $13. He said the furniture cost him over $200; and he agreed to all that was in the article except what his wife had said she told Carey. Tom says she said, "don't take the furniture away. If you do I'll tell Mr. Grant." And he says that Carey answered, "Grant's got nothing to do with this."

Some may think by the statement of all this, THE PRESS is giving away its defence. We need no defence. THE PRESS never publishes anything but legitimate news, and nothing from maliciousness. If the case of Carey vs. THE PRESS was intended to be taken to Court, and should by some "arrangement" get there, it would be held by judge and jury that the story published if true—and all concerned would have to confess its truth under oath—was within a newspaper's legitimate province, and probably its duty to the people to publish.

But Were There An Lights Burning Then?

William McIntosh, a young man of 19 years and undoubted veracity, believes he is the latest victim of a live electric wire. He says his horse got the shock from the current, while he suffered from the broken wire twisting aro d the wheel of his wagon, catching him in the side as he was thrown out and tearing his clothes open.

Young McIntosh drives the Holly Grove farm milk wagon. About four o'clock this morning at the corner of Ninth street and Broadway, his horse stepped over a fallen electric light pole, stopped short as if shot, and then jumped in the air and backwards so suddenly as to upset the wagon with the result to Mr. McIntosh as stated above. The wagon is a wreck.

"My sore ran in the night, and my soul refused to be comforted." "Poor fellow! of course it did. Pity, he couldn't get Salvation Oil. Only 25 cents."

Farley May Rest While Sees Bride.

Three Plainfield hackmen appeared in Court before City Judge Codington this morning to answer to charges preferred by Policeman Patrick Lynch. Peter Peterson and Patrick Callahan were tried on the charges of violating the ordinance forbidding hackmen to approach, with their teams, within thirty feet of the railroad passenger station, for the purpose of soliciting custom. Peterson was discharged. Callahan was adjudged guilty and fined two dollars. James Farley, the third troubled soul, was made happy by having his case adjourned till next September, when Corporation Counsel Marsh will return from Europe.

"Runs" for the Bi's.

There is a moonlight club run of the Plainfield cyclers, called for this evening. They will take train leaving Plainfield at 7:03 o'clock to Elizabeth. Route—over new county road to Rahway, distance 7 miles each way; roads excellent.

There will also be a run to New Brunswick on Thursday, July 31, (full moon). Start from club house at 8 P. M.

By order of
F. L. C. MARTIN,
Captain.

They Have "Ice" Cream in Hunterdon County.

Local Editor Bunkle of the Flemington paper says: "We take delight in helping our lady readers in all ways—except buying ice cream for them—and therefore we will tell them that a few cloves on the pantry shelf will drive off the little red ants that are often so annoying."

PERSONAL PARTICULARS.

MR. GLADSTONE, despite his vast wealth, is almost penurious in personal matters. He wears his clothes until they are threadbare, shiny and shabby.

MR. SPURGEON inherited a large sum of money recently from an admirer in an English town, but distributed the entire amount among the testator's poor relations.

THE Pope has authorized the drawing for his own sarcophagus for the Church of St. Giovanni, to be erected three years after his death. It will be of Italian porphyry and cost $25,000.

MRS. RIDER HAGGARD at the last "drawing-room" attracted much attention by her beautiful dress of gray and white satin, trimmed with butterflies of gold, a huge butterfly forming the front of the bodice. Her petticoat was gold brocade.

THE beautiful Duchess of Marlborough wears three gold bracelets from which three gold keys hang pendant. One opens the lock of her Grace's jewel box, the other belongs to her writing folio and the third to a small sachel, brass-bound, in which she keeps her loose money.

MR. PARNELL usually wears a loosely fitting cutaway coat. But on state occasions he always dresses in a frock coat, and, like Mr. Gladstone's, it is a garment so well worn that it is often disagreeably shiny. It was observable, however, that after winning his case for damages against the Times he appeared in a magnificent new suit.

PRINCE BISMARCK says: "I am only allowed to drink thrice a day—a quartet an hour after each meal, and each time not more than half a bottle of red sparkling Moselle of a very light and dry character. Burgundy and beer, both of which I am extremely fond of, are strictly forbidden to me; so are all the strong Rhenish and Spanish wines, and even claret."

MRS. HERMAN OELRICHS received as a wedding gift from King Kalakaua a yellow wreath which was greatly admired. It was made of the feathers of the golden-hued O-o, a bird highly prized in Hawaii. There are but two of these bright feathers plucked from each bird. The birds are taken only in a snare, a stringent law having been passed against shooting them.

THE late John Brougham, wit, humorist and comedian, was the owner of a gray African parrot of many lingual accomplishments. The bird appeared to be a natural cynic, and, although he could talk fluently on occasion, he usually uttered his dark sayings in laconics. When a caller had engaged the genial Brougham in conversation for a considerable time the bird would rouse from silence, gloomily remarking: "Too much chin.' This saturnine though slangy utterance was repeated at long intervals, until the embarrassed visitor departed in the condition popularly described as "all broke up."

Sick Headache

IS a complaint from which many suffer and few are entirely free. Its cause is indigestion and a sluggish liver, the cure for which is readily found in the use of Ayer's Pills.

"I have found that for sick headache, caused by a disordered condition of the stomach, Ayer's Pills are the most reliable remedy."—Samuel C. Bradburn, Worthington, Mass.

"After the use of Ayer's Pills for many years, in my practice and family, I am justified in saying that they are an excellent cathartic and liver medicine sustaining all the claims made for them."—W. A. Westfall, M. D., V. P. Augin & N. W. Railway Co., Burnet, Texas.

"Ayer's Pills are the best medicine known to me for regulating the bowels, and for all diseases caused by a disordered stomach and liver. I suffered for over three years from headache, indigestion, and constipation. I had no appetite and was weak and nervous most of the time. By using three boxes of Ayer's Pills, and at the same time dieting myself, I was completely cured."—Philip Lockwood, Topeka, Kansas.

"I was troubled for years with indigestion, constipation, and headache. A few boxes of Ayer's Pills, used in small daily doses, restored me to health. They are prompt and effective."—W. H. Strout, Meadville, Pa.

POLICEMAN LYNCH BREAKS OUT AGAIN.

He Threatens to Knock Off a Lawyer's Head, and Almost Grinds Things to Pieces With His Fists.

The spectacle of a big policeman thrashing his arms through the air in the face of a big lawyer is one not often witnessed in the Courts where justice is administered, and especially in the Courts of peaceful, happy and prosperous communities. Today, however, Plainfield, the most peaceful, happy and prosperous community of all, suffered just such adisagreeable exhibition, and the witnesses to the affair might easily have imagined themselves gazing at a most realistic Western border drama, with a genuine Western desperado thrown in.

The excitement occurred during the trial of two hackmen on a petty charge. Policeman Patrick Lynch was on the witness-stand as complainant, and was under cross-examination by Assemblyman Ulrich, counsel for the defense. The lawyer badgered Mr. Lynch considerably, and the policeman made an insulting remark which Judge Ulrich felt as an attack on his family honor. He therefore upbraided Sergeant Lynch severely, till the policeman, wild with passion, roared all sorts of things at the top of his voice, thumped the table in front of him till it shivered and toppled almost over, and created a bedlam in the Court room Corporation Counsel Craig A. Marsh, who was present in the interests of the city, sought to quiet Mr. Lynch, and said calmly, "I'll take care of you, Patrick."

"I'll take care of myself!" shouted the infuriated officer, and before Policeman McCue, who sprang forward, could interfere, he had thrown off his coat, given the table three or four extra thumps and thwacks, regardless of injury to his hands, and stood confronting Judge Ulrich, foaming angry thoughts through his mouth, and brandishing his fists before the unflinching lawyer's face.

"I'll make things hot for you for this!" and "By ——, I'll knock your —— —— head off!" and orders to "shut up!" and objectionable language of various other kinds, emanated from the frenzied Sergeant's lips, despite the frequent commands of the Court and Corporation Counsel for him to keep quiet.

Judge Codington had all the while been vainly calling for order, but at this critical juncture he interposed decisive authority and restored proceedings to their normal course.

Counsellor Marsh rebuked Sergeant Lynch for his language, but also censured opposing counsel for stirring up the policeman's wrath. Both lawyer and policeman, he said, had been making severe charges against each other; both were men deserving of respect; and each owed the other an apology. Mr. Marsh further said that he feared that he himself might have felt prompted to respond with blows to some of the remarks made by Judge Ulrich.

The first real insult, however, was unquestionably, to the minds of those present, that thrown out by the policeman, and Judge Ulrich felt called on to defend himself.

Mother City, Beware!

South Plainfield, the booming suburb of this city, and situated on one of the finest railroad lines this country affords; with pure water, fresh and invigorating air, and within 30 minutes ride of New York city; has during the past few days taken a step forward to rival its mother city in handsome homes.

A. I. Laing, one of its most enterprising citizens, has purchased a fine lot on Lehigh avenue, on which in a few days there shall be seen rising in frame work a handsome residence, the plans of which are of the most modern architecture. The citizens of the sister city, Perth Amboy, are also among the many to see the need of locating on higher land. Among those from there who have purchased lots and intend building in South Plainfield at once, are: Samuel Meredith and William Flynn.

P. J. McDonough, of the high hills of Pennsylvania, has also decided to enjoy this invigorating clime, and has purchased lots on which he will soon build two handsome houses. Charles Brantingham expects to have completed speedily, a handsome cottage.

Excursion to Chautauqua.

A very cheap excursion to Chautauqua, in which many Plainfielders will join, will be afforded by the Brooklyn Chautauqua Assembly from New York on Monday next, at 3:30 P. M., over the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad. The return ticket, $10, good for 30 days, includes supper on outward journey at the famed Delaware Water Gap, where the train will wait 90 minutes for enjoyment of the beautiful scenery. Passengers will be taken up at Manunka Chunk (junction for Philadelphia), Scranton, Binghamton, Owego, Elmira, and Buffalo, to enable persons in the vicinity of those towns to have a cheap excursion to the home Assembly, at the grounds of which, train will arrive about 8 A. M. This is over a railroad line which has never before afforded an excursion rate to Chautauqua, and it is hoped that many will avail themselves of this opportunity. For circulars and tickets apply to Miss C. A. Teal, 214 Halsey street, Brooklyn, and Mr. E. P. Brook, 69 William street, New York, Secretary and Chairman of the Excursion Committee.

They Have Woke Up the Wrong Man.

Papers all over the State are saying that Orville T. Waring, of the Standard Oil Company, ex-Councilman of this city, still checks up the heads of his horses, notwithstanding the orders of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. He has given orders to his coachman to submit to arrest if the Society's agents persist. Mr. Waring is reported to have said: "The Society is overstepping its prerogatives in attempting to interfere with the reining up of my horses. I am anxious to have the questions involved submitted to a proper tribunal, and a test case made, as I am quite sure I shall be sustained."

Emulating Their Namesakes.

The Young Crescents, following in the footsteps of the Crescent League, are scoring victory after victory in this season's base ball contests. Saturday they had arranged to play a game against the Unions and one against a picked nine. The Unions didn't appear on the grounds at all, and the umpire gave the Young Crescents the game by the score of 9 to 0. The picked nine was defeated in seven innings by the score of 19 to 2. The Young Crescents batted four pitchers out of the box. The Sutphen battery for the Young Crescents did excellent work.

Whiskers' First Glimpse of Civilization.

A party of Plainfield surveyors had just halted on a country road this morning when a man with a thick stubble of beard on his face approached, paused before them, placed his arms akimbo, threw back his head, and waited expectantly. For a moment all were speechless. A veteran civil engineer finally found his tongue and asked what was wanted. "Shave!" was the laconic response. The man from back of the mountains had mistaken the surveyor's staff, striped alternately red and white, for the sign of an itinerant barber shop.

Look Out for These $2.

The counterfeit two dollar silver certificates have made their appearance in Plainfield. They are from the second series and differ from the genuine bills in that they are slightly shorter and not quite as wide. The paper is also of a poorer quality, and lacks the silk thread. The red ink used in the seal is of a darker color than that used in the genuine notes, and is almost a brick red. Persons used to handling money can detect them without much trouble, and it will pay others to note their two dollar bills carefully.

How His Honor Keeps Fresh.

One of Plainfield's earliest risers, these pleasant, cool Summer mornings, is W. R. Codington, City Judge, who may be seen at almost any week-day sunrise spinning along over the city driveways and country roads astride one of the most graceful of bicycles. When he returns to his arduous legal and judicial duties he is so fresh, and effervescent and chipper that everyone in his presence becomes infected with the bloom of youth.

"I was troubled with Catarrh for over two years. I tried various remedies, and was treated by a number of physicians, but received no benefit and I began to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla. A few bottles of this medicine cured me."—Jesse M. Boggs, Holman Mills, N. C.

THE FIRST WEDDING.

An Event That Occurred on the 1st of June in the Year 1.

What a morning that was of the world's first wedding! says Rev. Dr. Talmage, in the Ladies' Home Journal. Sky without a cloud. Atmosphere without a chill. Foliage without a crumpled leaf. Meadows without a thorn. It shall be in church — the great temple of a world, sky-domed, mountain-pillared, sapphire-roofed. The sparkling waters of the Gihon and the Hiddekel will make the fount of the temple. Larks, robins and goldfinches will chant the wedding march. Violet, lily and rose burning incense in the morning sun. Luxuriant vines sweeping their long trails through the forest aisle—upholstery of a spring morning. Wild beasts standing outside the circle looking on, like family servants from the back door gazing upon the nuptials; the eagle, king of birds; the locust, king of insects; the lion, king of beasts, waiting. Carpet of grass like emerald for the human pair to walk on. Hum of excitement, as there always is before a ceremony. Grass blades and leaves whispering and the birds a-chatter, each one to his mate. Hush, all the clouds. Hush, all the birds. Hush, the waters, for the King of the human race advances, and his bride. Perfect man, leading to the altar a perfect woman. God, her father, gives away the bride and angels are the witnesses, and tears of morning dew stand in the blue eyes of the violets. And Adam takes the round hand that has never been worn with work or stung with pain into his own stout grasp and says: "This is now bone of my bone and flesh of my flesh." Tumults of joy break forth and all the trees of the wood clap their hands, and all the galleries of the forest sound with carol and chirp and chant, and the circle of Edenic happiness is complete, for while every quail hath answering quail, and every fish answering fish, and every fowl answering fowl, and every beast of the forest a fit companion, at last man, the immortal, has for mate woman, the immortal.

MARRIED—Wednesday, the 1st day of June, in the year 1, Adam, the first man, to Eve, the first woman, High Heaven officiating.

A STINGING REBUKE.

Discourtesy of a Young Woman to an Old Lady and Its Aftermath.

It was on a street-car bound up town at about the time when the men and women who work in the great down town hive of business for the better part of the day are hurrying home. Every seat was occupied when the car stopped and two women boarded it. The first was an elderly woman, somewhat feeble. The second was younger, sturdy and aggressive-looking.

A good-looking man of middle age arose from his seat, and, touching his hat, asked the elderly lady to be seated. Before she could sit down, however, the younger woman pushed her aside and sat down herself. There was no one in the car who did not know that the man who had given up his seat intended it for the older woman, and the action of the younger one astonished everybody for a moment. Then half a dozen seats were vacated and the elderly woman took one.

The man who had first given up his seat raised his hat to the woman who had taken the place not intended for her, and said in a voice that could be heard throughout the car: "Madam, I believe you to be among that class of women who are always complaining of man's lack of courtesy toward women. You will pardon me if I say that you are also one of that class of women who tempt men to be discourteous." Then he calmly proceeded to read his evening paper.

An audible snicker ran through the car, and one woman whispered to another: "Served her right." The woman flushed and looked straight before her, paying no attention. She stood the looks of the other passengers for fully half a dozen blocks. Then she signaled the conductor, and looking neither to the right nor to the left swept out of the car. A New York Mail and Express man who had curiosity enough to also leave the car at the same place and watch her saw her board the next up town car that came along.

The rebuke had had its effect.

HOW GEORGE RAN AWAY.

He Wanted to Do as He Pleased, But the Scheme Didn't Work.

I am afraid George was naughty, for all the time he kept thinking how nice it would be to do just as he pleased, says a writer in Nursery. Finally he said:

"Mamma, I think I'll run away."

"I do not understand you, dear," she answered.

"I don't like to be bothered," he said, "and I want to be like Whittington."

"Very well, you may go if you are not happy in your home," replied the mother. "I will help you get ready. You need not run away." Then she tied some of his clothes in a handkerchief, and put the bundle on a stick over his shoulder, like the picture of Whittington. She kissed him good-bye when she opened the street door for him. George looked pretty solemn as he went down the steps. In a minute he went back and rang the bell. Mary let him in and he ran into his mamma's room.

"May I sleep on the back porch to-night?" he asked. His lips trembled a little.

"No, dear. Your papa doesn't like to have tramps on the back porch," she replied.

"Then I can stay in the stable with John?"

"Oh, no! You had better run away at once, a long way off, where you can do as you please."

Poor George was in tears now. "O mamma, mamma!" throwing himself in her arms, "I do love you so, and I don't want to run away. I hate to do as I please. May I come home again to live?"

"Dear little boy! Mamma is glad you have learned your lesson with so little heartache," answered the mother as she took her sobbing boy in her arms. George never wanted to run away again.

A CHILD ONCE MORE.

His Dying Moments a Dream of Boyhood's Happy Days.

The doctors said it was no unusual thing in delirium, but, says the Philadelphia Times, it seemed strange and pathetic to the loving watchers that the middle-aged, careworn man tossing wearily on a sick-bed should fancy himself again a child at his mother's knee. The green grave far away in a country village where she slept had no existence as far as he was concerned. She had never died, but was with her boy again. The many trials of life that had worn those deep lines in his face had passed from his memory now, and boyish woes and confidences alone were on his lips.

When his weeping wife laid her hand upon his fevered brow he looked up and smiled and called her "mother." The hand that held the medicine to his lips, that smoothed the pillow, was "mother's," and in all the faces that came and went about his bed he saw but hers, which had been the first his baby eyes had known, and over which the dews and snows of twenty years had lain.

He had forgotten her, oh, so many years. He had been too busy to yearn to lean his tired head upon that faithful, tender breast, and a thousand transient worldly things had clouded the image of that kind old mother, but as death's mighty hand set aside those perplexing, fretting distractions, all so little now, clear and sweet to his parched soul came the memory of an innocent childhood and a mother's love, and all at once he knew himself a weary, tumbled creature, sick and faint over earth's feverpd, muddy draught, and he went back, like a little child, to her whose tenderness had never failed him, to drink once more of that pure, cleansing stream.

"Your little boy is tired, mother. The sun is very hot."

His children broke into sobs as he spoke, but his fatherhood was a thing unknown to him now.

"May I wear the new boots to-day, mother? Please! You said that I should. I'm not a girl, as the fellows said I was, any more, for you've cut my hateful curls. I'm 'most a man now, mother, and when I'm big I'll give you heaps and heaps of things; a red silk dress like Cousin Mary's, and a hat with a feather lots and lots longer than hers, most as long as my own, may be.

"I'm sleepy and I want to go to bed. I've been a bad boy some to-day, ain't I? but I'll ask God to forgive me, and if you do, I guess he will, too. Hear my prayers, mother; I've learned them quite by heart now."

They saw that the end was close at hand then, and his wife made a frantic appeal to him to recognize her, but his ears were fast dulling to all earthly sounds, and he only struggled to raise himself to his knees. They could have restrained him, but he said:

"Why, I can't go to sleep without saying my prayers. I've been a bad boy to-day, and God would be angry, mother."

Then they helped him up, and with tender arms supported the weakened form, while he knelt with upturned eyes fast dimming with death's film, and clasping his hands as a little child does by its crib side, prayed the sweet old petition of:

Now I lay me down to sleep,
And pray Thee, Lord, my soul to keep.
And if I die before I wake
I pray Thee, Lord, my soul to take.

And which among us dare to say the lisping, childish prayer had not the power Divine to wash away the dust and sin that are this sad old world's dark heritage.

HISTORICAL NOTES.

The First American Newspaper, Seminary and Insane Asylum.

In 1690 the first American newspaper—Publick Occurrences—was published in Boston, and published but once, writes H. G. Cutler in the Chicago News. It was too democratic, and was suppressed. The permanent institution appeared in the Boston News Letter, in April, 1704. Dr. Green, of the Massachusetts Historical Society, writes: "One copy only of the Publick Occurrences exists, and that is in London. The files of the Boston News Letter in the several libraries are very incomplete."

The first American magazine was published in Philadelphia by Benjamin Franklin, in 1741, being called the General Magazine and Historical Chronicle. In 1796 Charles Brockden Brown, a brilliant magazine writer and all-round litterateur, appeared as the first American novelist in a ghostly story entitled "Wieland; or the Transformation." F. D. Stone, secretary of the Pennsylvania Historical Society, has the first number of Franklin's magazine in keeping and Brown's "Wieland."

In 1749 the British Parliament recognized the Moravians as an Episcopal church, and encouraged them to emigrate to this country. During that year a colony established the first school for girls in the United States at Bethlehem, Pa. That village is still the seat of government for the northern district of the American province (or church diocese) and the original building of the seminary is yet standing.

At Williamsburg, Va., in 1773, was completed the first asylum exclusively for the insane in America. Pictures of the original building, which stood until destroyed by fire in 1885, were sent to the writer by Dr. J. D. Moncure, the present superintendent, who says: "It is the oldest asylum founded in this country, and I believe the fifth erected exclusively for this purpose in the world. We have the original records of the board of directors from December 10, 1770, to July 23, 1801.

"The following are the names of the original court of directors: Hon. William Nelson, president; Hon. and General Thomas Nelson, Robert Carter, Peyton Randolph, Robert Carter Nicholas (United States Treasurer), John Blair, Jr., George Wythe, Dudley Digges, Jr., Thomas Everard and John Tazewell."

It is of interest to learn that the cottage system was inaugurated in this—the Eastern Lunatic Asylum—as early as 1841, and that it has been followed ever since.

AT THE BEACH.

Sufferings of a Fat Man from the Heat.

[Written for This Paper.]

It is a fact that warm weather has certainly much to do with crime. It has always been one of my pet theories that heat, if not the actual cause of crime, certainly is an active element in its development. In July wives insist on going to the most expensive watering places and, as the average husband is aware, if refused the wife flies at him as if she was a tiger. A female never ferociously insists upon going to a watering place in January. The Sepoy rebellion broke out in summer. And does anybody suppose that the recent riot of the striking cloak-makers on Broadway would have occurred if the thermometer had been forty degrees below zero?

However, I made a practical experiment one day last week with my friend Waddles who has an office on lower Broadway. Ordinarily, if the weather is cool, Waddles is a pleasant, considerate, and even kind-hearted man, to whom it is perfectly safe to apply for a temporary loan, but when it is hot Waddles is a person to be shunned.

Incidentally, I may remark that Waddles is very portly. In fact it is a base flattery to merely call him stout. Two such men would make a mass meeting. If all flesh is really grass Waddles might be advantageously rented out as a cow pasture. He is a good fellow, and a gentleman, when the weather is cool, but he is death on buggy springs. There is no occasion for his friends to make a great deal of him. He is that already, and more.

The day on which I made my experiment with Waddles was a scorcher and no mistake. It was weather to which the English apply the adjective beastly, and very correctly, too, as it is then that the dog star rages. Verily it was one of those days when humidity is cheaper than ice drinks, and the atmosphere seems to stick closer than a brother, when the mercury soars up and takes more degrees than a Scottish rite Mason. It seems as if breaths were sold at auction and everybody was able to outbid you. However it was not quite as hot as it is in Chicago, where, if the people are not ready to die, they are at least pretty well acclimated if they are as bad as the New York editors make out.

Waddles was in his shirt sleeves, fanning himself when I called, and remarked that the weather was positively hot, too hot in fact to go skating.

"Positively hot," howled Waddles; "it is most superlatively hot. It is hot, hotter, hottest, Hottentot, Hottentotter, Hottentottest, hot as an oven, hot as two ovens, hot as Beecher once said it was. I only wish I was an angel, then all the clothes I would have to wear would be a pair of wings which I could flop, and keep myself cool."

WADDLES DISCOVERS THAT IT IS HOT.

"You would be a nice-looking angel, weighing upwards of 200 pounds in your stocking feet. However, you can fly from the heat of the city. Suppose I invite you to go to Manhattan Beach and cool off, would you accept?"

"Suppose you try me!" replied the fat man.

"Try you? Do you take me for a tallow chandler?"

Waddles refuses to smile and says: "Chestnuts."

Scientific Note.—Extreme heat is not only productive of crime, but it also blunts the sense of humor, particularly if the sufferer be a fat man.

"Well," I ask, after a pause, "will you go with me to the beach, and have an ice time of it?"

Waddles did not give me a plump refusal, but said: "All right! Let us go before it gets any hotter, and not stand here on the sidewalk like a couple of fools. We might be half way there by this time if there was any get up and get in in me. The sun is hot enough to set a cake of ice on fire."

We start off, but my friend experiences some inconvenience in climbing the elevated stairs at City Hall.

Climatic Note—Certain climes do not agree with stout people, and climbing the stairs is one of them.

We are on the train which is crowded almost as much as a Harlem flat. The heat is stifling. Waddles insists that it is five degrees hotter than it is on the street, and he moans his sad fate at having yielded to my seductive wiles.

On board of the ferry-boat, which is also crowded, Waddles insists that it is five degrees hotter than on the car, which would run the temperature up to 100 degrees. He is like a coal: the redder he gets the hotter he gets.

As is always the case in the afternoon, there is a funeral on the boat, as half a dozen or more cemeteries are located near Long Island City. Waddles compares the ferry-boat to that of old Charon ferrying passengers across the river Styx, and wants to know why I didn't take him to the morgue at once. We go into the cabin, which Waddles says is five degrees hotter than outside, which brings the temperature up to 110.

At last we are in the car but the train will not leave for ten minutes. Waddles is more irritable than ever. He threatens to brain me if I ever again say Manhattan Beach to him. He aims a savage blow at the newsboy who offers to sell him an evening paper. There is a murderous gleam in his eye. He is profane because we have to wait so long. I tell him that I find it very natural that he should want to reduce his weight. He sniffs the air and says I am a buffoon.

The train has started at last. We are already beyond the suburbs of Long Island City. All at once an expression of anguish comes over the faces of the passengers. Waddles holds his nose with one hand and shakes his fist at me with the other. We are passing through the Hunters Point smells from the oil refineries. The smell is strong enough to drive a dog out of a slaughter house, but we are soon in the fresh air, and neat cottages, villagers, cabbage patches and happy Long Island peasants tilling the soil whiz past.

WADDLES HOLDS HIS NOSE.

The air is much cooler already, and the murderous gleam is fading out of Waddles' eyes. The conductor calls out "Fresh Pond." This is the place where is a crematory. People who have deceased relatives who prefer to be cremated bring them there for that purpose. Waddles says he would not like to be fired out of the world in that way. In Germany at the town of Gotha you can be cremated for eleven dollars, but however it will cost a good deal of money to Gotha. I reply that if I had his chances of being cremated I wouldn't worry. Waddles owns up that he has acted in a depraved manner, but hopes I will overlook it as he always uses heated language when he is warm.

Note—This is an admission that heat produces a criminal condition of mind.

We did not get off at Sheepshead Bay to see the races, although some people who do find it quite chilly. Waddles says that he bet on the wrong horse one day and he felt as if his spinal column was being rubbed with a chunk of ice. For once in his life he was a greenbacker. He backed Tenny against Salvator.

We are at last at Manhattan Beach where the air is so cool and pleasant and Waddles is a changed being. In fact owing to the atmospheric influences he has become so much of a gentleman that he insists that we shall have some clam chowder, blue fish, etc., with liquid trimmings at his expense, and yet this is the same man who a few hours ago swore like a pirate in the heated atmosphere of New York and tried to kill a poor little newsboy in Long Island City. Does this not prove that heat is the principal cause of crime?

John Was So Literal.

Her Girl Chum (sweetly)—What did John get you for a birthday present?

Mrs. Youngwife (mournfully)—Not a thing.

H. G. C. (emphatically)—Why, how did that happen?

Mrs. Y. (weeping)—Well, you see, he asked me (sobs) what he should get for me, and—and—I (more sobs) told him I'd love him just as—just as well (sobs) if he didn't g-get me any thing, and—he—he—didn't.—West Shore.

Who Wouldn't?

Clergyman—How is Brown coming on since he failed in business? Rather down-hearted, I suppose.

Smith—No, I think not. The last time I saw him he was looking up and trying to be hopeful.

"Ah, I'm glad to hear that!"

"He was trying to drink from a jug."—Texas Siftings.

At an Ebb.

Mr. Van Etten (trying to conceal a yawn)—Where did you say you were going this summer?

Miss Marigold (who has seen his struggle)—Mr. Van Etten, I am having just as hard a time as you are, and I should feel indebted if you would yawn for me also.—Life.

Very Fresh.

Customer—Is this fish fresh?

Fish Dealer — Certainly; it's been fresh for the last week or so.—Texas Siftings.

She Not Merely Looked So.

Young Mr. Dolley (to Miss Amy)—Miss Mabel looks as sober as a judge.

Miss Mabel (frigidly)—I am sober, sir.—Munsey's Weekly.

"What would?" asked his wife.

"Fencing," replied Mr. Kelly.

"Fencing!" she echoed, in surprise; "I never could build a fence."

"What's the use to be an idiot!" retorted her husband, with considerable asperity; "I mean the art of sword playing. Here—let me read you: 'Fencing is now regarded as fully introduced into fashionable circles for amusement of the ladies. It is a wholesome, fascinating exercise, admirably adapted to women. Married ladies are even more benefited than the unmarried'—and lots more to the same effect," said Mr. Kelly. "How d'ye s'pose you'd like it?"

"Well, I don't know," said his wife, doubtfully. "How is it done?"

"Oh, they generally use small swords—foils, they call 'em, but you might begin with a stick, and I'll show you how, if you want me to."

"You say it's fashionable?" Mrs. Kelly hesitatingly asked.

"Says so right here," exclaimed her husband. "What d'ye say," he went on, enthusiastically, "shall we begin now? You need exercise, Martha, and I've noticed for some time that you was becoming sedentary—that's what the paper says right here in this piece. Shall we begin?"

Mrs. Kelly reluctantly consented, and her husband, inspired with the idea, dashed out into the shed, and presently returned with two laths which in his exuberance he had recklessly wrenched off the hen-coop.

"Now, then," he exclaimed, pulling off his coat, while his wife moved the table and chairs out of the way, "this is the way it is done," and he instructed his wife how to hold the representative foil, while he made preliminary passes in the air to demonstrate the method of exchanging blows. "Now, to make it more real and pleasant," he continued, "we'll call it the fencing scene in Hamlet."

"Oh, that will be ever so nice!" Mrs. Kelly exclaimed; "and I'll be Mr. Hamlet."

"Oh, yes," sneered Mr. Kelly, coldly, "a healthy Hamlet you'd be. Who ever saw a Halmet with red hair and a mole on his chin? I'll be Hamlet myself."

His wife graciously yielded the point to save dispute and contented herself with acting as Mr. Laertes, the other character in the play.

"Come on, now," said Mr. Kelly, assuming a jaunty position, with his lath in the air and his left hand behind his back for protection.

His wife grabbed her lath with both hands, threw it energetically aloft and knocked a globe off the chandelier.

"Oh, that's the way!" growled Mr. Kelly, as she stooped to pick up the debris. "Hamlet would have done just that way."

"I didn't know I was right under the burner," protested his wife, as she threw the broken glass in the stove and resumed her lath.

"Now, be more careful this time," said Mr. Kelly, as she again took a position. "No—don't hold your foil like that—you ain't going to beat no carpets. There—that's more like it—now, then."

The laths rattled against each other a few times, and Mrs. Kelly received a terrific clip on the hand that removed the skin from three knuckles, and evoked from that lady a stupendous yell.

MRS. KELLY RECEIVES A CLIP ON THE HAND.

"A hit—a palpable hit," gleefully exclaimed Mr. Kelly, as his wife dropped into a chair and hugged her hand.

"It almost broke my finger," she wailed.

"Pooh! Musn't mind a little thing like that," Mr. Kelly remarked, as she bound up the injured member.

"I guess you wouldn't call it a little thing," protested his wife.

"Hah!" retorted Mr. Kelly, scornfully; "a man wouldn't notice a dozen cracks of that sort. Come on, now."

His wife picked up her lath again in a dispirited sort of way, and crossed Mr. Kelly's foil.

MR. KELLY CATCHES IT ON THE EAR.

"Look out, now," he said, excitedly; "I'm coming for you with the death blow, and you want to look out for me."

This bit of information had the effect of stimulating his wife to extraordinary efforts, and the foils struck fire at every blow, while Mrs. Kelly's lath performed a variety of gyrations simply marvelous in their eccentricity.

"Here I come!" shouted the excited Mr. Kelly, and he lowered his foil for the finishing stroke. At that instant his wife's lath was describing a most astounding evolution in the air, and in the confusion of the moment that worthy woman brought it down with a degree of spirit totally unlooked for in one of such sedentary habits, catching her husband neatly across the ear, and knocking him with great precipitation over a chair.

"What d'ye do that for?" he yelled, as he struggled to his feet and hung on to his aching head.

"I didn't go to," pleaded his wife, abashed and awed by the unlucky termination of their innocent pleasure.

KELLY FALLS BACKWARD OVER A CHAIR.

"Oh, no, you didn't go to," shrieked Mr. Kelly, in a passion-torn voice, dancing about the room and rubbing his injured ear, "oh, of course not—you wouldn't have done it for the world."

"You must'nt mind a little thing like—"

"None of your back talk round here," shouted Mr. Kelly; "you take and lug them laths out into the shed, and the next time you want any exercise don't you ask me to help you out with none of your blame foolishness," and as his wife meekly gathered up the remains of their encounter, he jumped into his boots and went out doors to rub his swollen ear.

What women seem to hanker after is exercise.—W. O. Fuller, Jr., in Texas Siftings.

COULD TAKE HIS CHOICE.

Needy Musician—I am going to have a benefit. How many tickets will you take? They are a dollar each.

Luckless Friend—I suppose I'll have to take a couple. Rather pressed for funds, though.

Needy Musician—Well, if you'd rather lend me a dollar, I won't have a benefit and we'll call it square.—Drake's Magazine.

TIT FOR TAT.

Wilkins—No intended son-in-law of mine should be seen coming out of a drinking saloon!

Snipkins—And no intended father-in-law of mine should be seen going into one.—Munsey's Weekly.

A Prospective Senator.

Judge Carey, the long-time delegate from Wyoming, will probably be one of the Senators from that recently created State. He is a large man, tall, strong, vigorous, heavy and yet not phlegmatic. In a recent conversation, in the House restaurant, he said: "I don't understand the meaning of the word 'malice,' except inferentially. I have been blessed with a disposition absolutely free from that element. I am quick-tempered, and will strike from the shoulder to resent an insult or injury. That is well known. But, I would not lay a straw in the way of my worst enemy, on the following day. In fact, it is easy, absolutely easy for me to obey the Scriptural injunction: 'Let not the sun go down upon thy wrath.'"

Those who know him best, testify to the truthfulness of this statement, unostentatiously made by the lovable Wyoming man.

In Training.

Harry (looking over manuscript)—You don't expect any editor will accept such stuff as that, do you?

Jack—Certainly not! It has been refused by seven already.

Harry—Why under the sun, do you keep on sending it round?

Jack—I'm trying to discover in how many ways a thing can be courteously declined.

Harry—What for?

Jack—I promised to go with Imogene to the dinner of the Mystic Cooking Club.—Life.

Could Give Lightning Points.

Mrs. Yeager—The lightning must be something fearful. I read how out West that a cyclone smashed the windows and broke up everything in the house.

Mrs. Gilbooley—Is that all? My husband does that every once in a while when he comes home from the lodge. I reckon he could give the lightning points.—Texas Siftings.

ELECTRIC FLASHES.

A novel use for the electric motor is reported from Altoona, where a motor-worked fan is employed in a vault where books are kept in order to preserve them from the effect of damp.

An unusual electrical phenomenon was witnessed on the Fourth of July night at Asbury Park. Colored balls of fire were frequently seen darting to and fro over the city, rivaling a pyrotechnic display.

The new theory of the lightning rod is that it should as far as possible concentrate the energy of the lightning on itself in the quieter form of heat. Consequently, a piece of iron wire the size of a telegraph wire is sufficient for all ordinary flashes, and much cheaper than the half-inch copper rod or tape once thought to be requisite.

An occurrence which shows how particularly ready electricity is to avail itself of any opportunity to "short circuit," or stray from the right path, is reported from Ohio. The switchboard of an electric company caught fire, the machine began "flashing," and the lights went out. It was found that an ordinary card photograph had fallen into the switchboard, and the gilt edge around it had come into contact with the two ends of the line, thus causing a short circuit.

Recent investigations by Captain J. P. McClear have brought out some new and important facts concerning the behavior of lightning under certain conditions. After examining a number of trees which had been struck by lightning, he found that those which were struck before the falling of rain were shattered, while those which were struck after the rain began were simply scored, and had the bark more or less blown off. These phenomena point to the fact that during rain every tree is conducting electricity. Other considerations affecting the issue are the position of the cloud, the amount of foliage on the tree, its conditions of moisture, and its connection with running water.

One of the most beneficial ways of purifying rooms in which the atmosphere is especially liable to vitiation, is to produce ozone by electrical sparks, and the practice has been strongly recommended by the highest medical authorities. The delightful freshness and vigor which is perceptible in the air after a series of sparks from an ordinary influence machine is a proof of the salutary and refreshing influence produced. A physician in Philadelphia has taken a very wise step in the introduction of a small electric machine for the production of ozone. It is in a compact form, operated by a small battery, and can be conveniently carried. There is said to be a large demand for the machine for purifying the sick rooms of private patients.

Another industry which is destined shortly to be stirred to its very depths by the advent of the electric motor is that of the bootblack. The first blow at what will soon be regarded as the ancient practice of shining by hand has been dealt in Chicago, where electrical blacking machines are now at work on the streets. The outfit is of the simplest description. A small motor is concealed in a box beneath the foot rest of the bootblack's chair; a flexible shaft with one end attached to the armature spindle has the other fitted with a revolving polishing brush. The only other element in the outfit is a small push-button, and when this is touched the brush spins round at a speed that laughs to scorn the deftest hand that ever gave the exultant finish to the morning toilet.

JOLLY JOKELETS.

"Gnouch is the stingiest man in college." Lawrence—"Yes he's mean enough to take the beam out of his own eye, if he thought he could sell the timber."

"Oh, dear," said an old man, who was fishing for his dinner and lost a large pickerel from his hook, "how desp'ret bad it makes you feel to lose what you never 've had."

"John," said Mrs. Billus, anxiously, "you whipped Willie too hard. His spirit is utterly broken." "What makes you think so?" inquired Mr. Billus. "He asked me a little while a go if I didn't want to cut his hair."

An American elm will live under favorable circumstances 300 years; a maple 500 years; the orange 680 years. It is estimated a first-class scandal will live several eons. Several that originated in early Egypt are still living and in good health.

Weary Searcher (looking for board)—"I hope, madam, you do not object to children?" Boarding-House Mistress—"Oh, not in the least. I have nine myself." Weary Searcher (backing off)—"Um—er—if I decide to take the rooms I will send you a postal. Good-day."

"Isn't that Mr. Dolliver near the chairman?" said Mrs. Pongee to her husband, at a public dinner. "Yes, my dear." "How utterly miserable he looks! Has he been ill?" "Oh, no, he's all right. The poor fellow is booked for a funny speech after dinner, that's all."

Mrs. Avnoo—"Bridget, the parlor windows are so dirty I can't see through them." Bridget—"Wull, mum, I only jist came from the front door, and beyant the faces of Miss Fashion and her young man in the bay window opposite, thur's nuthin' across the way wort lukin' at."

Fannie's mother is a great hand to borrow of her next-door neighbor. One day Fannie went into a neighbor's for a visit, but found them all ready to go away to stay a week. "Is oo all doin' at once?" "Yes, baby and all." "Why," she said, in an aggrieved tone, "how tan oo? My mamma will want to bor' 'tings."

At a Scotch fair a farmer was trying to engage a lad to assist on the farm, but would not finish the bargain until he brought a character from the last place; so he said: "Run and get it, and meet me at the cross at four o'clock." The youth was up to time, and the farmer said: "Well, have you got your character with you?" "Na," replied the youth; "but I've got yours, and I'm no comin'."

THE LOTTERY EVIL

A Message From the President on the Subject.

HE URGES SEVERE LEGISLATION,

Congress Asked to Close the Mails Against the Companies.

The Robbery of the Poor Portrayed by the Chief Magistrate—The Corrupting Touch of Lottery Agents Felt at the National Capital—The Postmaster-General's Letter Accompanies the Message.

WASHINGTON, July 30.—The President has sent the following message to Congress;

"The recent attempt to secure a charter from the State of North Dakota for a lottery company—the pending effort to obtain from the State of Louisiana a renewal of the charter of the Louisiana State Lottery, and the establishment of one or more lottery companies at Mexican towns near our border, have served the good purpose of calling attention to an evil of vast proportions.

"If the baneful effects of these lotteries were confined to the States that give the companies corporate powers and a license to conduct the business, the citizens of other States being powerless to apply legal remedies, might clear themselves of responsibility by the use of such moral agencies as were within their reach. But the case is not so. The people of all the States are debauched and defrauded. The vast sums of money offered to the States for charters are drawn from the people of the United States and the general Government through its mail system is made the effective and profitable medium of intercourse between the lottery company and its victims. The use of the mails is quite as essential to the companies as the State license. It would be practically impossible for these companies to exist if the public mails were once effectively closed against their advertisements and remittances. The use of the mails by these companies is a prostitution of an agency only intended to serve the purposes of a legitimate trade and a decent social intercourse.

"It is not necessary, I am sure for me to attempt to portray the robbery of the poor, and the widespread corruption of public and private morals, which are the necessary incidents of these lottery schemes.

"The National capital has become a sub-headquarters of the Louisiana Lottery Co., and its numerous agents and attorneys are conducting here a business, probably a larger use of the mails than that of any legitimate business enterprise in the District of Columbia. There seems to be good reason to believe that the corrupting touch of these agents has been felt by the clerks in the postal service and by some of the police officers of the District of Columbia.

"Severe and effective legislation should be promptly enacted to enable the postoffice department to purge the mails of all letters, newspapers and circulars relating to this business.

"The letter of the Postmaster-General which I transmit herewith points out the inadequacy of the existing statutes, and suggests legislation that would be effectual.

"It may also be necessary to so regulate the carrying of letters by the express companies as to prevent the use of those agents to maintain communication between the lottery companies and their agents or customers in other States.

"It does not seem possible that there can be any division of sentiment as to the propriety of closing the mails against these companies, and I therefore venture to express the hope that such proper powers as are necessary to that end will be at once given to the Postoffice Department.

(Signed) BENJAMIN HARRISON.

"EXECUTIVE MANSION, July 30, 1890."

Accompanying the message are two documents; one a letter of the Postmaster-General, directing the President's attention to the subject; the other a compilation of the laws relating to lotteries, heretofore enacted, together with the decisions of courts defining those laws. In his letter to the President, the Postmaster-General says that the urgent necessity of the case impels him to anticipate his annual report by this special communication in regard to the use of the mails and by the Louisiana Lottery Co.

Claims A Big Estate in Pennsylvania.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 30.—The district register has received a petition signed by Edward Coyle, of Killylane, Eglinton, County Derry, Ireland, laying claim to a share in an estate of $50,000,000, which the petitioner says has been left by Manassah Coyle, of Penna. He claims that the Coyle family originated in Ireland, and that Manassah Coyle's forefather emigrated to America, in 1798, and settled in Pennsylvania. Nothing is known here of the Coyle estate.

Colonel Clarkson's Resignation.

WASHINGTON, July 30.—It is now positively stated that when Colonel Clarkson completes his report on postal matters in the West, which will be in about two weeks, that he will tender his resignation to the Postmaster-General.

Eloped With a Waiter.

WASHINGTON, July 30.—It developed to-day that the man O'Brien, with whom Miss Lillie Porter eloped last Saturday, was for some time a waiter in restaurants in this city, and that he has gone west to accept a position in a Chicago restaurant.

Population of Louisville.

WASHINGTON, July 30.—Census returns from Louisville, roughly counted, gives that city a population of 105,796.

LENA DAUM'S DEATH.

The Case Resembles That of Annie Goodwin and Will be Investigated.

ORANGE, N. J., July 30.—Lena Daum of this place, 27 years of age, and unmarried, died at Youngsville, Sullivan County, N. Y., on Saturday last under circumstances which so far as now known look very suspicious.

The case, which in several particulars, resembles that of Annie Goodwin, of New York, is causing a great deal of comment in Orange. The Daum girl is a sister of August Daum, of Orange, and stepdaughter of Jacob Fourie, of Livingston. Her parents are poor, and because of this she had been living out as a domestic.

Her last place was in the family of Ezra H. Snow, of Park street and Park avenue, Orange, where she had lived for several months. While living there she was occasionally visited by William Kays, a former resident of Orange, but who now owns a farm and runs a summer boarding house at Youngsville, N. Y.

Recently Mrs. Snow, suspecting that the girl was in trouble, told he rhusband of her suspicions. On July 16th Lena went to Youngsville, her family being cognizant of the matter, and also of her condition. Last Thursday Mrs. Herman Linderman, a sister of Lena, received a telegram from her stating that she was sick and asking her sister to come to her at once. Mrs. Linderman could not get away and so did nothing about the matter at the time.

On Saturday she received a telegram informing her that Lena had died, and stating that if the body was wanted to send for it at once. August Daum, the girl's brother, made arrangements with an Orange undertaker to have the body sent on by express. An hour or two later another telegram was received stating that the health authorities would not allow the body to be taken away unless in was enclosed in a metallic casket. One was immediately ordered. Still, two hours later, a third telegram informed Mr. Daum that the girl's body had been buried by order of the authorities. The three dispatches were received within six hours.

These facts aroused suspicion, and on searching the girl's room at Snow's several damaging letters were found which showed that arrangements had been made for an operation. It is reported that another Orange girl, Lena Kratt, is also at the Kays place in a similar condition.

Mr. Daum, brother of the deceased, has gone to Youngsville to demand a thorough investigation.

THE BRIDGE GAVE WAY,

A Four-Horse Team, the Driver and a Boy Precipitated Into the River.

WILLIMANTIC, Conn., July 30.—A wooden bridge over the Willimantic river, near the Mansfield station of the New London Northern, gave way under the weight of a four-horse team loaded with green lumber, precipitating the teams, Mr. Dean, the driver, and a little boy into the river, which is 15 feet deep.

All were rescued with great difficulty, and all were considerably injured.

The bridge had a 45-foot span and the cause of the break is not yet known but will be thoroughly investigated. The bridge was built about 20 years ago and was thought to be safe.

Talk About Hayti and San Domingo.

BAR HARBOR, Me., July 30.—A gentleman formerly prominent in two Republican administrations, and who is now here, intimates that the United States is likely to annex Hayti or San Domingo, and that Mr. Blaine's views on sugar duties have a bearing on this point. A Dominican statesman recently paid a hurried visit to Mr. Blaine. Minister Douglass' return from Hayti may have some connection with the matter, it is said.

Wheelmen Change Their Track.

LYNN, Mass., July 30.—The amateur wheelmen, who arrived here a few days ago with the intention of doing their practice riding on the celebrated track in this city, have abandoned the project and started for Hartford, Conn., where they will do their training on the Charter Oak track. The large expense necessary to put the Lynn track in repair resulted in the change of programme.

Knights of Pythias Election.

KINGSTON, July 30.—The annual convention of the Grand Lodge of the Knights of Pythias of New York State elected the following officers: W. S. Carpenter of Syracuse, grand chancellor; John T. Robertson, grand vice chancellor; Samuel T. Hull of this city, grand prelate, John K. Acker of Albany, keeper of records and seals; Peter W. Mead of New York city, master of exchequer.

McGonegal's Application for Release.

NEW YORK, July 30.—The Supreme Court issued a writ of habeas corpus for the production in court of Dr. McGonegal, Mrs. Shaw and William Davis for their release or admission to bail. The application was made on a petition of Dr. McGonegal in which he alleges that all the Coroner's proceedings were taken without authority in law and were illegal.

Afflicted With Leprosy.

NEW YORK, July 30.—There is no doubt whatever in the minds of the physicians and hospital authorities that Manuel Garutia, who was taken from his boarding house, No. 105 East Twenty-eighth street, to the hospital on North Brother Island, is afflicted with leprosy.

Elmira Races Declared Off.

ELMIRA, N. Y., July 30.—The three days' running, hurdle and steeplechase races in this city have been declared off. The Merchantsville race managers got 60 of the New York horses away from the Elmira Association after the horses were in Jersey City for shipment here.

STRUCK BY A TRAIN

Three Children Killed on a Railroad Bridge.

TWO OTHERS NARROWLY ESCAPE

They Were Returning to Paterson, N. J., from a Blackberrying Trip.

One Child Fell Into the River, a Distance of Thirty Feet—A Sad Scene of Woe When the Parents Were Notified. Sturdy Policemen and Undertakers Moved to Tears.

PATERSON, N. J., July 30.—Three children were run over and instantly killed, and two others injured, on the Erie Railroad here last night.

The children were returning from a blackberrying trip, and while crossing the Riverside Bridge they saw a train coming from the east and crossed over on the other track and did not notice a train coming in the other direction until it was close upon them.

Before they could get out of the way the train struck Jenny Drewester, aged 12, and Mamie and Nellie Warren, aged 10 and 12 years, killing them instntaly.

Jennie Warren, aged three, escaped with a scalp wound, and Willie Warren, aged four, fell to the river below, a distance of 30 feet into the water, but was not much injured.

The Riverside bridge is not a thoroughfare, and is used exclusively for the passage of trains.

When the parents of the unfortunate children were notified of the calamity there was a sad scene of woe. Even sturdy policemen and hardened undertakers were moved to tears. News of the accident spread rapidly and hundreds of persons hastened to the scene.

BRITISH CRUELTY.

A Sad Story of Distress Caused by Poverty and Harsh Laws.

LONDON, July 30.—A sad story of distress from poverty and the harsh enforcement of law comes from the Irish coast.

The fishing season has been bad, and many of the dwellers on Blasket Island, off the Kerry coast, were unable to pay their rent at the appointed day. A gunboat thereupon landed the sheriff, 30 bailiffs and 100 police on the island, and the posse seized the boats of the unfortunate fishermen.

As the gunboat departed with the only means of livelihood of the half starved population, the scene was a heartrending one. The despairing fathers and husbands gazed gloomily at the receding vessel, while the children and women folk wailed and cried aloud in their anguish. An eyewitness says that the people are absolutely destitute, and many must perish unless relief is sent.

Had Wealth But Starved.

CHICAGO, July 30.—Since Mrs. Barbara Glaser's husband died last March, Mrs. Glaser has been starving at her house No. 628 Wells street. She was seventy-four and feeble, and the neighbors frequently took pity on her and sent her food. Everybody in the neighborhood supposed she was poor. Sunday Mrs. Glaser died and the police in searching her room found $50,000 in securities, principally mortgages, drawing 8 per cent. She had also property worth $10,000. Mrs. Glaser has no relatives in this country and the fortune will go to her sister in Bavaria.

The Chesapeake Bay Collision.

BALTIMORE, July 30.—Search has been made for the ten missing persons who were on the excursion boat Louise that collided with the Virginia, but thus far all efforts have been fruitless. The names of the three persons who were killed are: Mrs. Catherine M. Keyser, Charles Grantner, five years old, and Daniel Koop, ten years old. Among the injured, Adolph Miller cannot recover and others are sure to die of their injuries. It is now believed that those reported as missing jumped overboard and were drowned.

Congressman Baker's New Venture.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., July 30.—Congressman Baker of this city, who declined renomination, Mark J. Bunnell of Washington, and W. W. Rochester are the leading members of a syndicate who have purchased Virginius Island, near Harper's Ferry. The island has many natural facilities for flouring mills, and there are now several located there. A stock company with a capital of $100,000 will soon be formed and additional manufactories will be built.

Burned the Flesh from His Body.

WHITNEYVILLE, Me., July 30.—While working in a hay field near here Ambrose Alber was killed by lightning. The bolt made a four-inch gash in his head, burned the flesh from his body, cut a hole through the right foot, and made many cuts and bruises on his limbs. He was seen to fall by his wife, who a few moments before had left the hay field.

The Sugar Trust's New Scheme.

NEW YORK, July 30.—At a meeting of the trustees of the Sugar Trust it was decided to prepare a statement, giving in a general way the intention of the trustees in regard to forming a new organization. The plan has not yet been formally agreed upon, however, but it will probably be to-morrow and will then be given out.

Struck Down With a Stone.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., July 30.—During a quarrel at Plymouth John Weeks struck John Orkie on the head with a stone, inflicting fatal injuries. Weeks made his escape. Both men are Hungarians.

A Train Jumps the Track.

EAST LIVERPOOL, O., July 30.—A hairbreadth escape from a terrible disaster occurred on the Cleveland & Pittsburg Railroad at midnight. The express ran through a broken switch, jumped the track and ploughed its way along the ties until some freight cars were struck, which brought it to a standstill. The train was full of passengers, and the result of a wreck would have been frightful. Fireman Maley had a leg broken in jumping.

The Barrel of Whiskey Exploded.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., July 30.—Joseph Fayle left a barrel of whiskey in front of his saloon, and after the sun had been shining on it awhile the barrel exploded. Fayle, who was standing near, was thrown 15 feet, and had his wrist fractured and his ankle sprained. A nurse, a baby, and a baby carriage were upset in a heap. After the explosion the front of Fayle's saloon looked as if it had been visited by a tornado.

Seal Making Good Catches.

VICTORIA, B. C., July 30.—Reports from the sealing fleet yesterday show that the boats have taken 15,747 skins. None of the schooners were molested or even sighted by any of the American cutters. They had good hunting weather, and judging by their half-season's catch, the full season's catch will be a very successful one.

REBELLION CRUSHED

The Argentine Government Said to be Victorious.

MANY CONFLICTING DISPATCHES

The Mutineers Have Capitulated and Deposited Their Arms in the Arsenal.

All Rebellious Superior Officers Will be Dismissed—The Political Situation Thoroughly Consolidated—The Capital and the Whole Country Reported Tranquil—Assuring Despatches.

BUENOS AYRES, July 30.—The armistice has been prolonged pending negotiations between the Government and insurrectionary leaders.

The Ministers of foreign powers are intervening in the interest of peace.

Efforts are being made to form a coalition Ministry. Congress has been assembled.

PARIS, July 30.—The Temps publishes a despatch from Buenos Ayres, saying that the Government and the leaders of the revolutionary movement had reached a settlement. President Celman, the despatch says, has resigned, and has been succeeded by Vice-President Pellgrini as President. Quiet has been restored.

A Dispatch from the Prime Minister.

LONDON, July 30.—The following dispatch was received at the Argentine Legation from Juan Garcia, Prime Minister of the Argentine Republic: "Announce that the insurrection has been completely subdued. The President of the Republic and the National Cabinet are giving orders from the National Government House. The Finance Minister has been set at liberty."

Terms for a Settlement.

LONDON, July 30.—A dispatch from Buenos Ayres says the terms for a settlement of the troubles between the revolutionists and the Government are: "The civilians who have taken part in the insurrection will not be punished. All captains of the revolutionary forces and all officers above the grade of captain will be deprived of their rank. The artillery of the insurrectionists will be surrendered."

Another dispatch from Buenos Ayres says the situation is unchanged and the prospects for a compromise are not encouraging. The concensus of opinion according to these despatches, is that the matter must be fought out.

The Government's Victory Confirmed.

LONDON, July 30.—The Argentine legation in London has just received the following telegram from Buenos Ayres, signed by Minister of Finance, Garcia: "The Government is completely victorious. The mutineers have capitulated and deposited their arms in the arsenal. All rebellious superior officers will be dismissed. The troops are returning to their quarters under the command of loyal officers. The minor officers participating in the revolt will be transferred to positions of less influence. The forces mobilized by the Government are returning to the provinces. The political situation is thoroughly consolidated. The capital and the whole country are tranquil."

General Mitre Suddenly Disappears.

PARIS, July 30.—The report is published here that General Mitre, at one time the President of the Argentine Republic, and for a long time a resident of this city, has suddenly disappeared.

THE CENTRAL AMERICAN WAR.

The Downfall of the Guatemalan Government Considered Probable.

CITY OF MEXICO, July 30, via Galveston.—Geronimo Pou, agent of San Salvador, says that in the eleven battles to date the Salvadorians have come out victorious. The rest of the Guatemalan army is fleeing in all directions toward the interior, and not a single Guatemalan soldier is left on the frontier.

A revolution against Barrilles has broken out in the eastern department. Several well-known generals head it, and the downfall of the present Guatemalan Government is considered more than probable. Barrillas is pleading for foreign intervention in his favor.

A Testimonial to Dr. Hurtsell.

NEW YORK, July 30.—The parishioners of the Church of the Epiphany met last evening to express their appreciation of their former pastor, Dr. Hurtsell. A committee of five was appointed to meet with committees of the various organizations of the church for the purpose of deciding upon some fitting testimonial for the departing pastor. An undertone of ill feeling seems to exist among the parishioners against the action of the high church authorities.

An Escaped Maniac Run Down.

LOCKPORT, N. Y., July 30.—Chief of Police Fuller of Medina brought to this city David Yago, the escaped maniac who murdered Postmaster Schultze at Wolcottville, and who has been at large since Saturday. He was caught napping a short distance west of Middleport by Chief Fuller.

Admits He Is a Bigamist.

NEWARK, N. J., July 30.—George Parsons, the Philadelphia bigamist, has been brought to this city. He admits his guilt and will be given a hearing.

Will Sail Direct for Boston.

BAR HARBOR, Me July 30.—According to the present plans the United States vessels now here will sail direct for Boston Saturday next.

WORLD'S FAIR ARGUMENT.

Chicago Angry at the Attitude of New York Papers.

CHICAGO, July 30.—A morning paper contains the following: The attitude of the average New York newspaper on the subject of the World's Fair in Chicago is offensive to the last degree. Its correspondents are evidently under instructions to misrepresent Chicago and its people, and they lose no opportunity to circulate falsehoods that are calculated to give the country the idea that this city is unfitted in all respects for the fair and that its people are destitute of the commonest qualifications for the successful management of such an exhibition. The contemptible meanness of this position cannot be ascribed to persiflage. It has a deeper foundation and a graver significance. No friend of Chicago and no true American should be deceived or influenced by such manifest misrepresentation."

Killed His Wife and Himself.

CLEVELAND, O., July 30.—Anton Novak, a Bohemian, 25 years of age, has for some time been jealous of his good-looking wife, and a couple of weeks ago she was forced to leave him on account of his brutal treatment. The husband and wife met on Sawtelle avenue early in the morning and, after a short conversation, Novak drew a revolver and shot his wife three times. After she had fallen he fired a bullet into his own brain and dropped dead. Mrs. Novak expired in St. Vincent's hospital about an hour after the shooting took place.

A Monster Lumber Fire.

SAGINAW, Mich., July 30.—Five acres of lumber piles, houses and offices were swept by flames in this city. The wind was blowing a gale, and the loss is in hundreds of thousands. Firemen were entirely unable to do anything and it was feared that flames would jump across the river into Carrollton where is piled $1,000,000 worth of pine lumber.

Death of Aaron Spencer.

ARCADE, N. Y., July 30.—Aaron A. Spencer, for many years a prominent citizen, died here suddenly last night. He was born in Otsego County. For many years he was the largest United States mail contractor in this end of the State.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

The population of Detroit, Mich., is 207,791.

The crops in different sections of Southside, Va. are fast going into ruin by reason of the protracted drouth.

The Democrats of the Thirteenth Pennsylvania district renominated Hon. James B. Reilly for Congress.

The population of Brooklyn, N. Y., has just been completed by the census office. It shows that the population is 804,377, an increase since 1880 of 237,714 or 41.95 per cent.

The boy who was burned in the Silver Creek, N. Y., wreck has been identified as James Canning of Nicholson, Pa., who had been visiting his uncle at Oil City. His uncle and father had his remains exhumed and took them home.

James Gildea, aged 39 years, who fell to the ground from the railing of the grand stand at Culver Park, Rochester, N. Y., while intoxicated a few days ago, died of his injuries at 10 a. m. in the Rochester Hospital. The deceased was a showman and resided in New York.

The strike of the Grand Rapids, Mich., street railway employes is off and the men have gained a victory. The demand was for twelve hours and $1.75 a day.

Incendiaries set fire to the residence of Rev. David Plumb, at Coles, Ind., a short distance across the river from Louisville, Ky. Mrs. Plumb and three children were burned to death and Mr. Plumb was so badly burned that he cannot live.

Frank Graham, a young man en route from Chicago to his home at East Verda, Pa., became insane on a train near Logansport, Ind. Shortly after the train left Logansport he attacked a little girl who was sitting in front of him and who, he said, insulted him. A police officer was telegraphed for at Marion and he was removed to the jail and his family notified.

BY THE WAY.

—Flies are plentiful.

—Watermelons are high.

—Who will be the next Sheriff?

—Egg plants are in the market.

—Lightning bugs are numerous.

—Tomatoes are dropping in price.

—The Harvest Home season is ripe.

—Blackberries are plentiful this year.

—According to DeVoe today and tomorrow will be cool.

—Now is the time to put in your Winter supply of coal.

—As to who shall be the next Senator is being freely discussed.

—Many Grand Army men of Plainfield will visit the grand encampment at Boston.

—Trade is dull, so say the few storekeepers who do not advertise in THE PRESS.

—It will not be long before those at the seashore will be turning their faces homeward.

—The Union County Board of Registration will meet on August 13 to appoint the election officers.

—Reefer and blazer jackets are made in silk, serge or flannel and are the favorites for outdoor wrap.

—Summer fans are large and light colored. The frames are made of plain wood, the cover of crepe.

—The Thursday afternoon meetings of the Woman's Temperance Aid Society are adjourned to the call of the President.

—Black lace over colored satin petticoats and bodices is a revived fashion that is destined to be popular this season.

—Seamless corsages, which, however, are made to fit like a glove by some fine, subtle magic of the modiste, are in high fashion.

—The clouds would seem to be at enmity with this portion of the earth, if we are to judge by the dousing we are receiving.

—Look out for over-ripe or decayed watermelons and muskmelons. They are deadly poison. Beware also of iced drinks when it is very hot.

—The Chathams of North Plainfield played a game with the Young Crescents yesterday, on the grounds of the former, and defeated them by a score of 13 to 2.

—Jack Farrell, who signed with the New York National League team this season, but who has not yet been demanded on the League games, has been secured as short stop for the West Ends of Somerville, for the rest of the Summer.

—The following are the names of some of the newest colors: Ververne, a medium heliotrope; bluet, a strong but somewhat light blue; daphion, a new darkish reseda; maroquin, a light brown; triton, a bluish gray; datti, cross between olive and sulphur-yellow; libelule, a grayish blue; aroube, a very dark garnet; and pivoine, a shade between old and dark red.

A Trick of the John's Trade.

The case against hackman James Farley which has been set down for trial next September involves a charge against Farley of violating that section of the city ordinance concerning hackmen, which forbids them leaving their horses and vehicles for the purpose of soliciting custom. Of Farley it is alleged that he left his horse, took from the hands of another hackman's passenger her satchel, took from the hackman the passenger herself, swaggered back to his hack, and drove exultingly off, his fare secure.

The policeman and others who witnessed the affair were ready to testify yesterday, but the case was postponed at the request of Farley's counsel.

Thanks to the Firemen.

At a special meeting of the Plainfield Crescent League, held Tuesday evening, July 29, the Secretary was instructed to convey to Chief Doane, Assistants Waters and Martin, and the firemen of Plainfield, an expression of the members' sincere appreciation of the efforts of the firemen to save the property of the League, upon the occasion of the fire of Tuesday morning.

JAMES ALFRED DEMAREST,
Secretary.

Do not consult anybody, but invest 25 cents in a bottle of Salvation Oil. It kills pain!

MRS. FAYHE'S AFFIDAVIT.

She Swears That it is All True and Accuses Carey and His "news" of Lying About Her.

This afternoon at the desire of the woman in the case, is published another chapter in the matter of the furniture dealer against THE PRESS. A story has been told about a business man whose ways of dealing in the community are matters of public property. A few days afterwards he makes his little "bluff" by complaining" against the publishers and editor. Then everybody formed their opinion, and it was time to drop the matter for things more important. But Mrs. Fayhe wants herself set right. She says Carey, and the news, and its reporter have all lied about her.

Yesterday afternoon she sent to THE PRESS office for the editor. An answer was returned that if she wanted to see the editor she must come to him. She then sent word that things had been published in another paper about her that were entirely false, and she had been quoted as saying things which she never said. She felt ashamed, her messenger continued, to come out, and wanted to tell THE PRESS about it for publication.

A representative of THE PRESS called on Mrs. Fayhe. She said she never had denied a word of the story in last Friday's PRESS. "Mr. Carey came with Councilman Johnson after the paper was out," continued Mrs. Fayhe, "and tried to make me say different, but I wouldn't. I was so nervous, though, I could not talk before him. Councilman Johnson sat down and wanted to wait and see me alone, but Carey said, 'Come on Johnson!' and would not let him stay." Mrs. Fayhe called in a friend, who corroborated all this, but the reporter said:

"Mrs. Fayhe, we all know the story is true, and it serves no purpose to repeat it over and over as already told in THE PRESS. The paper has no personal interest in the case. It was published because it is an honest newspaper's duty to expose such business dealings in a community as may not seem right, and because it is the duty of every man to arise in defence of a woman and her little ones if she cries out that she is being imposed upon and taken advantage of without anyone to protect her. We have told your story and the people all sympathise with you. There is nothing further to be said."

Mrs. Fahyhe insisted, however, that she wanted to answer the statements that had been made to the effect that the property taken was worth very little, and that she had consented to its sacrifice. At her suggestion then a Justice of the Peace went to her house, and drew up the following under her direction:

State of New Jersey, } ss:
Union county. }

Mary L. Fayhe of the City of Plainfield, county and State aforesaid, of lawful age, having been duly sworn according to law, on her oath, saith: On Thursday, July 3, my husband and I had some words. He said he'd sell everything to Carey, and left the house. Soon afterwards Mr. Carey came in with him, and my husband said "here is everything," making a motion towards the furniture in the parlor, and took Carey in the bedroom and showed him the bedroom suit. When my husband went out into the kitchen, I said to Carey, "Don't you buy these things. He's drunk;" and Carey said he would not, and that "he was only taking a list of them."

Ten minutes after, Carey's trucks drove up and his men came in and tore up the parlor carpet, and took the parlor suit, bedroom suit, lamp, table, a rug and a black walnut whatnot. Carey gave my husband $30 for all this. Afterwards I went to Carey to try and get some of the things back. He charged me ten dollars for the carpet and seven dollars for the lamp and table. He asked me $25 for the bedroom suit, and he still kept the rug, whatnot and the parlor suit which he has told me he has sold.

I never consented to the sale of any of these goods, but went to Justice Nash and Judge Codington and asked if there was anyway to stop Mr. Carey's taking the goods away and leaving a woman and her children without any furniture under them. I never denied the story that was in THE PRESS to anybody. The parlor suit cost $135 when it was new, the bedroom suit cost $44.50, the lamp cost $12, the table $8, and the carpet, rug and whatnot I don't remember. I have given Carey $17 to get back three of the smallest things he bought; yet he only paid $30 for them all, and asked me $25 for the bedroom suit and says he has sold the parlor suit, which which was ebony and gilt, to someone else.

MRS. FAYHE.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 29th day of July 1890.

LOUIS F. WADSWORTH,
Notary Public.

Surprised by Her Young Neighbors.

A pleasant surprise party was tendered to Miss Laura Mattis at her home on South Second street last evening. Forty young people of the neighborhood participated. An enjoyable programme of games, songs and dances was provided. The supply of refreshments was bounteous.

Notes of Regret.

The Glee Club of the Crescent League, assisted by two-score of fellow members, gathered in front of the ruined club house last night, and sang "Farewell, My Own," "How Can I Bear to Leave Thee," and "She's my Annie, I'm her Joe."

A Single Tax Bill of $2,000 Collected.

Deputy Tax-Collector Nash did a good piece of work the other day, when he succeeded in collecting the unpaid taxes on the Park House from 1881 to date. It amounted with interest and costs to $2,000

—The next regular meeting of Gazelle Engine Company No. 1, occurs Wednesday evening of next week, at 8 o'clock. As important business is to be transacted, a full attendance of the members is desired.

When we reflect that so many human beings die of Consumption, we must come to the conclusion that everybody should be provided with Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup, the poor consumptive's friend.

LIKE PHENIX FROM ITS ASHES.

New Rooms Already Engaged for the Crescent League, and a New Club House in View.

At 7:30 o'clock of last evening, before the walls of the burned Crescent League club house had cooled, Trustees J. T. Fritts, C. C. Burnet, C. P. Leggett, R. M Stelle, J. K. Arnold, F. M. Stater, F. S. Green and H. W. Emerson, with President C. A. Reed, and Assemblyman John Ulrich, representing the owner of the building, met and considered the securing of temporary rooms at once and the prospects of having an entirely new club house in a few months

A meeting of the League was subsequently held in the Y. M. C. A., rooms, at which were present besides those mentioned above, Judge Codington, Councilmen Smith and Jenkins and Messrs Davis, Miller, White, Jessup, Kline, Compton, Jackson, VanWinkle, Graham, Woolston, Mallinson, Hallock, Huntsman, Demarest, Haven, Hardy, Kinney, Rogers, Barnes, Craighead, Waldron, Goodhue, Brett, Lyman, Haynes, Doane and Teel.

President Reed reported that the League's loss by the fire was between $2,500 and $3,000, with insurance of $1,700. The financial solidity of the association, he said, was shown by the fact that they could lose $1,000 so easy and not feel it in the least but be on hand ready to build again and anxious to begin at once. It was decided by a vote of those present to rent Laing's Hall temporarily, and billiard tables and other club conveniences will be put in at once. The next regular meeting of the League will be held there August 6. The Secretary was instructed to tender the thanks of the League to the firemen for their efforts and to the Y. M. C A., for the use of their rooms.

After the meeting the question of a new club house was informally discussed. A large number of the members seemed in favor of purchasing a valuable property on East Front street, offered them.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

The Rev. and Mrs. Dilts have gone to Peru, Mass., for a few weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. James C. Field, with James C. Jr., are visiting old Plainfield friends for a short time.

The family of I. C. Pierson, of Broadway, will spend the month of August at Pine Hill, in the Catskills.

Miss Etta Young, who has been visiting her aunt, Mrs. Huff, of Park avenue, returned to her home in Neshanic yesterday.

Mrs. A. M. Gillem and daughter, Miss Emma Gillem, of the Borough, left yesterday for a rest at Basking Ridge, Somerset county.

Julia A. Gavett of Plainfield, has transferred to Margaret Dermott, of this city, 7,676 square feet of land on New and Second streets, for $2,200.

Mr. and Mrs. John W. Murray, Miss Murray, and some of the boys, leave on Saturday for Lake George where they will live at the Marion House.

Among the fishermen at Barnegat, Monday, were three Plainfielders—First Ass't Postmaster F. A. Pope, J. Augustus Smith and Frank Hedden. They report a total catch of 167 weakfish.

Ex-Speaker — and next-Senator — Fred Marsh of Elizabeth, passed through Plainfield this morning on his way to Lebanon where an intricate buckwheat case will engage his attention.

The yacht "Hoo-doo" sailed blithely away from Boynton Beach, this morning, for a day's fishing cruise, with six Plainfielders aboard—Halsey Compton, Alburtus Swalm, Geo. W. Roekfellow, Randolph Stelle, Dr. E. W. Hedges and F. A. Dunham.

Mr. and Mrs. S. P. Dunn of East Seventh street, who are traveling in the West, have been heard from at Portland, Oregon, where they stopped after visiting Montana, Washington., the National Yellowstone Park, and other places. They will spend several weeks in the Yosemite Valley and at other famous California resorts, before starting for home.

"Camp Clearmount," on Halsey Island, Lake Hopatcong, is soon to be peopled with Plainfielders, whose tents are already prepared for their arrival to-morrow. Among the campers will be Mr. and Mrs. John H. Jackson, Dr. and Mrs. J. T. Fritts, Miss Fritts, Miss Robinson, Mr. and Mrs. Fred. Green, Miss Ethel Green, Volney Green, Mr. Hummer, Mr. Crawford, Mr. and Mrs. James Hardy. Three members of the Paterson Banjo Club will accompany them.

Six Hours for Bathing.

All signs promise perfect weather for next Friday when the Sunday schools of the First Presbyterian, Park Avenue Baptist and Congregational churches will go to Asbury Park for the day.

There will be bathing from 10 o'clock A. M. to 4 P. M. The trains will leave Plainfield at 8 o'clock in the morning, and return from Asbury Park at 8 in the evening.

Electricity's Dangers Attain.

John Mortimer, of this city, residing for the Summer at Asbury Park, while riding on the electric cars on Saturday was struck by a portion of a falling trolley and knocked insensible. He received a severe scalp wound, but is otherwise all right. The Asbury Park papers say that Mr. Mortimer thinks of making an effort to recover damages. It was a narrow escape from death.

RENOUNCING A THRONE.

Ceremony Through Which Archduchess Valerie Passed on Her Betrothal.

The renunciation of her successional rights by the Archduchess Valerie on her betrothal was performed in Vienna June 16. The Archbishop of Vienna, the highest court dignitaries, the members of the Privy Council, the Ministers, including three members of the Hungarian Cabinet, who came expressly for the purpose from Pesth, and the State Notary assembled in the Privy Council chamber of the Hofburg. Four Captains of the Imperial Body Guard stood on the right of the throne. On the stroke of twelve the Emperor entered the inner apartments, with the bride, her fiance, six of the Archdukes, the Duke of Cumberland, the Emperor's Adjutant-General, and the chamberlains of the bride and bridegroom. The Emperor, standing below the throne, invited the audience to witness the solemn ceremony. Then he mounted the throne, and Count Kalnoky, Minister of the Imperial House, read the deed of renunciation. The Archduchess Valerie, having made a deep reverence before her father, then went to a small table on the left of the throne, on which was a crucifix between two lighted wax tapers. The Archbishop presented the Gospels to her and she, taking off her right hand glove, laid two fingers on the book, and, holding the text of the oath in the other hand, repeated it audibly word by word as read by the Archbishop, including the oath proper at the end of the document. She then signed the act of renunciation, and again bowing low before the Emperor, took her seat on her father's right. The document was then signed by the bridegroom, the State notary affixed the seal of the couple and the ceremony was over. The bride was said to look "radiant with happiness." By the pragnatic sanction, published in 1724 by the Emperor Charles VI., it was declared that the different Austrian countries must never be divided, but that when the male line fails the female members of the house were to be admitted to succession, a provision that admitted the rule of Maria Theresa. The sanction furthermore provides that whenever a princess of the house of Hapsburg marries she must first renounce her rights to succession. Archduchess Valerie had the first claim to the throne, but now the first in the female line of succession is the Archduchess Elizabeth, the late Crown Prince's little daughter, who, if she marries, must renounce in her turn.

THE SNAKE CHARMER.

Manner in Which a Woman Handles Poisonous Reptiles.

Lulu La Toska is the name of the snake-charmer who handles the reptiles at Barnum's show. She is a Russian by birth, and has had control over snakes from her babyhood.

"How do you account for your power over snakes?" was asked by a Chicago Globe reporter at the close of a performance in which she had hung 450 pounds of live coils around her neck and body.

"It is a charm I have possessed since my birth. I was born to govern them, and the mark of a snake encircles me. Since two years old I have played with them. They have bitten me twice, but I am still alive, as you see."

"Where do you get the snakes?"

"They come from India. I am going to get thirty new ones in a few days. I lost one of the old ones I had had for fourteen years, in St. Louis. The stage fell on him and crushed him to death. Another one tried to bite me, and struck herself. She was deadly poison and died. They cost lots of money, from $150 to $500, and it's a big misfortune to have one die."

"How often do they eat?"

"Every three weeks usually, but the mean one that bit itself to death had not tasted any thing for a year and a half. Did you notice me tickle one of them under the chin? That's Emma. She likes it, too, and just lays her head back to enjoy it. She eats two chickens every week now. They are cross and don't eat when they are blind, which they are every six weeks. Then I have to touch them lightly so they will know when I am coming. If they turn their heads to look at me I pick them up, but if they stretch their heads away I let them alone, for they are ugly. We have to humor them like children."

"Is their bite poisonous?" asked the reporter.

"Yes; I handle an Indian bwarpython, one of the most poisonous snakes in the world. I also play with the black natter without any trouble."

A PECULIAR WOMAN.

An Aged Spinster Who Has Never Traveled Two Miles.

One of the most remarkable people in Georgia, according to the Macon Telegraph, is Miss Amanda Anderson of the East Macon district, near the Twiggs line.

Miss Anderson is sixty years old and is of perfectly sound mind, being even more than usually bright. Her eccentricity shows itself in her desire to remain in one place and never go beyond a certain limit. The longest journey she has ever made was from the place where she was born to the place where she now resides, a distance of a mile and a half. She lives within three miles of the East Tennessee, Virginia & Georgia railroad and yet she has never seen a train of cars. Among the other many things which she has yet to see for the first time are a store-house, or a building built of brick. She claims also that she has never seen but one painted house.

Miss Anderson's ideas of religion are necessarily vague, as she has never been inside a church or listened to a sermon or a prayer, unless it was before she can remember, when it is possible that her mother carried her to church.

Although Miss Anderson's nearest neighbor lives within three hundred yards of her she has never seen his house but once in three years. Her well ran dry last season and she was forced to go to her neighbor's well for water. She appeared perfectly lost and said she had some trouble in finding her way back home.

Arlie Latham Released.

CHICAGO, Ill., July 30.—Arlie Latham, the third-baseman for the Chicago Players' Club, was released by the the management last night at his own request. He is now negotiating with the Cleveland Players' Club, and will probably sign with them. Williamson will continue at third for the local club and Bastian will play at short.

Chance for the Lightweights.

NEW YORK, July 30.—A despatch from Secretary Gerlock of the Erie County Athletic Club was received here, in which that club offers a $2,000 purse for a finish fight between Patsy Kerrigan of Boston with Jack McAuliffe, Jimmie Carroll, Billy Myer or Andy Bowen, at 133 pounds.

Two Boys Drowned.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., July 30.—George Hubler, aged 13 years and William Morrow, aged 9 years, were drowned at Pittston last evening. The bodies had not been recovered this forenoon.

Prince George Expected Friday.

HALIFAX, July 30.—It is expected the Thrush with Prince George on board will arrive here Friday.

120 Miners Killed.

PARIS, July 30.—By an explosion in the Pelissier coal mine at St. Etienne 120 miners were killed and 35 injured.

Ass'gnee's Notice to Creditors.

PAINTED MOTTOES ON COWS.

But the Cows Thought the Colors Good to Eat, and the Girls' Papas Have to Pay the Freight.

The friends of two Plainfield society girls who are spending the Summer in the rural districts are telling among themselves an interesting story in which the girls themselves figure prominently and in which two creatures of the cow breed are similarly conspicuous.

Of course the girls don't like cows. When Plainfield's sweet, innocent, trustful damsels go into the mountains and meet those lovely Summer young men who people the hotel and boarding-house verandas with their broad bargain-counter smiles, their winsome bangs and their soft peach-fuzze lips, those same fair maidens grow wonderfully shy of the great soft-eyed creatures they call "so sweet and pensive" when they see them in West Seventh street stables or on East Front street meadows, and the gay young men acquire a deal of usefulness and develop a vast mythical bravery which the charming coy ones are nothing wroth to idolize—for a time.

The two girls of the present story have already been rescued times innumerable from the savage jaws of the voracious bovines of the hills whose heights they roam. It had become a great game among the sojourners of the place to find out who at the end of the season should have the greatest number of "rescues" to her credit. Suddenly the Plainfield girls became imbued with a new idea. They would achieve a feat which for daring should be unsurpassed. They would tame the cows, not faint in their presence. The old fainting process was becoming tiresome. They began to whisper about that they were no longer afraid of cows, that their old-time fear had completely vanished; and all gallant eyes were turned admiringly on them. But jealous voices said they didn't believe it; they wanted proof. The star-eyed beauties from Plainfield flashed forth equal to the demand. They said they would give visible evidence of having touched the most horrid cows of the neighborhood. Touch them! The other feminines shrieked at the idea. The two brave ones smiled sweetly and walked away with all the young men.

That night when all was still and starlight two fair young maids stole across the fields to where two of the most "ferocious" of the mountain roamers stood. The one bovine was a cow too advanced in years to kill, and too much of a rheumatic skeleton to deserve the reputation as a "terror" it possessed among the women folks. The other was a great gentle ox which was too considerate and humane to harm a toad, but whose size had often affrighted the ladies.

Each of the damsels trudging towards the two "cows" had paint brushes and tubes of paint, and after sundry edible gifts and pattings the two creatures patiently submitted to having their sides elaborately decorated. "This cow won't hurt you" is the motto they painted on each broad side of the ox, and "This cow won't hurt you" they painted also on the bony, cadaverous sides of the attenuated bovine. They bordered the legends with roses and lilies and what-not, in gayest colors, and went home to sleep the sleep of beauty and innocence triumphant.

In early morning the owner of the decorated live stock was awakened by a great bellowing and moaning in his door yard. Arising he found his favorite ox broken out in brilliant hues and dying from the effects of the paint he had licked off and swallowed. Later he found his fossil cow dead in the field. He soon identified the fair young artists, and their papas have sent to them, in response to bills they have received for "two cows killed," stern letters stating that if they wish to embark in the butchering business they may have slaughter houses built at home.

The two girls, however, are happy. They are the heroines of the mountains. They have touched—actually touched—two cows.

How the City's Biggest Names Adorn Green Grocers' Wares.

Plainfield husbands will be gratified to learn that in some of the local produce stores the practice of marking goods conspicuously with the names of their purchasers prevails to a considerable extent. The custom has of late been especially noticeable in the matter of watermelons, and great specimens of the green-rinded fruit appear in long prominent rows on the sidewalks, each one stabbed to the heart with a stick bearing a big lettered placard reading "John Eglantine Smith—sold," or "Edward Stuart FitzAdams Jones—sold." Only the name is always that of some well known citizen. The richer a man—and hence the more desirable a customer—he is, the bigger appear the letters of his name, which, whenever its completeness is obtainable, is given in full.

Some of the housewives are finding out the advertisement and are seeking to have it stopped.

A Funny Thing Makes Mr. Gisser Laugh.

Nicholas Gisser of Netherwood, sauntered with his horse and wagon across North avenue, this morning, directly in the path of a big crowded four-horse stage, and compelled the stage-driver to turn his horses up on the sidewalk in front of Force's Hotel and nearly upset the stage. Mr. Gisser smiled.

Easily made. A cheap and delicious drink for 25 cents can be made from Hires' Root Beer Packages. Five gallons. Be careful that you get the real, genuine Hires'. There are a number of would-be Root Beer packages on the market.

What Thatcher Has.

The Hartford Courant says that Thatcher has got with him this season some of the best known people in the minstrel business. The same paper says of the show:

John A. Coleman did some amusing and graceful grotesque dancing. Thomas Le Mack made a hit in a recitation and a song, in both of which he gave some clever imitations of dialect. George Thatcher and John Wild handled the ends well, the first singing a topical song, which was loudly applauded. Farther along on the programme he gave his usual monologue, which was, as usual, very funny. The costumes worn in the first part were handsome and picturesque. Frank LaMondue's exhibition of wire walking was up to the best performances in that line. Some wonderful feats of balancing were done by Rodo Leo Rapoli, with a ladder. He climbs up to its top, while the upper end swings freely in the air. He balances himself on top of it, plays the cornet and does various juggling feats, with nothing to keep the ladder upright except his skill in balancing it. The performance almost makes the beholder dizzy. A well executed and prettily arranged dance is "The Fete of the Gondoliers," in which George W. Lewis, Thomas LeMack, Jay Quigley, James Rooney, Samuel Johnson and Joseph Kelly take part. Wood and Shephard, the musical mokes, made much amusement. The performance concluded with a burlesque ball game.

This Is Exactly Our Case, Too.

(From the Elizabeth Journal.)

"We don't get our newspapers regularly. They come from two days to a week late, and then we get several in a bunch." This is the usual form of complaint received during the Summer months, in nearly every newspaper office outside the great cities like New York and Philadelphia. The Journal office is in receipt of a number of them, and has instituted inquiry to see if the cause of complaint cannot be removed. Two things are certain. The Journals are sent regularly every day from this office; and they are not held back in the Elizabeth postoffice. But when they get outside of the city limits, and particularly when they get within the limits of the city of New York, it is beyond the power of a New Jersey citizen to tell what becomes of them. So far as we can learn the delay is in the New York office, and it is to that point that our inquiries have been directed. There has never yet been a system devised that would meet the Summer demand for mail facilities. People go away to country places, the regular streams of mail matter are diverted for a time, and the postal facilities cannot handle them in good order. But if there is any way of having the Journals forwarded as regularly as they are mailed, we will have it done.

A Genuine Case of Abuse.

Whether or not all the charges made against Plainfield's hackmen are true, certain it is that many of the Jehus are very obstreperous and unruly. It was only recently that a woman from Newark came to visit a brother, a well-known Plainfielder. She had no sooner reached the sidewalk at the North avenue station than a crowd of hackmen pounced on her, surrounded her, swarmed all over her, pulled her satchel away from her repeatedly, and several times grabbed her baggage check from her hand, despite her protests and expostulations that she didn't want to hire any of them and preferred not to ride in rowdies' cabs.

She engaged, after with the greatest difficulty getting away from the persistent, clamoring mob, a quiet, inoffensive man, who had stood quietly by his horse some distance away. Then the disappointed ones wanted to jump on the orderly hackman and break his collar-bone, and despite the fact that a policeman was at hand they came near doing it. The woman nearly fainted, and was ill for some time from the shock. Too many such genuine cases of abuse and insult are reported.

Orient Guests in the Borough.

Three natives of Damascus visited North Plainfield, last evening, and 700 people from borough and city turned out to greet them. The visitors from foreign shores had become converts to Christianity under the missionary work of Dr. Jessup and wife while at Damascus. They were present in Warren Mission chapel last night as guests of the Mission's Young People's Society for Christian Endeavor. They gave an interesting description of the life and habits of the people of their country, whose various costumes they wore and exhibited. They also sang some of the monotonous chant-like songs of their land. All were greatly interested in the exhibition.

If This Was Only So!

(From the New Brunswick News.)

Plainfield's city park, which has been an eyesore to the public since its establishment several years ago, has been renovated and put in good condition for the first time. The Common Council will cause the park to be lighted by electricity, and public band concerts are proposed.

What it Means.

To the man or woman who has never been ill, the word "health" is meaningless. But to the one who has suffered and despaired, health appears as a priceless boon. To the thousands of unfortunate women who are suffering from some of the many forms of weaknesses peculiar to their sex, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription holds forth the promise of a speedy restoration of this "priceless boon."

KIT CARSON FOOLED.

Indians Disguised as Wolves Deceive the Famous Scout.

Colonel Inman Repeats a Tale Told by the Old Frontiersman—How a Band of Indians Surprised a Body of Uncle Sam's Troops.

One night, nearly twenty-five years ago, I was camped with Kit Carson, Lucien B. Maxwell, General Carleton of the regular army and a couple of Apache Indians, half way up the rugged sides of the Raton Range, in the Rockies, writes Colonel Inman in the Kansas City Star. It was terribly cold, although mid-summer, and we huddled around a little fire of pine knots, many thousand feet above the sea level, close to the timber limit. We had no blankets, and, of course, were compelled to sit up through the long hours, smoke and tell stories to keep awake.

The night was very dark, there was no moon, and fortunately Carson was in a good humor for talking—usually he was the most reticent of men concerning himself. Maxwell made a casual remark in relation to some isolated peak near by, just discernible in the darkness, connecting the locality with some trouble he had with the Utes ten or a dozen years before, and his story opened Kit's mouth, who said it reminded him of one of the worst "difficults" he ever got into, and the only time when the Indians really "fooled" him. Kit always called his troubles with the savages "difficults." So Kit rolled a fresh corn-shuck cigarette, while the rest of us filled our briar-woods and listened attentively to the famous old man—Maxwell, of course, was already familiar with his early life, but the story was new to the General and myself.

It was in 1843; both he and Maxwell were principal guides and hunters with General John C. Fremont on his expedition to the mouth of the Columbia. When in the Sierra Nevadas, the General sent Carson one day in advance of the main column to select a suitable campaign place, where the expedition was to remain several days for the purpose of taking some astronomical observations. The essentials were good water, timber and game, yet near an elevated point where there were not too many trees to shut out a fair view of the heavens. Kit started on his mission, moving so that he would not be more than two or three days in advance of the General, "blazing" his way, and setting up other signs agreed upon, by which his trail could be easily followed. The second afternoon out, it must have been near the crest of the Snowy range that marks the boundary between what is now Nevada and California according to Carson's description, he found a spot that fulfilled the General's requirements perfectly. It was a heavily timbered bot*tom, through which ran a pebbly brook,* above which, at an elevation of only a few hundred feet, was a hill almost denuded by trees, with a flat prairie of several acres in extent—just the place to use instruments to advantage.

Kit camped in the timbered bottom on account of the intensely cold nights of the high altitude, making a big fire of logs, by which all the men slept, feet towards it, rolled up in their blankets, he volunteering to stand guard the first portion of the watch. He walked around, smoking cigarettes, until he got warmed through, then he would stand in the shadow of one of the big trees near the men, keeping his eye skinned, as he called it. Some time after the men were all asleep—perhaps an hour and a half had elapsed since the last smoker had knocked the ashes out of his pipe, rolled himself up and was snoring lustily—the wolves commenced to make a terrible noise in the timber. Kit said he could hear them growl and snap their jaws and fight and run through the brush, apparently coming nearer to the fire as they cavorted around. Pretty soon, Kit said he could see them playing together, but he did not want to shoot at them and drive them away; he knew the report of his rifle would only wake up the men who were sleeping so nicely after their hard day's march; besides he knew they were harmless, and were only attracted by the fire and the game the men had hung up in the trees; that the animals would play around there until the camp was abandoned in the morning and then come in to pick up what scraps they could find.

So Kit paid no more attention to the wolves, only to see them play and snap their teeth as he stood in the shadow of a big pine tree, where they couldn't see him. Presently, Kit said, they came nearer, and "all of a suddint them wolves riz right up and fired a shower of arrows into the sleeping men; they was Indians, dressed in wolves, skins, and they made the snaps of the jaws with two bones held in their hands."

Kit said he was never deceiv d that way before nor afterward; he thought they were wolves surely, and if it had been daylight, "spect he could 'a' seen 'em just a frothin'." One or two of the men were hit, but not seriously. If the Indians had had rifles the result would have been disastrous, probably. The men all jumped up, of course, but could not draw a bead on the Indians (on account of the darkness), who scampered away safely in the night; yet there was not more sleep.

A Pen Picture of Parnell.

Charles Stewart Parnell usually wears a loosely-fitting cutaway coat. He gets all the wear out of a coat that there is in it. He wears it until it is shiny, then he wears it until it is shabby, then he keeps on wearing it. Parnell has grown very old-looking in the past few years. The bald spot on his head has increased perceptibly in size, and the gray hairs in his beard are growing more and more numerous. He feels the responsibility of his position keenly, and his health has become impaired under its weight. There is a constantly troubled expression upon his face, and he seldom smiles or indulges in light conversation. After he becomes worn out with work he disappears, sometimes for weeks, and no one knows where to look for him. He drops as completely out of the world as if he had dropped into his grave.

NEW KIND OF PET.

Rocks Struck It and Found It Uncommonly Interesting.

Rocks is a pug, well-bred, calm and dignified. He never does any thing that is not good form for a pug, except to catch flies. He likes to lie on the porch and enjoy the light and air, and on such occasions he is particularly resentful of the annoyance caused by flies. It would be sheer robbery of any fly life insurance company to take out a policy on the life of a fly that it was known would ever attempt to light on Rocks' nose. Rocks does not look like a dangerous dog, according to the New York Sun, and when he is asleep, or half asleep, it seems impossible for him to move suddenly. Many a fly has lost his life by trusting to this appearance; there has been prospective satisfaction at the thought of biting so fat a dog, and in the giddy fly's mind an added pleasure over the chance to worry one so self-satisfied and decorous; but when Rocks, awakening without warning from what appears a profound slumber, snaps, the fly is lost.

It is to be regretted that Rocks' information concerning flying things is not more extended; if it were he would have been spared an experience on Thursday that for a time seriously disturbed him. While he was lying on the porch a wasp came along. It was just an ordinary wasp, but like all wasps, self-assertive and defiant, and, as subsequent events demonstrated, its storage battery was full and its machinery in order. It sailed around Rocks' nose with smooth recklessness for fifteen or twenty seconds. Rocks seemed asleep, but the wasp really didn't care whether he was or not. Rocks thought it was a particularly ill-mannered and overgrown fly. He snapped at it and got it.

About three seconds later Rocks stood up; he looked careworn and his tail was out of curl. He turned his head slowly toward the open door, and looked as though he thought he would go inside for awhile, where the flies were less intrusive. He stood undecided for a moment, and then

The above diagram of a vacuum is inserted to aid in conveying some idea of how suddenly Rocks moved. He went so fast that he left a hole in the air. In that moment while he had stood irresolute the resolute wasp had hooked on its storage battery and started every thing at once, buzz saws, gang saws, electric light plant, pulp machinery, and all, and Rocks jumped so quickly that he was invisible until he landed ten feet away.

It is mean to laugh at a dog, and Rocks knows that his friends do not delight in his discomfiture; and if the somersault that he began to turn immediately after his first landing had been simply the ordinary flip-flaps, either forward or backward, no mention would be made of them here, but they were of the variegated compound type, half over one way and then back, three-quarters and reverse, both ways at once, and all accompanied by a general centrifugal movement that threatened to distribute Rocks in space.

In another moment Rocks came down and opened his mouth. This was a wise thing to do, and while it seems doubtful that it was the result of reflection, yet it may be that Rocks had given the subject such hurried consideration as was possible under the circumstances, and, having shown this fly that he could catch it, had concluded that there are times even in a pug dog's life when it is the part of wisdom to concede a point, especially a point of this nature. When he opened his mouth the wasp flew out and disappeared, and with his tail in full curl and his natural dignity restored, Rocks walked back to his accustomed place.

DUEL WITH LARIATS.

Exciting Battle to the Death Between Infuriated Mexican Cowboys.

A novel duel was fought near Moore's station between two Mexican cowboys named Jose Carrasco and Manuel Bosco, says the Louisville Courier-Journal. Carrasco was in possession of a fine mottled cow which Bosco claimed belonged to him and had been stolen some time previous. The two men met in the roadway. They were both on horseback and their lariats hung from the pommels of their saddles. Bosco hailed Carrasco and demanded the return of his cow. The latter became furious at the suggestion that he had come into possession of a stolen cow, and his Mexican blood began to boil. Words of a sulphurous nature began to pass between the cowboys, when Bosco called Carrasco a liar.

Scarcely had the words been spoken when quick as a flash the irate Carrasco grasped his lasso from his saddle, and, twirling it with a quick movement over his head, sent it with a swish toward Bosco's neck. The latter ducked his head and grabbed his lariat as he did so.

Then began one of the fiercest bloodless battles that has ever been recorded. Up and down the roadway the two horsemen dashed, the lassoes of the duelists flying and circling in the air. Not a word was spoken. As fast as the lassoes fell short of their mark they were jerked quickly together, and with a twirl over the head each cowboy endeavored to encircle the other's neck.

The horses were flecked with foam, and both of them dashed away in the same direction, seeming to realize the fight to the death going on between the riders. On sped the horses, but not a word spoke the fighters. Bosco finally turned his eyes from the other cowboy for an instant, and, quick as a flash, Carrasco dropped the noose of his lariat over his adversary's neck, swung his pony around with a jerk, and putting spurs to the animal, started off in the opposite direction.

Bosco was jerked from his horse's back so suddenly that his neck was broken, and he was dragged over the ground at full speed for over a mile. The victor disengaged his lariat from his victim's neck and coolly rode into town.

A New Relationship.

"How is she your sister? By marriage?" "N-no," stammered Chappie. "Quite the r-reverse, you know. B-by a re-refusal of m-m-marriage."

The Race is Always to the Swift
IF HE RIDES A

"Why?"
"Because, it is so light that every ounce of pressure on the pedals tells."
"How light is it?"
"It weighs only 33 pounds."
"How much do other safeties weigh?"
"From 46 to 51 pounds."
"That's only a difference of 13 to 18 pounds."
"ONLY! Why, it means that you must propel that many pounds more with each revolution of the wheel, and there are 400 revolutions in each mile."
"Is that the reason you consider the CATFORD cheaper at $140 than any other Safety at $135?"
"That is one of many reasons."

VACATION DAYS.

The school-bell rings with cheerful sound,
To hasten the slow, late comer;
"To-morrow we'll play,"
It seems to say,
"Hurrah for the first vacation day!
Hurrah for a merry summer!"

The faithful bell, now the school is done,
Must pause in its daily swinging;
Does it miss the noise
Of the girls and boys
And long to echo vacation joys
With a peal of its wildest ringing?

Soon, over the country far and wide,
There are ripples of happy laughter;
For the children know
Where the berries grow,
Where the purling streams thro' the meadows flow
And the hurrying brooks speed after.

They know where the mountains lift their heads,
By the great sky-curtain bounded;
And their voices soar
To the craggy steep
And wake the echoes from out their sleep,
With shouts that are thrice resounded.

They know where the sea lies blue and calm
In the bright midsummer weather;
And they love to stand
On the shining sand,
Where the tide rolls up—and then, hand in hand,
To plunge in the wave together.

They love to loiter in leafy woods
And list to the squirrel's scolding,
As they climb to a seat
Near his safe retreat,
Or fall on a couch, all spicy sweet,
Of feathery ferns unfolding.

But, by and by, in the autumn days,
Ere the bee has deserted the clover
When the sound of the bell
Shall rise and swell,
Will the little folk laugh—now who can tell—
To hear that vacation is over!

—Anna M. Pratt, in St. Nicholas.

BACK FROM EUROPE.

The Changes Wrought by Three Months' Absence.

"Will" Goodfellow Is Surprised and Disappointed When He Meets His Relatives on Their Return—How They Greet Him.

Scene, one of the piers in the North river. A big transatlantic steamer is coming into her birth. On the deck are John Moneybags, of Chicago, Mrs. Moneybags and Miss Ethel Moneybags. On the pier is Will Goodfellow, second cousin of Miss Moneybags. Mr. Goodfellow's eyes are eagerly searching for his friends, and when they light upon the group a bright smile breaks over his face, and tearing his hat from his head he waves it a little undecorously. Mr. Moneybags whips a big handkerchief from his pocket and waves it vigorously, but Mrs. M. lays her hand on his arm and says something to him in a low tone. Mr. M. looks disgusted and replaces the handkerchief in his pocket. A slight tinge dyes Miss Ethel's cheeks as she catches sight of her handsome cousin, but she bows to him with a certain reserve and stateliness. Cousin Will looks surprised, but continues to smile happily until he finds his opportunity to dash along the gang-plank and reached the returning travelers.

"My dear old Uncle John," he bursts out, feelingly, seizing the older man's hand and pressing it warmly.

"God bless you, my boy," cries the other, returning the pressure with a hearty squeeze. "It does my heart good to see an honest American face again and to feel less like a stone statue."

Will has turned to his aunt, prepared to give her an old-fashioned kiss. She turns her cheek to him with great dignity and he touches it coldly, his ardor checked by this frigid reception.

"Well, Ethel," he cries, blushing with pleasure and taking her by the hands as if to kiss her, too. "I'm glad you're all back—mighty glad," he adds, frankly.

But Miss Ethel starts back a little to avoid his proffered salute and blushes furiously, at the same time pressing his fingers not unkindly.

"Plague it," cries Cousin Will, in amazement. "What's the matter, Ethel? What have I done? Are you ashamed to kiss a fellow because you've been to Europe?"

"But on the deck and before everybody," says Miss Ethel, looking a little as if she were sorry that they were on deck, and her mother nods approval.

"On the deck!" Will bursts out. "Why, Ethel, aren't you my— Am I not— Plague it, aren't we engaged? Weren't you glad enough to kiss me good-bye when you went away three months ago?"

Miss Ethel apparently is ready to relent, but Will has seized on several pieces of small luggage and works off his indignation by piling them vigorously before him. Then the party starts down the gang-plank, Will sullen and silent; Mr. Moneybags mournful, Mrs. M. haughty and with an evident contempt for the cosmopolitan bustle and excitement on the big pier; Miss Ethel rather thoughtful.

Will conducts them to the street and assists Mrs. and Miss Moneybags into the carriage.

"You would better drive to the hotel," he says, darkly. "I'll look after the baggage and meet you there."

"No, my boy," says Mr. Moneybags, doggedly, "we'll wait for you. I'm glad to see you, Will, if the others aren't. And, Lucy, I'm ashamed of you to treat Will this way. As for you, Ethel, you are ungrateful. You don't deserve him."

"Oh, papa," answers Miss Ethel, faintly, "you know I'm glad to see him. Of course we shall wait for you, Will."

"You seem to be glad," grumbles Mr. M., as Mr. Goodfellow hurries away. "If you had acted like this when we were young, Lucy, we wouldn't have taken this trip to Europe together. I shall wait for Will if it takes him two hours," and he settles back in his seat with a wrathful countenance. Ethel's eyes send a grateful glance to his, but he does not see it.

"Ethel did just right," says Mrs. Moneybags. "I hope my daughter would not kiss even the man to whom she is engaged in public."

"Fiddlesticks."

"We must have some regard for conventionalities, even if we are in America."

"Even if we are in America!" he retorts with scorn. "D-er-pray, madam, where were you born? Where have you lived all your life? Where did John Moneybags get his money, that you should get all your new-fangled notions in three months? Even in America! Thank heavens Will is an American and my lady, Miss Ethel, ought to be prouder to kiss him on a steamer's deck than to look at your puny, dangling English aristocrats out of a hot-house. In America!—"

"Don't, papa," cries Miss Ethel.

"Oh, I won't. I've said my say and that's the end of it, but Will shall see that I'm proud of him if you aren't," and Mr. Moneybags closes his firm mouth with determination.

"My dear," continues Mrs. Moneybags, imperturbably, "because we are Americans is no reason why we should not confess to the superior virtues of other countries."

No answer.

"Ethel is my daughter as well as yours, and it is my duty to approve her conduct."

No answer.

"As for Will, I think that he appreciates that I have his best interests at heart."

A little snort of disdain, but no answer.

"And Ethel, sir, I must say, you yourself do not appreciate when you say that she does not deserve him. You forget, perhaps, how much she was sought after, how the best people in England felt honored to meet her."

"Money."

"That, sir, is your American way of estimating every thing by dollars and cents."

No answer.

"Ethel need not look to Will for a husband, if you please."

Miss Ethel stirs uneasily.

"Why don't you tell him that and have done with it?" asks Mr. Moneybags, curtly.

Miss Ethel murmurs something inaudible and blushes. Her father sees the roses in her cheeks and is somewhat mollified. Her eyes are looking out the carriage door.

"He is coming," interrupts Miss Ethel, hurriedly, the roses becoming brighter.

"It's all fixed," says Will, cheerfully. "Now for the hotel."

"Sit down by me, my boy," urges Mr. Moneybags, laying his hand kindly on Will's.

Miss Ethel looks at her cousin's handsome face. He sits down at his uncle's side. Every one is silent for a moment as the carriage drives off.

"Your streets are very muddy," Mrs. Moneybags remarks, casting a critical glance out the window.

"Yes, they're American streets," retorts Mr. Moneybags.

"Now," continues Mrs. Moneybags, not heeding her husband's sarcasm, "in England—"

"Bother England!" groans Mr. M——

Miss Ethel looks appealingly at Will. His eyes are looking sorrowfully at his aunt.

"I arrived here last night from home to meet you," says Will, still looking at his aunt. "I thought it would please you. We missed you very much."

"I wish you could have gone with us," she replies, a trifle condescendingly.

Miss Ethel waits for his reply a little eagerly.

"And you, Uncle John," says Will, heartily, "the office never goes right when you are away."

Uncle John beams with pleasure.

The conversation turns here and Miss Ethel withdraws further into her corner with dignity.

"And here's the hotel," cries Will, jumping out with American alacrity. Mrs. Moneybags steps out carefully and impressively. Ethel comes forth gracefully and lightly, barely touching her cousin's hand with her finger tips. The old man stamps his feet sturdily on the pavement with great satisfaction.

"This is a sidewalk broad enough for people to pass one another," he says.

Will leaves his aunt and cousin in the reception-room and makes for the door to see about the rooms which he had telegraphed for three weeks beforehand. Mr. M. follows him.

"You won't be long?" asks Miss Ethel, looking at him with a friendly light in her eye.

"Just a minute," answers Will, not very cordially.

"Well, Will, give me your hand again," cries Mr. M., wringing his arm affectionately. "God bless America!"

"Thank you for that, uncle."

"Well, we've got the world's fair, my boy," cries the old man, with pride in his honest, keen eye.

"Oh, hang the fair," answers Will, gloomily.

"We're all wrong somehow," replies the Chicago millionaire. "It's that Europe. Darn Europe," he adds mournfully.

"And so say I," mutters the younger man.—N. Y. Tribune.

Sworn Back at Him.

Mrs. Binks is a pleasant, mild-mannered little woman, says the Washington Post, who is almost heart-broken over the fact that her husband is addicted to the use of profanity.

"Why don't you swear back at him?" said her sister one day.

"I couldn't do any thing like that," said Mrs. Binks. But her sister is a woman with much force of character, and succeeded in exacting a promise that this rigorous method would be tried.

Mr. Binks came home rather tired and not in a very amiable mood.

"Well," he said, as he glanced over the table disgustedly, "if this ain't the slimmest meal I ever saw I'll be d——."

"So—so will I, John," rejoined Mrs. Binks, meekly.

Make Life Worth Living.

The world is not made for a tomb, but a garden. You are to be a seed, not a death. Plant yourself and you will sprout, bury yourself and you will decay. For a dead opportunity there is no resurrection. The only enjoyment, the only rest to be attained in this world must be secured on the wing. Each day brings its own benefit, but it has none to spare. What escapes to-day has escaped forever. To-morrow has no overflow to atone for the yesterdays

EARLY STAGE-COACHING.

How the Daily Line Was Started and Managed.

Government Assistance in the Enterprise —History of the Scheme—The Great Old Concord Coaches That Were in the Service.

HERE is a man in this town, now hale and hearty at the age of seventy-five, who was a member of the firm that started the first daily stage that ever ran from the Missouri river to Salt Lake City. He is Colonel Alex Majors, who was the founder of the famous pony express. Colonel Majors, as a member of the firm of Russell, Majors & Waddell, worked for years in the interest of securing daily stages. It was his idea that if stages left the Missouri river for the west and Salt Lake City for the east every day the business facilities of the vast trans-Missouri region would be wonderfully improved. It was found impossible to put on a line of daily stages for so long a distance without some Government subsidy, and for a long time Congress was appealed to for assistance. At length the postal service allowed $800,000 per annum for a daily delivery of the mails at the Missouri river from the west and at Sacramento from the east. Of this sum $400,000 went to Russell, Majors & Waddell for the service east of Salt Lake, while the other half was paid to Butterfield & Co., contractors, on the other side of the range.

It was in the fall of 1859 that the first stage of the daily line left Atchison, Kan., then a prosperous and promising young city, a leading boat landing and a formidable rival of the then feeble and struggling Kansas City. There was a great deal of rejoicing over the coming of the new enterprise and with many good wishes and amidst the shouts of the assembled populace, the first coach whipped gayly off. The new line marked an epoch in western methods of travel. The spring before a line had been put on from Leavenworth to Denver by Jones & Russell. The stages ran spasmodically and the firm encountered trouble from the outset. This line made only a few trips when the Indians became so hostile that it was impossible to guarantee a traveler safe passage to the mining camp of Denver. The route lay from Leavenworth up Smoky Hill fork and directly across the plains to Colorado's capital. It was dangerous and expensive, for the Indians stole nearly every team of mules that the company put on the line. The concern at length fell into the hands of Russell, Majors & Waddell, with all accompanying rights and franchises. That pioneer firm then bought the Hockaday & Liggett company, operating an irregular and unsatisfactory line of small coaches from St. Joseph to Salt Lake on a schedule of twenty-two days. This company had no post stations and the same animals that started from a terminus would frequently struggle through nearly to the other end of the line.

With the two companies out of the field and a guarantee of Government assistance, Russell, Majors & Waddell went to work with vigor in their daily stage enterprise. They built splendidly-equipped, strong and warm post stations every ten or twelve miles, established divisions with superintendents in charge and announced a schedule time of ten days from Atchison to Salt Lake, a distance of 1,200 miles. The coaches left each terminus daily and there was never a hitch in the good time announced. At first the route taken by this through line was that known as the old South pass route, along the California trail by Fort Fetterman and Fort Laramie, thence up by the North Platte and the Sweetwater, through the South pass to Fort Bridger, across Green river, through Echo canyon, over the big mountains and down Emigration canyon to Salt Lake City. The daily Denver stage was soon put on, running from Denver to Julesburg, where it joined the through Salt Lake coach and delivered and received passengers. Later the entire line was made to run by Denver and the Julesburg branch was taken off. The route then lay through the Cheyenne pass, down Bitter creek to Green river, thence to Salt Lake. This route was fully eighty miles south of that originally used.

About eighty coaches were used in this service. They were large, strongly-built vehicles, known in old staging days as the Concord coach. Each one cost about eight hundred dollars and was especially fitted for the heavy work required of it. Nine passengers could be accommodated with ease on the inside of each. They were softly cushioned and were altogether the finest stages even run in the West. Each stage was drawn by four fine, strong Kentucky mules, and experienced, reliable drivers were put into the service. They received good pay, were fearless and intelligent and an accident was a rarity.

The same firm that operated and made such a success of the pony express at its own expense, stopping the doughty little animals only when the telegraph came, also made the coaching a success. Noted characters soon found that the Salt Lake & Denver daily line was the only reliable route to the West and all of them bought their tickets that way. Atchison soon became a prominent place from which overland travelers started Westward and its future was believed to have been made. The railroads came all too soon for the town's prosperity, however, and the splendid Concord coaches were retired or else sent farther west to the end of the great iron railroad. Colonel Majors delights to talk of the old days of stage coaching. To the Times reporter he said the other day:

"It all seems so strange that our fine old coaches are no more, for travel by them was comfortable and full of charms. In the whole time in which we operated our through daily line we were never once molested by Indians or road agents, as the highwaymen of the West were called. We never lost one of the Government mail pouches and never killed a passenger. Senator Gwynn, who was such an active worker in the interest of the pony express, had no connection with our stage line, although he felt a lively concern in its workings. I do not think the Senator was killed in a duel with the famous Broderick, for, if my memory serves me, he died in the New York Hotel, New York, of old age. My partners in the stage line enterprise are dead, Mr. W. B. Waddell having passed away at his home in Lexington, Mo., in September, 1871. Mr. W. H. Russell died in the spring of the same year at the home of his son in Palmyra, Marion County, Mo."

The first general superintendent of this famous old stage coach line was Benjamin Ficklin, a Westerner, whom all the West knew in the fifties. He knew every foot of the great trans-Missouri country and the choice was a wise one. Ficklin managed the company well and then drifted to something better. When the railroads pushed the big Kentucky mules and the Concord coaches out of the way Ficklin went East. He made money in Washington and died in the capital city. His death resulted from the swallowing of a fish bone. Jack Gilmore was a division agent at Salt Lake. He remained in that position as long as the stages ran, when he moved to the mouth of the Echo canyon on Weaver river. He lives in that section yet and his house overlooks the moss-grown trail over which the stages rolled so gayly thirty years ago. Luke Benham was another division agent. His headquarters were at the North Platte division. Benham died soon after the stages stopped. Hank, the celebrated driver, whose joke on Horace Greeley has been immortalized by Mark Twain, once drove for the daily Salt Lake line, although it was over the coast range that he made Horace take in his head.

Artemus Ward traveled in the Russell, Majors & Waddell stages, and Colonel Majors remembers him as the most congenial of companions on a long "cross-country" journey. Horace Greeley often rode on the daily Denver line and Schuyler Colfax was once an honored traveler in a special stage. All celebrities of the '50's rode in the handsome Concords, for it was the unquestioned leading route to the far West. There are perhaps less than six of the old stages in existence now, and they are running on some short, unimportant line in the mountains, all battered and worn, little suggesting the glories of the days when the fare from Atchison to Denver was fifty dollars, with twenty dollars added to Salt Lake. —Kansas City Times.

ANCIENT GREEK RACE.

A Tribe Claiming to Be Direct Descendants of the Soldiers of Xenophon.

In the little essays sent to the State Department, the Consuls of the United States occasionally leave the beaten track of commercial statistics and give us a little ethnical study. Consul Jewett, in discussing the Turkish province of Trebizond, refers to the existence of a peculiar colony of people residing in this region who have a claim upon the attention of every student of the classics. He says: Some forty miles south of Trebizond there is a community which is highly interesting to the student of history and of sociology. When the "ten thousand," on the famous retreat by Xenophon, passed through this country, a portion of the army was cut off from the main body and left behind. They were well treated by the surrounding tribes, intermarried with them, and settled down permanently in a community of their own. The people now living in the district referred to, included in some nine villages, claim to be the direct descendants of those soldiers of Xenophon. Their language is Greek and they profess the Christian religion, though under the pressure of the Moslem conquest they nominally adopted Mohammedanism. Thirty years ago they formally declared themselves Christians, but, on the other hand, many of them bear Mohammedan names and in every village there is a mosque. As Christian subjects in the Ottoman Empire they are exempt from military service, paying a head tax instead, and the anomalous position these people hold frequently causes difficulties with the authorities. Their local customs, dialects, traditions and mixed religion offer an interesting field for investigation and study.—Phrenological Journal.

FRESH FACTS AND FANCIES.

ALUMINUM is said to answer very well for sextants, mining instruments and other similar purposes where strength, accuracy and lightness are desirable qualities.

A PIECE of leather in a New York store marked "walrus-hide" weighs forty pounds, is one inch thick and is as hard as an oak plank. Circular pieces are cut from it to make wheels with which metals are polished. Walrus-hide retails for two dollars a pound.

BY saturating bullets with vaseline they may be easily seen in their course from the rifle to the target; their trajectory course is marked by a beautiful ring of smoke, caused by the vaseline being ignited on leaving the muzzle of the gun, the smoke being suspended for some time in the air if not too windy. Much better scores result when grease of some kind is used, bullets are not so apt to split, the recoil is not so great, and it is believed the course of the missile is more true.

RECENT writers on Greenland say the Eskimos have become so crossed by frequent intermarriage with the Danes that Scandinavian faces are as frequently met as Eskimo in the native huts. At the present rate the native race of Greenland bids fair to disappear entirely within the next century unless it is preserved in its purity by the isolated peoples of Smith's sound or the east coast. It is the old story of the stronger race absorbing the weaker, just as some of our Indian tribes are now more nearly white than red, and will doubtless disappear entirely, not by annihilation, but through absorption by the white race around them.

SABLE ISLAND is one of the most dangerous points along the Atlantic seaboard. Wrecked men have sometimes been stranded on the island for weeks without being able to inform the world of their condition. It is now proposed to import carrier-pigeons from Belgium for use in the coast service, and quarters for their reception are being prepared in Halifax. Some of the pigeons, having become accustomed to Halifax, will be taken to Sable Island, and when a disaster occurs one will be set at liberty with a message attached to it. The pigeons to be used in this service are very rapid birds and will require but a short time to bring messages from that point to the city.

IN a recent lecture on "Flameless Combustion," Mr. T. Fletcher said: "The appearance of flame is misleading, and the greater the flame the smaller the work done, other things being equal. I have been asked by a well-known engineer if I could explain why certain boilers gave such an exceedingly small duty for the fuel consumed when the flues were, as he said, 'filled from end to end with magnificent flame.' The fact was that his so-called magnificent flame was a delusion, hollow and cold inside, and not coming in contact with his boiler at all. When the same fuel was burnt with a very small flame, hardly visible over the bridge, the duty increased some over thirty per cent."

THOUSANDS of Southern negroes wear the cast-off clothing of New Yorkers. Such clothing is bought for little or nothing by peddlers, who sell it to wholesalers in the central European quarter. The wholesalers clean, patch and press the garments, arrange them according to size in dozens and await the Southern merchants. The latter come from Washington, Richmond, Charleston, Mobile and half-a-dozen other considerable cities and buy as best they may. The wholesalers sell on ninety days' credit, and if one merchant does not offer fair prices they await the coming of others. Nobody's profits are extraordinarily large, but those of the Southern retailer are probably the best.

ON THE SIDE OF SCIENCE.

THE sun yields eight hundred thousand times the light of the moon.

BLACKSMITHS can start a fire by pounding violently a rod of soft iron, first spreading on the anvil a layer of powdered coal dust. This is a good illustration of the conversion of force into heat.

M. LABORDE, a French scientist, has announced his discovery of a new anæsthetic, which he calls crystalized narcein. It is said to be superior to other anæsthetics, inasmuch as no digestive disarrangement follows the sound sleep into which it carries the patient.

The companion of Sirius has moved in so near the large star that during the last two years the Lick telescope is the only one that has been able to secure any observations. According to the measures of Mr. Burnham, made last April, the distance of the companion is now just a little over four minutes, and its position angle is almost exactly zero.

THE shortest day of the year is not of the same duration all the world over. For example, the 21st of December being the briefest day, we find that in New York it was nine hours and three minutes long; while in London the day endured but seven hours and forty-four minutes. Geographical situation determines all these matters.

THE temperature of snow at different depths has been investigated by Signor Christoni. He finds that the variations in temperature of the lowest layer, next the ground, are extremely small, whilst the uppermost layer has often considerably higher temperature. The temperature minimum of the air-layer next the snow was always lower than that of the uppermost snow-layer, while an air-layer about twenty inches above the snow had a higher temperature than the layer 1.2 inches above the snow.

FROM experiments by Dr. Lendenfeld on sponges, it appears that absorption of food does not take place at the outer surface, but in the interior. When poisons are put in the water, the sponge contracts its pores, and the action is very like that of poisons on muscles of the higher animals. When strychnine is administered, sponges suffer from cramp, and when cocaine is given, they suffer from lethargy. "As these poisons, in the higher animals, act indirectly on the muscles through the nerves, it seems not without warrant to suppose that sponges also have nerve-cells, which cause muscular contraction."

BELLE BILTON WINS

The Court Refuses to Grant Lord Dunlo a Divorce.

AN OVATION FOR THE ACTRESS.

Justice Hannen's Address to the Jury Was a Surprise.

His Charge Was in Favor of Lady Dunlo and Very Bitter Against Her Husband. Sir Charles Russell's Speech Was a Masterpiece—London Excited Over the Sensational Case.

LONDON, July 31.—The sensational Dunlo divorce case ended in the manner which most people during the last part of the trial have expected.

Viscount Dunlo had so utterly failed to make out his case that it was generally admitted he would be obliged to remain united to his fair, but unwelcome bride, unless the eloquence and persuasive logic of Sir Charles Russell should prove potent to make up for the weakness of the evidence. But though Sir Charles' summing up was a masterpiece in its way, it was insufficient to overcome in the minds of the jury the effect of the cold but powerful array of facts in opposition to the Viscount's claim presented by Lady Dunlo's counsel.

Justice Hannen's address to the jury was somewhat of a surprise on account of the rather unusual leniency with which the defendant's indiscretions were treated, and also because of the severity with which the court animadverted upon Viscount Dunlo's course. The charge as a whole was so distinctly favorable to Lady Dunlo that it amounted almost to an instruction for a verdict in her favor, though it is doubtful if the result was in any way altered thereby.

Lady Dunlo, who during the trial had always left the court through a rear exit in order to avoid the crowd, went out by the main entrance after the conclusion of the case. She received a genuine ovation from the throng, and seemed quite elated over her vindication. It is stated that she proposes to follow up her victory fully, and require the Viscount to maintain her, and if she can manage it, to live with her.

ALL QUIET AT BUENOS AYRES.

Rebel Leaders Accept President Celman's Terms and Hostilities Cease.

BUENOS AYRES, July 31.—The revolution here is at an end and the city is gradually assuming its normal appearance. The leaders of the revolt finally, after much debate, decided to accept the terms of settlement proposed by President Celman.

A general amnesty has been granted to all persons who took part in the insurrection and hostilities have been definitely abandoned.

President Celman does not appear to realize his position. He has laughingly declared that only a military mutiny could show the people how little he thought of resigning.

The Minister of War has issued a bulletin pardoning the rank and file of the revolutionists and declaring that 200,000 National Guards are ready to defend the country, and President Celman, being now united with him by the tie of the battlefield. The bulletin is treated with derision, and copies which have been scattered throughout the city are trampled under foot by the people. The outlook is bad unless Celman's declarations are mere bravado.

Every house was converted into a citadel yesterday evening. The people in the suburbs organized their own armed police to deal with marauders.

The exasperation against Celman is indescribable. Unless he resigns it is feared that attempts will be made upon his life.

THEY WERE DECEIVED.

Twelve Hundred Emigrants Return To Europe From the Argentine Republic.

LONDON, July 31.—A steamer has arrived at Marseilles, from Buenos Ayres, with 1,200 returning emigrants on board.

These people, who were induced to leave France, Italy and Germany for the Argentine Republic, on account of the reported fertility and prosperity of that country, return in a destitute and despairing condition.

They declare that it was impossible for them to find employment, and that the land is all taken up or held at high prices, except in remote districts where it is as yet valueless. They would have starved had they remained longer in the country.

The McKinley Bill Abroad.

LONDON, July 31.—The efforts of the French Government to induce European powers to form a trade coalition in retaliation for the American tariff, has not met with much success. It is said that secret assurances have been given that discouragement will be thrown indirectly in the way of American importations in those lines which enter into competition with native production. In England the agitation over the American tariff is greatly on the increase, although at present and for some time past business in goods for the American market has been much stimulated by the prospect of the McKinley tariff, many factories being run night and day to supply the market ahead of the anticipated embargo.

Awarded to a Hartford Firm.

WASHINGTON, July 31.—Postmaster-General Wanamaker has awarded the contract for furnishing stamped envelopes and newspaper wrappers for the four years beginning Oct. 1, 1890, to the Plimpton Manufacturing Company and the Morgan Envelope Company of Hartford, Conn.

FISHING FOR VICTIMS.

Seven More Bodies Recovered Who Were Lost in the Baltimore Disaster.

BALTIMORE, Md., July 31.—All day long the crowd of busy searchers, with grappling irons and hooks, were fishing in the waters in the vicinity of the recent disaster on the river for bodies of victims.

Seven bodies were recovered. They were Harry Kopp, Lena Beetz, Lillie Griggs, Annie Ruth, Mrs. Sophia Faber, Mrs. Lizzie Grenzer and Willie Beigal. The bodies were in a badly decomposed condition and presented a sickening appearance. The flesh of the faces and other parts of their bodies had been eaten away by crabs. They were recognized mainly by their clothing and jewelry.

It now seems that the total number of persons who lost their lives by the disaster is 14. In addition to those known or supposed to have been drowned and killed, it is probable that death will soon claim two other victims who are now believed to be dying. These will swell the list of fatalities to sixteen.

THE PRESIDENT AT CAPE MAY.

Secretary Blaine Expected To-morrow to Remain Until Tuesday.

CAPE MAY, July 31.—President Harrison arrived here at 9:30 o'clock last night. He was met at the depot by his family and affectionate greetings were exchanged. His car was switched on to the railroad that runs to Cape May Point and the President was soon in his cottage. He will probably remain until Tuesday.

Secretary Blaine is expected to visit the President here. It is said that he will leave Bar Harbor to-morrow and will stay here until Tuesday, accompanying the President to Washington.

It is also said that a Government revenue cutter will be brought here for the use of the President's family during the balance of their stay.

LENA DAUM'S DEATH.

Her Brother Convinced that She Died of Malignant Diphtheria.

ORANGE, N. J., July 31.—August Daum, brother of Lena Daum, who died in Youngsville, N. Y., under circumstances that suggested a resemblance to the case of Annie Goodwin, has returned to Orange convinced, he said, that his sister had died of malignant diphtheria.

Detective Conroy, who has been at work on the case, says he thinks that something different will appear upon further investigation.

The body of the dead girl will be brought to Orange for interment next week.

Sunol and Axtell May Trot.

NEWARK, N. J., July 31.—A very liberal offer has been made to the owners of those phenomenally fleet trotters, Axtell and Sunol, by the managers of the Northern New Jersey Fair Association, which is better known as Dundee Park. They will give a purse of $20,000 for a race to take place some time between Sept. 23 and Oct. 11.

Mother and Daughter Disappeared.

ORANGE, N. J., July 31.—The disappearance of 18-year-old Alice Reilly of Jackson street, three weeks ago, has been followed by the disappearance of the girl's mother herself. Mrs. Reilly left home without stating where she was going. It is believed that the loss of her child has turned her brain. The police have been requested to look for her.

A Nice Fortune for an Apprentice.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., July 31.—James Quick, a builders' apprentice, has learned that an uncle in Australia has left him $200,000 on condition that he shall go to Australia and take charge of a large ranch there. Quick came to this country from England three years ago.

Vice-President Morton at Sullivan Harbor

BAR HARBOR, Me., July 31.—Vice-President Morton arrived at Sullivan Harbor to-day, for the season, with his wife and daughters. He prefers the quiet of Sullivan Harbor to the gayety of Bar Harbor, because of the delicate health of his daughter.

Dr. McGonegal May Go Free.

NEW YORK, July 31.—Judge Beach, in Supreme Court, informed Coroner Messemer that unless the full stenographic report of the Goodwin inquest is produced to-day, he will not grant an adjournment in the McGonegal-Davis habeas corpus proceedings.

Outside Aid Asked for Lawrence.

LAWRENCE, Mass., July 31.—The Relief Committee has decided to issue a call for outside assistance for the cyclone sufferers, and a telegram was sent to the Mayors of Boston, Lowell, Worcester, Haverhill, Lynn and Manchester, N. H., asking for financial aid.

Dillon and O'Brien to Visit America.

LONDON, July 31.—Mr. John Dillon and Mr. William O'Brien will leave for America September 15 for their projected visit to the United States. Prior to that date the Parnellite party will entertain these two distinguished members of it at a banquet, at which Mr. Parnell will preside, if his health permits him at the time to undergo the fatigue.

Natives Plundering Wrecks.

HALIFAX, N. J., July 31.—It is reported that the British steamer Comus has been ordered to Antiocsti to protect two wrecks there from natives who are plundering them.

The Cholera in Spain.

VALENCIA, July 31.—The cholera is diminishing here, but there are still from ten to fifteen new cases daily, about half of which have proved fatal.

THE BASEBALL FIGHT

The National League Disgusted With Pittsburg.

POOR PATRONAGE THE CAUSE.

The Next Series of Games for the Smoky City Transferred to Other Places.

Ward's Team Defeats the Chicagos. Reilly's Players Win at Cleveland—The Giants Take Two Games at Pittsburg. The Phillies Win a Close Contest With Anson's Wonders.

PITTSBURG, Pa., July 31.—The next series of games scheduled at Pittsburg between the Pittsburg National League Club and the Brooklyn, Cincinnati and Chicago National League clubs have been transferred to the latter cities. Poor patronage was given as the cause.

There were 105 persons at yesterday's game, and the small attendance has discouraged the magnates.

Will Carry the President to Boston.

BAR HARBOR, Me., July 31.—The United Statet steamer Baltimore has been detached from the squadron here and ordered to New York. On August 9 President Harrison will board the Baltimore at New York and proceed to Boston.

THE NEW YORK LEPER.

There is No Hope for Manuel Garutia, the Young Mexican.

NEW YORK, July 31.—Manuel Garutia, the unfortunate young Mexican, who has beyond doubt a genuine case of leprosy, is still at North Brother Island and is completely isolated.

He will remain there until his family have provided for his removal to some institution, subject to the approval of the Board of Health.

While it may not be generally known there are always a number of cases of Leprosy in New York. At the Charity Hospital on Blackwell's Island there are now two Chinamen suffering from the disease. Besides this there are four or five other cases in various private institutions throughout the city.

So much care is taken with them that there is absolutely no danger, but popular fear is so apt to exaggerate such things that they are kept as quiet as possible. There is no hope for young Garutia. He may live for twenty years and he may die within twelve months, but the taint will never leave him.

ENCOURAGING A STRIKE.

A Mass Meeting This Afternoon to Induce Miners to Quit Work.

SCOTTDALE, Pa., July 31.—The workmen of the Connellsville region will hold a mass meeting at Moyer this afternoon, at which at least 500 miners are expected to be present.

The object of the meeting is to encourage W. J. Rainey's employes to strike. Several brass bands will be in attendance and a parade is to take place. This is characterized as a general move of the whole region to force Rainey to sign the scale.

The employes of his Fort Hill and Paul plants are willing to strike at any time but the drawback is Moyer, which plant is guarded by Pinkerton men. If the Moyer men refuse to join the movement serious results may follow. Its success will be a strike of 900.

HORRIBLE FIND.

Hands and Feet of Children Discovered on an Island in Maine.

BOSTON, July 31.—A dispatch from Cheboeague, Me., says that while berrying on Goose Island, Mrs Charles Thompson and daughter came across the remains of the bodies of several children.

On a large rock were four hands and four feet recently cut off. A large fire had been built near by and in the charred wood were bones as if the children's bodies had been burned.

They left them without disturbing them and told the story to the captain of a steamer who notified a coroner.

Under Arrest on a Requisition.

UTICA, N. Y., July 31.—Le Grande Scrafford, a man of some prominence here, is under arrest on a requisition from Pennsylvania, charging him with bringing property into this State from Pennsylvania with intent to defraud his creditors. He was a lumber contractor for the firm of F. H. and C. W. Goodyear of Buffalo and employed 135 men, to whom, it is alleged, he owed $6,000. It is said that on July 1 instead of paying his men with $6,000 which he received for that purpose, he drove his horses and wagon across the State line, taking the cash with him. He is about 38 years of age and has a wife and children in this city.

Against the Railroads.

JAMESTOWN, N. Y., July 31.—The referee in the case of the towns of Dunkirk, Pomfret, Gerry, Portland, Sherman, Chautauqua and Clymer against Chautauqua County, which was instituted some time ago to compel the county to pay back to them the moneys received from the railroads passing through their territory for taxes, has decided in favor of the towns. The sum total involved amounts to about $40,000.

Assassin Eyraud on Trial.

PARIS, July 31.—The preliminary examinations of Eyraud, the assassin of the huissier Gouffe, continue and attract public attention by their dramatic character. There was a scene when Eyraud was confronted with Goranger, who supplanted him in the affections of Gabrille Bompard and induced her to return to Paris and confess. Eyraud glared upon his rival and looked as if he was ready to spring upon and throttle him.

The Dunbar Widows After Damages.

UNIONTOWN, Pa., July 31.—Twenty-three Dunbar widows arrived in town and entered suits against the Dunbar Furnace Company for damages for the death of their husbands in the Hill Farm mine. The amount of damages claimed is not known, but will be uniform.

Stanley on the Road to Recovery.

LONDON, July 31.—Dr. Perker, who has been in attendance upon Mr. Stanley since the explorer's recent attack of illness, has returned to London, and reports that his services are no longer required, and that Stanley is making splendid progress toward complete recovery.

The Female Forger Prostrated.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., July 31.—Nettie L. Clark, the young woman who is held at Cranson awaiting trial on a charge of forgery, is completely prostrated, and her health is breaking down.

A Chute Gives Way.

NEW YORK, July 31.—A refuse shoot on the Western Union building broke, burying several men under the debris, one of whom has died.

Drowned While Fishing.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., July 30.—Harry Van Kueren, aged 18 was drowned here while fishing. It is supposed that he was sunstruck and fell from the wharf. His body has been recovered.

WASHINGTON TOPICS

The Pacific Mail Has a Claim Against Guatemala.

$500,000 INDEMNITY DEMANDED.

The State Department Will Fully Investigate the Matter.

Complications Feared Over the Mexico Boundary Line Question—The Contract for Furnishing Stamped Envelopes and Newspaper Wrappers Awarded to Hartford, Conn., Firms.

WASHINGTON, July 31.—Interference on the part of the United States in the affairs of Salvador and Guatemala was hardly thought possible a few weeks ago, but the development of the past 24 hours have changed the aspect of the situation so much that very serious consequences may follow the troubles in Central America. The Pacific Mail Steamship Company, after consulting with certain officials high in authority, have made a demand upon the Republic of Guatemala for $500,000 indemnity for the illegal seizure of a portion of the cargo of the steamer Colima, which was detained at the port of San Jose de Guatemala on July 17.

The seizure included several hundred stand of rifles, shipped from San Francisco and consigned to the Republic of Salvador. The formal demand for damages was sent to President Barillas at Guatemala city two days ago. The company did not rest there, however, but also filed particulars of the claim with the United States Government.

The full details of the demand for $500,000 indemnity were also transmitted to Secretary Blaine, who stated that the State Department would fully investigate the matter. The steamship company's secretary declined to give the text of the demand and the Department's answer, but he is satisfied from the tone of the reply that Secretary Blaine will push the matter to the utmost against Guatemala and compel that little Republic to promptly pay the damage.

COMPLICATIONS FEARED.

The Mexico Boundary Line Question Discussed in the Senate.

WASHINGTON, July 31.—Mr. Sherman offered in the Senate an amendment to the Deficiency Appropriation bill to appropriate $50,557, to enable the President to execute the engagements of the convention of July 29, 1882, for the relocation of the frontier line between the United States of America and the United States of Mexico.

Mr. Sherman presented in support of the amendment, a letter addressed to him by the Acting Secretary of State, enclosing a communication of the Minister of the United States to Mexico, under date of June 27, 1890, in which he says: I have the honor to advise the department that I was to-day informed verbally by Mr. Aspiroz, Acting Minister of Foreign Affairs, that the Mexican Government had determined to issue no authorizations or permits hereafter to foreigners to purchase real estate within the territorial limits stated, until there shall have been a final adjustment of the boundary between the two republics.

The territorial limit referred to, as fixed by the law of Feb. 1, 1856, is twenty leagues from the front line of the frontier.

The Acting Secretary also forwards a letter of the United States Consul-General, at Nuevo Laredo, setting forth the uncertainties of the existing boundary, and suggesting that a serious conflict may occur almost any day at El Paso, Eagle Pass, or Laredo, in attempting to arrest any disorderly person, or to serve any process on the railway and highway bridges at those points.

Presidential Nominations.

WASHINGTON, July 31.—The President sent to the Senate the following nominations:

Thaddeus S. Sharriots, of Maryland, to be General Appraiser of Merchandise under the provisions of the act approved June 10, 1880, and the following postmasters:

Massachusetts—G. H. Barrtlett, Natuck.

Rhode Island—H. H. Fay, Newport.

Connecticut — Chester W. Johnson, Thompsonville.

Pennsylvania—James P. Teagarden Waynesburgh.

More Than $100,000,000 Available Cash

WASHINGTON, July 31.—The $54,500,000 of the balance of the fund deposited with the Treasurer of the United States as agent for the redemption of the bank notes of the national banks that have failed, are liquidating or reducing their circulation, was to-day deposited in the Treasury in accordance with section 6 of the act of July 14, 1890, commonly known as the Silver bill. This transfer increases the net available cash of the Treasury to about $102,500,000.

To Increase Grain Rates.

BUFFALO, July 31.—Representatives of the lake and rail lines met here to consider the question of an increase in through rates on grain from Chicago to New England. After considerable discussion an advance was agreed upon, with a recommendation that the increase be not larger than what the business will warrant.

McAuliffe and Slavin Meet.

NEW YORK, July 31.—A cable from London says that pugilist McAuliffe reported to be in fine fettle and confident of victory. He and Slavin were introduced to each other, and the meeting was characterized by good feeling all around. The match promises to be one of the most noteworthy in the annals of the ring.

DIG FIRE IN SENECA FALLS.

The Business Portion of the Town Destroyed—Loss $1,000,000.

SENECA FALLS, N. Y., July 31.—A few minutes after 3 o'clock a. m., the Pow building which was directly opposite Hoag's Opera House, in Falls street, was discovered to be burning in Sutherland & Squire's restaurant. In a short time the entire structure was on fire.

The flames sprang across the street to Hoag's Opera House before an hour had passed, and that was consumed, with all of Falls street on that side east to the Sheldon block, while on the north side the Co-operative block was the limit. On State street the flames extended to and included Kellogg's livery stable, but all of his stock was saved.

The splendid Phœnix block, involving the electric light plant, the electric railway plant, the postoffice, express office, the Reveille printing establishment, the Courier, Sanderson's furniture warerooms, and the Western Union Telegraph office succumbed to the flames, and within four hours fifteen stores east of it; to the Sheldon block, were ruined.

The following is a partial list of the losses: Phœnix block, $80,000; Electric Light plant, (not wholly destroyed); Sylvester Pew, $3,000; Johnson block, $16,000; Howe block, $12,000; Desky block, $10,000; on Sheldon block, $7,000; Hoag Hotel, damaged probably $15,000; Hoag's Opera House and block, $40,000; Daniel's block, $13,000; the Mirror block, $4,000; Crowell block, $4,600; McCartin's block, $6,500; Millen block, $2,000.

Among the tenants who lose heavily are the Journal office, Nunnold Bros., Nellie Jennings, R. C. Wayne, Jacob Allen, John H. Crowell, T. R. Lawrence, Sutherland & Squires, Madden's newsroom, Maurer Bros.' store and barber shop, Mrs. Hadley's millinery store, Van Kleeck's and Gilmore's drug store, Hoag's drug store, Hill's grocery, Addison's shoe store, Garnet & Waller's hardware store, Phillips & Hawley's hardware store, Howe's hat store, besides many tenants in the rooms above the stores.

The loss is placed at $1,000,000. Fifteen acres were burned over, covered principally by three-story brick buildings.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

BY THE WAY.

—Choice apples are far between.

—Pears are scarcer than for years.

—Hot water relieves inflamed eyes.

—Vaseline restores the lustre to muddy overshoes.

—The Jenny Lind continues to be the prima donna of melons.

—The newest wine-glass has the brim decked with imitation pearls.

—A chemist says that a cigar that bites the tongue has been too loosely wrapped.

—Patent leather shoes should be rubbed briskly with the hand before putting them on.

—"L. F. R." and "G. H. R." are credited with a contribution of $5 to the Tribune Fresh-Air Fund.

—The water excursion of the season will be as usual that of the Reform Club on the steamer Grand Republic, to Rockaway Beach, Thursday of next week.

—The weekly meeting of Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M., will be held as usual in their hall this evening at 8 o'clock. All the members are requested to attend.

—The next regular meeting of the Plainfield Crescent League will be held in Laing's Hall, West Front street, Wednesday evening, August 6, at eight o'clock. Among matters of importance to be considered, is the question of a new club house, and the election of a Seretary to fill the unexpired term of Howard Teal, resigned. Consequently a full attendance is especially necessary and particularly desired.

Reform School Didn't Cure Cuff.

There has been some alarm created among the residents in the East end of the city's limits, by signs of burglars, and the other night what was thought to be a thief trying to enter the house, was shot at by the owner.

Mrs. David Jones has often missed things from her back stoop and out of the refrigerator that stands there. Some time ago Edward Cuff was found there. He is a young colored man of 22 years, who has lately completed a six years' term in the Jamesburg Reform School where he was sent for a robbery in this city. He is now living around the neighborhood referred to. His father is Thos. Cuff, and the family occupy a hut in the Short Hills woods.

Early in last month the house of Wilson Fiske, in the neighborhood of Woodland and Highland avenues, was entered by someone who broke out a pane of glass and unlocked a window. A lot of jewelry and other things were taken. Officer Babbitt caught Cuff with some rings on him that Mr. Fiske identified as some of the missing property. Upon his giving up what he said was all he took from the house, Cuff was allowed to go free. But Babbitt has his eyes on him since complaints are being made of a possible thief in that neighborhood.

Tribulations With a Scotch Plains Horse.

A little woman seated in a very low wagon and driving a very tall horse stopped on East Second street this morning in a peck of trouble. The horse was so far above her that she had to hold her arms high above her head in her efforts to keep the reins out of reach of the animal's tail, and that these efforts were necessary her morning's experience had taught her. She had hired the rig at Scotch Plains, and had not reached Netherwood before the horse had captured the reins five times, and each time he had backed across ditches, through fences and almost through the earth before the little woman could recover a hold on the situation. Coming through Plainfield her experience had been worse, and she gladly hailed the first disengaged small boy she saw and hired him to take the rig back to its owner. She walked the rest of her journey, and went back to Scotch Plains by stage.

The Young Arlingtons Defeated.

The Unions defeated the Young Arlingtons in a game of base ball on the latters grounds, yesterday morning, by a score of 6 to 1. The battery for the Unions was D. Guinee and G. Firstbrook; and M. Miln and W. Littell, for the Young Arlingtons. The feature of the game was the heavy batting done by the Unions. Following is the score by innings:

| | | | | | | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Unions | 1 | 1 | 0 | 3 | 1 | 0 | 0 | 0 | 0 | —6 |
| Y Arlingtons. | 0 | 1 | 0 | 0 | 0 | 0 | 0 | 0 | 0 | —1 |

Umpire—D. Galbraith. Scorer—B. Martin.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Love, Jr., have gone to Roland, Pa.

Miss Fowler of Orange is visiting Mrs. McIntyre of Central avenue.

Thomas Hughes, of Langhorne's studio, has returned from Asbury Park.

Miss Forence Honegar of Carleton avenue, is home again from the seashore.

Mrs. Wm. G. E. See, of East Front street, is at Ocean Spray Cottage, Belmar, with her son.

Miss McDowell of Stelton has returned home from a visit to Mrs. L. L. Manning of West Seventh street.

Samuel Huntington and family of Franklin place, will spend the coming few weeks at Norwalk, on the Sound.

Mrs. S. B. Struthers of Madison avenue, has returned from an enjoyable visit with friends at Monument Beach, Mass.

Miss Emma F. Angleman of Madison avenue, is visiting friends and relatives in Hunterdon county, for the month of August.

A boy baby was born to Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Baxter, of West Third street, Sunday morning. The little lad weighed 16 pounds.

The Rev. and Mrs. W. E. Honeyman left this morning for Pine Hill, Ulster county, N. Y., where they will be at the Cornish House.

Miss Bessie Blair and Miss Carrie Boice of East Second street, returned home on Tuesday evening, after spending a pleasant time in New York State.

John B. Wells of this city has transferred to John P. Emmons of North Plainfield, lots 17, 18, 19, 13 and 20, Southeast corner Midway avenue and Leland avenue, for a consideration and $350.

The excellent illustrations accompanying Helen North's story of "A White Mountain Coaching Parade," in St. Nicholas for August, are the production of a Plainfield artist, George Wharton Edwards.

Miss Lizzie K. Harford of Evona, is suffering from a sprained wrist. The swaying of the railroad cars as she passed along the aisle, threw her against the back of a seat and caused the injury mentioned.

C. H. Werner, business manager of "The Crank," a Cornell University publication, is spending some weeks in Plainfield. He has found the draftsmen's room of The Pond Machine Tool company's works the greatest of the city's attractions for him.

First Assistant Chief Erwin Waters deserves particular mention for his prompt and efficient services at the Crescent League club house fire, Tuesday morning. His wise direction did much towards the putting out of one of the best handled fires this city has known.

Architect Charles Smith of Grove street, left last night for Watertown, where a handsome Baptist church is just being completed after his plans. The Park Avenue Baptist church here, is one of the best specimens of Mr. Smith's taste, talent and orignality in church architecture.

In Harper's Young People of this week, is a three page article of intense interest on Homing pigeons, written by Charles E. Doane of this city, breeder of all the most celebrated birds including "Baby McKee" of THE PRESS news service. The article is illustrated; one picture being from a photograph of Mr. Doane's pigeon house on East Fourth street.

The feminine members of the party who are to spend the early days of August at Camp Clairmont, Halsey Island, Lake Hopatcong, left Plainfield this afternoon, accompanied by H. C. Runyon, for the lake. Messrs Hardy and Crawford, who went ahead as pioneers, report that everything is in excellent readiness for the jolly campers. John H. Jackson will be received at the camp late this evening, and Messrs Green and Hummer will put in an appearance to-morrow morning.

Her Own Light Hidden Under a Bushel.

Copies of the wonderful book "Black Beauty," which George T. Angell, President of the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, has called the "Uncle Tom's Cabin" of the horse, are being distributed among Plainfield hackmen, cartmen, grocers' and butchers' drivers, coachmen, and teamsters of all kinds, in Plainfield. The distribution was made possible by the noble work of a worthy woman who devoted her time to selling the book till the profits were sufficient to purchase the proper number for free circulation. In spite of its being her personal work, she insisted that the gift should in each case be made in the name of the Plainfield Band of Mercy, of the Unitarian Society, of which she was one of the founders.

Baby Pugilists Give an Exhibition.

Two babies in one carriage quarrelled industriously while their mother left them for a moment on the sidewalk in front of a Park avenue store. The one in pink jammed a scolloped-edge cookie into the ear of the one in white, and the one in white retorted by filling with cracker crumbs the eyes of the one in pink. Hostilities grew hotter, and they thumped each other like brawny pigmies. When the mother rushed out and separated them one had his cheek and forehead badly scratched, and the other's nose was bleeding.

Easily made. A cheap and delicious drink for 25 cents can be made from Hires' Root Beer Packages. Five gallons. Be careful that you get the real, genuine Hires'. There are a number of would-be Root Beer packages on the market.

WHY IT LEFT PLAINFIELD.

Miss Kimball Tells of the Rise, Progress and Departure of the Central Office of the C. L. S. C.

Miss Kate Kimball of this city, Secretary of the C. L. S. C., has a very entertaining paper in the August number of The Chautauquan, descriptive of the central office of the C. L. S. C., which was until lately located in Plainfield. Miss Kimball, necessarily, has much to say of the history of the circle. These are a few things the writer tells about the central office:

"In August, 1878, the central office of the C. L. S. C., began for a few months a peripatetic existence in Plainfield, New Jersey, at that time Dr. Vincent's home. As a fixed abode became, however, an increasing necessity, in February, 1879, the first central office of the C. L. S. C., was established in a single room of a modest dwelling house in Plainfield. The class of '82, the first class of the C. L. S. C., constituted at this time the entire membership of the circle.

"In view of the rapid growth of the Chautauqua Circle, it was deemed advisable in the Spring of 1880 to remove the Central Office from its limited surroundings to more commodious quarters in a business block not far distant where, meeting with the Plainfield Y. M. C. A., an entire floor was secured. The office now had increased facilities for work, but five years later when the Y. M. C. A. removed to a larger building, the C. L. S. C. already had outgrown even its new quarters; and with almost a sigh of relief took a full possession of its habitation. Here on the second floor of this busy street corner, for ten long happy years the Plainfield office carried on its work; and during these years of the marvellous growth of the great Circle the quiet little suburban city of Plainfield became known the wide World over.

"But once again has the Central Office been called upon to join the onward march of events, and as each previous removal has meant greater efficiency in the workings of the office machinery and has been followed also by a broader and more permanent growth throughout all the branches of the C. L. S. C., the new departure commends itself to all friends of Chautauqua. Pleasantly situated in a light airy building on a wide street in the city of Buffalo, N. Y., (the present home of Chancellor Vincent), with facilities for work such as the suburban city of Plainfield even with New York almost at its doors, could hardly furnish, and less than seventy miles from Chautauqua Lake itself—it indeed will be a strange turn in the wheel of destiny if in the next ten years the Chautauqua Circle be not the gainer from this drawing together of its working forces."

The article is artistically illustrated with views of the interior of the office, and the writer describes with a graphic pen the busy scenes to be witnessed there.

WILL THE CRESCENTS WIN?

Their Opponents of Saturday Have Lost Only One Game This Season.

Last year the Brooklyn L's were the champion semi-professional team of the Metropolis. They defeated the Brooklyn Athletics in 5 games, won with ease 3 from the Stars of Long Island, and beat the Bahways, Perth Amboys, Gorhams, Patersons, Acmes, Stars of Newark, and everybody else. This year they were black listed for playing the Brotherhood league, and were compelled to organize under another name. They are now the Ridgewoods, and stronger than ever.

They have lost only one game this year, and that was to the Metropolitans, while they have defeated the Metropolitans, the Flushings three times, and the Gorhams three times. Saturday they propose to put their strongest team in the field, as Col. Martin, the Superintendent of the Brooklyn L roads, and his family and a large party of friends from The Netherwood, will attend the game, besides about 200 of the Ridgewoods' other friends from Brooklyn.

Col. Martin would like to see his company's representatives win, yet he thinks the Crescents is the only team that is their match. Livingston will pitch for the Ridgewoods, and he is confident of winning, although he knows what the Crescents are from experience. He has been pitching some wonderful games of ball since he went back from the Crescents to his old club.

No matter what reports are circulated, if you don't see them in THE PRESS they are not so. There will be no change in the Crescents' team next Saturday.

Another Chapter in the Carey vs. PRESS Suit.

The senior member of the firm of W. L. Force & Bro., publishers and proprietors of THE DAILY PRESS, arrived home from an outing at Lake Hopatcong, last evening, and this morning appeared before Justice V. W. Nash, in company with Councilman Walter L. Hetfield, who signed the bail bond in the alleged libel suit instituted against THE PRESS by Tunis J. Carey, which calls for the appearance of W. L. Force before the Union County Courts at Elizabeth in October next, to answer to the charge of libel preferred against THE PRESS by said Carey. The weather is now expected to be cooler.

What it Means.

To the man or woman who has never been ill, the word "health" is meaningless. But to the one who has suffered and despaired, health appears as a priceless boon. To the thousands of unfortunate women who are suffering from some of the many forms of weaknesses peculiar to their sex, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription holds forth the promise of a speedy restoration of this "priceless boon."

Something for Plainfield to Consider.

City Clerk Pemberton of Newark, has discovered a clause in the Ballot Reform bill which he thinks seems to indicate that the Registry and Election Boards appointed for the general election cannot act at the charter election in Newark on October 14.

According to the law the Registry and Election Boards must meet and organize on October 7. Before the following Saturday they must make a house-to-house canvass, and on Tuesday, three weeks before the election, must have a meeting to revise the registry. That meeting day is the date of the charter election.

Another question that has arisen is whether there will have to be different polling places in each precinct for the two elections. The probability is that one polling place will be made to do for both elections. Any other arrangement would be expensive for the city.

Ayer's Cathartic Pills are recommended by the best physicians, because they are free from calomel and other injurious drugs, being composed of purely vegetable ingredients. While thorough in their action, they stimulate and strengthen the bowels and secretory organs.

A Wealthy Farmer's Sudden Death.

The death of Samuel S. F. Randolph, one of the wealthiest farmers in Piscataway, is reported. He was sixty-two years of age, and left two sons. He was twenty-four years road overseer. He made his will two days before his death, which occurred suddenly of la grippe.

Big Lumber Fire.

CHICAGO, July 31.—Fire, supposed to have originated from a spark from a locomotive, started about 7 last night in the lumber yards just north of the mouth of the Chicago River. Fanned by a heavy breeze it spread rapidly, burning over nearly 40 acres before it was subdued.

Floods Around Vienna.

VIENNA, July 31.—The surrounding country has been inundated by the Salzack River, which has overflowed its banks. Many houses along the line of the river have been swept away and the tenants drowned. The railway station at Bischofshofen is flooded.

Miss Lewis Heard From.

TRENTON, N. J., July 31.—Relatives of Miss Lizzie Lewis, the missing school teacher, telegraphs that she is at Transit, near Good Ground, Long Island, and is all right.

Two Deaths from Heat.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., July 31.—Matthew Osgood, a carpenter, while at work was overcome by the heat and died in a few minutes. The second case was that of Michael Onaispee, aged 24, a Russian, who dropped dead in the doorway of his house.

Gov. Hovey Declines.

BOSTON, July 31.—A special from Indianapolis says that Gov. Hovey has finally announced his intention of not being a candidate for Commander-in-Chief of the Grand Army of the Republic, which holds its annual encampment in this city next month.

President of Amherst College.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., July 31.—Morrill Edward Gates, President of Rutgers College, was chosen president of Amherst College, to succeed Julius H. Seelye, resigned.

The Millennium Will Come

When people won't have to go early to get a back seat in prayer-meeting.

When you will not have to look into the church records to find out whether a man is on the road to Heaven or not.

When every seventeen-year-old boy won't think he knows more than both his father and his grandfather.

When every preacher will have the courage to tell hypocrites what God thinks of them, no matter how much they may pay into the treasury.

When all church members will be Christians.

When the Lord's people will understand that God expects them to take good care of His preachers.

When filthy habits will not be tolerated in those who profess to be gentlemen.—Ram's Horn.

"I was troubled with Catarrh for over two years. I tried various remedies, and was treated by a number of physicians, but received no benefit and I began to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla. A few bottles of this medicine cured me."—Jesse M. Boggs, Holman Mills, N. C.

Rheumatism,

BEING due to the presence of uric acid in the blood, is most effectually cured by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Be sure you get Ayer's and no other, and take it till the poisonous acid is thoroughly expelled from the system. We challenge attention to this testimony:—

"About two years ago, after suffering for nearly two years from rheumatic gout, being able to walk only with great discomfort, and having tried various remedies, including mineral waters, without relief, I saw by an advertisement in a Chicago paper that a man had been relieved of this distressing complaint, after long suffering, by taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I then decided to make a trial of this medicine, and took it regularly for eight months, and am pleased to state that it has effected a complete cure. I have since had no return of the disease."—Mrs. R. Irving Dodge, 110 West 125th st., New York.

"One year ago I was taken ill with Inflammatory rheumatism, being confined to my house six months. I came out of the sickness very much debilitated, with no appetite, and my system disordered in every way. I commenced using Ayer's Sarsaparilla and began to improve at once, gaining in strength and soon recovering my usual health. I cannot say too much in praise of this well-known medicine."—Mrs. L. A. Stark, Nashua, N. H.

The Biography of a First Rate Fellow.

In the current number of a college magazine, is found the following biography of a Plainfielder who all unite in saying is a first rate fellow and a smart one, too:

Israel Corlell Pierson was fitted for college at the Collegiate Institute at Fort Edward, New York, and entered the Freshman Class of the University of the City of New York in September 1861. In 1865, at his Class Commencement, he delivered an oration upon "Edward Everett," which impressed the large audience gathered in Niblo's Garden by its breadth of thought, purity of diction and earnestness of delivery as among the very best efforts of the graduating class. He received the degree of Bachelor of Arts at graduation, and in 1868 the degree of Master of Arts in due course.

After having taught in the Adelphi Academy of Brooklyn for a year after his graduation, Mr. Pierson became interested in the principles and business of life insurance, and entered the Actuary's department of the Equitable Life Assurance Society. With that and other companies he remained until April, 1880, when he was chosen Actuary of the Washington Life Insurance Company of New York, which office he still holds.

In 1871 he married the daughter of the Rev. Edward B. Edgar, a prominent Presbyterian clergyman then settled at Westfield, New Jersey, which was the place of Mr. Pierson's birth. Mr. and Mrs. Pierson, with their two children, both daughters, now reside at Plainfield, New Jersey. Two years ago, Mr. Pierson entered the Graduate Department of the University and pursued the graduate course of study giving special attention to mathematics. Having passed the requisite examinations therefore, the University honored him by conferring the degree of Doctor of Philosophy upon him, June 12, 1890. At a recent meeting of the Council of the University, he was unanimously elected a member of that body.

Dr. Pierson has written various articles upon Life Insurance and other subjects, among them being "Mortality Experience of the Washington Life Insurance Company, Actuarial," and "Life Insurance an Applied Science." He was a Commissioner to the General Assembly of the Presbyterian church at the meetings held in Minneapolis in 1886, and in New York in 1889, and was chosen one of the clerks of the latter. In college he joined the Zeta Psi fraternity, and has ever since been an enthusiastic member of it, having been at one time its president. Wherever known, Dr. Pierson is highly esteemed for his integrity of character, ability in his calling and usefulness as a citizen.

A Fall in Property Back of Netherwood.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—The large and magnificent three story structure which has been constructed on the farm of Daniel Cole at this place, and which has been the wonder and sole subject of conversation of this neighborhood, suddenly but not unexpectedly collapsed this afternoon and fell with a crash which made the corn and cabbages jump two inches out of the ground.

Mr. Cole's three men, who were working on or near the building at the time, narrowly escaped serious injury. The accident has put a stop to the guessing bees which have whiled away the evening hours for the citizens of this quiet village the last two weeks.

Some of our citizens said it was a Summer Hotel. One old and venerable citizen asserted it was the new insane asylum for Union county of which there was some talk some time ago. The accident developed that the building was intended for a hospital for the reception of sick animals. Poor animals! They will have to wait till the robins nest again.

THE TWO P's.

A Dog Pays Back the Catcher.

A graceful little woman pleading with a great noble specimen of a dog, and the big dog trying to tear to pieces a colored man, occasioned some little excitement in the North avenue railroad station this morning. The man was a dog catcher, and once had made the dog a prisoner, and no sooner had the dog obtained a glimpse of his former captor than he had sprung away from his mistress in an effort to chew the man to pieces. The man had a huge bundle, which he used actively as a shield. Several times the dog nearly secured a tooth-hold in the man's flesh, but after a crowd had gathered, and the dog-catcher had shown very little signs of fear, and the woman had grown vexed and worried, the dog stopped snapping and snarling, wagged his tail, smiled and trotted home.

Found The Seashore at Home.

A Plainfielder who walked out into the country last evening, says that beyond Netherwood he stood on the railroad track and listened to the noise of the trains in the distance. He noticed that whenever a train crossed a bridge over a Plainfield street the dull distant roar increased suddenly like the noise of the breaking of an incoming wave on the beach, and he imagined himself in the novel position of being in Plainfield and at the seashore at the same time. The time between bridges and consequent seeming surf-dashings was the same as the regular ocean wave-interval.

What He Said.

A hard story is told of a worthy deacon of this city, who, in the absence of his wife, spent his Sabbath elsewhere. When he appeared at the bank, Tuesday morning, he was greeted with: "Hello! How much did you have to pay for that nose?"

He said he had been at the seashore.

How Places Like Plainfield Attract.

Statistics prove that such suburban cities of New Jersey as Plainfield, have attracted more people from New York than all the rest of the suburbs combined. Over fifty thousand commuters leave the big city daily for their homes in New Jersey, and it is estimated that they pay rentals amounting to $26,000,000 a year, computing them at an average, whether they own their houses and charge interest to rent account or whether they actually pay rent. This represents property worth $260,000,000, and represents a tax of over five million two hundred thousand dollars.

Their families are maintained at a cost of about fifty-three million dollars a year, and they pay fully three million dollars a year for railway fares. They give employment to over eight hundred cars and one hundred and sixty locomotives. This does not take into consideration the thousands who live in Jersey City and other parts of Hudson county and do business in New York. There is nothing strange about these facts. Any resident of New York or any other place who visits this city is struck by its beauty and the elegance of life here. The railroad affords frequent, cheap and comfortable communication, and Plainfield is healthy and well provided with all that is required to make homes. That is the whole story in a nutshell.

Check Your Valuables.

Here are a few words of warning for the hundreds who will go to Asbury Park to-morrow, with the First Presbyterians, Park Avenue Baptists and Congregationalists:

Several hundred cards are scattered about the offices of the bath houses on the beach. These cards stare at you in big black letters and warn you to check valuables at the office, for which there is no charge, when you go into the water for a bath. Tuesday a man who either couldn't read, or else was so certain that he knew more than any one else, left his wallet in his bath room when he went into the water, and like many other unfortunates didn't find it when he returned. He reported the loss to the Superintendent, but all that he could do was to point to the big quarto sign and go on with his work. That was cold consolation for the loser, but all that he could expect.

The bath houses and alleys are open to any one who chooses to enter, and there seems to be a good many who go in for nothing but the chance to pilfer. Pocketbooks and watches disappear mysteriously, and the owner of the bath houses loses about a thousand dollars every year in towels, suits, combs, looking glasses, etc. He sympathizes with the other losers, but probably this is the first time that any public notice has been given of his need for a little sympathy and consolation over his tremendous loses right in these same bath houses.

Were These Rescued Boys From Plainfield?

Perry Walton, a New York reporter, tells in the paper of whose staff he is a member an interesting story concerning his rescuing two Plainfield boys from drowning. He fished them out of the water at Greenpoint Harbor, he says, Sunday evening, and thereby ruined a dress suit.

The youngest son of Mr. Ballantyne of Plainfield, whose name fails to appear in the directory, was wading about when he reached a hole whose depth was over his head. As he couldn't swim he sank. His sixteen-year-old brother swam to help, and the two locked arms and went under. Walton, who was on his way to fulfil a dinner engagement, dived off a wharf and with a few strokes reached the boys. The younger boy was still beneath the surface, and was senseless. Walton got hold of him and sought to take him ashore, but the big boy hugged Walton around the neck and dragged them all down. Walton threatened to punch the big boy's nose, and the big boy loosened his grip. Walton held the younger boy up, swam ashore, rescuscitated him, got his name and address, and gave up his dinner engagement.

Good Health in New Jersey.

The State health authorities report that there is very little sickness throughout the State. No epidemics have been reported to them this Summer. At the seaside resorts everything, so far as health goes, seems to be favorable. The typhoid fever at Princeton is entirely under control. There are only three cases now, and they are not bad. Arrangements have already been made by the people to have a sewer system established, and this will obviate all future trouble in Princeton, but how about Plainfield?

Dr. Hunt, of the State Board, says that there is scarcely any pleuro-pneumonia among the cattle of the State. The disease seems to have been thoroughly mastered. There are still some cases of tuberculosis, but that disease is not prevailing to any alarming extent and it is not epidemic. The cases are isolated. These facts speak well for the condition of the cattle of the State.

Want Room For Poles in Plainfield Streets.

The New Jersey Telegraph company, in the development of its plans to run a new telephone line through Newark, Orange, Westfield, Plainfield, Bound Brook, Somerville, Long Branch and other places, will at early meetings of the Common Councils and other municipal bodies interested, ask for permission to erect poles and string lines along the public streets.

By innumerable cures, Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup has won for itself a most enviable reputation.

TEMPERANCE NOTES.

VALUE OF HYPNOTISM.

Extract from a Lecture by J. H. Kellogg, M. D., of the Battle Creek Sanitarium.

It is reported that Dr. Bernheim of Paris is treating inebriates by hypnotism. He claims to be able to create a distaste for liquor by suggesting that it be given up without really hypnotizing the patient. But a suggestion of the sort is of no service unless hypnotism is really employed. It is claimed that a suggestion made will remain, but this is not true in the majority of cases. For instance, a young lady had a paralyzed hand which was so lifeless that pins could be thrust into it or it could be seared with a hot iron and she felt no pain. In the hypnotic state she was told that that hand was perfectly well and it became sensitive to every touch. She could count the number of taps given upon that hand when her eyes were closed, but when out from under the influence, her hand was just as dead to sensation as at first and this after repeated trials. Dr. Bernheim claims not only to cure bodily ills, but to make drunkards into sober men, thieves into honest ones, and that lying and swearing can only also be corrected by hypnotism. He claims it is one of the best means of moral reform, all that is required being to give the subjects good instruction while in the hypnotic state.

But as a matter of fact, hypnotism is not really to be relied upon for either physical healing or moral reform. In the first place it is only now and then a person can be completely hypnotized or influenced at all, and in the second place, only a small proportion of those who are really good subjects retain suggestions which are made after the hypnotic state has been thrown off. There is nothing mysterious about hypnotism; the subject is not operated upon by the mind of the operator, but the state is produced by the workings of his own mind. In persons who are subjects for hypnotism, they bring their minds for the time into a sort of vacuity or equilibrium, ready to receive impressions from any source.

It is something like the mind in a dream which converts the slamming of a shutter into a clap of thunder, the difference being that in dreams suggestions take no definite direction, while in the hypnotic state they can be definitely guided. It is wholly the peculiar operation of the mind of the subject and not of the mind of the operator. It is not possible for a person to communicate intelligence except through the senses. Prof. Carpenter, one of the most noted mesmerists, confessed this to me a few years ago. The hypnotic state always ends in sleep and the person awakes in just the condition he was before unless his imagination still carries some idea forward.

Traveling mesmerists have "horses" engaged to follow them from place to place—persons who have schooled themselves to endure the pain of having pins thrust in their flesh and submit to other similar tests without visible emotion. This has an effect upon the imagination of the audience and generally helps to secure two or three persons who are ready subjects to hypnotic influence. In London a mesmerist became bankrupt from lack of patronage and his "horse" sued him for unpaid salary and explained the whole manner of procedure to the court.

Before the discovery of chloroform, hypnotism was sometimes employed during surgical operations, but it was very unreliable, and the patient was as ly to awaken from the hypnotic in the midst of the operation as other wise.

CAUSES OF POVERTY.

When a Man Drinks His Family Is on the Road to Destitution.

Edward Atkinson, the political economist, on being asked by the New York World on the causes of poverty said, concisely: "Ignorance and incapacity." Chauncey Depew replied as follows:

"There are a good many causes of poverty," he said, after reflecting a moment, "and they are by no means perfectly clear. There are hundreds of men whom I have helped, and am helping continually. They seem to be utterly unable to earn a living for themselves. I never could discover why. They have had the same advantages and opportunities as I have had.

"Lack of self-confidence is often the cause of failure. Many men seem to have no faith in themselves, consequently no assertiveness, no independence, no pluck and no push. They seem to be afraid to stand up and speak for themselves, and prefer to lean on others. Poverty in such cases is inevitable.

"Another cause of poverty very prevalent in this country to-day is that many young men are wanting in decision and fixity of purpose. If they get into a good place at the start they should stick to it, knowing that by perseverance, industry and ability they win promotion in due course as vacancies occur. But they see or hear of some one making a fortune in Wall street or in ranching or mining, and away they go to try their luck. When they lose, as they do in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred, that is the end of them; they can never settle down to ordinary ways of earning a living after that and their descent is rapid.

"Rum is the greater cause of poverty; it is the cause of more poverty than all the other causes put together. When a man drinks to excess he lets go of every thing. He loses his position and is unable to secure other employment. A drunkard can not be trusted with work or responsibility. He and those dependent upon him, if he has a family, become paupers. They have to be helped, first by the neighbors and then by the town. In my own personal experience I have known about fifty thousand men who have been ruined by rum. These causes account for the failure of men who are willing to work, but are unable to secure and keep regular employment. There is a vast amount of poverty caused by men who would rather loaf than work. When a man finds his mission in the world he should remain constant to it and not leave one trade or business to engage in another for which he may be unfitted. Poverty often results from such aimlessness. But the lazy man is always a poor man."

WHAT ALCOHOL DOES.

Let the Fallacy as to the Necessity of Moderate Drinking Be Removed.

"I had once no thought of alcohol except as food. I thought it warmed us. I thought it gave us strength. I thought it enabled us to endure mental and bodily fatigue. I thought it cheered the heart, and lifted up the mind into greater activity. But it so happened that I was asked to study the action of alcohol along with a whole series of chemical bodies, and to investigate their bearing in relation to each other. And so I took alcohol from my shelf in the laboratory, as I might any other drug or chemical, and I asked it in the course of experiments extending over a lengthened period: 'What do you do?' I asked it: 'Do you warm the animal body when you are taken into it?' The reply came invariably: 'I do not, except in a mere surface excitement.' Then I turn around to it in another direction and ask it: 'Do you give muscular strength?' I test it by the most rigid analysis and experiment I can adopt, and its reply is: 'I give no muscular strength.' I turn to its effect on the organs of the body and find, that while it expedites the heart's action, it reduces tonicity; and, in the nervous system, I find the same reply, that is to say, I find the nervous system more quickly worn out under the influence of this agent than if none were taken at all. I ask it: 'Can you build up any of the tissues of the body?' The answer is again in the negative: 'I build nothing. If I do any thing, I add fatty matter to the body, but that is a destructive agent, piercing the tissues, destroying their powers and making them less active for their work.' Next I turn around to the facts of experience. I think: 'Well, as I have come to the above conclusion, I will experiment on myself.' I do so. I gave up that which I thought warmed and helped, and I declare after considering the whole period in which I have subjected myself to this ordeal, I never did more work; I never did more varied work; I never did work with equal faculty—with so much facility; I never did work with such complete sense of freedom from anxiety and worry, as I have done during the period that I have abstained altogether. Let this fallacy, then, as to the necessity of moderate drinking be removed."—B. W. Richardson, M. D., in Temperance.

LIQUOR ADULTERATIONS.

Confession of a Dealer in Fusel Oil and Other Adulterants.

The American Analyst reports a dealer in liquor adulterants as saying:

Our largest business is in the liquor line. With French spirits and color as a basis, I can make you any liquor you want with our extracts. Here are the essences of Old Tom, London Dock, Swan, Holland, and Schiedam gins, the extracts of Otard and Cognac brandies, rye, bourbon, applejack, Irish and Scotch whiskies, Santa Cruz, Jamaica and Medford rums, not to speak of the fancy cordials and liquors. To make Old Tom, I take a teaspoonful of French spirits, one of water, three drops of glucose syrup and two drops of the extract. That makes the Old Tom you have drank in a dozen saloons in this city. There are some funny things about this part of the business. Most people like their whisky and brandy aged and free from fusel oil. But there are a great many, especially among manual laborers, who like it fresh and harsh. They want it "to cut as it goes down." To supply this demand we sell fusel oil to rectifiers and even retailers. They mix a barrel of whisky, of spirits and one of water with a gallon of fusel oil. That makes a 10-cent rye which beats a torchlight procession. It's cheap, too, and stands an intelligent dealer in only $1 a gallon. That's 20 cents a bottle, and less than 1 cent a drink on an average. No wonder rum-sellers grow rich and become aldermen or go to Congress.

ITEMIZED FACTS.

A MODERATE drinker is worth a thousand times more to the devil for destructive purposes than an out-and-out drunkard.—Ram's Horn.

A CHICAGO college student was recently committed to the insane asylum, in Judge Prendergast's court, adjudged insane from cigarette smoking.

TO SAY: "I can drink or let it alone," is about as wise as to say: "I can drive nails in a lion's tail and get away before he can grab me."—Ram's Horn.

GEORGE BLAIKLOCK, the London Temperance lecturer who is traveling in this country, says that his city contains 90,000 paupers and spends annually for drink about $70,000,000.

"TIM DELANEY'S Pump," an old saloon at Worcester, Mass., where beer had been the chief beverage dispensed, has been turned into a Temperance restaurant and coffee house by the local W. C. T. U.

I SEE but this one lesson—no nation, no individual, can thrive so long as it be under the dominion of a besetting sin. It must conquer or be conquered. It must destroy or be destroyed by it. It must strike at the sources of it or be stricken down by it into the dust.—Canon Farrar.

A New Sort of Inebriety.

Dr. Mendel, a noted nerve specialist of Berlin, in pursuit of the origin of a certain form of nervous disease, has hunted down a form of inebriety, not before recognized. He terms it "coffee inebriety," and says it is rapidly increasing in that country, especially among working-women. He has found large numbers of them who consume more than a pound each every week. The effect is manifest in frequent headaches, insomnia, great depression of spirits, trembling of the extremities, irregular action of the heart with all the accompanying distress. These symptoms constantly grow worse and are relieved by increasing quantities of coffee; sometimes the tincture is used. Dyspepsia in aggravated form is usually present, as well as blotches and pimples on the skin. A bruise or slight injury proves the starting point of inflammation, erysipelatous in character. Melancholy and fear of death accompany this form of inebriety in all cases.

"That's only a difference of 13 to 18 pounds."
"ONLY! Why, it means that you must propel that many pounds more with each revolution of the wheel, and there are 400 revolutions in each mile."
"Is that the reason you consider the CATFORD cheaper at $140 than any other Safety at $135?"
"That is one of many reasons."
"Have you a Ladies' Safety?"
"Yes; and for SWEET, ATTRACTIVE GRACE, there is nothing like our SPECIAL LADIES' PREMIER, especially when the lady is riding it!"

FETTERED.

It Was Fate That Bound Them Together.

IN Cheyenne's early days, the sheriff was one of the most important personages in the country. In fact, he still holds a conspicuous position in most cities of the vigorous, impetuous West.

Some years ago Sheriff Black, of Cheyenne, was much annoyed by the persistence and determination of sundry suitors for the hand of his fair daughter, Miss Helen.

As is always the case in mining districts, the male population far outnumbered the gentler sex, and Miss Helen, who was a handsome brunette, would have been a belle among far severer critics than the youths of Cheyenne.

She had graduated at St. Louis, and besides being a gifted musician, was a devout worshiper of nature and fond of out-door exercise.

Almost any fine evening in summer a passer-by might hear her rich mezzo voice accompanying her guitar to some ringing "Ballad of the Plains."

Unconscious was she of the fact that the melody floated out from the shadows of the cottonwood trees and mingled with the broad, effulgent moonlight, and that many a luckless youth dated a hopeless love from the first evening when he had dropped in to help the sheriff and the old servant in making an audience.

Miss Helen cared little for the admiration of men, but accepted it as a matter of course, having been brought up among them. She enjoyed herself in a fashion of her own, with her books, guitar, sketch-book and her spirited horse, Wildfire.

Two of her lovers, however, seemed to gain more favor than the rest. In fact, popular opinion was puzzled as to which would win.

One of them was a tall, athletic young Westerner, who was as bright and invigorating of presence as the air he breathed, and in whose clear, blue eyes not a shadow of deceit was visible. Handsome, for true, but so sturdy and independent that he impressed one as a young giant.

He was an ardent geologist, could analyze a "find" as well as an expert, loved his mountains and worshiped—Miss Helen.

But with all his devotion Joe was a discreet young fellow, and held his curly head up in defiance of mankind in general and his rival in particular, and he never let the fair Helen feel too sure of her conquest.

The aforesaid rival was a wealthy young mine-owner from Chicago, all that is conveyed in the term, "a polished gentleman." He had laughed heartily when, on departing for his new home, his Chicago friends had jokingly that he would lose his heart to some Western beauty. But here he was, eager to lay his fate and fortune at the feet of the sheriff's queenly daughter.

One bright, breezy day in September Helen cantered off soon after dinner with her sketching material, ostensibly to make some sketches of the autumn scenery, but really to commune with nature, the only mother she had ever known, and to decide what answer she should give on the morrow to her wealthy lover, who that day had asked her to be his wife. She told him that she must read her own heart before she could answer, and he hoped for a favorable reply.

Joe had been offended by one of her hasty speeches a week before. They were talking about Russell, and she had asserted somewhat warmly that she knew of no one whose society she preferred. As soon as the impulsive words were spoken she repented, but Joe rode away with a look in his blue eyes that had haunted her ever since.

Somehow Joe's haughty head, flung back like a stag at bay, kept looming up before her mental vision, when duty demanded that she be thinking of Russell and his flattering offer.

The hours wore on, and so preoccupied was she that she did not observe the heavy clouds that were rolling black and massive down the mountain sides.

Suddenly a large drop plashed in her face and she looked about her in alarm. A heavy equinoctial storm seemed almost upon her.

Wildfire sprang forward at the touch of the whip and literally flew in the direction of the house.

The great clouds came rolling over the hills like giant ogres clad in mist. Thunder and sharp, vivid lightning followed, and then the deluge.

Wildfire dashed on until they came to the creek, and then the girl drew back in dismay!

The creek was a foaming torrent and she could not see the bridge.

Suddenly she heard a man's voice shouting to her, and in a few minutes Joe, on his tough little mustang, was beside her. He wore a buffalo overcoat, and threw a large cloak of her own about her shoulders. She did not wait to ask how he happened to come for her. She forgot that he was angry and hurt. She reached out her firm, white hand and caught Joe's extended fingers, and side by side the two horses were urged across the bridge.

They galloped home in silence, and when they reached there and Helen stepped into the friendly shelter of the broad veranda, she noted the fact that Joe led both horses to the stable and put them up.

Half an hour later Joe, arrayed in Judge Black's dressing gown and slippers (articles brought by Miss Helen from the East), was explaining to the rosy, demure young mistress of the house that her father had been suddenly called to the next town, and might not return before early morning. "He asked me to keep a sort of lookout over the place and when I rode over to ask you to invite me to tea and found you gone, I hastened after you."

This speech over, an embarrassed silence followed. It was broken by Joe, who looked straight at his hostess and said:

"If I am intruding, Miss Nellie, why, just give the word and I'll go."

Helen assured him in a constrained sort of way that she was glad of company, and went out to prepare the little supper herself, for in those days, as now, servants were rare and inefficient in the West.

After supper, in an awkward pause of the conversation, Joe took up a little case from the table and began examining its contents—a bright, new pair of hand-cuffs.

They were a new kind, just from the East, and Helen began explaining the spring lock which opened with a skeleton key.

Somehow one of the bands was on Joe's wrist, as she slipped the other bright circlet over her firm white hand, when lo, the lock snapped, and they were locked together.

JOE SAT LIKE A STATUE.

Helen blushed crimson and commenced searching for the key in nervous haste.

But no key was to be found. Suddenly the truth dawned upon her. The key was in her father's pocket, and he was on the other side of Crow Creek, which was now a foaming torrent and dangerous to cross in the storm and darkness.

She tried to smile and treat the matter lightly, but it was just the ghost of a smile, and it was a very doleful voice that said: "I am afraid, Mr. Gordon, that ye must break the lock. Father has the key."

Joe felt tempted to indulge in a hearty laugh over their queer situation, but a glance at the distressed face across the table sobered his mirth. A great throb of sorrow came over him. If she loved him she would not care so much.

He gazed at the shining fetter on her wrist so long and so earnestly that Helen lifted her eyes wonderingly but dropped them again.

What woman ever failed to read the story that she saw in the honest blue depth of her humble young giant's eyes?

Her confusion encouraged Joe, but there was almost a tremor in his voice as he laid his great brown hand over her fettered one and said softly: "Nell, if you only loved me I would believe that it was fate that bound us together. I would take it as an omen that fate would grant me my dearest wish. But, Nellie, I dare not hope."

The girl looked up slowly into her lover's eyes; looked steadily, though she still saw that look in them. "Joe," she said, "it is fate."

The cool and cultured Mr. Russell would have marveled had he seen "that queenly girl" sobbing for very joy on Joe Gordon's shoulder, and perhaps he would have marveled still more had he known that at that moment the thought of him and his millions did not once enter her mind.

When the judge returned, in the gray of the morning, he found an interesting picture.

The lamp still burned in the corner and the fire was smoldering away. On the broad lounge by the fire-place sat Helen and her lover. She had fallen asleep from sheer weariness and Joe sat like a statue lest he might disturb the fair sleeper whose cheek was so near his own.

The old gentleman's face was a study. When the truth dawned upon him he flung himself into the nearest chair and laughed until he waked the echoes—likewise Miss Helen.

She was at first bewildered by her novel position, but soon remembered the true situation and relapsed into silence, leaving Joe to tell the story.

"And now, judge," continued he, "you may loose these fetters with the understanding that they will soon be replaced by more enduring ones. I must not let my prisoner escape."

Helen's father had always liked young Gordon, and his blessing was forthcoming.

The announcement of the approaching nuptials gave Mr. Russell a conclusive answer, and he settled up his affairs in short order and returned East.

The old judge used to tell with great gusto how Gordon won his perverse daughter and how gracefully she wore her fetters after she was won.—Atlanta Constitution.

Saved His Wife's Life by a Quick Pistol Shot.

He Was a City Man, but He Knew How to Use a Revolver Pretty Well—Story Told by an Old Adirondack Guide.

ES, WE have a large variety of people here in the woods during the year. Some come to hunt and fish, others to look over the timber and iron lands, others in pursuit of health. I have hardly known a season when we did not have at least one or two gold hunters." The speaker was one of the veteran guides of the northern Adirondack region, who made his headquarters in St. Lawrence County.

"The best marksman I ever saw in St. Lawrence County," the guide said, "was a Buffalo man named Birgin, who came here a few years ago with his wife, who was an invalid. She was threatened with consumption, and the doctors had advised her to try the air of the mountains. Birgin had a neat log cabin built about two miles in from here early in the spring, and when he had furnished it handsomely he moved in with his wife and two servants. He seemed to have plenty of money, and didn't have any thing to do but take care of his wife and sketch and write a little and practice shooting with a revolver. He didn't seem to care much for hunting, and I don't think I ever saw him use a rifle.

"I never could see why he practised so much, for he could hit every thing within range that he could see. I have known a good many crack shots and seen a deal of close shooting in my time, but this city man beat them all. He didn't use any of these new-fangled pistols, but always practised with a rather old-fashioned looking Colt's revolver. He always said he hated to kill any thing. He shot to kill before he left the woods, though.

"One day I asked him how he came to be so expert. He said that when he was a very young lad he had a fancy for pistol practice. When Captain Travis opened a pistol gallery in Buffalo he took lessons of him. The captain became a good deal interested in him and took pains to instruct him. When he went away he made him a present of the revolver he still used, and advised him to practice with nothing else. It was one Travis had had made on purpose for sharpshooting.

"When Birgin told me about Travis he showed me a shot I would not believe could be made if I hadn't seen him make it three times in succession. Some hard wood boards had been left where the floor of the cabin had been laid. Birgin took one of these boards and laid it on the ground and leveled it up carefully with a spirit level. Ten paces from the plank he put a mark about as big as a silver half-dollar on a tree. Then he got back ten paces from the plank and leveled the pistol and fired at the centre of the plank. The bullet glanced from the hard wood and struck the mark on the tree. This he did three times in succession. He said that was one of the shots Travis had taught him, and he had always kept it in practice. He said that some time his practice might be of use to him. And he was right about that.

"I was not very busy in the spring and early summer, and I went around with Birgin a good deal. Like every stranger, he was afraid of the woods, and he paid well for any thing that looked like work.

"After a couple of months Mrs. Birgin's health was so much better that she was able to join us in short strolls into the timber, and she enjoyed them very much. She would sit on some cushions with one of the girls an hour or two at a time, while Birgin would ramble round and sketch and examine the rocks. When I had nothing particular to do I used to stroll over to Birgin's cabin along in the forenoon, when the weather was fine. Then, as his wife

HE FIRED AT THE CENTER OF THE PLANK.

continued to improve, I would take them further and further into the woods, each time in a new direction. On these trips I always carried my double-barreled muzzle-loading shotgun, and it's worth three of any breech loaders I ever handled. In the left barrel I always had a heavy charge of powder and buckshot, and in the other barrel a charge of fine birdshot. Deer were out of season, and all we cared for was a few birds for Mrs. Birgin.

"One afternoon my boy, who was then a lad of fifteen, had been out with my shotgun. He came home at night a good deal excited. He had met some of the boys, and they had told him about a panther that had been seen and heard in the neighborhood. He talked so much about the panther that he forgot to tell me he had fired the charge of buckshot and left both barrels loaded with bird shot.

"I didn't take any stock in the story about the panther, and thought the boys had been trying to scare the lad. I had never seen a live panther, and never expected to see one, at least about here. I thought so little about it that I didn't mention the matter to the Birgin people. I didn't want to alarm them for nothing, and spoil their pleasant strolls in the woods, when they were doing Mrs. Birgin so much good.

"The next morning I took my shotgun and went over to the cabin. I only looked to see that it was loaded, and supposed the load of buckshot was in the left barrel, as usual, as the boy had never interfered with it before. My carelessness, for that's what it was, came very near being disastrous.

"Mrs. Birgin was feeling stronger than usual that morning, and we walked a long way from the cabin. One of the servants went with us and carried a big basket of provisions. We camped for lunch in a pretty little ravine over near Little river. After lunch Birgin and myself crossed the little ravine and left the women sitting on the bank. Birgin had his revolver in his belt, as usual, and began hammering on a rock looking for specimens, and I sat looking on, with my gun over my knees.

"Suddenly I heard a stir in the underbrush on the other side of the ravine. I turned my head, and you can imagine how I felt when I saw a full-grown male panther only a few feet back of where the women sat. It had probably been attracted by the smell of the provisions and was making observations.

"I confess I lost my head a little, as I was not hunting for panthers. But then, did you ever happen to meet a full-grown panther in the woods? You had a touch of 'buck fever' when you were up here last fall and fired at your first deer. A panther is a great big cat, and when one is interfered with it is apt to make things lively unless it is disabled with the first shot. Otherwise it is better let alone.

"My first thought was to give the panther a dose of buckshot, and I took quick aim and let go my left barrel, over the heads of the women. I knew by the light recoil that something was the matter, but I could not understand it. I sent the other charge instinctively. The panther was less than one hundred feet away.

"You can imagine the effect of the bird-shot in the face of a robust and hungry panther. It simply maddened him. The beast prepared to spring upon the women, but I could do nothing with only an empty shotgun. At my first shot Mrs. Birgin had turned and caught sight of the panther just above her and fell in a dead faint.

"The huge beast made the spring, but went wide of his mark and rolled down the bank to the bottom of the little ravine. Birgin had been equal to the emergency. He sprang up instantly when I shot and drawing his Colt's revolver sent a thirty-eight caliber slug into the panther's right eye. A second slug caught him in the center of the forehead just as he sprang clear of the ground. He just grazed the form of Mrs. Birgin and was dead before he had rolled down to the bottom of the glen.

"Birgin hurried up the bank to attend to his wife, who soon recovered, and I went to look over the panther. Its face and neck were peppered with the little bird shot, but the empty socket and the hole between the eyes told the story. While I was overhauling the panther Birgin came down and looked on. 'Now I know what I have been practicing all this time for,' was all he said. He told me afterward that he did not wait to fairly get the sights; but his long practice made it impossible to miss his aim.

"Birgin and the girl helped Mrs. Birgin back to the cabin, half carrying her most of the way. I skinned the panther leaving on the head and claws. Birgin took the skin with him to Buffalo when his wife's health was fully restored in the fall.

"For awhile the boys had a good deal to say about gunning for panther with bird shot, but they won't soon forget the two shots with which Birgin brought down the only panther ever killed in these woods with a pistol."—Rochester (N. Y.) Democrat.

Facts About the Birch.

The birch is capable of supporting a much greater degree of cold than any other tree. In the old world its northern limit is 71 degrees upon the west and 63 degrees upon the east coast; in America its northern limit is 64 degrees upon the west and 58 degrees upon the east. In Germany the highest elevation at which it is found is 5,200 feet above the level of the sea; in Sweden 3,900 feet and in Lapland 1,723 feet. It is worthy of remark that this tree decreases in size not only as it advances toward the north but also as it proceeds southward beyond the limits of its native region. It attains its highest perfection and greatest height in Germany and southern Sweden. The birch is not particular in its choice of soil or situation, and will grow almost equally well in sandy, rocky, dry or damp soil. London Garden is authority for the foregoing statements.

SINCE LAST WE MET.

THE total number of American patents issued last year reached 23,360, as against 19,585 for 1888.

STAINED ivory is said to be superseding white ivory for all sorts of articles, including those of the toilet.

THE visible supply of peanuts is 400,000 bushels, against 900,000 last year at this date, and the year before 1,200,000.

MILK powder is the latest invention of science. It is the discovery of a Swiss savant, who reduces milk to a dry powder in such a manner that by the addition of water it at once assumes all its natural properties. The further claim is made that milk in this form is much better than canned or condensed milk, in that it has no sugar in it.

THE street fakirs are selling the latest thing in the camera line. It is a little box said to be a camera, at the peep hole of which you are told to gaze intently for a minute. When you have done so you are to touch a spring and an already developed photograph of yourself is promised. What really appears is a donkey head, worked on the Jack-in-the-box principle.

ONE ardent fisherman is to be made happy by the gift of a watch with a unique dial. His name has just eleven letters in it, and these letters have been placed in the place of the hour figures on the watch the company is making, while a rod and trout basket indicate the fad of the receiver. The name and illustrations are very cleverly executed by hand, with the finest of brushes.

A BAITED hook and line disappeared from the boat used the other night by a fisherman in Preston, Conn. After an unsuccessful search the next morning, he started for his work in Norwich. In crossing the lofty Shetucket bridge he saw a fish line stretching across that structure, which he traced into Mr. Burke's store. In that shop was his family cat, evidently in great fright, and the fish line terminated inside of her. Since it was impossible to get the big hook out of her, and she was wild with pain, the cat was killed.

THE so-called Indian Messiah who is preaching to the Porcupine Indians, is described as a large man with a tawny skin and a noble carriage and face. He says that he was on the earth hundreds of years ago, when he appeared to the white people, who used him roughly, and even killed him. One of his followers says he saw marks on the hands of the Messiah, who said he had been nailed to a tree by the hand, and that spikes had also been driven through his feet, and his side had been cut open. The Indians are greatly excited over the appearance of this impostor.

AMERICANS OF DISTINCTION.

EDWIN BOOTH, who has himself played the part of Hamlet thousands of times, has never yet seen it played by anybody else.

MRS. HARRIET BEECHER STOWE at 78 years is in the same feeble state of mind and body that she has been in for two years past. She spends much of her time in the open air, and is carefully watched over by her daughters at her Hartford home.

CHAUNCEY DEPEW was called upon recently by a middle-aged lady who was so delighted by his urbanity that she impulsively kissed him when she arose to leave. A reporter who witnessed the disturbance asked Mr. Depew whether he was used to that sort of thing, and he replied: "It is one of the regular rules of the office."

SENATOR EVARTS owns a hunting lodge, a comfortable log cabin, on the banks of the Potomac, in Maryland, furnished ready for instant use, with a colored man and his wife in readiness to receive the Senator and his friends, but it has not been used except by the colored man and his wife during the several years Senator Evarts has owned it.

MRS. GENERAL GRANT seems to have found the elixir of youth. Although sixty-six, she is as agile as a woman of thirty, enjoys perfect health and, barring the weakness of her eyes which were never strong, her faculties are as keen as they ever were. The gray in her hair is scarcely noticeable; her face is plump and of good color. Mrs. Grant dresses in rich black abbey cloths or silk fabrics.

MRS. GILMORE, wife of the famous band master, arranges much of the music for the band and in many ways assists her husband in his professional work. Mr. and Mrs. Gilmore have an only daughter, a beautiful girl of 20, with fine dark eyes, and hair artistically arranged over a pretty forehead and in a low knot behind. The mother and daughter travel with Mr. Gilmore most of the time.

SOME CENSUS SCRAPS.

THE census gives Newark a population of 182,000.

THE census shows Denver's population to be about 120,000.

MILWAUKEE'S population will exceed 200,000, a gain of 90,000 in ten years.

SUPERVISOR CONDON makes an estimate of the population of Salt Lake City as 49,972, and Ogden as 16,825.

SUPERVISOR DAVIS says the population of San Francisco is 300,000. The Chinese population is 24,000, an increase of 2,000 since 1880.

UNOFFICIAL figures put the populations of places along the Hudson river as follows: Catskill, 4,900; Poughkeepsie, 28,200; Kingston, 22,800; Newburg, 23,000; Hudson, 10,650.

THE most densely populated square mile in the world is in the city of New York. It is inhabited by 270,000 people, the larger part of whom are Italians, who speak only their native language.

THE Superintendent of the Census, Mr. Porter, estimates that from present indications the returns of the enumerators would show a total population in the United States of 64,500,000, against 50,155,783 in 1880.

RETURNS from some of the largest cities in the State of California give following official approximations of census population in the respective cities: Los Angeles, 50,000; Oakland, 46,000; Sacramento, 27,000.

DEATHS FROM HEAT

Prostrations Numerous in New York City.

EIGHTEEN PERSONS KILLED.

Actor Mansfield Affected and the Madison Square Theatre Closed.

A Catholic Clergyman Dies in Brooklyn. Boston Has the Hottest Day of the Year—Several Prostrations in Providence—The Hot Wave in New England Followed by Severe Storms.

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—The heat caused nearly a dozen deaths in this city, and cases of prostration were numerous. The heat closed the Madison Square Theatre. Shortly before 8 o'clock last night Mr. Mansfield sent word that he had been prostrated by the heat and would be unable to appear. The audience was dismissed and their money refunded.

Among the victims of the heat was Police Inspector Steers, who became so weak at Police Headquarters that he was forced to go home. Inspector Williams, who has just returned from his vacation, took his place.

There were over two score of men and women prostrated by the heat and had to be taken to hospitals in this city, in addition to 18 who died from sunstroke and heat prostration.

In Brooklyn two deaths from heat occurred, one was that of an unknown woman, and the other that of Father James Trainer, assistant pastor of St. Joseph's Catholic Church.

Boston's Hottest Day.

BOSTON, Aug. 1.—Several prostrations have been reported, among them Patrick Walton, aged 30, a coal heaver, who has since died. The Signal Service thermometer showed 94:5, the hottest day of the year.

Intense Heat in Providence.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Aug. 1.—The heat here was intense, over 90 being the day's record without intermission. There were several prostrations reported to the police.

STORMS IN THE EAST.

A Child Killed by Lightning and Trees and Wires Blown Down.

BOSTON, Aug. 1.—From different sections of New England reports come that the intensely hot weather of the past two or three days was followed last night by severe thunder and wind storms. In only one instance is loss of life reported. At Rockland, Mass., lightning struck Mrs. Finnegan's house, killing an 18-months old child, who was standing in the doorway.

In Randolph, Mass., John Dunn's house was struck and the father and three children paralyzed for a time, but recovered.

In Lawrence the people suffered another fright when a tornado of wind and dust struck the northern side of the city. Trees were blown down or stripped of their foilage, while women ran into their cellars and teams scurried for their stables. It was the worst wind storm, except the cyclone, ever seen in this city.

In Plymouth, N. H., the thunder storm was accompanied by hail and a heavy wind.

At Nashua, N. H., the storm almost assumed the proportions of a cyclone. A building was struck by lightning, but little damage is reported aside from that done to wires.

Crops Ruined in Kansas.

ABILENE, Kan. Aug. 1.—It is admitted at last by all that the corn crop of Central Kansas is ruined. No matter how much rain falls, hot winds have blown for three days and stalks are shriveled. Only local rains have fallen for over a month, and the prairies are so dry that fires break out daily. The hay crop is an entire failure as well as the fruit crop. A large acreage of wheat will be put in if it rains enough to plow. Stock is being rushed to market in fear of lack of food. The drought is considered the most severe in twelve years and there is no sign of its being broken.

Suit Against the Stewart Estate.

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—Gavin Branagh, of Ireland, has brought suit against William P. Smith to obtain possession of a piece of property owned by Alexander T. Stewart when he died, and which Mrs. Stewart gave to Mr. Smith. The action is practically a test case. To win the suit the plaintiff will have to first prove her relationship to Mr. Stewart, and that being done to prove that the will admitted by the surrogates as Mr. Stewart's was really a fraudulent document. The plaintiff claims to be a grand-daughter of an uncle of A. T. Stewart. The case has been postponed to August 13.

Attached the Vessel.

GLOUCESTER, Mass., Aug. 1.—The schooner George W. Pierce, owned by O. D. Whitten of Portland, arrived here Monday on the Banks, with a fare of codfish which was sold for about $1,000. The vessel was fitted out on quarters and Captain Atkins informed the crew that he would settle with them Wednesday morning. The crew were on hand at the appointed time but the skipper did not appear. The vessel has been attached.

Republican League Convention.

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—The Republican League of the State of New York issued a call for its State Convention at Saratoga Springs on Sept. 4.

THEIR HOMES BURNED.

Forty-One Dwelling Houses Destroyed by Fire at Braddock, Pa.

BRADDOCK, Pa., Aug. 1.—Forty-one dwelling houses were destroyed by fire here last evening, and more than 300 persons were, for the time being, rendered homeless.

The fire broke out in a stable on Washington street. A strong wind carried the flames along both sides of the street, until more than two blocks of buildings were burned. The houses were all frame structures and in a few moments the fire was beyond control. The high wind carried the burning shingles long distances and at one time furious flames were burning in five different places, threatening the lower part of the town, near the steel works, with destruction.

The Burgess telegraphed to Pittsburg for assistance. Two fire engines were sent to the scene, but their services were not required. The houses were nearly all owned and occupied by employes at the steel works and the families of laborers. Very little of their household effects were saved. Late in the evening all of the homeless had been provided with temporary lodging places.

To-day Manager Schwab of the steel works commenced the erection of houses for his employes on the fire swept district. The loss on buildings and household goods will aggregate $60,000. The insurance is estimated at $25,000. No serious accidents are reported.

TRAGEDY ON THE MOUNTAINS.

A Jealous Husband Mortally Wounds His Wife and Kills Himself.

LANCASTER, Pa., Aug. 1.—A terrible tragedy occurred on North Mountain, about eight miles from Mechanicsburg, Jeremiah Miller, a wood chopper, lived with his wife and nine children in an out of the way place on the mountain and earned a scanty living by selling wood in the valley towns.

Yesterday his wife returned from one of her usual trips to the valley town and her husband accused her of infidelity, and working himself into a passion, seized his shotgun and emptied the contents of one barrel into her breast. Miller then placed the stock of the gun on the ground, and fired the remaining barrel into his stomach, killing himself instantly.

Mrs. Miller is mortally wounded and cannot survive. She always bore a good character, and it is said her husband's accusations were ungrounded.

Died of Starvation and Neglect.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Aug. 1.—The four-months-old child of Thomas McGovern died here, and according to the death certificate of a physician engaged in the Bureau of Labor and Charities, it was a case of starvation and neglect. The child had been ill for three weeks and its nourishment was a teaspoonful of condensed milk in a pint of water. When asked why she did not give it more, the mother, who is very ignorant, replied that she thought "its little stomach couldn't retain it."

Knights of Pythias Adjourn.

KINGSTON, N. Y., Aug. 1.—The Grand Lodge of the Knights of Pythias adjourned to meet in Cortland, July 28, 1891. The officers elect were installed and Grand Chancellor Carpenter, of Syracuse, appointed George H. Gardiner of Albany Master-at-Arms; James A. McAuley and Frank Wolf of New York Inner and Outer Guards. Standing committees were also announced. The Grand Lodge made an excursion to West Point to-day.

Under Arrest for Arson.

JERSEY CITY, Aug. 1.—Hyman Silverman, proprietor of a small dry goods store in this city, is under arrest charged with setting fire to his store Wednesday night. Silverman had an insurance of $500 on about $200 worth of goods. The building was completely gutted, and a number of families sleeping in the upper tenement rooms were rescued with great difficulty. All of their effects were burned.

Mr. Blaine Going to Cape May.

CAPE MAY, N. J., Aug. 1.—President Harrison spent a quiet day here. He says he believes the climate does him good. Secretary Blaine will arrive here this evening, and possibly two other members of the Cabinet will be here later in the week. Apartments have been engaged for Mr. Blaine at the Stockton Hotel.

Killed Him With a Club.

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 1.—At Karner's Station, eight miles from Albany, last night, Thomas O'Brien had a war of words with Dominick Mott and, striking him on the head with a club, killed him instantly. The murderer was arrested.

Refuse to Repair School-Houses.

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—All the union men employed in repairing the school-houses of the city have quit work, in accordance with the orders of the board of walking delegates of the building trades. The strike affects more than 70 school-houses.

Shot His Wife.

LONG BRANCH, N. J., Aug. 1.—Stephen B. Billings fatally shot his wife at their cottage at Eatontown. The woman, in her ante-mortem statement, refused to give the cause of the tragedy. Billings was arrested.

Rough on Rats Killed Him.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Aug. 1.—T. W. Sellick, a commercial traveler for a Boston marble firm, committed suicide with "Rough on Rats" at the New Osborne House at noon.

Annie Goodwin's Lover Secures Bail.

NEW YORK, Aug. 1.—Gus Harrison, the lover of Annie Goodwin, who was under arrest for being concerned in her death by malpractice, has been released on $5,000 bail.

A MONSTER STRIKE

The Sailors on the Lakes Make Their Demand To-Day.

GENERAL TIE-UP OF VESSELS.

No Species of Sailing Craft Will Leave Any Port on the Lakes.

More Wages Must be Paid Sailors and Bargemen—Every Man Under the Rank of Captain Must be a Member of the Union—The Vessel Owners Will Fight. Several Strikes Settled.

CHICAGO, Aug. 1.—This morning was inaugurated the sailors' strike, involving every species of sailing craft on the lake system. Not a sailing vessel will leave any port on any of the lakes, and just as fast as vessels that are now out make their appearance they will be added to the list of "tied-up."

The strike is due to a demand on the part of the Seamen's Union for an increase of wages after August 1, to $2 for sailors and $1.25 for bargemen, and a further demand that every man on shipboard under the rank of captain shall be a member of the union and shall be shipped from the Seamen's Union headquarters by vessel owners.

The Vessel Owners' Association refused the demand. The only possibility of its failure will be by a square back down on the part of one or the other of the interested factions.

Brakemen Combining for More Pay.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Aug 1.—It is stated that the passenger brakemen on the Hudson River Railroad will combine for more pay. Head brakemen now get $40 a month, and rear brakemen $35. They have made application for an increase, but it was respectfully declined on the ground that the New York Central is paying as much as other roads.

Rolling Mill Strike Settled.

MCKEESPORT, Pa., Aug. 1.—The strike at the National Rolling Mill has been settled. The agreement reached was the same by which the men were governed last year. The employes are to receive scale wages, but the company will not be required to sign the amalgamated scale list.

Philadelphia Cloakmakers Win.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 1.—The strike of the cloakmakers here has ended in a victory for the laboring men. The concessions made by the manufacturers are that they will employ only union men and discharge the non-union men at present in their employ.

Ready for Kemmler's Execution.

AUBURN, N. Y., Aug. 1.—The week preceding the electrocution of the murderer Kemmler is not marked by such excitement as characterized the few days before the 28th of April. Everything in and around the prison is ready for the execution, and a crowd of newspaper representatives is expected to be here.

BETRAYED BY A GENERAL.

He Attacks San Salvador's Capital After Being Handsomely Treated.

LA LIBERTAD, Aug. 1 (via Galveston.)—It is reported that General Rivas, who was recently recalled from Honduras by the Salvador Government to raise troops around Cojutepeque and join the main army operating against Guatemala on the frontier, turned traitor after having had a handsome reception in the capitol.

When he was supposed to be on his way to the frontier he turned back his forces of 2,000 Indians towards the capital and stormed the barracks. There fighting has been going on two days, but no details have been received, as communication has been interrupted since. Gen. Rivas started the revolution against the Menendez Government some months ago, but was defeated. He then fled to Honduras.

Trouble Brewing in Samoa.

SIDNEY, N. S. W., Aug. 1.—The steamship Lubeck has arrived here from Apia, Samoa. She brings advices to the effect that rumors were prevelent in Apia previous to her departure, of disorders in a number of Samoan villages. In the opinion of Europeans, these disorders point to the necessity of three treaty powers forming a proper government for Samoa.

Salvador Will Arbitrate.

CITY OF MEXICO, Aug. 1.—Senor Pou, confidential agent of the Ezeta Government in Salvador, says that Salvador is ready for arbitration of her dispute with Guatemala. The Salvadorians having been victorious feel that they have upheld the dignity of their country, and while still prepared for fight, are willing to agree to honorable peace.

Dunlo is a Snob.

LONDON, Aug. 1.—Most of the newspaper comments on the Dunlo case express approval of the verdict and sympathy with Lady Dunlo. The "Chronicle" severely censures Lord Dunlo's conduct in the affair, and pronounces the noble Lord to be a snob.

Against Protestant Ministers.

ST. PETERSBURG, Aug. 1.—An Imperial ukase has been issued forbidding any further operations by Protestant missionaries, especially in Western Russia, on penalty of offenders being conducted to the frontier.

Won The Prince of Wales Stakes.

LONDON, Aug. 1.—The race for the Prince of Wales stakes, at Goodwood, was won by Orion. Sainfoin, who was the favorite, was the only other starter.

Talk About an Eight-Club League.

LOUISVILLE, Aug. 1.—It is said that a Brotherhood agent held a conference with President Phelps of the Association. The plan is to establish an eight-club league. The Eastern clubs are to be placed in New York, Brooklyn, Philadelphia, and Boston; the Western in St. Louis, Chicago, Cleveland and Louisville. The Players and Association clubs in Philadelphia and Brooklyn are to combine. After the best players in the two organizations have been retained the remainder will be allowed to go into the minor leagues as an inducement for them to enter into a National agreement with the new organization. It is hoped that the new combination will be effected in September.

Playing for the World Championship.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., Aug. 1.—Chas. H. Manning of New York, and Geo. S. Kurtzsh of Syracuse, began a continuous pool match for the championship of the world and a $300 stake here last night. The score for the first night's play was 300 to 103 in favor of Manning.

WASHINGTON TOPICS

A Big Fight Expected Over the Pure Lard Bill.

POWERFUL LOBBIES AT WORK.

A Vigorous Attempt Will be Made to Crush the Measure.

Three Syndicates Interested—A New Form of Debt Statement Issued To-Day—Congressman Breckenridge Renominated—The New Revenue Steamer Named After Secretary Windom.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—The fight between the big lard men of the country over the Conger Anti-Compound Lard bill, which has just been reported to the House and is to be soon called up, will be one of the stiffest of the session.

The fact has begun to dawn upon the minds of Congressmen that this bill is the outcome of a fierce commercial struggle for the lard market of the country between John E. Squires & Sons, the head of the pure-lard syndicate, on the one hand, and Philip J. Armour, Chicago's butcher prince, and the Cotton Seed Trust on the other.

Of late years the manufacturers of compound lard have been gradually driving the pure leaf article to the wall, and in order to retain an existence Congress has been asked by the latter syndicate to levy an internal revenue tax upon the compound article, and to require that it be branded the same as oleomargarine.

Both syndicates have lobbies at Washington, and it is charged that both have money to use. Congressman Mason, of Illinois, who reflects the views of Armour, declares that the bill will be beaten in the House, and if not there it will be strangled in the Senate Committee on Agriculture.

COL. BRIDGELAND DEAD.

He Wanted Once to Horsewhip Senator Benjamin Harrison.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—Col. John A. Bridgeland, a well-known Republican politician, died at his home in Indianapolis aged 84. He helped Gov. Morton organize the Indiana troops in 1861, and held many public offices of both State and National character.

A gentleman who knew Bridgeland well relates that on one occasion he had threatened to horsewhip Senator (now President) Harrison. It was during the Arthur administration, when Harrison prevented Bridgeland's appointment as Consul to Barcelona, but friends prevented Col. Bridgeland from carrying his threat into execution.

Soon after Harrison's inauguration Bridgeland presented him with a team of horses in the name of the Indiana Republicans.

New Form of Debt Statement.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—A new debt statement was issued by the Treasury Department to-day. The new statement is less elaborate and complicated than that previously issued. In the new statement the Pacific Railroad indebtedness is separated from the national debt and the cash held in the treasury is subdivided so as to show the specific purposes for which it is held. The subsidiary coins, instead of being treated as heretofore as an unavailable asset, are classified as cash in the treasury, not full legal tender. The Treasurer's monthly statement of assets and liabilities will be changed to correspond with the new form of debt statement.

Warned by the Rush.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—A dispatch from Victoria says the schooner Ariel is reported to have been boarded by the cutter Rush and warned to keep out of Behring Sea. A copy of the proclamation was given to the captain. This incident, it is thought in Victoria, contradicts the belief that the policy of 1886 will be pursued this season by the United States.

Hot Fight for a Congressional Seat.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 1.—A dispatch from Little Rock, Ark., says that Congressman Breckinridge was renominated by the Democrats yesterday at Searcy. It is conceded by the Democrats that Breckinridge's election is doubtful, while the Republicans claim he will be defeated. Isom P. Langly will be the Republican-Union Labor candidate.

Slashed With a Razor.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Aug. 1.—George Baxter, one of the attaches of the Irwin Brothers' Circus, was slashed in a fearful manner with a razor, last night, by Jean De Talio, the contortionist, otherwise known as the "Human Anaconda." The cutting was done in the mess tent where Baxter, it is said, made an insulting proposition to De Talio's wife.

Millions Go to Florence Blythe.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 1.—Judge Coffey rendered a decision in the celebrated Blythe will case. The opinion, which is a voluminous one, awards to Florence, the illegitimate child of the deceased millionaire, Thomas H. Blythe, the bulk of the estate, valued at about $4,000,000.

A Young Lady Drowned.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Aug. 1.—While bathing in the Hudson river, at Esopus last evening, with five companions, Miss Meta Schoman, aged 18, of New York, became entangled in the eel grass and was drowned. She was boarding at Schaffer's Hotel at Esopus.

Population of Harrisburg.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Aug. 1.—The official report makes the poplation of Harrisburg 30,202.

A ROYAL WEDDING.

The Princess Valerie Marries Archduke Franz Salvator.

WIEN, Aug. 1.—At Ischl, the beautiful watering place on the River Traun, an event took place that will long be remembered. The Archduchess Valerie, daughter of Emperor Francis Joseph, was married to Archduke Francis Salvator in the parish church in the presence of the Emperor and Empress. Many court dignitaries from Vienna and the mayor and other functionaries of the town were present.

The Archduchess recently renounced her rights of succession to the imperial throne in order that she might be free to marry the Archduke, who was her own choice for a husband.

Archduke Franz Salvator is the second son and third child of the Archduke Karl Salvator, younger brother in the non-reigning line of Tuscany, whose elder brother bears the title of Ferdinand IV., Grand Duke of Tuscany.

It was a marriage of love and the sweet looking bride, who is 23 years old, exhibited the liveliest pleasure in the event. The young Archduchess, concerning whose unaffected ways and kindly heart innumerable anecdotes are current, has been the constant companion of her mother and her consoler at the time of the tragedy at Meyerling. Some anxiety prevails respecting the manner in which she will bear the separation.

SHOT THE ENGINEER.

Desperate Attempt to Rob a Santa Fe Train.

TRINIDAD, Col., Aug. 1.—The Santa Fe train from the South, due here at 10:40 p. m. was held up by four men three miles South of Trinidad.

One man stopped the train with a red lantern, and as it stopped three men stepped up to the cab and began firing at Engineer O'Reilly, shooting him twice through the hand and wrist.

The fireman, W. M. Hall, has a severe wound in the head. The engineer put on steam and ran the train to Trinidad and on to La Junta, leaving the robbers behind.

The wounded fireman is at the Grand Union Hotel. The shooting began without a word of warning.

Officers are scouring the mountains.

BY THE WAY.

—A party of twenty-five Plainfielders went on a moonlight excursion by stage to Boynton Beach, last evening.

—Fourteen car loads of excursionists from the Park Avenue Baptist, First Presbyterian and Congregational churches left this city this morning, for a day at Asbury Park.

—A young housewife spending her first Summer of married life in Plainfield made a shopping tour this morning and went about jabbing her parasol into melons to find out if the were succulent.

—The United States Express Company has begun a system of free delivery of parcels within a reasonable distance of the railroad station in Cranford. This is the first free delivery in any of the smaller suburban towns near New York, and if it is successful in Cranford the system will be put in operation in other small towns near Plainfield.

—Warren Engine No. 1, of North Plainfield, was taken out for a "wash" last evening. The apparatus was in excellent order, and quite a crowd gathered to see the exhibition. Some had feared that the Duer street well was not to be depended on in case of fire, but last night it was used a long time, and the supply was still good when the firemen left it.

The Reason Mr. Watt's Impression Has Not Yet Been Publicly Stated.

Charles Watt, of Netherwood, will sail for Glasgow on the 12th inst., returning, however, in September from the land of his birth to spend another Winter in Plainfield. Mr. Watt is the gentleman who was so provoked when the Rev. Mr. Simpson announced from the pulpit of the Netherwood chapel that a generous contributor had given $50 to the church with the desire that no mention be made of it. Mr. Watt said that Mr. Simpson had no right to speak of the matter in public at all, and was indignant at what he called the pastor's breach of trust and confidence.

An effort was recently made to induce Mr. Watt to deliver a lecture on "A Scotchman's Impression of New York." His ripe experience, fluency of thought and the remarkable purity of his English, specially fitted him to comply with the request. Although an annusually diffident and retiring man, Mr. Watt proved again the truth of Solomon's saying, "You'll never find a coward where the Shamrock grows." He consented. Everybody was pleased and expectant. However, just as the date approached, Mr. Watt called the committee's attention to a proviso he insisted upon. "Ladies positively not admitted," he said. The result was, the money was refunded to those who had already purchased tickets, and the lecture is postponed.

Turned Out to Die.

The police arrested a mule last night for vagrancy and locked him in Roberts' stables over night. This morning some one claimed him, or he might, like other wanderers, have been ordered out of town.

The man who had said 'twas his afterwards disowned him, and the mule is still a well cared for outcast. He is very bony and homely, and some one has probably turned him out to die.

The mule is said to be the property of James Perrine.

Sold Beer Bottles Against the Law.

A number of men from Newark beer-bottling establishments made a raid on junk-dealing establishments in Plainfield, last evening and captured a quantity of bottles belonging to them and bearing their stamp. They will seek to punish in the Courts the retailers who sold their bottles to the junkmen, and the junkmen, who are losers by the raid, though themselves guilty in purchasing stamped bottles, promise to assist in the prosecution by turning states' evidence.

Whittled Off His Thumb.

George Randolph, a colored man in the employ of A. M. Runyon & Son, cut off the end of his thumb while whittling a piece of wood yesterday. The wound bled a great deal, and Randolph became very faint from loss of blood. No serious results are expected.

Easily made. A cheap and delicious drink for 25 cents can be made from Hires' Root Beer Packages. Five gallons. Be careful that you get the real, genuine Hires'. There are a number of would-be Root Beer packages on the market.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Fred Smalley will spend next week at Asbury Park.

The Rev. T. Logan Murphy and family will spend August at Belmar.

Mrs. Kathline Ryder and family, of East Front street, leave today for Dingman's Ferry.

Wm. Demarest of the postoffice corps of carriers, started Thursday on a 15 days' vacation.

Miss Kate Potter, of Point Pleasant, leaves today for a visit with Miss Emma West at Haverstraw.

Miss Ella Titsworth, of Rochester, is visiting her cousin, Miss Florence Titsworth, of Madison avenue.

Mrs. D. J. Bolce and Miss Bolce, of Park avenue, have returned from a month's visit in the West.

George E. Fairchild of Grandview avenue, is confined to his home with illness, the result of a heavy cold.

Mr. and Mrs. James W. DeGraff (nee Milliken) are registered at the Wildmere House, Minnewaska, N. Y.

Wm. Gulick of Clinton, has returned home from a visit to his son, Jacob Gulick, of North Plainfield.

Miss Weaver, of St. Marks Square, Philadelphia, is the guest of Mrs. Demarest, of East Fifth street.

The Rev. J. P. Taylor, wife and son, are back from Sullivan county, New York, and home again on Park avenue.

The family of J. B. Higgins of West Second street, have gone to Linvale, Hunterdon county, for the month of August.

The second twin child of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Wyckoff of West Second street died yesterday, soon after the burial of the first.

Messrs John Force, Mansfield G. Duckworth, J. Blair and Bert Demarest have returned from an outing among the hills of Hunterdon.

Wal Coriell, Edw. Petrie, Walter Darby and Fred Krom, returned from Camp Plainfield, Halsey Island, Lake Hopatcong, yesterday.

Miss Hattie Rockwell of Plainfield, sailed on the steamer Puritan yesterday afternoon with the Somerville Unionist-Gazette party bound for the coast of Maine.

Corporation Counsel Marsh sails for Bremen, to-morrow morning, on the steamer "Kaiser Wilhelm II. It will be his fourth semi-annual trip. He will be absent until September.

Hugh McClarren and wife of Bridgewater, have transferred to Sarah A. Milliken of this city, land on Front street, 726 feet Northeast from Northeast line of Jefferson avenue, for $2,800.

By invitation from the Rev. Alfred Blewitt, N. W. Pike of this city, will preach upon the "Resurection of the just and the unjust," in the Gospel Temple, New York city, Sunday evening.

George M. Griffen is maybe a little better today, but symptoms of typhoid fever are very prominent. He was taken with remittent fever some days ago and is now under the care of Drs. Jenkins and Rushmore besides his father, Dr. A. M. Griffen.

Clerk Clark of the Board of Education, is recovering so steadily from his late attack of paralysis that he is up and able to walk around. While he has been incapacitated, his son, Frank B. Clark, has filled his office with entire satisfaction to the Trustees.

The death of Lucy Cleaveland Prindle, widow of Isaac Prindle, occurred Wednesday, in the ninety-third year of her age. Funeral services were held over the remains at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. John H. Worth, at Westfield, this afternoon at half-past four o'clock.

In a very eloquent speech last evening, Dr. J. B. Probasco, on behalf of his fellow Knights of Trinity Commandery, presented Joseph G. Miller with a costly maltese cross jewel as a token of their undivided affection for him personally and their appreciation of his creamed oysters.

George Taylor, the sugar broker—who is also one of the principal stockholders in the million-dollar company that control an extractor that rolls the butter right out of the fresh sweet milk—will sail for Europe next week to join his family. They will all return in the early Fall to Netherwood, where before snow flies Mr. Taylor expects to have a handsome new home.

Another of their successful progressive euchre parties was held by the guests of The Netherwood, last evening. Mrs. James R. Plum again selected the prizes which included a Royal Worcester Vase, an elaborate fan, a gold bonbon spoon and a Royal Worcester chocolate pitcher for the ladies, with a gold-headed umbrella, a box of silk handkerchiefs, a silver champagne holder and a silver-backed clothes brush. These prizes were won respectively by Mrs. M. C. Ogden, Mrs. Wm. H. Raser, Mrs. G. C. Wood, Miss Forker and S. H. Tobey, S. C. Scott, W. H. Williams and J. E. Spencer.

Will Take Part.

The weekly meeting of Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M., was held as usual in their hall last evening at 8 o'clock. A large number of the members were present. After the regular routine business was transacted, it was decided by those present to take part in the grand parade at Asbury Park on August 20. They will be the guests of George H. Adams Council, of Newark.

It is neither pleasant nor profitable to hear people constantly coughing when they could be easily cured by a 25 cent bottle of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup.

PLAINFIELD'S "BIG SIX."

Something About the Men Who Hold Plainfield's Prosperity in Their Hands—Their Motto is, "The People, Not Politics."

From an article of over a column long in yesterday's World, the following extracts are taken. Unusual as it is to find such a result in a strange paper's review of a subject it cannot be expected to be thoroughly acquainted with, there is not a word in the whole story but that every honest man in Plainfield knows to be true. THE PRESS challenges the community to find a falsehood in the article, and will publish any communication written it to that effect.

The article says among other things: "The 'Big 6' of Plainfield have become so far famed in story that probably a part of the half that has not been told of them may be interesting to more than the casual reader. In story the title of the 'Combine'—as they are also called with flippant intent—is meant to imply a sextet of political bosses, controlling municipal action in the making of all deals and contracts and the awarding of all grants and franchises to serve their own individual uses, profits and purposes, bring about their personal revenges and aggrandizement and to establish their pull and cement their power in the community forever.

* * * *

"But in fact and the minds of the unprejudiced citizens of Plainfield, the 'Big 6' are merely a majority of the members of the Common Council, who, although of opposite politics and professions, and elected on antagonizing tickets, buried all such differences when they swore to serve only the city's interests, and have since always voted together for the right as their eyes have seen, and the ordinances have shown them was right. Even their enemies can name not an act of the 'Big 6' that has not been for the good of the city or in the enforcement of its laws, the increase of its prosperity and the advancement of its good name.

* * * *

"Upon the very organization of the Council thus elected, the 'Big 6' came into existence. They were for the making of party politics subservient to the city's good. Consequently they defeated the Presidential aspirations of Councilman Newhall—a hold-over, whose views on the license question had proved so narrow, He was also more than any other of his colleagues of '89 responsible for the contract the city had entered into with a water-works company that today—more than six months after the valuable franchise was granted them—have not laid a pipe nor a brick, although ostensibly required to complete their service within a year. Therefore Councilmen Roberts and Smith, the other capable Republicans, having declined the honor, Councilman Moffett, a Democrat, was elected President, and J. B. Coward, a Republican, who had served as Township Clerk before Plainfield was a city, was elected Clerk by the unbiased Councilmen who have since then been entitled the 'Big 6.'

"Of course there was chagrin and vexation of spirit in the camp of the partisans, and their necks waxed hot under their Republican collars. They could not recognize any honest action for the people's good if the result was the election of a Democratic President of a Republican Council in a city with a Republican majority of 600 or 700. The better class of Republicans, however, were heartily in accord with the result, and today are among the most sincere and emphatic in an open indorsement of every action of the so-called 'Combine.' But the bigoted party men, who included in their number aspirants for office who had failed to get even a primary nomination, or had been defeated at the polls when first they ran on narrow planks, or had been buried when seeking re-election after a term of service that had proved them the slaves of personal prejudice—these cried 'Traitor,' and sought a way to bring disgrace if possible, or discomfiture, at least, upon the six who were more honest than they desired."

"These six are the men who for the past few months have been abused and misrepresented by a police officer, a handful of parlor politicians and a local newspaper. There may be some excuse for such antagonism from those seeking personal revenge, but the people of Plainfield can see no reason for the action of the minority of the Council in opposing every proposition, no matter how good for the city, that comes from the opposite source.

"What the 'Big 6' has done in only six months' reign is everywhere visible. Figures show and the results evidence that two and a half as much has been done on the streets for the same amount of money expended as ever before. Last year's Council was paying more for the hiring of horses for street work and fire duty than the 'Big 6' have spent to buy the horses and keep them, and always have them at the city's command. The 'Big 6' will put in a system of electric fire-alarm service to protect the outlying districts, and will grant a franchise for a street railway to build up the suburbs as soon as a bid is offered that will pay the city and satisfy its people. All this saving of money and these proposed improvements the minority oppose and vote against. But the people are already talking of new candidates to fill three of their places. At the next election five of the 'Big 6' hold over, and the citizens say they will re-elect the other by a large majority."

A Moonlight Granger.

Two Plainfielders who took a long drive across country last night were astonished to see a Somerset county farmer and his wife at work in the fields at midnight. He was reaping grain, and she was binding sheaves. In response to inquiries the granger said that he preferred night to day 'cause 'twas so much cooler, and now that the moon was big and bright he and Hannah were going to take advantage of it so they enjoy long siestas at hot midday, like "city folks." Besides, he said, the farmers' crops were being all killed off by creatures of the insect world which worked at night, and he guessed if he only hung around o' nights and kept the worms away he'd have more to harvest than other farmers would.

A Plea for the Barbers.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE PRESS:—Let me call the attention of all who enjoy the luxury afforded by the barbers, to the fact that by a little care we may save them much annoyance. Few classes of men are more confined than they. From 7 in the morning till anywhere from 10 to 12 at night, and all of Sunday forenoon these men are shut in shops advertised to close at 9 o'clock. But many customers wait till that hour and than rush in, and this adds another hour or two to the day. Let us call early and give the men a chance to get away at their hour for closing. The men ought not to have to work on Sunday. Every man could get shaved during the week by a little effort.

A CITIZEN.

The infant reason grows apace and calls for one more application of that good friend, Salvation Oil, which never disappoints but always kills pain.

BUENOS AYRES, Aug. 1.—The banks are open but the Bourse remains closed. A press censorship has been established. The formation of a cabinet upon which the factions can become reconciled is under discussion. The city is tranquil.

BELLIGERENT OWLS.

They Run Things to Suit Themselves on a New Jersey Farm.

A plague of owls has for two weeks disturbed the peace of John Mayer's home in the outskirts of Plainfield, N. J., according to a special in the Globe-Democrat. The first appearance of the owls was noticed by one of Mr. Mayer's sons, who in romping about the barn discovered a nest of the young birds. There were no larger owls in sight, and the boy made one of the owlets captive and carried it to the house. His mother compelled him to restore it to its nest. He had no sooner placed it with the others than one of the older birds appeared and attacked him furiously, beating him in the face with its wings and scratching him with its claws and bill. Shielding himself with his arms, the lad ran away. The owl left him at the barn door. That afternoon one of the young ladies of the family had occasion to visit the carriage house, where a great owl flew down and alighted on her back. She shook it off with difficulty, and in the struggle had her garments torn.

Since then owls have taken complete possession of the outbuildings and their surroundings. Scores of the birds, which are of the day-owl species, have followed the first comers and have made their nests in the barn. Several have been killed, but this seems only to make the others more fierce. Even the men dare not venture near the nesting places without masks or other protection. The novel defense of umbrellas has been at last adopted, and now when any member of the Mayer family visits the owls' castle he holds a parachute over his head. Already three umbrellas have been ruined by the birds dashing against them in vain endeavors to reach the faces of the carriers. The Mayer family are in a state of mind. They don't want to move out, but they can not dispossess their belligerent tenants.

MARRIED TEN TIMES.

The Remarkable Career of a Bourbon (Ind.) Lady.

Mrs. Dr. Spencer, of Bourbon, Ind., is fifty-four years old and has been ten times a bride, says the Chicago Tribune. Her maiden name was Emma Lyon, and she was born in Chautauqua County, N. Y. At the age of sixteen she married Nelson Drake, a carpenter. Before she was eighteen she was left a widow with one daughter, now Mrs. Burke, of Peru, Ind. She next married a man named Roberts, of whom little is known. At the age of twenty she married her third husband, Dr. Maryette, at Indianapolis. Four years later Dr. Maryette died, the issue of this marriage being four children. A man named Ballard was her next husband. Ballard died and she married Dr. Vaniden in Kokomo, Ind., two children being born to them. In 1876 she was again a widow and married Mr. Strawhacker. When it came Strawhacker's turn to go she married William Moore, of Peru, Ind. A divorce released her from Moore and she married a man named Thomas. The Thomas attachment did not last long, and in 1884 she was captured by a retired farmer named Cunningham, who, although rich, was divorced on the ground of non-support. The divorce was granted in 1885 and in July of that year she married another farmer named Spencer, who had himself been married eight times. Spencer died in 1885, and in 1889 she was married to Judge Z. O. Boulton, of Marshall County, Ind. She was awarded a decree of divorce from Judge Boulton at the last term of the Marshall Circuit Court and her name changed to Spencer.

Combinations in Dominoes.

Dr. Bein, a Frankfort (Germany) mathematician, calculates that two persons playing dominoes 10 hours a day and making four moves a minute could continue 118,000,000 years without exhausting all the combinations of the game, the total number of which is 248,528,211,840.

Victims of the Johnstown Flood.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Aug. 1.—To-day, fourteen months after the flood, the local paper prints what it claims to be a correct list of the dead. The total number is given at 2,187, which, if correct, leaves over 200 bodies not yet recovered. The list varies considerably from Secretary Kremer's report, and the names are given of 34 persons that were lost from the day express.

Burying the Victims.

BALTIMORE, Md., Aug. 1.—Sad were the scenes in Baltimore at the homes of the victims, as the last sad rites of Christian burial took place. With the exception of one, the dead—13 in number—were all interred. Solemn funeral trains could be seen at nearly any time during the day moving slowly out of the city to some cemetery, where the black shrouded coffins containing the remains were consigned to the narrow confines of the grave.

An Editor Shot By a State Senator.

JACKSON, Miss., Aug. 1.—A private telegram from Friar's Point, Miss., received here last evening, announces the fatal shooting of Freedland Chew, editor of the "Gazette" of that place, by State Senator J. W. Cutrer, who is a candidate for the Constitutional Convention. Newspaper criticism is supposed to have provoked the affair.

Terrible Ravages of Cholera.

LONDON, Aug. 1.—A despatch from Mecca reports that the cholera is raging at that place, the deaths from the disease averaging twenty a day.

Ayer's Cathartic Pills are recommended by the best physicians, because they are free from calomel and other injurious drugs, being composed of purely vegetable ingredients. While thorough in their action, they stimulate and strengthen the bowels and secretory organs.

Rheumatism,

BEING due to the presence of uric acid in the blood, is most effectually cured by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Be sure you get Ayer's and no other, and take it till the poisonous acid is thoroughly expelled from the system. We challenge attention to this testimony:—

"About two years ago, after suffering for nearly two years from rheumatic gout, being able to walk only with great discomfort, and having tried various remedies, including mineral waters, without relief, I saw by an advertisement in a Chicago paper that a man had been relieved of this distressing complaint, after long suffering, by taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I then decided to make a trial of this medicine, and took it regularly for eight months, and am pleased to state that it has effected a complete cure. I have since had no return of the disease."—Mrs. E. Irving Dodge, 110 West 125th st., New York.

"One year ago I was taken ill with inflammatory rheumatism, being confined to my house six months. I came out of the sickness very much debilitated, with no appetite, and my system disordered in every way. I commenced using Ayer's Sarsaparilla and began to improve at once, gaining in strength and soon recovering my usual health. I cannot say too much in praise of this well-known medicine."—Mrs. L. A. Stark, Nashua, N. H.

HOUSES ON OUR MOUNTAIN TOPS.

Another Scheme of Capitalists to Capture Washington Rock.

Many Plainfielders believe, and President Maxwell is said to have admitted that he has been planning just such an arrangement, that as soon as the Central Railroad of New Jersey completes its proposed new route from Fanwood to Orange it will construct a spur connecting North Plainfield with Scotch Plains and Westfield. One of the purposes of such a line would be, it is said, the development of Washington Rock as a resort. A terminal station would be erected at the foot of the mountain, just below the rock, and the road to the summit would be perfected. Mountain stages would convey people up and down the ascent, and the big four-story hotel, with its four hundred feet of frontage, its broad esplanades, and high pagoda towers, already projected by New York capitalists, would be built. A road would be cleared and macadamized along the summit, and building lots would be staked off for the expected builders of Summer villas on the heights.

Another scheme that is talked of by some, in connection with the Rock, is the construction of a gravity railroad from the Rock itself to Scotch Plains. This may be purely visionary. The suggested spur of the Central's tracks, however, is confidently expected by those who know what solid men are arranging to take part in the enterprise.

"Whether the promised development is made soon or late, or whether it is never made,"—says a citizen interested in the scheme—"the fact remains that when a hotel stood on the commanding site near the Rock the place could have been made, by judicious ventures and the building of a railroad spur to the foot of the mountain, a famous and thronged resort. As it was, before the hotel was burned, it was becoming noted as a splendid place to make sick babies well. One dying infant no sooner began to breathe the atmosphere of the place than he was able to hold his head up for the first time in weeks. The people seemed to thrive on the very air."

Before the Rock Hotel was burned, several years ago, a chief of its attractions was the powerful telescope in the observatory. Every one who has ever been at the Rock knows of the marvelous views it affords to the naked eye. Through this telescope one used to be able to see the time of day on the dial of the town clock in the old Dutch Reformed church in New Brunswick, twelve miles distant, and men could be distinguished in the rigging of vessels in Raritan Bay near the Amboys, while every line of the shipping in New York harbor was distinctly visible.

Plainfielders at the Seaside Assembly.

A great many distinguished people, and a great many not so distinguished, gather at Avon-by-the-Sea, each day, to attend the meetings of the Seaside Assembly. The audience yesterday was unusually large. The regular devotional exercises were conducted by the Rev. A. Armstrong of Plainfield. The children and all the new pupils enjoyed marching, singing and sewing exercises at the kindergarten. Madame Alberti, a former Plainfielder, in her class for women, taught that after the muscles had become strong and pliable they could easily gain what is called "muscle memory." Exercises for gracefully entering a carriage and for stooping to recover articles from the floor, the motions used for opening and shutting a door, were interspersed with heavier exercises. In the vocal culture section she took up the relation of the voice to reading and conversation.

Prof. A. A. Titsworth, formerly of East Fifth street, and one of the Faculty of Rutgers College, has opened a department of Mathematics at the Assembly.

Just One Piece of Iron That Weighed 16 Tons.

Parts of the first of the series of immense gun lathes to be used at the Government works at Troy in turning the monster guns for the United States Navy, was cast at The Pond Machine Tool works, Wednesday afternoon, in the presence of a PRESS reporter and other invited guests. The Pond Company was last Spring awarded the contract for the construction of the lathes, which are to cost $25,000 each, and since then preparations for the first casting have been continuous.

The flow of molten metal into the intricately-designed matrices, with all their complex niceties of construction, was marvellous. One casting, called a table, weighed alone 16 tons. Such of the castings as are imperfect will be broken into fragments and remelted. The perfect ones will be polished down and adjusted. It is expected that the first lathe will be completed and perfected within a few months. The company had three years in which to complete its contract.

A Cart Horse Makes Things Lively.

One of the cart horses used in the work of excavation for the new Coward buildings on Park avenue went on a rampage, yesterday noon, and with its heavy cart sported around like a young colt. One of the workmen, seeking to put an end to its pranks, was well-nigh pulverized, but after the cart had been smashed into uselessness, the horse consented to be submissive for the rest of the day.

"I was troubled with Catarrh for over two years. I tried various remedies, and was treated by a number of physicians, but received no benefit and I began to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla. A few bottles of this medicine cured me."—Jesse M. Boggs, Holman Mills, N. C.

THOUGHT A METEOR HIT HIM.

But 'Twas Only a Raspberry Pie, and the Old Man Will Get Well.

The children of one of the flats in the business part of Plainfield had been playing at keeping house on the piazza at the rear of the building, yesterday afternoon, and of the surfeit of goodies they had left considerable. Among the remains of fruit and pastry was a large and luscious raspberry pie, which with other scattered crumbs the intelligent hired girl proceeded to sweep away, at nightfall, from reach of her domain.

A portly bald-headed bachelor who with his sister's family occupied the floor below was leaning over the railing of his piazza, enjoying what breezes he could find, when the pie, impelled by the hired girl's broom, slid gently off the floor above and circled noiselessly downward. When it struck his head it fell to pieces, and the succulent raspberries streamed over scalp, ears, collar and waistcoat. It was not too dusk for the injured citizen to recognize the ruby color of the stains, and he felt that his own life-blood was dyeing his garments. With blubbering moans he tottered into his sister's presence and told, in breaths that came quick and short, how he had been hit by a meteor from above; his skull was crushed, his brains and blood were ebbing. Then he sank back and prepared for death.

This morning he's a mad man, and is "laying" for the innocent children of the floor above.

Rahway Defeats Plainfield, But 'Twas All a Dream.

(From the Rahway Democrat.)

Has one of Rahway's citizens been elected President of the United States, or has the city been granted the prize for containing the greatest number of beautiful women? What is it? Why does the band play "Annie Laurie" and the red fire burn? Why does the small boy rejoice and our best citizens pat each other on the back and say "We're the stuff?" Why oh why? Because the arch enemy, after much taunting, has come to meet us, and the ball, the base ball, that small little prize, remains with us. That's all, stranger. No, Morristown is some miles from here and at last accounts none of the inmates had escaped.

But see that young man turning hand springs and cart wheels; oh, that's Bill Gray, and that one shinning up the telegraph pole is George Black. The two dancing the highland fling in the drug store are Joe Jones and Doctor Galy, and the gentleman on the opposite side of the street starting some more red fire is Judge Lower. What is this coming? Yes, as sure as your born, a procession, and at the head are Joe Lufbery and Jim Reilly arm in arm. Well, why shouldn't they be, if a score of 1 to 0, in twelve innings, isn't to be proud of, by even the losers, then what is? Next comes Manager Wilson and Captain Weigand, and then ex-Manager Chamberlain and our P. M., "Buster" Drake and George Ryno, and Charley Smith, of Plainfield, and our own Stephen Girard equalized matters. Chief Engineer Ryno and Justice Lambert walked arm in arm. John and Jim were far from being the worst looking pair in the line. "Tam" and "Het" and George and Silas followed and all had forgotten their political differences and were as coy as doves. Gilby escorted Dan Hetfield, Squire Frazee did the honors for Billy Chamberlain. Joe Crowell and Garret Berry walked arm in arm, and Sam Oliver and Jack Crowell followed suit. Dr. Silvers and Dr. Hough represented the medical fraternity, and ex-Senator Vall, "Ike" Hunt, G. R. Lindsay and Leslie Lupton made a legal quartet.

Rahway and Plainfield walked arm in arm, there were no differences; there was no vanquished, all were victors, and all were considered so. Oh, what a game, 1-0 in twelve innings, eleven innings without a man on either side crossing the plate and why shouldn't all hands rejoice and join in a procession, can you blame them, stranger? You should say not. So should I, put her there old man, and les' go and ——————!.

"If you don't get out of that bed and build the fire, I'll belt you with this broom."

Heavens! I had been dreaming!

Plainfielders Entertain Rahway.

The Rahway papers say many pleasant things concerning the recent visit of a delegation from Plainfield Council, Royal Arcanum to Carteret Council of Rahway. Deputy Grand Regent Reese delivered an excellent address on the progress of the order in this district. Past Regent Lyon recited "Yankee Courtship," in true Yankee style; D. W. Littell delivered an address; E. W. Conklin and F. A. Emmons also spoke, and editor W. J. Leonard made an interesting and amusing speech. The Rahway people say that for an editor his address was long, but he "got there with both feet." Mr. Leonard said there was a circus of some kind at Rahway every time he went there; the city was distinguished for circuses, and for its chanticleers that usually appear in both papers after elections.

Bobby Burns Understood It.

"Many and sharp the numerous ills
Inwoven in our frame,
More pointed still we make ourselves
Regret, remorse and shame."

Among the most dangerous as well as vexing of ills "inwoven with our frame," are Consumption, Asthma, Bronchitis, colds and lung troubles generally. However, the timely use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery takes away their fearful consequences, but which neglected, leaves "regret, remorse and shame." But you need not be ashamed to ask for the "Discovery," as it has become a standard remedy, found at all the drug stores, where thousands call for it every day, and where it is recognized as the leading medicine for all lung and throat affections.

RELIGIOUS MATTERS.

PSALM NINETY-THREE.

The ever-living One, Jehovah, reigns!
His robes are majesty, His girdle power;
His own right arm the solid, world sustains
Secure, till He proclaims its final hour.

Thy throne is fixed; through endless years
its round:
Thyself to endless ages still the same;
The angry floods stir up their depths profound;
Abashed, they sink at Thy victorious name

Jehovah, Thou art mightier than the voice
Of many waters dashed upon the shore
Thy word is sure: in it Thy saints rejoice;
And holy is Thy house for evermore.
—Rev. Tompkins McLaughlin, in N. Y. Observer.

PEW PROPRIETIES.

How Visitors to the House of God Should Conduct Themselves.

The responsibility for the seemly conduct of public worship does not by any means rest wholly with the pulpit. The man there is bound to regard with thoughtfulness and care the details of his own aspect and bearing which do so much to make or to mar in the service. But there are also proprieties indispensable and imperative to be observed by the people in the pews.

To begin with, it is their duty to be there. Nothing is more trite than this and nothing is more fundamental. The strengthening and cheering influence can hardly be overestimated which is diffused by people who are always in their place in church. The minister leans upon them. The rest of the congregation respect them, and are continually spurred, often most wholesomely rebuked, by their silent example. It is character, not chatter, that tells in the long run. And character is, practically, the sum total of conduct. We are, so far as others are concerned, what we do. The man, therefore, who simply goes with undeviating regularity to his church services has the character and wields the power among men of a steady church-goer. Nobody else can.

The people in the pews ought not only to be there, but to be there on time. It is needless to argue how much the decorum and profit of a religious service depend upon the punctuality of those who attend it. The right rule for every body is a few minutes of quiet before the service begins, to get mind and body tranquil. Flurry and friction about getting to church seriously lower the religious tone of many a family. Habitual laggards indulge their own laziness at a cost of comfort and enjoyment to other worshipers. Why should not such offenders feel the sting of public disapproval in churches, as well as at concerts and theaters? The early people have a duty, however, toward those who come later; and that is to make room for them in the easiest and quietest way. At a certain small ritualistic church in this city a sign in the vestibule informs all comers that they are welcome to sit where they please, on condition that they move up to accommodate others instead of keeping the end seats and forcing others to crowd by. In churches with free pews it is the bounden duty of the first comers to take the front seats. The general practice is just the other way. Many seem to feel that coming early entitles them to the inscrutable joy that is found in sitting as far back as possible. Mr. Beecher never expressed with greater truth and wit the feelings of every minister than when, during an absence, he sent his love "to the people who sit in the front seats at prayer-meeting."

A pre-eminent duty of the pews is intelligent and interested participation in the service. Find the hymns and follow them, even if you can't sing, which most of you can; can't generally means won't, or at least don't care to. Stand when the rest do. Don't close your hymn-book till the singing is ended, and don't slam it into the rack then. Have Bibles in your pews and follow the reading of Scripture. When there is responsive reading, read responsively. When there is concerted repetition of the Lord's prayer, repeat it in concert. In short, do your individual share to give life and meaning and unction to the whole service.

A treatise might be written on the art of listening to sermons. Two simple precepts cover a good deal of it: Keep still and be interested. Restlessness is intolerable, except in little children, where it may wisely be ignored. Don't shrug your shoulders, or toss your head, or exchange glances and smiles with your neighbors. If you are conscious of some slight physical discomfort, stand it, and you will soon forget it. Whatever you do, never look at your watch! That is a cruel affront to the preacher, and apt to unsettle the people around you. To be interested is seldom impossible. Few sermons are preached in which a right-spirited hearer can not find good and help. And the more you look interested, the better the preacher will preach. Mr. Gladstone tells in a fine figure how the speaker gets from his audience in a vapor what he pours back upon them in a flood. Always bow reverently during prayer, for your own sake and every body else's. A country pastor's wife, detained at home by family cares, looked through the open pastorage windows into the neighboring church, and said that the heads of the people in prayer time made her think of the heads of grain in a field; the full and sound ones were bent, the empty and worthless were sticking up.—N. Y. Examiner.

GOING HOME.

The Christian Is Traveling Towards the Place of Many Mansions.

Are there in the language any two words of more magic potency to the wayfayer than the two above? Only those who have been long away from home know what they mean. For weeks, perhaps for months, the idea of home, and of reaching it, has been uppermost. Every attractive scene has been viewed with the wish that the loved ones at home might see it, too. Every interesting incident has been rehearsed and committed to memory that they may share it one of these days. From the beginning, even when facing away from home, that idea has been uppermost, that one of these days the face would be turned in the other direction—toward home. At last the day comes when, though thousands of miles away, the wanderer is going no further, but actually turns homeward.

Then the wheels of the fastest express train move all too slowly; but as they rumble over the rails they have a most musical cadence, for during all the day the traveler can hear them say: "I'm going home," "I'm going home," and this rhythm lulls him to sleep at night. At rough places in the road he can laugh, for the road leads to his home. Privations and hardships are not worth very much complaint, because they will soon be over when he reaches home. Nothing causes him any great uneasiness but detention and delay, while to turn his face backward after he has once faced homeward would almost be positive anguish.

The Christian is always going toward home. That is one definition of beginning the Christian life—starting for home. The unrepentant sinner is always going away from the Father's home. He is facing in the wrong direction. He is going toward the carobs and the swine. When he becomes converted the very Word tells us that he has turned, faced about; began to move toward home. He may be thousands of miles away as he thinks—the continent of his past life, the ocean of his past sins, between him and God. No matter, he is facing homeward. He has begun the return journey. His heart may well swell with gladness, and his tongue break forth in song: "I'm going home, I'm going home." What matter a few hardships? Why should he mourn over a few hills of Difficulty or even a slough of Despond? He is on his homeward way, after all, and the other side of the hill and the opposite side of the slough always bring him nearer to the many mansions. Even should thunderclouds lower, and the storm of earthly disaster threaten, he may yet be happy if he can only sing:

But should the surges rise
And rest delay to come,
Blest be the sorrow, kind the storm,
Which drives us nearer home.
—Golden Rule.

The Music of the Sanctuary.

No doubt the music of the sanctuary is often marred by discord, and some voices could well be spared by those whose ears have been cultured in sweet sounds, but do we enough consider what is the purpose of the "service of song in the house of the Lord?" The Psalmist exclaims: "I will sing unto the Lord as long as I live. I will sing praise to my God while I have my being." Our psalmody is to be addressed to God. If we realize this we should be less critical as to its execution, and we should be more ready to take part in the worship of praise. Let us only realize that the singing is an offering to God and we shall feel that not to participate in it is a "guilty silence," while levity in the exercise will excite grief and such anger as Paul speaks of when he says: "Be ye angry and sin not."—Christian Enquirer.

The Bright Side.

Look on the bright side. It is the right side. The times may be hard, but it will make them no easier to wear a gloomy and sad countenance. It is the sunshine and not the cloud that makes the flower. The sky is blue ten times when it is black once. You have troubles; so have others. None are free from them. Trouble gives sinew and tone to life—fortitude and courage to man. That would be a dull sea, and the sailor would never get skill, where there was nothing to disturb the surface of the ocean. What though things look a little dark: the lane will turn, and night will end in a broad day. There is more virtue in one sunbeam than in a whole hemisphere of clouds and gloom. See how the mist flees before the brightness of one little darting ray. So will trouble disappear before the ever-cheerful heart.—Demorest's Magazine.

BRIEFLY STATED.

A Few Items Taken from the Columns of the "Ram's Horn."

Love can only be measured by what it will suffer.

Selfishness is the devil's narrow-guage road to perdition.

Lions are never so big as we think they are from their roaring.

The man who lives only for what he can see is very short-sighted.

The devil has no better helper anywhere than a fault-finding spirit.

The greatest blockhead is the one whose mistakes teach him nothing.

The grain of sand can fulfill the purpose of God as well as the mountain.

Fire is always saying, "I'm hot," and to doubt its word is to reap the penalty.

Some people have faces as long as Jacob's ladder, and the angels are missing.

The greatest misfortune that can happen to any soul is to misundestand its Maker.

If you want to get the very best out of your pastor's preaching, don't watch his feet.

It won't do any good to whitewash the well curb so long as there is poison in the water.

The devil's pills always kill, but some people like them because they are sugar-coated.

"You're a good fellow," is one of the ways Satan has of saying: "I've got a mortgage on you.

We must glorify God in the little things as well as in the great ones. The soldier preparing for inspection must burnish his buttons as well as his gun.

Keep the vinegar out of your religion, and you will not only please God, but you will have power with men. All children like sugar, but only those who have to will take medicine.

The successful Christian life is a good deal like a modern railroad. Now passing through a long dark tunnel, in which there is no light save that within; climbing mountains and bridging rivers; turning in many directions, and yet going straight on to the end of the journey. Often interrupted for a little while by various disasters, but never giving up

IN THE SPIRIT OF RYHME.

The Wheelman.

The shadow of my silent steed
Flies over hill and vale
As swiftly as the clouds that speed
Upon the hurrying gale.

Nor whip nor spur the sleek thigh wounds,
Nor galls the chafing rein,
But willingly my steel horse bounds
Along the level plain.

Oh! happy are the wheelman's days,
And spent at his sweet will:
He glides along life's troubled ways
Like—hang it, what a spill!
—Paul Pastoor.

Why Not Be Happy To-Day.

I have doubted my hopes of the future,
I have questioned my dreams of the past,
I have roamed through the realms of ambition
With visions too lovely to last.
I have longed for youth's fondest ideals,
But those phantoms are now far away,
And at last fair Philosophy whispers:
"Oh! why not be happy to-day?"

Though storm clouds may darken life's valley,
(Each heart has some shadows to bear),
The bright sun will soon gild the heavens,
And thy troubles will melt into air.
So what is the use of repining—
Will it bless or ennoble you, pray?
No; the world does not care for your whining,
So why not be happy to-day?

Ah, the old world at heart is too solemn!
For life is at best full of trials,
So try to be cheerful—'twill help you
If you brighten all pathways with smiles.
Then life will be well worth the living,
Let kindness illumine its way,
And with Hope's gilded banners before us
Let's strive to be happy to-day!
—Larry Chittenden, in N. Y. Mail and Express.

The Sort of Bait.

"If you were going fishing now
To catch a beauteous mate,
What would you use for bait, oh sage;
What would you use for bait?

"Would you put honor on the hook,
Or manliness' estate;
Tell to me just what you would do;
What would you use for bait?

"Ah, foolish youth you've little wit
It's long you'd have to wait
To get a bite with such device;
That's not the sort of bait

"Which nowadays leads easily,
To fix a wedding date;
Troll with a gold or silver spoon:
That is the kind of bait!"
—Merchant Traveler.

No Time to Be Sick.

With all the others complainin',
Josiah 'long with the rest,
I don't do nothin' but labor,
A-tryin' to do my best.

Pete's got the influenzy
And Hannah's took down this noon;
Josiah is gruntin' an' groanin'—
He allus gives up so soon.

Nobody but me to tend 'em,
With the rest 'o the work to do;
If they'd only be kind and consider'te
I wouldn't feel quite so blue.

Sometimes I long to be tended
(There—a woman's tears come quick),
But I work when my head's near splittin'
'Cause I ain't got time to be sick.
—Ione L. Jones, in Judge.

A Poetical Romance.

CHAP. I.

Once on a time a maiden fair to see
I met, and a great change came over me;
For she was wondrous fair; and, oh! such eyes
I never saw beneath the sunlit skies!

CHAP. II.

She smiled upon me in a tender way—
Perhaps the girls are just as nice to-day—
I do not know; but that one was, I thought,
The fairest creature man had ever sought.

CHAP. III.

At last I said, unto her home I'll go
And learn my fate, come either weal or woe.
When I arrived, somehow, I could not call;
My courage failed me, and—and—that is all!
—Moses Gage Shirley, in Puck.

Baby.

A little form so dainty small,
So soft, so tender, and so dear;
A little voice whose helpless call
Is music to a mother's ear;
A little pulse of delicate breath,
Like Eve's when Zephyr whispereth:

A little arm that nerveless lies;
Red, curling fingers, tiniest things;
Two round, blue, upward-gazing eyes,
All filled with silent wonderings,
That, as the kiss of Heaven's light bids,
Now ope, now close their downy lids.

A little head, so smooth and white,
Pert, rosy mouth and fairy chin,
And cheeks all rounded to the sight,
Save where a dimple draws them in—
All in one tiny frame enwove,
As light as Laughter, soft as Love.
—W. Tregó Webb, in London Spectator.

SEMI-HUMOROUS STORYETTES.

MR. JONES was giving his son an object lesson in natural history. "You see, my boy," said he, "how mysteriously nature, that suspends cocoanuts on tree branches a hundred feet from the ground, to the great annoyance of travelers, distributes her gifts. There is the humble and slow-going turtle, for example, out of whose shells the best combs are made, but which, in turn, is unable to use them, not being able to boast of a single hair."

AN old Quaker lady tells in her quaint way this story of Emerson: "Thee knows that when Mr. Emerson was abroad he went to Egypt, and while there he stood one morning in front of the Sphinx, and gazed long and earnestly at the silent figure. There they stood, Emerson gazing at the Sphinx and the Sphinx at Emerson. The silence was heavy. Suddenly the lips of the stone figure trembled, and the mystic words, 'You're another!' fell from them."

HERE is Murat Halstead's conclusion to a brief dissertation on the lucious Southern product—the watermelon: "The Georgians say, and it is discouraging, that the very best melons grown in the State are so fragile that they can not be transported, and those who would enjoy the top flowers of this wonderful product of the sun and sand must go where the exquisite spheres glisten among the dewey leaves of the generous vines whose marvelous distillment of sweetness is the dainty distinction of a favored land."

A THOROUGHLY reliable gentleman informs a correspondent that he saw near Scottsville, Va., two small snakes deliberately engaged in swallowing each other, a goodly portion of each snake having been taken into the stomach of the other. This reminds us of the old farmer who saw a large bullfrog basking in the sun on the bank of his mill-pond. A large water moccasin commenced to swallow his frogship by taking in his legs. Meanwhile the frog began the same process by taking in the tail of the snake. The swallowing process, as the story goes, continued until the reptile and the frog swallowed each other and both disappeared from view.

UNIQUE ORNAMENTS.

Wire Cloth as a Material Out of Which They May Be Made.

A class of ornamental objects may be made from wire cloth which rival in beauty any kind of stained glass work. Figs. 1 and 2 are examples of this kind of work.

The wire cloth for this purpose should be made of fine wire, the mesh should be coarse, say ten to the inch, and, moreover, the cloth should be painted and allowed to dry before the ornamental work is applied. The wire cloth is supported a short distance from a design drawn on paper and the different colors are introduced into the meshes by means of an ordinary writing pen.

LAMP SHADE.

A gelatine solution is used for this purpose. It should not be very thick, and it must be kept warm. Ordinary transparent gelatine may be colored for this purpose by adding aniline. Colored lacquers answer admirably for filling the squares. Common white glue answers very well for filling the body of the design. The beauty of this kind of work and the simplicity of the method by which it is produced recommend it for many purposes.

The construction of the frames for the lamp shade and hanging lantern requires some mechanical skill. Probably the aid of the tinsmith will have to be invoked in these cases. It will pay, however, as the articles will well repay the trouble and expense.

The hanging lantern, Fig. 2, is designed for a hall. It may contain a kerosene lamp, or the device known as the "fairy lamp," in which a large candle is employed as a source of light.

The colored checks in the wire cloth appear like gems when illuminated.—Scientific American.

ICE-CREAM.

Extract from a Lecture by J. H. Kellogg, M. D., of the Battle Creek (Mich.) Sanitarium.

Consider first the ice without the cream as to the fact of its lowering the temperature of the stomach. When the food goes down into the stomach, the stomach begins to pour out gastric juice and the nerves of digestion recognize the fact that there is something present which requires their attention. The stomach nerves must be sensitive enough to make this recognition and then the little cells or glands will begin to make pepsin; the blood-vessels must also be able to absorb and the stomach to contract, else the process of digestion will not go on properly. Now ice-cream, or any other ice-cold substance, is just about the same preparation for all this delicate work as snow-balling or holding lumps of ice in the hands would be for taking up intricate fancy work which required the nice touch of a lady's fingers. If she should subject her hands to ice or snow for half an hour, her fingers would be too benumbed and clumsy to pick up a pin, to say nothing of using a cambric needle.

For the marvelous work of digestion the nerves of the stomach should be fully awake and active. Now what preparation for this work is it to send down a quantity of ice water or ice-cream? The muscles and nerves of the stomach are paralyzed by the cold and the absorbent blood vessels are unable to undertake their duties. In the experiments upon Alexis St. Martin it was found that two-thirds of a glass of ice water would stop the whole process of digestion for half an hour. Suppose, instead, that it was ice-cream, which is a great deal colder than ice water; the process of digestion can not begin for an hour or two, for the stomach is required to be at a temperature of 98½ or 100 degrees. When the temperature of the stomach is reduced to 90 or 95 degrees digestion almost stops and the temperature of the stomach has been known to be as low as 60 degrees. But these lower temperatures permit of fermentation and decay if they do not favor digestion, and that is what usually goes on, for the gastric juice can not be poured out to keep the food in an antiseptic condition. Gastric juice is one of the best of antiseptics.

When a person's face is exposed to extreme cold his cheeks become red and the tears begin to flow. Something analogous takes place in the stomach after the cold has passed away. The stomach begins to pour out large quantities of mucous, due to the congested condition of the blood-vessels, and in this way a catarrh of the stomach is set up. Hundreds of people bring on catarrh of of the stomach by the use of ice-cream and iced tea, and it is a most obstinate and troublesome disease.

Another danger in eating ice-cream is in the tyrotoxicon poisoning, which may be due to the condition of the milk. This is identical with cheese-poisoning. In gathering milk from promiscuous sources it is almost certain that some will be used which is not wholesome; it may be a little too old, it may not have had proper care or it may have come from a diseased animal. Ice-cream is frequently made from cream which would not keep any longer without freezing, and its use is positively unsafe unless you want to make work for the doctors, for ice-cream is without doubt a great friend of the doctors and druggists.

Rules to Be Observed in Making Jelly.

Have a bag prepared of coarse linen, similar to dish-towel crash, or white flannel.

Use a porcelain kettle.

Measure instead of weigh the juice.

Use coffee A or granulated sugar.

Cook only a few pounds at one time, to have it nicely done.

Have a steady fire.

When it commences to boil, skim off all the froth that rises.

When it has boiled about ten minutes, dip the skimmer in and out, holding it up over the jelly; if it runs off only in one place it is not cooked enough; if it runs around the edge of the skimmer and drips off in two or three places in drops, it is done. Usually when boiling fast for fifteen minutes it jellies nicely, and better than if cooked longer. Fill a large pitcher with hot water, then throw out and pour in the jelly from the kettle, cover the top of the pitcher with cheese-cloth, and strain into heated tumblers. Leave until next morning, when it should be solid. Cut white paper to fit the tops and paste with white of egg, into which has been stirred one-half teaspoonful of flour to thicken. When dry, tie manilla paper double over the top, and label. Set in a cool, dry place. If not thick in the morning, set in the sun for a few hours. If too thin for table use, it is nice for jelly-cake.—Good Housekeeping.

AN UNIQUE VASE.

It Is Very Pretty and Is Quite Easily Made.

A box of pretty grayish-green lichens removed from decaying fence rails, after a rain, which has moistened them, so that they will scale off in as large pieces as possible; another of the stiff white ones, such as scallop the bases of old stumps; a pan of glue, needle and thread; pasteboard and the wreck of an old goblet, or, better still, the stand of an old lamp, from which the bowl has been broken. With these materials and an hour's pleasurable employment, a very pretty vase can be made.

Cut a piece of pasteboard twelve inches long and five inches wide; or, it may be slightly larger both ways preserving the same proportions. Dot three triangles, as seen in the cut (Fig. 1). Remove these with scissors and draw the edges of the strip together and sew in three flat seams. Fit this small opening over the top of the stem of the stand and tie securely. Use the white lichens and begin at the bottom, glue in rows round and round until the vase and stem are covered; then crowd together as closely as possible the greenish-gray ones over the pasteboard, and finish around the top with a border of the white ones, arranged so as to give a scalloped upper edge. Tie a pretty ribbon in a loose bow, with short ends, around the joining of the stem and bowl of the vase. A glass of water may be set inside, and sprays of parlor ivy be allowed to grow and fall over its sides as it stands on mantel or window, or it may be used for cut-flowers, and it is quite pretty as a simple ornament with nothing else. A manifold number of shapes will suggest themselves to any one, but the one described is so simple that it can be easily made by any one.

FIG. 1. PASTEBOARD FOR VASE.

FIG. 2. THE VASE COMPLETE.

The lichens, like so many of the pretty things that claim our attention in our walks through the woods and fields, can be applied in many ways. An old letter-box, unsightly but valued because it was old, was made a thing of beauty by a covering of lichens and a pretty bow of ribbon, which can be removed at any time to give place to some other form of decoration; yet they are quite durable, and will give pleasure for a long time.—Rural New Yorker.

OUR YOUNG FOLKS.

SELF-ACTING SWING.

Here Is Something Which the Children Can Appreciate.

A good swing can be made as follows—and what manner of man is he who can say that a farm home is not enhanced in beauty if not in value by the addition of a swing? This one (of which we show an engraving) may be made double-acting or single to suit the fancy of the maker. The cross pieces (AA) are spiked or bolted to the cap B. This is a scantling six inches square, or a rustic log mortised to two uprights of a like character that are at least 15 feet above ground, and should be set in the ground from 5 to 7 feet. The swing rope (CC) is fastened to B about four inches inside of the cross pieces AA. The rope is made of three-eighth or one-half inch round iron, or old lightning rod may be used.

The ropes DD should be fastened about one foot from the main rope, and toward the end of the stick AA. They should be brought down and passed through the hole in the seat, directly opposite the ropes CC and two to three inches away from it. They must then be tied to the foot bar. This must be adjusted to suit the size of the swinger. There should be a small pulley (a large spool will answer) put in the seat in front of the rope where it is likely to wear and a loop should be made for each foot and fastened to the foot bar. This loop will draw across the instep when the heel is in contact with the bar, so the foot will not slip off. The ropes EE are made fast in the opposite direction from DD, at the other end of the bar AA. These are brought down and fastened to the bandles II, at the proper height. The handles must be made of hard wood, with a hole bored through them and passed over the main rope (which is of iron) before it is put up. A notch is made around the upper end of the handles to attach the rope.

SELF-ACTING SWING.

MABEL'S BATH.

She Had Long Wanted It and Finally Got It in a Very Funny Way.

Mable Ross was visiting her grandma one summer. On a rainy day, when she could not go out, grandma and she went up in the attic to get some rags for a rug. While grandma was making selections from the old garments, Mabel was prying curiously into all corners, as children delight to do. Presently she exclaimed: "O, grandma! what is that tall box with a door and holes in the top?"

"That is an old shower-bath," said grandma.

"What is it for?" asked Mabel.

"Well," replied grandma, "when I was a small child, my nurse used to stand me in there and turn the water slowly on through the holes in the top, and that was my shower-bath."

"Oh, how nice," said Mabel; "may I take one some day?"

Grandma said "Yes;" but the next day Mabel's father came to take her home.

When telling her playmates about the nice times she had at grandma's, she always ended by regretting that she couldn't take the shower-bath.

One day she was out in the yard, and saw the water-cart go by, sprinkling the streets. "Oh," she thought, "if I was only under there, it would be most like a shower-bath."

She knew that when the sprinkler came back the driver would stop at the brook across the way to refill. Obeying an impulse, Mabel ran to the stable and got her brother's tip-cart, which she could just manage to sit in. While the driver was refilling his tank, unobserved by him, she tied the tip-cart securely in the desired position under the sprinkler.

Forgetful of her nice clean dress and pretty hat, she seated herself therein. When the driver started his cart, her "shower-bath" began. At first she liked it; but as the full force of the water was turned on, her clothes were wet through. People stopped along the street to smile at this strange sight, and the little girl became aware that she was an object of merriment. She felt ashamed, and seeing her brother Tom among some boys on the sidewalk, cried out to him to come and get his tip-cart.

"That's two words for yourself and one for the cart," said Tom. As the driver halted just then he untied his cart, and, at Mabel's request, dragged her home in it as fast as he could.

A very "dripping-wet" girl stood in the bank entry making an explanation of her appearance to her mother, with downcast eyes, a little later. Mamma was a little vexed, but forgave her, after a slight reproof, in memory of the shower-bath she was to have taken at grandma's.—Virginia C. Hollis, in Our Little Ones.

Stones That Will Swim in the Human Eye.

Eye-stones are really portions of the covering of certain shell fish. They are found at the opening of the shell, and serve to close the entrance when the animal draws itself within. They are of various kinds, but those used as eye-stones are hard, stony bodies, about the size of split peas, one-third to one-sixth of an inca in diameter, a little longer than broad, having one surface plane and the other convex.

When they have been worn by the action of the sea they are very smooth and shining. Like other shells, they are composed of carbonate of lime. When placed in a weak acid, such as vinegar, a chemical change takes place, carbonate acid gas is given off, and its escape produces the movements which are popularly supposed to show that the stone is "alive."

When one of these stones is placed under the eyelid, at the outer corner, the natural movements of the lid in winking push it gradually toward the inner side, and when it comes in contact with the mote which is causing the irritation, this is carried along and finally expelled with it. The belief that such stones have a peculiar detective power, and move about in the eye until they find and remove the irritating substance for which they have been "sent," has no foundation in fact.

It is interesting to know that in the lining membrane of the crawfish there are found small bodies which go under the names of "crab's eyes," and look not unlike the true eye-stones. They have sometimes been mistaken for them, and presumably would serve a similar purpose.—Scientific American

An English Mummy.

A tomb has recently been opened in Canterbury Cathedral for the purpose of discovering which of the archbishops it is whose body it contains. This is known to be one of three: Theobald, who died in 1139; Hubert Walter, who died in 1204, and Stephen Langton, who died about 1227. The investigation has not settled the point in dispute to the entire satisfaction of every body; but the Society of Antiquaries in London have decided that the evidence is in favor of the body found in the tomb being that of Hubert Walter, who died in 1204, or nearly seven hundred years ago. The body found in the tomb, though it has been lying there nearly or quite seven hundred years, was in an extremely offensive condition; the smell arising from it was quite sickening, and unmistakably that of corrupt humanity. A number of articles of great antiquarian interest were found in the tomb and removed to the cathedral library. Most of them were in an excellent state of preservation. They were a silver chalice and paten as good as new, the archbishop's pastoral staff, a gold ring with large emerald having a curious device, silk boots ornamented with gold thread and garnets, a yellow silk miter and embroidered stole.

It appears to be easier to identify the remains of a distinguished personage of Egypt, who died four thousand years ago, than that of an English prelate dead for only seven hundred years. It might not be a bad idea to engrave upon the interior of the sarcophagus the name of the deceased.—Scientific American.

Progress of American Steel.

An interesting feature of the recently published statistical report of the American Iron and Steel Association is the increasing percentage of steel in the total production. About one-third of the bar "iron" now manufactured in the United States is steel, so is nearly half of the plate and sheet iron, and 40 per cent. of the cut nails and spikes. The rolled iron product, other than nails, only increased 7½ per cent. last year, while the rolled steel product, apart from rails, increased 33 per cent. It needs not to say that steel rails are now replacing those of iron on all the railroads which are efficiently managed. After that change is completed, what then? Will the next reform in order be wholesale substitution of aluminum for the ferric material, crowding that out of the way as the latter is displacing wood for many structural purposes? It is not improbable. Clay is much more plentiful than iron ore, and recent experiments at least indicate it as possible that the new metal will ere long be produced as cheaply per unit of volume, if not of weight, as its elder brother. Such a change would revolutionize not a few of our manufacturing processes, and perhaps some of the habits of the civilized human being.—Metall und Eisen Zeitung.

The Head and the Brain.

Dr. Starr, of London, says that it is impossible to draw any conclusion from the size or shape of the head as to the extent or surface of the brain, and so as to the mental capacity. It is absurd to judge of the brain surface by either the size of the head or the extent of the superficial irregular surface which is covered by the skull without taking into consideration the number of folds or the depth of creases. "For a little brain with many deep folds may really, when spread out, have a larger surface than a large brain with few shallow folds." What do phrenologists say to this?—Scientific American.

RUSSIAN OUTRAGES

The Persecution of the Hebrews Creating Indignation.

A PROTEST MADE IN CONGRESS.

The President Asked to Remonstrate With the Czar.

The Matter Heard in the House of Lords. Hebrews Cruelly Tortured by Robbers. Laws Enforced With Undue Severity. Driven from Their Homes and Appeals to the Police Unheeded.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—Representative Baker, of New York, introduced in the House a resolution authorizing the President to send to Russia, through the proper channels, a respectful but earnest protest against the proposed enforcement, in that country, of the edicts of 1881 against the Jews. A preamble to the resolution recites that it has been reported through the public press by telegraph that the Russian Government has ordered to be enforced the edicts of 1862 against the Jews, which edicts have hitherto been held in abeyance, under which the Jews dwelling in Russia must henceforth reside in certain towns only, and will not be permitted to own land or hire it for agricultural purposes or to hold shares in or work mines, or to enter the army, or practice medicine or law, or to be engineers or enter any of the learned professions, and excluding them from holding positions under the Government. The resolution was referred to the Committee on Foreign Affairs.

HEBREWS ILL-TREATED.

Their Many Troubles in the Land of the Czar.

LONDON, Aug. 2.—The statement made by the British Charge d'Affairs at St. Petersburgh, and quoted in the House of Commons last night, that the Russian Government had not altered its treatment of the Jews, is wholly at variance with all other advices on the subject. Letters received here from Moscow and St. Petersburgh mention that the laws against the Hebrews are being enforced with renewed severity, and are being stretched to cover a line of treatment never before supposed to have been contemplated by the Legislature referred to.

Large numbers of Jews, who lived near the German and Austrian frontiers have been compelled to move further within Russian territory, the pretext being that many of them are engaged in smuggling; and Jews residing in the country have been obliged to leave their homes and settle in the villages.

The ignorant peasantry taking advantage of the prejudice shown by the authorities, plunder the Jews at will, and in one village, near Kertch, a Jew was put under torture to compel him to surrender his money and other valuables. The robbers pulled out two of his toe nails before he would reveal the hiding place of his treasure.

No steps have been taken to punish the miscreants guilty of this and other outrages, and all appeals to the police are in vain.

Prices for Solid Silver Advanced.

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—The most important immediate effect of the recent rise in the price of silver bullion since the Silver bill became a law was made public to-day in the announcement that the silver manufacturers of New York city had decided to raise their prices for solid silver fifteen per cent. The advance was decided upon by the silversmiths a week ago last Monday, but their action was not made public until this morning. There are some twenty silversmiths in all in the city, but of these only nine or ten are good sized firms. The five largest are the Gorham Manufacturing Co., Tiffany & Co., Whitney Manufacturing Co., Dominick & Huff and Wood & Hughes. The advance in prices will make a very material difference in the price to the public of all solid silverware.

Trying to Settle a Strike.

BOSTON, Aug. 2.—At a meeting of the Boston Stone Cutters' Union it was decided to make overtures to the organization of free stone cutters that has filled the places of the locked out men to get them to join the Union. Delegates from New York, Brooklyn, Baltimore, Chicago, Newark, Springfield and Washington were present. The lockout against the Union has assumed National importance and every union in this country will take part in the settlement of the trouble.

Run Down by a Train.

CAMDEN, N. J., Aug. 2.—Charles H Tongue, aged 30 years, foreman at Bailey, Banks & Biddle, Philadelphia, and his wife were horribly mangled and instantly killed on the Philadelphia & Atlantic City railroad near Magnolia. They were summering there and were strolling along the track when they were run down by a train.

The President in the Surf.

CAPE MAY, N. J., Aug. 2.—After a quiet day spent at his cottage, President Harrison at five o'clock yesterday took a surf bath. Those who accompanied him to the breakers were Mrs. Russell Harrison, Mrs. Dimmick, Mr. and Mrs. McKee and Baby McKee. The party remained in the water about half an hour.

Rice and Cotton Destroyed in Egypt.

LONDON, Aug. 2.—Advices have been recived here that by an inflow of salt water 9,000 acres of rice and cotton have been destoyed in Egypt.

Prince George Arrives at Halifax.

HALIFAX, N. S., Aug. 2.—H. M. S. Thrush, Prince George commanding, has arrived here.

A BAD MAN'S BAD END.

His Father Hanged Himself and So Did His Grandfather.

MECHANICSBURG, Pa., Aug. 2.—Justice Ripley held an inquest Thursday on the body of Jeremiah Miller, who Thursday shot his wife and then killed himself in his cabin on the North Mountains.

Mrs. Mary A. Miller, the victim of her husband's jealousy, who is suffering from a mortal wound, was the first witness examined. She told of the quarrel and the shooting, and also said that after her husband had shot her he said to the children; "I have killed your mamma and now Pop will blow his head off." "I worked hard for him and could not do enough for him," said the dying woman.

Martha, the 17-year-old daughter, described the suicide of her father and how he called all of the children to him and told them he was sorry he fought with them.

The jury rendered a verdict of death by suicide, and the dead man was then placed on a wagon and taken to Mount Zion Church yard, where he was buried without any religious ceremony. Not one of the children followed their father to the grave.

When Squire Ripley asked if anyone wished to say a word, one of the mountaineer gravediggers said with a terrible oath that if there was a keg of beer in it he would preach his sermon.

Only a stone's throw from the grave of Jeremiah Miller is the grave of John Kissell, who on June 29, 1856, was foully murdered by Jeremiah's father, who, while incarcerated in the Carlisle jail for his crime, hanged himself. The grandfather also hanged himself in the mountains about that time.

MURDERED HIS SWEETHEART.

Farmers Armed With Pitchforks Pursue the Assassin, Who Attempts Suicide.

NEW MILFORD, Conn., Aug. 2.—Andrew Bergensen, a Swede, aged 30 years, entered the room of his sweetheart, Emma Anderson, early in the morning and cut her throat, nearly severing the head from the body.

The murdered girl was engaged to be married to him, and she came over from the old country this spring for that purpose.

Bergensen has always borne a good reputation until this summer, when he went on several sprees. It is now thought that the girl had objected to the wedding on account of his recently developed drinking habits.

As soon as Mr. Buckingham, for whom the girl worked, discovered that the murder had been committed he sounded an alarm, and in less than half an hour all the farmers in the vicinity had turned out, armed with pitchforks and shotguns, and set out in pursuit of the murderer.

At 10 a. m. Policemen Addis, Panns and Bough accompanied by a vast crowd, rode into town with the murderer. He was captured in a plump of trees near the scene of the murder. Bergensen attempted suicide, but was prevented by the officers.

Two Children Married.

SUSQUEHANNA, Pa., Aug. 2.—Walter Hobbs, aged 17, and Annie Hobbs, aged 14, children of Jasper Hobbs of Ararat, took a neighbor's team, during their parents' absence and ran away with George Wyman and Myntie Wyman, aged 18 and 17 respectively. The two couples drove to Windsor N. Y., and were married. Legal steps will be taken by Mr. Hobbs to regain his children.

Both Sides Make Concessions.

LYNN, Mass., Aug. 2.—The labor trouble that has existed at the shoe factory of C. W. Varney & Co. for several weeks was settled, and the factory will be running Monday. The trouble was started by Varney & Co. wanting to introduce a cheaper grade of work than they had previously done. A new price list has been agreed upon. Concessions were made on both sides.

McGonegal Allowed Bail.

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—In the Supreme Court Judge Beach decided that Dr. McGonegal, accused of performing an abortion on Annie Goodwin and causing her death, must be admitted to bail and fixes the amount at $20,000. Mrs. Shaw, an accessory after the fact, is to be bailed in the amount of $1,000, and McGonegal's coachman, William Davis, must be discharged from custody.

Gen. Fremont's Will Probated.

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—The will of Gen. Fremont was offered for probate in the Surrogate's Court where it had been deposited according to statute many years before. It was executed Aug. 19, 1854, and leaves the entire estate to his widow.

Suicide by the Laudanum Route.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Aug. 2.—Gridley Horton, a young carriagemaker, took a dose of laudanum this morning from the effects of which he soon afterwards died. The refusal of his wife to live with him is believed to be the cause of the suicide.

A Valuable Race Horse Dead.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Aug. 2.—The well-known race horse, Duquesne, owned by Paul Hacke of this city, died at Paris, Ky. Duquesne had a record of 2:17¾. He was 16 years of age. Mr. Hacke had refused $35,000 for the horse.

Price of Ice Advances.

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—The price of ice has been raised $2 a ton during the past 24 hours on account of the short supply and the increased demand due to the hot wave.

Rubber Men on Strike.

MORRISVILLE, Pa., Aug. 2.—About 40 employes in the factory of the Goodyear Vulcanite Rubber Company here are out on strike on account of a reduction of wages.

NEARING HIS DOOM

Kemmler Has But a Few Days More to Live.

HE IS RAPIDLY BREAKING DOWN

The Warden's Wife Cannot Cheer Him With Kind Words.

All His Former Stoicism Has Vanished. A Belief That He Will Weaken and Have to be Carried to the Chair. Reporters Watching the Warden's Movements.

AUBURN, N. Y., Aug. 2.—Within the week beginning Monday next William Kemmler, the brutal murderer of Tillie Zeigler, will pay the penalty prescribed by law for such crimes.

There seems now to be no possible chance of his longer escaping justice. All the State courts having jurisdiction in the case, and the highest tribunal in the country, the United States Court, have been appealed to in his behalf, but in each instance the decision has been against the condemned man.

Thousands of dollars have undoubtedly been expended in conducting these appeals and it is almost an open secret that the electric companies have stood the expense. This was not done with the object of cheating justice, for if ever there was a murderer who deserved the law's full punishment Kemmler is one, but the desire has been to prevent the State from using electricity as a death agency.

Most all the companies who are interested in the development of this mysterious power are opposed to its use as a means of execution and there is no doubt that they would still further fight the new law but for the fact that there are no more courts to appeal to.

That Kemmler now fully realizes his terrible position there is no further doubt. All his former stoicism has vanished and he has reverted back to the miserable wretch he was at the time he first came here. The kind words of Mrs. Durston do not cheer him up as they did a short time ago. He is sullen and has not the boyish appetite he has hitherto enjoyed. He talks but little to his keepers and his illustrated Bible, a present from Mrs. Dunston and which greatly interested him for a while, is now seldom opened. He has lost all care for personal appearance and often does not comb his hair unless expecting a call from the warden's wife.

It would not surprise some if, when the fatal hour arrives, he would break down completely and have to be dragged to the death chamber.

Warden Durston is as close as a clam concerning the murderer and all arrangements for the execution. If he has decided upon the hour for the final scene he is closely guarding this knowledge in his own brain.

Almost every movement of the warden and any unusual activity or new arrival at the prison is watched closely by the reporters. Mrs. Durston is expected to leave the prison Saturday afternoon, and those who are to be present at the execution will likely begin to arrive Sunday. It is understood that Warden Durston will accommodate them with quarters within the prison immediately on their arrival in the city, where they will remain until all is over. He will be a shrewd man indeed who succeeds in getting within the walls of the prison without the newspaper boys knowing of the fact at about the same time he does himself.

Of course nothing definite is known regarding the hour for the execution, but the general belief is that by the time the sun has made its appearance Tuesday morning, Kemmler's earthly troubles will be over.

MR. BLAINE AT CAPE MAY.

He Arrived by Special Train and Will be the President's Guest.

CAPE MAY, N. J., Aug. 2.—Secretary of State Blaine arrived here by a special train in company with George W. Boyd and Gen. W. J. Sewell. He proceeded at once to Congress Hall, accompanied by Mr. Boyd.

This afternoon he will go to the Presidential cottage, where he will remain until next Tuesday or Wednesday.

The Secretary entered Congress Hall last night amid loud and continued applause, which he gracefully acknowledged by raising his hat. Hassler's Orchestra played upon Mr. Blaine's entrance, "The Star-Spangled Banner." The hotel corridors and porches were crowded with people eager to catch a glimpse of the distinguished statesman's face.

Double Drowning Accident.

YOUNGSTOWN, N. Y., Aug. 2.—A double drowning accident occurred here during the afternoon. Mr. and Mrs. William Greazy of Woodstock, Ont., and Miss Grace Anderson of this place were bathing in the Niagara river, Miss Anderson got beyond her depth and Mr. Greazy went to her assistance. In bearing her back to the shore they passed close to Mrs. Greazy and Miss Anderson grasped her and all went down together. The two women were drowned, but Mr. Greazy was rescued. The bodies were recovered.

Struck for Rubber Boots.

ORANGE, Mass., Aug. 2.—One hundred Italians working on the sewer struck to day because not supplied with rubber boots by the contractor. The contractor is away, and the men have resumed work until he returns.

An English Champion's Challenge.

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—A cable dispatch from London says Pritchard, the middleweight champion of England, has issued a challenge to fight either Billy McCarthy of Australia, or Jack Dempsey, the fight to take place in London.

THREE ORPHANS KILLED.

One Boy's Body Impaled on the Locomotive's Flagstaff.

TORONTO, Ont., Aug. 2.—Patrick Downey, Peter McLaughlin and Charles McNeil, inmates of the Sunnyside Orphan Asylum, while attempting to cross the railroad track in a carriage, were struck by a passenger train and all three instantly killed.

Downey's body was impaled on the locomotive's flagstaff.

Dr. Burtsell's Successor.

RONDOUT, N. Y., Aug 2.—Dr. Burtsell, the deposed pastor of the Church of the Epiphany, in New York, has not yet arrived here to take charge of the new parish, to which he is supposed to have been assigned, and the prevailing opinion is that he will not come. The Rev. Peter Prendergast, who succeeds him as pastor of the Epiphany, leaves here to-day and will officiate in the pulpit lately occupied by Dr. Burtsell to-morrow. Dr. Prendergast, who is a native of Ireland, and about 50 years of age, is a large and portly gentleman of fine appearance. He served as assistant to Dr. Burtsell in 1871.

A BOLD MANIFESTO

The Argentine President Issues a Proclamation.

HIS SUPPORTERS DISGUSTED.

They Stand Aghast at His Callousness and Ignorance.

The Manifesto Charges the Local Party With the Responsibility of the Insurrection—The President Expresses Gratitude to the Supporters of His Authority—A Drop in Argentine Securities.

LONDON, Aug. 2.—A Buenos Ayres despatch says that President Celman has issued a manifesto to the people. After speaking of the demand for his resignation which was recently make he refers to the prosperity and liberty the country enjoyed under his rule. He ignores the gravity and what his own journal terms "the horrors" of the recent events in Buenos Ayres. He attributes the sole cause of the insurrection to the insensate ambition of the local party in Buenos Ayres, which he says wished to impose itself upon the entire republic, while prosperity, peace and security are represented by the Celman Government.

Even Celman's own party, the despatch says, stands aghast at the President's callousness and his incomprehensible and vain ignorance of the real gravity of the situation.

In conclusion the manifesto expresses eternal gratitude to the supporters of the President's authority and adds that a patriotic people blesses them as the saviors of the Government.

LONDON, Aug. 2.—A private despatch from Buenos Ayres says: "While the revolution has been suppressed, the political crisis continues. There is no better feeling in the money market."

Situation at Buenos Ayres.

LONDON Aug. 2.—The situation is not improved. The National and other banks are taking advantage of the law enabling them to postpone cash payments, except in the case of the smallest checks. It is possible that the financial crises may do what force of arms failed to accomplish, and force President Celman to resign.

Wolseley to Command the Irish Forces.

LONDON, Aug. 2.—General Wolseley retired yesterday from his place as Adjutant General, and will assume command of the forces in Ireland in October. Although a native of Ireland, Gen. Wolseley is not popular with the Home Rulers, as he is understood to be thoroughly in accord with the policy of coercion, and prepared to use the troops for the purpose of aiding evictions. The General will have his headquarters in Dublin, whence he will direct the movements of the troops at any point where they may be needed.

Sweden to Join the Triple Alliance.

LONDON, Aug. 2.—The King of Sweden is said to have in serious consideration the reported proposition of the Emperor of Germany that Sweden should join the triple alliance, with the understanding that, in the event of war with Russia, Finland should be returned to Sweden; as such an addition of territory would greatly aid in restoring to Sweden a share of its former importance in European affairs. The Finns are ripe for rebellion against Russia, and may not even wait for any power to help them.

Emperor William Starts for England.

BERLIN, Aug. 2.—Emperor William has started from Wilhelmhaven on his trip to England. The Imperial yacht Hohenzollern with his Majesty on board, sailed at noon for Ostend, whence the Emperor will proceed to England. As the yacht left the harbor she was preceded by the German squadron of Evolution and followed by the corvette Irene.

Terrible Destitution in Newfoundland.

HALIFAX, Aug. 2.—Dispatches from Cape Norman, Newfoundland, report that the people there are suffering greatly from want of food. Not one pound of flour is to be obtained in the district, and some families have subsisted for months on mussels and shell fish. On June 20 snow fell to a depth of four inches. A similar state of affairs is reported from Quirpon.

Bishop O'Dwyer's Supporters Hooted.

LONDON, Aug. 2.—During a large town meeting at Limerick last night the upholders of Bishop O'Dwyer in his controversy with Mr. Dillon over the Persico mission matter were hooted by the populace. There were exciting scenes and trouble was feared.

A Galicia Town Burned.

SOUDAN, Aug. 2.—The town of Mikolajow, in Galicia, has been destroyed by fire. Many lives were lost during the conflagration. The people of the place are destitute, and much suffering exists.

Italian Soldiers Deserting.

ROME, Aug. 2.—Wholesale desertions from several regiments of Italian soldiers stationed on the French frontier have induced the authorities to call the regiments inland.

A Caterpillar Plague in Texas.

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 2.—A dispatch from Austin, Tex., says: Millions of caterpillars have invaded the fields in this section and planters and farmers are busy poisoning them. They are reported very bad along the Brazos River, and it may be that the cotton crop of this State will be seriously injured. The pests are at least three weeks earlier than usual, and they are here in great numbers and make the atmosphere very offensive with their peculiar odor.

RATES ON BREADSTUFFS.

The Interstate Commerce Commission Do Some Cutting.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 2.—The Interstate Commerce Commission issued an order to-day, to take effect on Sept. 1, in regard to the reduction of rates on food products, based on its recent report to the Senate. This case is one of the most important yet brought before the commission, which has given it precedence over other cases.

The reductions may apply only to corn, oats, wheat and flour carried from Iowa, Missouri, Kansas and Nebraska to Chicago, St. Louis and the Mississippi River. The reduced rates are, from Missouri River to Chicago on corn and oats, 17 cents, and wheat and flour 20 cents per 100 pounds. From Kansas and Nebraska points corn 18 to 23 wheat 21 to 27 cents.

Reductions extend 200 miles in Nebraska and 250 miles in Kansas from the Missouri River. Where rates are fractional the roads may charge even cents, which considerably modifies the reductions.

No reductions are required which will leave the roads less 6½ mills per ton per mile for hauls not longer than 500 miles, nor less than 6 miles for any distance.

FOUR MEN DROWNED.

The Steamship Obdam Runs Down and Sinks a Schooner.

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—The steamship Obdam which arrived here last night from Rotterdam reports having collided with and sunk the French fishing schooner Christopher Colombo of Crete, France, on Sunday, July 27 in the Grand Fishing Banks of Newfoundland.

A heavy fog was prevailing at the time.

The Obdam brought with her to New York Captain Lanier and twenty-one of the crew of the Colombo who were picked up by the Obdam after the collision. Four of the schooner's crew were lost.

The Obdam was only slightly damaged.

Tramps Shot By Officers.

MASSILLON, Ohio, Aug. 2.—Officers Tom Hagan and Frank Ertle had a desperate battle with a large gang of tramps, who spent yesterday afternoon in drinking five kegs of beer near the bridge shop. In the attempt to arrest them the officers shot three of them, one through the left leg, another through the back part of the head and another through the back. The wounded men and seven others were locked up. The leader gives his name as William Hauke, and hails from Canton; three others claim to be from Titusville, Pa.

The Pop-Corn Boy Rewarded.

OLD ORCHARD, Me., Aug. 2.—A Montreal gentlemen who recently fell while boarding a moving train at Old Orchard station and was saved from going under the wheels by Frank E. Morrill, a pop-corn peddler, has rewarded his rescuer with a cheque for $5,000. Morrill who is 25 years of age has for many years supported his aged mother and himself by selling pop-corn.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

Gold bars valued at $4,000,000 were shipped yesterday to Europe from New York.

Henry Wrighter of Susquehanna, Pa., a soldier of the late war, has been granted a pension of $72 per month and $15,123 arrears. Wrighter is blind.

In Chelsea, Mass., yesterday, while Henry Feldman, a teamster, was beating his horse, the animal jumped on Henry Cohen, aged four years, killing him instantly. Feldman was arrested.

The statement that the mills at Fall River, Mass., had decided to shut down Monday is incorrect. The agreement as signed by the mill treasurers simply provides for a six days stoppage without any clause binding them to any particular date.

Dry weather for the last three weeks has caused the starting of forest and prairie fires in portions of Montana. In the Castle mining district the pine and spruce forests are on fire, endangering the plant of the Cumberland Company. In Jefferson county fires are also reported, while from Helena a big blaze can be seen off in the mountains.

Weather Indications.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 2.—For New England: Fair; warmer in eastern portions; cooler in western portion; variable winds.

For Eastern New York: Fair preceded by local showers in southern portion; variable winds, shifting to southeasterly; cooler.

For Eastern Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Delaware; Local thunder storms, followed by clearing and cooler weather; variable winds.

For Western New York: warmer; fair; southwesterly winds.

For Western Pennsylvania; Fair; cooler in southern portion; warmer in northern portion; southeasterly winds.

BY THE WAY.

—The State milk inspectors are now abroad.

—Dogs still continue to roam the streets unmuzzled.

—The Summer, or crook neck, squash, has made its appearance.

—Heat and mosquitoes prevented many from enjoying much rest last evening.

—The fellow who said it would be a cool Summer should be presented with a dozen palm leaf fans.

—The attaches of the county clerk's office are busy with the business connected with the dependent pension papers.

—This is the time for our business men—while trade is dull—to advertise their goods and let the people know what they have and where to buy.

—The next regular meeting of Easter Lodge, Knights of Honor, will be held next Monday evening in the lodge rooms, 10 West Second street.

—A month ago the prospects for a large yield of grapes was very promising, but since the rot has commenced it is doubtful if there will be any in this vicinity.

—The Baldwin Locomotive works of Philadelphia, are building several seventy-five-ton engines for the Philadelphia and Reading, and Central Railroad of New Jersey.

—The quarterly meeting of Gazelle Engine Company No. 1, will be held in their parlors on Wednesday evening of next week, at 8 o'clock. As there is important business to be transacted, a full attendance of the members is desired.

—People who have a taste for iced cream should try the fad of eating Boston brown bread with their cream. It is a combination that will delight any lover of good living. A spoonful of iced cream, placed upon the edge of a slice of Boston brown bread, is a mouthful to linger over and remember with pleasure.

—If you want to fully enjoy the invigorating influences of an ocean trip, and a surf-washed shore, join the Reform Club excursion to Rockaway Beach, per the staunch and elegant steamer Grand Republic, on Thursday next. The moderate cost of tickets will be amply repaid in health and pleasure. Remember Thursday, 7th inst.

Plainfield Represented.

A joint excursion of Clinton, Industry and Valley Forge Councils, Jr. O. U. A. M., from Jersey City up the Long Island Sound, yesterday, was a grand success in every particular. During the day a ballot was taken to see which Council was the most popular, to which a handsome flag was presented. The result was: Clinton, 226; Industry, 215; Valley Forge, 5. Brother Murch excepted the flag for Clinton Council in a very neat speach. Franklin Council of this city, was represented by delegates.

Bishop Foster in Plainfield.

One week from to-morrow, August 10, Bishop Foster, one of the ablest and most eloquent ministers in this country, will occupy the Rev. Chas. B. Mitchell's pulpit in the Methodist Episcopal church morning and evening. Ample arrangements will be made for the convenience of the large numder who will improve this opportunity of hearing this eminent clergyman.

Bobby Burns Understood It.

"Many and sharp the numerous ills
Inwoven in our frame,
More pointed still we make ourselves
Regret, remorse and shame."

Among the most dangerous as well as vexing of ills "inwoven with our frame," are Consumption, Asthma, Bronchitis, colds and lung troubles generally. However, the timely use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery takes away their fearful consequences, but which neglected, leaves "regret, remorse and shame." But you need not be ashamed to ask for the "Discovery," as it has become a standard remedy, found at all the drug stores, where thousands call for it every day, and where it is recognized as the leading medicine for all lung and throat affections.

—Oh, for some cool spot, a shady nook, 'neath spreading limbs, by the babbling brook.

Easily made. A cheap and delicious drink for 25 cents can be made from Hires' Root Beer Packages. Five gallons. Be careful that you get the real, genuine Hires'. There are a number of would-be Root Beer packages on the market.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Ex-Councilman Rowland M. Stover is quite ill at his home on Ninth street.

Mrs. C. S. West and family of Central avenue, leave on Monday for Berne, N. Y.

Mrs. C. H. Rugg leaves today for Bloomsbury, where she will visit relatives.

J. Elston Woodland and Harry Williams of North Plainfield, are at the Carr Villa, Asbury Park, for two weeks.

Mrs. L. B. Boice and daughter, and her father, Elisha Coriell, leave on Monday for Asbury Park, for the Summer.

The statement that Dr. Edward Rushmore is in regular attendance on the case of George M. Griffen, is a mistake.

A. E. Faber and family, of Washington Park, leave today for Belmar, where they will spend two weeks at Columbia Hotel.

Hazel Mott, the infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Horatio M. Clark of North Plainfield, died at the home of its parents this morning.

Miss Carrie and Miss Addie Dunn, of Philadelphia, have returned home after a visit with their aunt Mrs. H. S. Phillips, of Park avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Burnett Rogers have the sympathy of the community in the loss of their infant son, George Clayton Rogers, whose death occurred this morning.

Prof. Ernest Knaufft, of East Front street, has charge of a magnificent fine art exhibition at Chautauqua. The various specimens of work are from artists all over the country.

Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert S. Martin of Somerset street, North Plainfield, leave today for a week's recreation with friends and relatives in Middlesex, Hunterdon and Somerset counties.

Suit has been brought in the Supreme Court, by Craig A. Marsh, counsel for Wm. Uhrhahn, against M. B. Long, M. D., for $10,000 damages alleged to have resulted from the latter's mistaken treatment of Mr. Uhrhahn's disjointed hip. Papers were served today.

Andrew Mellick, Jr., of Broadway, has gone to Norfolk, Conn., for a month. Mr. Mellick has lost the use of his lower limbs, and cannot even sit up. He was carried to the cars here by his nurse, and changed at Easton to the New England road. His sister also accompanied him.

A Novel and Charming Affair

Quite a surprise last evening, was tendered Mrs. A. L. Tuska, who is Summering here and occupies ex-Councilman Squires handsome home on Broadway. It was the occasion of her birthday anniversary. The lawns and porch were brilliantly illuminated with Chinese and Japanese lanterns in varied colors.

A lawn party was given to the children, who assembled on a neighbors lawn and marched in procession to Mrs. Tuska's. Each carried an illuminated lantern and a pot of natural flowers. The sight was impressing and Mrs. Tuska appreciated the kindness of her friends. She received numerous and valuable presents. Among the guests assembled were the families of Kaufman, Adler and Wolfstein, all Summering here; also Messrs Moore, Phillips and others from New York. A collation was served and the festivities lasted till late into the night.

Many Questions Asked.

Attorney-General John P. Stockton says that he is beset on all sides with inquiries as to the practical operation of the new ballot reform law, under which the election next Fall is to be held. His mornings' mail is filled with letters from political workers and city and town officials asking about this point, that point and the other point. The duty of answering this enlarged correspondence is an onerous one, and he may be compelled to enlarge his office staff to perform it. Gov. Abbett is quoted as having said that preparations are being made all over the State to properly educate the people concerning it, and State officials do not anticipate any serious embarrassments in the taking of the vote under the new system.

Plainfield Will Play Westfield on a Week Day.

The people of Westfield, we understand, are counting a great deal on the half-arranged series of ball games between their club and the Crescents. One game, however, would satisfy them.—Plainfield Press.

The one game mentioned in the above paragraph is wholly arranged and will be played on the grounds of the Westfield Athletic Club on Wednesday September 10th. We agree entirely with our Plainfield contemporary that this one game will probaly satisfy us for we mean to win it. The object in trying to arrange two or more games was purely one of charity to the Crescents. We would not want to beat them and then not let them have a chance to retaliate.—Westfield Standard.

Supposed Mad Dogs in Dunellen.

The other day Mr. Hurlick's dog, that had been tied up a year in Dunellen, broke loose, tore through the streets, knocked down Mr. Richter's little daughter, and bit a man who works for Firm' Gise. Dr. Champney who tended the girl, says she is only bruised, but the man is undoubtedly bitten. The dog was killed.

Next day a strange dog was seen near the roundhouse, and remembering the casualty of the day before the inhabitants turned out and killed it on general principles.

WANDERED AWAY AGAIN.

Benjamin B. Newton Once More Escapes and Cannot Be Found.

Benjamin B. Newton, who, at one time held a responsible position in the Reading Railroad, and who was sent to Dr. Preston Jones' Asylum at Merchantville, N. J., about the first of June, 1890, because of a brain affection, escaped from that institution on Tuesday last, and up to the present time has not been heard of.

Mr. Newton's home is in this city with his sister, Mrs. George H. Goddard, and it was there that he spent most of his time when away from his business. Several times he wandered away from home and did not return until his relatives made search for him.

When they would find him he would seem to be in a dreamy condition, not knowing anything about himself or anything else. In these conditions he could be led home like a child. His actions of course worried his family and they sent him to Dr. Jones for treatment.

He has seemed very good-natured and manageable while there and never has been violent. On Saturday last, says the Philadelphia Item, his brother from New York came to see him in company with Mr. Newton's fiancee. The affected man and the lady sat on the porch together reading and chatting and he seemed very rational.

Tuesday evening Mr. Newton sat on the veranda with an attendant. The latter was called into the house for a moment, and when he came out he found the patient gone.

The attendant at once went to the railroad station and there learned that the man had bought a ticket and taken passage on the 6:36 train for Philadelphia. The conductor remembered seeing Mr. Newton on the train, but did not know whether he got off the cars before reaching the city. The police are now searching for the man.

A Youthful Citizen Resents an Insult.

One of Plainfield's bright young telegraph messengers was offered a ride by a friendly hackman this morning, and was spinning gaily along through the neighborhood of the boulevard when two street gamins spied him and began shouting tantalizing things.

"See de bloated aristocrat," said one. "He thinks himself better'n us."

The telegraph messenger was at first disposed to retain his dignity and ignore his tormentors, but as they trotted along beside the hack and continued their outpourings of derision he leaped to the ground, polished them both off in the most approved Sullivanistic style, and left them blubberingly acknowledging that they had had enough.

"I'm no aristocrat," said the messenger, "I'm a ginoolne American citizen, I am. See?"

Then he sank back in the cushions of his temporary luxury, content.

Plainfielders' Successful Classes.

The Board of Directors of the Seaside Assembly at Avon-by-the-Sea, visited the Departments of Art and aesthetic physical culture, yesterday, and highly complimented Prof. John Ward Stimson and Madame Alberti, both of Plainfield, who have charge of the respective departments. Both series of classes are in a flourishing condition. Increased interest and attendance in the physical culture classes of Madame Alberti are reported. To her new pupils she recommends that no exercise should be taken within fifteen minutes before a meal and within one hour after a meal. Madame Alberti was the elocutionist of an entertainment given in the auditorium last evening.

Today's Game.

It will be a great ball game today. John Wierenga has put the grounds in splendid condition—the outfield is like a Seventh street lawn. Hatfield, the Acme catcher, who has been signed for the season, will play with the Crescents today. He will play in the field, and go behind the bat in case of emergency.

The Ridgewoods will come out loaded to kill. Livingston will pitch, and Carr, the Long Island twirler, will be the "extra" man. There will be a big attendance, with many strangers from Brooklyn and elsewhere.

What They Shot Yesterday.

The "open" season for shooting upland plover commenced with August 1, and a number of the local sportsmen were after these splendid birds early in the morning. We learn of no extra large bags being made, as the birds are scarce and shy. Councilman S. G. Smith, J. H. Force and Alex. Harris shot fifteen. E. Shephard and Billy Laire got twenty, W. H. Egbert and ex-Postmaster Force captured seven. I. D. TenEyck and W. H. Sebring refused to tell the exact number they killed, but it is supposed to have been 000.

—The excursion train of the Park Avenue Baptist, First Presbyterian and Congregational churches arrived in Plainfield last evening at about eight o'clock. Most of the excursionists were very tired, but said they had a splendid day.

The Voice of the People on Wine.

It is a well known fact that wines above all other liquors are grossly adulterated, but when a pure article is placed on the market and people find it out to be pure, they all with one voice recommend it. The Port Grape Wine from the vineyards of Alfred Speer, of Passaic, N. J., has received the unqualified endorsement of the medical faculty and of thousands of invalids who have been won back to health by their use. For sale by druggists.

A ROOM FOR SICKNESS.

Not Every One Can Afford to Have a Room Set Apart for Sickness, But Those Who Can Should Do So.

There are few things, says Good Housekeeping, more conducive to the comfort of a family than a room suitably arranged for sickness. Without it, there is much unnecessary inconvenience, not only to the one who is ill, but to every member of the family. Especially is such a room desirable in contagious diseases. Many have lost loved ones just because the plan and furnishing were such that it was impossible to separate the sick from the well.

And yet it would seem from the general management at such times, that many parents think that if one child be taken with scarlet fever, for instance, every child in the family must of necessity have it. There is no greater mistake. Scarlet fever is seldom, if ever, communicated before the eruption is developed. This may be doubted by many; but when we know that children frequently escape when exposed in the fever stage, it is certainly the part of wisdom to take advantage of this knowledge. Many parents become frightened if there happens to be a case of scarlet fever in the school. The truth is, there is comparatively little danger of taking this disease in the beginning. The danger arises from carelessness in allowing the child to return to school and wear the clothing that has been worn during convalescence, or left where the emanations from the eruption could lodge in the texture.

This suggests the exercise of the greatest possible care. A case of scarlet fever in a room where there are curtains, carpet, papered walls, with other ordinary furnishings, will make it unsafe for occupancy indefinitely, unless the germs of the disease be destroyed; and in a room of this kind, one never feels sure that the fumigation has been sufficiently thorough. On the other hand, with a room properly located and arranged, no danger in the future need be apprehended. Under these circumstances, the most dreaded of all of the diseases of children would, in the majority of cases, be limited to one case in the family, and the langer to that one greatly lessened.

The necessity for such a room in every home is almost imperative. We would be surprised if we could estimate how often and how much of the time such a room would be used. When all the members of the household are well, such a room would be quiet and restful, where any one might go for a nap, from father and mother down to baby. This last is of no small consideration when we take into account the suppression necessary to be exercised when some one either accidentally or intentionally falls asleep on the sitting-room couch. The convenience of even a small house would be greatly increased, if one room in it were planned with a view to comfort in this direction.

A Decorated Jar.

A dainty and pretty ornament may be made from an ordinary glass fruit jar by following the directions given below: First, select your jar and wash it thoroughly, so that it is entirely free from dust. Then mark a line midway between top and bottom. With oil colors paint all below the line a soft delicate blue. (Robin's egg blue would be pretty.) With gold, paint the upper part of jar, the top included. Then from the upper left-hand side make a trailing design of pink and white blossoms, running down over the gold and on into the blue space. Tie a blue ribbon around the neck, making a dainty bow just above where the stems of the vine begin. The branches are of brown; the blossoms pink and white; no leaves are necessary. Vandyke brown and burnt sienna are used to paint the twigs, while crimson lake and white are needed for the blossoms. These colors come in little tubes and can be bought for from seven to ten cents a tube, except the crimsons, which are a little more expensive. A camel's hair brush will be required to paint with.—American Agriculturist.

HANDSOME JAR.

Why Thunder-Storms Affect Milk.

During electrical disturbances it seems that cream and milk are put into a condition to sour easily. The probable cause of this the editor of the Cultivator (Albany) explains as follows: The effect of an electrical discharge is to decompose a portion of the atmosphere, by which ozone is produced. This substance has peculiar properties from its intense activity as an oxyde of oxygen, and its action believed to be, and may be, the cause of the souring of milk, beer and fresh wine during what are known as thunder-storms. The ozone is diffused through the air, and is believed to be the cause of the strong acid odor which prevails after the storm is passed. No doubt if the milk is submerged in water, and access of air is prevented, no result of the kind need be apprehended; and as the more milk is exposed to the air the more it will be affected by the ozone, the milk in open shallow pans will be acidified more readily than that in deep pails, although these may be open. In our long experience, however, the writer adds, we have never had any milk affected in this way, either in shallow pans or deep pails, and are of opinion that the heat of the air preceding thunder-storms is more directly the agent in the souring of the milk than the ozone that may exist in the air after the storm is passed. Carefulness to maintain a proper temperature, by closing dairy houses and cellars against the outer atmosphere, will be a means of safety.

A Philadelphia Journalist Dead.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Aug. 2.—Mr. Daniel P. Smith, of the news department of the Inquirer, died last evening after a long illness. Mr. Smith, who was a native of Philadelphia, was one of the oldest newspaper men in the city, and had been connected with the Inquirer for the past 15 years. He entered the Southern army as a lieutenant at the outbreak of the war, was promoted to a captaincy, and at the battle of Franklin received a wound of which his death was indirectly the result.

The New York Boodlers.

NEW YORK, Aug. 2.—In the suit of ex-Alderman Duffy against John C. Keenan to secure the residue of the "trust fund," Judge Dugro refused to grant the examination of Keenan, Moloney and De Lacy, on the ground that such examination was unnecessary.

An Insurance Company Checked.

BOSTON, Aug. 2.—Insurance Commissioner Merrill refuses a license to do business in this State to the American Casualty and Insurance Company of Baltimore, because it proposes to do two kinds of insurance business which is not allowable under the law.

PLAINFIELD'S FAME WORLD SPREAD.

A Review of its Attractions, its Benefits, its Prosperity, its Industries and its Glories, as Told by a PRESS Writer in the North American Review.

A few days ago the editor of the North American Review, sent to THE PRESS for an article on Plainfield, to be honored with a place in the covers of that most widely discussed of all magazines in the World. The work of compiling such an article as would best remunerate and most benefit the city, was entrusted to one of THE PRESS writers, and accepted, when completed, without question as follows. The people will all agree that the service has been well and truly rendered them.

The city of Plainfield is naturally fitted for what it mainly is, a city of homes for New York business men. It has always been known as an ideal suburban town, and its manufacturing advantages in addition have led to the location within its bounds of machine works that are widely known, and which draw a class of the best and most intelligent working people.

The complete census will show a population of about 13,000. More than half the residents are New York business men and their families. To carry the crowds of commuters over the twenty-five miles which separates the town from New York city, the Central New Jersey Railroad provides, besides thirty trains a day each way, two expresses known as the Plainfield expresses, which make the run to the city in less than an hour, and consist of special coaches of Pullman make. Club cars, of which thirty or more commuters forming a private club have the exclusive use, are a new and attractive feature of travel between Plainfield and New York. There are three stations in the city, at Netherwood, Grant avenue and Evona, besides the main station on North avenue.

The advantages of Plainfield as a home are the beauty of its streets and private parks and gardens, the churches, among the wealthiest, and the schools, the best in the State. The wide streets are all macadamized, and miles of shade trees in full growth line them on each side, there being several streets shaded from end to end of their three miles' length. At the junction of Broadway and Crescent avenue is an open plaza. On the east of the city is Netherwood Heights, where are a great Summer and Winter hotel, a popular resort of New Yorkers, and a group of costly residences. On the West lie successive ranges of the Blue Mountains. On the highest point of the First Mountain, three miles from the town, is Washington's Rock, of historic interest, and commanding all the plain below to the sea and as far North, on clear days as the towers of Brooklyn Bridge. On the hills South of Netherwood Heights is the pretty Hillside cemetery. Beyond the hills and mountains on each side is a rolling country, dotted with towns and villages, the farming population of which daily furnishes the city with fresh vegetables and fruits. The peach country is but four miles distant. On the North stretch away the new county roads, solidly built, and ending only till the county lines are reached.

Private improvements have followed the model of the natural surroundings of the city. Everything is on a generous scale. There is not a dwelling house in the town which somewhere does not have its garden and lawn. Many grounds covering a block or half a block are elaborately laid out with walks, rare trees, plants and bushes. One private park, the home of a former railroad president, stretches up the mountain side for nearly half a mile. In no other town probably can be seen so many beautiful examples of modern architecture, from buildings for business purposes and cosy workingmen's homes to residences of princely proportions, the homes of bankers and merchants of New York. Apartment houses after the newest models have been erected on some of the more exclusive streets. They are lighted by electricity, and apartments of ten or twelve rooms in these houses can be rented at about half the charge for a six-room flat in New York. Several miles of streets are built up with small houses and cottages, rented at moderate rates.

The Common Council of Plainfield aims to pursue a wise and conservative, but enterprising policy. There is no city debt, and taxes are applied strictly to running expenses and for improvements. The streets and roadway are the city's principal care. The fire department has been made efficient and is kept in thorough drill. High license, with proper restrictions, is the city's present policy toward the liquor traffic. Among improvements under way are water works to be in running order by next year. Twenty-five miles of pipe will be laid and two hundred and fifty hydrants located. The supply will be from six wells tapping an apparently inexhaustible underground spring, from which private wells in the city have for years drawn their supply. No disease traceable to bad water has ever had a chance to spread in Plainfield. The flow of the underground spring is from Northwest to Southeast. The wells have been sunk North of the city, and away from all possible sources of contamination, if that were a possibility. A deep bed of sand and gravel underlies the surface soil, and acts as an excellent filter for all surface water.

Other public improvements will be the early introduction of a street car line and of a sewerage system. The town is lighted by incandescent electric lights, extending to the suburbs of Netherwood and Evona. A city hall is about to be built or purchased. North Plainfield, which is really a part of Plainfield, is under a separate government, because in another county. The liberal policy pursued by its sister city is followed by the borough council of North Plainfield. A macadamized drive over the First Mountain has been built, and another drive extends through the "Notch," as it is called, a mountain gore of surpassing beauty.

There are two Presbyterian, two Episcopal and three Baptist churches, a Methodist, Trinity Reformed, Quaker and Unitarian church, besides churches of lesser denominations and chapels which are branches of other churches. The Catholics have two churches and a parochial school. A live and healthy religious life prevails among the residents and forms one of the chief advantages of the city as a suburban home. The Crescent Avenue church has two branch chapels, and several more are maintained by the Baptists and Methodists. The Methodist, Presbyterian and Baptist Sunday school chapels are modelled after the latest ideas in church architecture. The Seventh Day Baptist church, one of the oldest and best known of its order, is building on Central avenue a new church of stone to cost $35,000. The school buildings all embody the newest and most practicable ideas in educational architecture. The seating accommodations are ample and the corps of teachers have been educated in modern methods of instruction. The high school has graduated men and women who have already made their mark in the world of business, literature and law. There are private schools, kindergardens, seminaries and preparatory academies. The public library and art gallery is the gift of Job Male, Mayor of the city and foremost among its public-spirited citizens. The collection of books is already large and new ones are added every month, while each year sees valuable accessions to the art gallery, in which annual exhibits are held. Artists have been drawn to the town whose names are familiar in metropolitan art circles. Among the societies devoted to the progress of culture are the Plainfield Choral Society and the Monday Club.

The Muhlenberg Hospital, supported by gifts and contributions of the public, has an elegant home on South avenue. A staff of local physicians is in constant attendance. Chronic diseases, and those contracted by impure air or water, are rarely treated at the hospital, the larger number of cases being the result of accidents in the machine works. Railroad accidents are fewer than in other towns, as the tracks are elevated through the city. Other public buildings are the hotels, old-established hostelries, and the projected Casino in a fashionable quarter of the city. At the Casino the assembly balls and great society events will be held. The Young Men's Christian Association is building a three-story structure on Front street, to be a model home and complete in every appointment. There are two music halls, one with a seating capacity of 1,500, and a great skating rink in which public entertainments on an extensive scale are held. The headquarters of the Saenger Bund on Somerset street is beautified by a front of carved stone. The Crescent League, in which are enrolled all the men prominent in business and social circles, already has its club house on Second street. The Plainfield Bicycle Club has just completed a gymnasium as an addition to its own pretty little club house. On Netherwood Heights a public park is to be laid out, while, to complete the circle of outdoor enjoyments there are cricket, base ball and foot ball grounds, and boating may be practised on Tier's Lake and at several other places near the city.

Plainfield lies between New York and Philadelphia. Two express companies serve the town, and there are five or six mails a day from New York city. All trains on the Baltimore & Ohio route to Washington, the West and South, stop at the main depot. In addition, Plainfield is in near connection with the Lehigh Valley, Pennsylvania and Philadelphia & Reading Railroad systems. All these advantages, with the natural one of contiguity to the Pennsylvania coal fields, have resulted in the establishment in the town of three machine works, two of which manufacture the famous Scott and Potter Web printing presses. Mr. Walter Scott built his factory a few years ago, and Charles Potter, Jr., erected his extensive works some time before Mr. Scott located in Plainfield. The Pond Machine Tool Company, which holds government contracts, moved to Plainfield from Massachusetts. A careful canvass was made by the company of all the towns near New York before it decided to move. Different cities pressed their claims, including such formidable rivals as Newark and Paterson. The city of Plainfield was found to be superior to all the others. The new company met at once with a hearty reception. A fine school house was erected in the part of the city in which its works were built, the streets were graded, and in other ways the city extended to the company the same welcome which it will give to all new manufacturing industries.

Other industries have been profitably run in the city. Factories for making oil cloths, carpets, wall paper rolls, flour and grain foods have been long in operation. New companies have recently been incorporated with the intention of building factories in Plainfield. All these industries furnish employment to that desirable class of working people who do not detract in the least from the advantages of the town as a home for business men. Their well-kept gardens and the neat houses they own add to its beauty, while in public emergencies they join with the best classes. General society more agreeable, life pleasanter and more free, environments more healthful or full of contrasts cannot be found in another suburban town near New York. The people are cultured and hospitable and generous patrons of all deserving objects.

No Prospects Yet of Elevated Tracks in Elizabeth.

The Pennsylvania Railroad Company is making surveys at Elizabeth preparatory, it is said, to making application to the Court for a commission to condemn more property along the line of the railroad. The company wants to get an additional strip from West Jersey to Chestnut street, varying in width from eighteen to twenty-five feet. The surveyors were in Russ's iced cream garden yesterday, a part of which will be taken away by the railroad.

There are no signs of any move being made of elevating the tracks of the Pennsylvania and Central railroads through Elizabeth, and the unexplained delay gives a strong color of truth to current report that the Central company will not ratify the agreement to elevate its tracks.

A man who is generally well posted on railroad affairs informed a reporter yesterday that there was no doubt any longer in his mind that a hitch had taken place in the arrangements, and that everything pointed to the Central having backed out. The Elizabeth City Council could very easily, he said, ascertain the attitude of the Central company by passing a resolution of inquiry, requesting the managers of that road to plainly define their position on the grade-crossing question.

But His Owner's Off To Europe.

(From the Westfield Standard.)

Lawyer Craig A. Marsh recently sent Cy. Wilcox a big St. Bernard dog valued at $500. Mr. Wilcox had the dog placed in a kennel eight feet high. Thursday afternoon the animal got over the top of the kennel and started off in the direction of Plainfield with Wilcox and a few others, who had seen him escape, in hot pursuit. The dog was wary, however, and got away. It is supposed that he has returned to his owner in Plainfield.

A Fine Catch in the New Market Lake.

Last Thursday evening, as a guest of Nelson's Hotel, in company with his wife, was rowing on New Market Lake, he idly trolled along with a line and spoon. Suddenly there was a tug and splash, and a hasty pulling in of the line. The result was the capture of a four pound Oswego bass, which was served up to the guests of the house next morning.

To Heighten Beauty.

'Tis sad that beauty is adorned
The most when unadorned, but then
Adornment is imperative—
At least, among the haunts of men.
And beauty that perfection seeks,
To heighten drapery's effect
Should take a trip to Collier's store
And latest jewels there select.

Easy expectoration, increased power of the lungs, and the enjoyment of rest, are the rewards upon taking Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup, to all consumptives.

Cuts, burns and all other wounds can be cured in a short time by the use of Salvation Oil, the greatest cure on earth for pain. Price 25c.

THE TYPEWRITER GIRL.

One of Them Has Something to Say About the Profession.

What a Good Stenographer Must Know—The Wages Paid for Good Work in the Large Cities—Not Simpletons, But Business Women.

"Every girl nowadays is learning to use the typewriter and studying shorthand. Just as soon as they finish school they begin to learn, and a great many young women who used to be clerks in stores and copyists have learned, and the result is there are too many applicants for every position.

"I don't think it is any particular advantage to a young woman who has her living to earn to be a stenographer, any more than it is to be a book-keeper. If she is a good stenographer, and that means more than being a rapid writer, or if she is a good book-keeper, she stands a good chance for a good salary. And I know, for I have tried both," said the young woman as she replied to a Boston Traveller man's inquiries in regard to her work.

"People don't understand all that stenography includes," she continued.

"A good stenographer must understand the rules of punctuation, must spell correctly and have intelligence enough to catch the correct form of diction, even when it is given incorrectly. No matter how stupid an employer may be nor how awkwardly he may dictate his letters, he expects to see them come from the typewriter models of correct expression and intelligence.

"I work for a lawyer, and when I began in his office he had a serious conversation with me in regard to exactness. I was to take word for word as he dictated and never omit or add a syllable. Well, after a few days I noticed he looked over the letters uneasily and that he did not seem to approve of them. Finally one morning he said:

"'Miss L——, er—I don't know as you will do for the work I want. You seem to write rapidly, but I don't think you always catch the exact meaning of my words.'

"I had taken his exact words, but he dictated hastily and his letters were not models of expression. After that I endeavored to understand what he was trying to say. Gradually I got to know his clients as well as he did and to understand about what his views were, and now he considers me the most exact stenographer he ever had, although I frequently add and occasionally omit in copying."

"What pay do stenographers get?"

"It depends on how much they will work for. The average pay is $12 a week, but a great many who don't understand the work very well will take positions at $8. If they prove competent, bright and intelligent, they generally get up to the average pay. If they can't spell, and don't have any brains, they keep along at $8, and are not worth that. I know of a young woman here in Boston who gets $18 a week, and who begins work at 9 a. m. and finishes at 4 p. m. She is an expert. She worked six years ago for $10 a week, and she is a bright girl who would succeed anywhere. It all depends on the girl. I know two young women, clerks in a dry-goods house, who began work at $6 a week; one now gets $20, the other about the same, and they are both experts in laces. They can tell the make, almost the history and price of a piece of lace the moment they touch it. One of them buys the laces for the department in which she works. Are you going to write an article about the typewriters?" the young woman asked, with a smile at my questions.

"If you do, there is one thing I want you to say, and say it firmly, that is about all this nonsense about typewriters flirting and all that. Of course there are simpletons who learn to be stenographers, and there are simpletons who are lawyers, but as a rule the typewriter girl has something else to think about than flirtations; and her employer usually thinks about her as he would of a young man in his office, and if he treats her with perhaps a degree more of courtesy and consideration than he would the young man, why put it down to his credit and to the advance in civilization."

Only One Day's Delay.

In Chicago recently the boiler and engine of a printing establishment were wrecked by an explosion. A month would be necessary to set new boilers and repair the engine. This meant loss in filling contracts, beside the throwing out of employment the employes. But this is not a waiting age. The proprietors walked across the street, so to speak, secured a forty-horse power electric motor, connected it with the shafting and the next morning after the accident full operations were resumed. Under the old regime of steam a month was required to put things in working order. Electricity accomplished the thing in a day.

Put His Foot in His Mouth.

At Rome, Ga., while a horse was loose in the stable one of his hind feet got caught in his mouth. It is supposed that the animal was rubbing the flies from his nose with his hind foot, when by accident the foot passed into the mouth. The hoof was shod with a heavy iron shoe, and the sharp corners of the shoe and hoof cut very painful wounds in the mouth. The animal fell to the ground and continued to struggle without relief. When he was discovered he was covered with foam, and showed every sign of a fearful struggle. His master came and succeeded in extracting the foot.

Baby's Face Was Clean.

A rather precocious infant had its christening unfortunately deferred until it was able to talk, and at the font was lifted in its father's arms for the ceremony. After the minister had dipped his fingers in the water, and made the sign of the cross on her forehead, the unawed child leaned down, and catching up the long sleeve of his white gown, wiped the water away, calmly remarking: "Baby's face clean. Don't want wassin; dot it wassed 'fore us [illegible]"

POEMS PENNED OF LATE.

Ancient and Modern Love

(DOUBLE REFRAIN.)

Where are those days of which poets write,
When gods and shepherds, high and low,
In some fair shepherdess found delight?
Love was in fashion long ago.
Our age is as cold as winter's snow,
Love, like old garments, aside it lays;
Ah, it is sad to say 'tis so,
Love's out of fashion nowadays.

Those days might not have been so polite,
As these latter days which we know,
But their joys were more apt to excite.
Love was in fashion long ago.
Who will say that our age can bestow,
For the neglect of those ancient ways,
Aught that's half so worthy of show?
Love's out of fashion nowadays.

If Strephon, perhaps, was not so bright
As the educated, modern beau,
Fond Chloe knew that his heart was right,
Love was in fashion long ago.
This age does nothing but reap and sow,
Wherever sowing or reaping pays.
What cares it for a lover's woes?
Love's out of fashion nowadays.

Prince, wish you for those days, or no?
Love was in fashion long ago.
Or does the present meet your praise?
Love's out of fashion nowadays.
—Frederic Meade Thompson, in Jury.

A Four-Leafed Clover.

My love and I one golden day,
When skies arched sweetly over,
Strolled through the meadows fresh and gay,
And each one plucked upon the way
A four-leafed clover.

That day is cherished in my mind,
For Cupid, cunning rover,
Proceeded then and there to bind
Our hearts. Ah! it is luck to find
A four-leafed clover.
—Chicago Post.

To-Morrow.

Mad for joy in the sunshiny sky,
The larks were singing sweet and loud;
Silent the white clouds glistened on high,
And the sea gleamed far away like a cloud,
Brown bees were humming amongst the brown
And ruby wallflowers; straight and tall
The lily lifted its silver crown;
The tulips laughed by the mossy wall.
True lovers—a girl and boy—we strayed
Down the alleys green, with Love for third,
While dreamily mournful the fountain played
Singing a song that we never heard—
"Be ye as hopeful and blithe as ye may;
To-morrow keeps never the bloom of to-day!"

The larks are silent, the sky is gray,
The sea is hid in a chilly shroud;
The blossoms that opened yesterday
Lie torn on the grass in a pallid crowd.
The ruby wallflowers droop in the rain;
The lily has soiled her silver crown;
The tulips hid by the wall in vain—
The pitiless wind beat their glory down.
How changed is the world in a few short hours—
All life how changed! Now I walk alone
And hear, while the deathful tempest lours,
The fountain sing as my heart makes moan—
"Be ye as hopeful and blithe as ye may;
To-morrow keeps never the bloom of to-day!"
—Shirley Wynne.

The Lawn-Mower.

The lawn-mower in the picture
Looks ethereal and light
And the fair young lady pushing it
A phantom of delight.

And you buy it and you take it home,
But ere the work is done,
You'll want an ox to push it,
And you'll swear it weighs a ton.
—Omaha World.

Lament of a Nurse.

O, could I, like the doctors, roam,
With reputation high,
Like them I'd send my patients home
To mansions in the sky.

Then I should never lose in caste,
Be thought almost a god,
When families in my practice passed
Beneath the chastening rod.

For when the doctors make mistakes
'Tis charged unto the Lord:
"To earth He gives, from earth He takes.
Blessed be His holy word."

To gaze upon such lofty heights
I know is wholly vain;
In heated rooms, through days and nights,
A nurse I must remain.

And through the months and years to come
My mission well I know,
The thankless task of keeping some
To sorrow here below.

But could I, with such skill as they,
Send patients to the skies,
I'd then collect their liberal pay
And dry my weeping eyes.
—Chicago Journal.

FOR SUNDAY READING.

EVENING INVOCATION.

My Father, at Thy feet I kneel;
My head I bow:
Contrition deep my heart doth feel,
And humbly now
I ask Thee to forgive all wrong
Which I have done throughout the day.
I am so weak, and Thou so strong,
That all my burdens now I lay
Down at Thy feet.

And all my sorrows, and my grief,
To-night I bring;
From these earth ne'er gives me relief,
To Thee I cling.
Forgive the wounded, wand'ring heart,
Which has so often from Thee strayed,
I know all merciful Thou art,
And so, despite mistakes I've made,
I come to Thee.

I've prayed to Thee oftimes before,
In times of pain;
Remembered Thou my sins no more,
And once again
I come and ask Thee to forgive:
Tho' all unworthy now I feel,
Without Thy grace I can not live,
Oh! wilt Thou not Thy face reveal,
And grant me peace?

And tho' unworthy of Thy love,
I still must plead:
No help can come, save from above,
Wilt Thou give heed?
For all my heart Thy peace doth crave!
Still I must come with never a plea,
Save that dear name of Him who gave
His life from sin to make us free—
Christ, Thine Own Son.
—Hattie B. Wheeler, in Inter Ocean.

THE BIBLE THE SUPREME LAW.

If You Believe It Let It Be Your Unquestioned Guide.

The Constitution of the United States declares itself to be "the supreme law of the land." It attaches the attribute of supremacy to all "the laws of the United States made in pursuance thereof," and also extends this supremacy to "all treaties made, or which shall be made, under the authority of the United States." And, in order to give practical operation to this idea, it further declares that "the Judges in every State shall be bound thereby, any thing in the Constitution or laws of any State to the contrary notwithstanding."

Judges and lawyers, in dealing with this Constitution, considered in reference to the subjects embraced within its provisions, never dispute its authority. The only question with them relates simply to its meaning, and this being ascertained by a just and proper interpretation of its language, is the end of all dispute. The meaning of the words binds courts, gives to Congress all its powers, and determines the rights of the people. It is true that the Constitution may be amended by the method prescribed; but it is always taken just as it is at the time, "the supreme law of the land," and every thing else in the civil structure and operations of American society must yield to its regulations.

What then is the Bible considered in relation to human faith and practice, and in reference to our moral and spiritual obligations to God and man, and how should it be treated? The time-honored answer of Protestant Christendom is, that the Bible, thus considered, is the supreme and infallible rule of faith and practice. It is such a rule, not because Christendom has accepted and affirmed it, but because it is the Word of God, and carries with it His supreme and infallible authority, in respect alike to what it teaches, whether historically or doctrinally, and also to what it commands and promises or threatens. "All Scripture" being theopneustic, or "given by inspiration of God," is for this reason the supreme rule. It is enough to know this one fact by the affirmative faith of the understanding. The law for man as to what he shall believe, and as to what he shall do or omit, is given in the fact itself. To dispute the authority of an admitted revelation from God is a stupidity and temerity, of which the most arrogant infidelity can not consciously make itself guilty. He who recognizes the Bible as a divine revelation, thereby, by the terms of his faith, ends in his own mind all questions as to its authority. It is not supposable that, thus thinking and thus believing, he should dispute this authority. When God speaks man is bound to believe what He says, and do what He commands.

The real question, then, after one has conceded the divine authority of the Bible, is simply this: What does that Book say touching a matter of history, or doctrine, or a duty to be done? This question does not always answer itself without study, and sometimes very considerable study, of the Word of God; and yet that word is not so obscure, or so antiquated in its language, or so difficult of apprehension in its contents, as to exclude an answer sufficiently sure and clear for all the great purposes of religious faith and practice. The Bible is—what it purports to be—in fact, a revelation from God and of God, and is not a conundrum which nobody can understand. Common minds can sufficiently apprehend its teaching to know, to a definite certainty, what it teaches, and thus make it a practical guide. The language is that of common life, and the ideas are at the level of the ordinary apprehensive power of the human mind. While there is literally no end to the field of thought which the Bible opens, and while scholarship may travel in this field for ages, and yet find something new, unlettered minds can enter the field and gain all the knowledge they really need for the purpose of holy living on earth, and a blessed immortality after death.

There is, for example, not the slightest obscurity as to the real character and relations of the Bible God, or as to the person of the Bible Christ, or as to the purpose for which He came into this world, or as to the import and design of His sufferings and death, or as to the conditions on which sinners are to be saved by Him, or as to the fact that men are sinners and need the salvation of grace, or as to the existence of the human soul after death in another state of being, or as the fact of a future resurrection of the dead and a final judgment, or as to the connection between conduct and character in this life and eternal destiny in the life to come. The doctrine of God, the doctrine of Christ, the doctrine of salvation, the doctrine of duty alike to God and man and the doctrine of final destiny—all these points are made plain, and are so fully and repeatedly presented in the Bible that the wayfaring man, though a fool, need not err in respect to them.

But are there no mysteries in the Bible which we can not explain? Yes, a plenty of them; and there are mysteries everywhere else which we can not explain. What shall we do with these mysteries? Do nothing with them, let them alone; do not try to explain them; and never forget that "the secret things belongs to the Lord our God," and were never intended for human explanation. Believe the Bible when it reveals a mystery just as implicity as you believe it when it prescribes the simplest duty. Believe the mystery as such, and let it stand as such. God is just as good authority for a mysterious fact as He is for one that we can fully understand. Our capacity to understand all that is revealed is not the condition of accepting as true what is revealed. There is a sense in which we do not understand any thing, even that which, because familiar, seems the simplest; and we hence need not be surprised to find mysteries to us in the Word of God. The surprise would be if the fact were otherwise.

In a word, reader, treat the Bible, in respect to every subject that comes within the scope of its teaching, as the supreme law of faith; read it as such; study it as such; seek by study to ascertain its true meaning; when you have found that meaning, accept it as true, no matter what stands opposed to it; believe right on, and believe forever; say to yourself, as Paul said: "Let God be true and every man a liar" who contradicts Him; let this be the fixed and permanent condition of your mind, and you will best, to your own satisfaction, and for the comfort of your heart, solve the great problem of religious faith and practice. The more you trust the Bible the more power it will have with you, and the greater the blessings which it will impart to you. A half-faith is not the right kind. It doubts too much to be a power.—N. Y. Independent.

DAINTY "HAMMOCK GIRLS."

They Bewitch the Masculine Imagination in Summer-Time.

Hosiery and Laces That Queens Might Envy—Mrs. Mackay's Beaded Gloves—Maud Muller Maidens Who Do Gardening, and Others.

[COPYRIGHT, 1890.]

[Special Correspondence.]

Manufacturers of silk and hosiery ought to pay a handsome royalty to the man who invented hammocks. To get in or out of a hammock without a display of stockings is a thing impossible. Nobody understands this better than the girls whose allowance enables them to make their position in a hammock very attractive. Black stockings are still worn; I hardly think they will ever go out of style, but they are not so universal as they were.

I saw Miss Amy Wetmore the other day buy a dozen pairs of silk stockings, and none of them was all black, though some had black feet. The colors she chose were salmon pink, pale lavender, dull old gold and one pair were a rich queen's purple. The saleslady told me that there was a great demand for fancy colors in hosiery this summer. I asked if she could give any reason for it, and she laughingly said: "Well, I think it's because the colors look so pretty through the light lace trimmings of a girl's underwear. You know that linen lawn and silk are being used exclusively this summer for skirts and chemises, and they are trimmed with quantities of the lightest, finest lace that can be bought."

I ventured the remark that this was considerable expense for one's own benefit; when the saleslady archly reminded me that I had forgotten the hammock.

Whatever the cause may be, the craze for dainty undergarments is growing every season. The latest fad is for young ladies to make these garments themselves and do every stitch by hand. There are more new designs this summer in night dresses and chemises than there are in dresses.

I saw the pretty daughter of Henry G. Marquand the other day in a charming mantle of the Louis XV. style.

MISS BELMONT'S ENGLISH GOWN.

She is a tall, blonde girl with a very handsome figure, and the mantle seemed to have been designed especially for her. It was of lace, very rich and heavy, fitted down to the figure with a full cape sleeve and high collar. Miss Marquand's mantle was quite plain, but I have seen some of the same style trimmed with scroll work of passementerie in black and silver. The garment was lined with satin, and therefore is warm as well as dressy.

An attempt has been made to introduce Mrs. Mackay's fashion of wearing beaded gloves with beaded belts to match, but so far they have not found much favor. Some of Mrs. Mackay's gloves are quite magnificent. One pair she had made to match an evening dress of pale blue that was brocaded with tiny blossoms. The gloves were of the very palest shade of blue, embroidered with pink and blue opal beads. The tops were edged with pearls, and they fastened at the wrist with Rhinestone buckles. Last week at a reception given by Mrs. Harrison to one of John Wanamaker's daughters at Cape May, the young lady wore a pair of gloves the backs of which were almost entirely of pink coral.

The athletic training of the past year has a very evident effect upon this season belle. She quite affects the Maud Muller style. Perhaps she doesn't exactly rake hay, but she does the next thing to it. You see her often in the morning, bare-headed and bare-handed, with watering pot or trowel doing all the damage she can, so the patient gardener thinks. This is one type of the maiden who tries to be a wee bit mannish. Another is the girl who drives. It isn't considered in the least good form for a man to hold the reins this season, and the result is that the turnouts have a variety in style and dash about them that they never had before. As to the daughters of John themselves, well, if you don't think they're stunning, just come out on the avenue and take a look at them.

In the first place, let me tell you that a man must on no account take a woman to ride in his dog cart. She would lose caste forever if he did, but if she owns a dog cart, she may take her men friends out with perfect impunity, and they may ride till the tide comes in and goes out again. It's all right, even though there be only the moon to look and the breezes to listen.

The consequence of this edict of fashion is just what might be supposed. Every girl wants a dog cart, and if it's within the possibility, she gets it.

Here comes one now (a dog cart, I mean). It is of rich cream color, with dark red trimmings. The horse, with tail banged to the length of a shoe brush, is as nearly cream color as may be. The harness is of dark red leather with gold mountings, and the girl—ah!

THE HAMMOCK GIRL.

the girl! Just look at her. She is Miss Cora Wilson, just back from a year abroad. Miss Wilson is pretty, and a blonde. None but a cream white girl would go well with that outfit.

She sits with her feet braced against the bar. On these feet are cream white shoes with red heels, and just above their tops we catch a glimpse of red silk hose. The skirt is red, trimmed with five rows of inch-wide cream braid, and above this is a cream sailor blouse, under the collar of which is tied a four-in-hand scarf with red stripes in it. Over the blouse is a red silk jacket, open in front, with the sleeves slashed up to the shoulder, below which falls a long, full sleeve of white, finished with a close cuff. The driving gauntlets are red.

The hat is a sailor, of course, white, with a red band, and a mask vail of red gauze keeps the yellow curls in order.

An ordinary young man rides beside her in a light flannel suit, and a groom with big buttons rides behind. But they don't count. It's the girl and the dog cart and the get-up that the people look at.

Miss Belmont has just received an odd gown. It is of English make. It is made by a tailor and of cloth, but it is not strictly a tailor-made gown. The color is brown in contrasting shades, very light and very dark. Its architecture is so elaborate that you will have to study the illustration in order to get a clear idea of it. It is very striking and very stylish, and shows Miss Belmont's stately figure to splendid advantage.

There are two fashions being revived which are generally detested by American women—hoop skirts and hair switches, and I really don't know which they hate the worst. The days of sweet simplicity in hair dressing, the days of Psyche knots and Dutch coils and French twists are ended. The hairdressers are happy while their customers are miserable. Bangs, too, are doomed, though I don't believe they will ever quite go out of style. But the thick mop of curls is entirely done away with. Even Mrs. Langtry has let her hair grow out, and is combing it straight back, leaving only a misty fringe about the forehead.

I saw the youngest daughter of Sir Roderick Cameron the other day for the first time. She is here preparatory to making a cruise on her father's steam yacht Evelyn. Miss Cameron is one of the youngest of this season's debutantes, and such a dainty maid she is. She looked, the day I saw her, as if she might have stepped from between the yellowed leaves of one of Martha Washington's fashion books. She was fair enough to have been Tennyson's ideal of a queen-rose in the "rosebud garden of girls." Her dress was of the softest black challie. It had a full, round skirt, trimmed with innumerable rows of shining satin ribbon. The full baby waist was drawn softly up to the top of the dimpled shoulders and held there with loops of ribbon. Under this was worn a guimpe of the finest India silk with high-puffed sleeve and a dainty lace collar falling away from the lovely throat.

Long silk open-work gloves covered the soft, round arms, and her hat was a quaint old-fashioned poke made of lace and crowned with a tuft of black ostrich plumes. The dainty fairness of her skin showed in fine relief against this inky gown. Every man on the hotel piazza turned to look at her, and every woman, way down in her secret soul, could not but admire the pretty child in black.

Miss Helen Gould, as a rule, dresses very plainly, but she has a new hat of which she says "papa thinks it's a bit rakish." It is vastly becoming to her, though. The brim is wide, very wide in front, and is trimmed not with the conventional butterflies and lace quills, but with a cluster of feathers that shade from biscuit brown to crimson. Miss Helen is a brunette with eyes and hair almost perfectly black, and this crown of brilliant plumage seems just the thing for her. The top of Miss Helen's hat is a great crimson flower made of velvet with a center of little crimson berries. Miss Gould is a member of the Berkeley Lyceum Athletic Club, and is a very strong swimmer. She can cross the big tank in the natatorium which is thirty-four feet wide, with one stroke, and that is something which none of the other swimmers have yet been able to do.

There is great strife among some of the ladies who are extremists in fashion to obtain a certain perfume which I believe has no name; it is too mysterious and imperceptible to be named. It is the origin of it that makes it desirable. The fable runs that deep in the unexplored wilds of Africa, there grows a marvelous lily, which the natives hold sacred.

The leaves of this wonderful flower contain a perfume so potent that it is employed by the ignorant heathen in the same way that we learned Christians make use of what we call hypnotism. Mr. Stanley found this flower and brought back a large jar of its leaves to his bride-elect. Immediately every great dame in England wanted it, and by some mysterious process some of them obtained it; and now, of course, the women of New York want it and they won't be happy till they get it. Mr. Stanley says that the natives call this flower Kanonga and that botanists call it Anona odoratissima. Those who have caught a whiff of this wonderful perfume say that it is a mixture of jasmine, lilac, lily of the valley and rose, and is altogether intoxicating. The thing that makes it most desirable of all is its price, which for the oil or essence is twenty-five cents a drop; but when a New York woman wants a thing, particularly a thing so essential as an entirely new perfume, money is no object.

CARRIE CARELESS.

REGARDING DREAMS.

The Convictions of a Man Who Is Not Guilty of Eating Mince Pie.

Friend, hast thou never in that half-dreaming state which lies just this side of repose—when the hurrying phantasm of a face long remembered blurs into the jots of a never-before-seen oscillating mathematical figure—suddenly felt thy foot jerk, and complete wakefulness ensue?

That is how kind nature cheats the devil from inflicting an unpleasant dream upon the overworked mind. You are awake, it is true, but you are at rest. Human ingenuity has provided spectacles that can give relief to the open eye by increasing sight; but what cunning except death's can leave the closed eyelids a blank?

That same death may be a brother to sleep, as Shelley sings; but if he knew what pranks the other brother plays on people, he would become a step-brother and step out of the partnership.

The dream-elf is sometimes enough to make a gentleman forswear paying for everything except his table d'hote, and walking around all night with the police and other loiterers. A man with his eyes open rarely insults himself; a sleeping man will often wake up thanking Heaven that he isn't his dream self.

You close your eyes. You are parting with somebody—probably a relative long dead—on the deck of the "City of Paris." In a moment you are straddle a log in the dock, from which a policeman hauls you dripping amidst shouts of derision. You awake, with your arm numb under your head and your ear burning.

You hold in your hands the precious first edition of "Paradise Lost," over which you have gloated in the bookstore. The pages blur; in a moment they are filled with the indecencies of the modern "impressionist."

A poor woman begs. You offer her some money, but insist on her swallowing it, and watch with glee her dying agonies.

In the heat of discussion you make a bet with somebody you do not particularly esteem; and then, though your pockets are stuffed with money, you beg that the matter be declared off and the stakes returned. On being refused, with contempt, you humbly ask for your car-fare.

DeQuincey had his opium dreams and Tchernishevsky his dreams on socialism; all of them glorious enough, because, with the help of poetic diction, and sufficient imagination and forgetfulness, it is even possible to turn the bad into the good. But, though blind old Homer sang that "Dreams descend from Jove," human experience would seem to show that they rather ascend from Beelzebub.

And this is the conviction of a man who does not eat mince pie.—Puck.

Exciting Times.

Officer on Ocean Greyhound (touching his cap)—Captain, the wave that swept our decks a few moments ago carried off seven passengers.

Captain (feverishly watching speck on horizon through his glass)—Throw their trunks and luggage overboard! That rascal is gaining on us.—The Jury.

A Correct Diagnosis.

Philanthropist—What's the matter?

Tramp—Nervous prostration!

Philanthropist — Impossible. That disease is brought on by over-work!

Tramp—Well, I've had nothing but work offered me since I struck this town.—Munsey's Weekly.

He Rarely Gave Fits.

"If that fellow Neverpay doesn't settle his bill pretty soon," said Mr. Snipps, the tailor, "I shall give him fits."

"That would be something new for you," replied his friend.—West Shore.

A Profitable Plan.

Mr. Puttson Call (to Applicant)—Have you had a business education, young man?

Newborn Lamb—Why, no, sir; I wanted a job in your office, so I could gain one!—Puck.

A FEW HOURS TO LIVE

Kemmler's Execution Will Take Place Soon.

THE EXACT TIME NOT KNOWN.

The Warden Still Mysterious and Closely Watched by Reporters.

The Dynamo in Working Order—Possibility of Postponement Discussed—The Warden's Wife Leaves the Prison Until After the Execution—A Rumor That An Injunction Will be Served.

AUBURN, N. Y., Aug. 4.—No invitations have been issued yet to the witnesses who are to attend the execution of Kemmler, the murderer, and so there can be no certainty about the date of the execution except that it will be later than to-morrow.

The law requires that three days notice shall be given the witnesses. There are indications that the invitations will be issued this evening and that the execution will take place Thursday.

All stories concerning the possibility of postponement on account of the mental condition of the condemned man, or a possible injunction to be got out against the Warden are of doubtful origin.

Warden Durston has returned from New York city. On the train with him were reporters from half a dozen of the New York city papers but he vouchsafed no information to any of them. He denied himself to visitors to-day. It is believed that the dynamo is in working order and that there is no probability—hardly a possibility—that the execution will not take place this week.

Reporters on Hand.

The chief local interest in the event is taken by the swarm of reporters, who have come here to pick up what information is obtainable when it is over. The Warden may admit two persons connected with the press associations to witness the execution. They will go in as members of the jury. But none of the special representatives of individual newspapers will be admitted to the jail on that day. One New York evening paper has a platform twenty feet from the ground on a telegraph pole directly across from the prison. A long distance telephone wire will connect the watcher on the pole with the office of his paper in New York. He can see nothing though except the bare walls of the prison. The Western Union Company will open an office in the freight building of the New York Central & Hudson River Railroad directly opposite the prison on the morning of the day fixed for the execution.

The Warden's Wife Goes Away.

Mrs. Durston, the Warden's wife, who first turned Kemmler's thoughts in the direction of religion, left the city last night for New York. She has been with the condemned man every day almost since he came to Auburn, and has taken a warm interest in him. So great was her sympathy that she did not think she could endure the nervous strain incident to the event of the week, and she has gone away to remain until it is all over.

Speculating on the Execution.

There is a curious feeling here among those who have been interested in the case from the beginning that the execution will not take place. This feeling is doubtless due to the fact that there have been so many delays in the past. The Warden undoubtedly believes that it will occur. He has made every preparation, and unless something extraordinary occurs he will put the sentence into execution. There is thought to be a possibility that the Westinghouse Company will, at the last moment, be able to get an injunction from one of the Judges of the Supreme Court to prevent the use of the Westinghouse dynamo. The company has made no move though, so far as is known, and the opinion of eminent lawyers is that every legal remedy has been exhausted. This or the question of Kemmler's sanity is all that could possibly intervene to prevent the execution now. As to the latter, those who have come in contact with Kemmler officially of late are reticent, but they do not seem to give much weight to the stories which have been sent out, saying that Kemmler is gradually losing his mind.

Mysterious Visitors at the Prison.

About 9 o'clock last night, as Officer Roseboom was patrolling his beat in the northern part of the city, on State street, the street in which the prison is located, two hacks filled with men passed him on the way toward the prison. A little later a man near the prison told him that these hacks let out a crowd of men at the prison gates, who quickly walked in and were hidden from view behind the massive gray walls of the prison.

The men were believed to be witnesses who had come secretly to Port Byron, a station on the main line of the Central, on the Southwestern limited, the train being stopped by special arrangement.

The time of arrival fitted excellently with the arriving time of the Southwestern limited, and also chimed in exactly with a rumor which prevails in the neighborhood of the prison that Warden Durston, who in the absence of Prison Superintendent Lathrop has full charge of the execution, was going to try and give the boys a surprise.

One man living on a corner just opposite the prison, and a known friend of some of the prison deputies, offered in a knowing way to bet $50 that the execution would not come off to-morrow morning.

A Convict Escapes from Prison.

BOSTON, Aug. 4.—Thomas Moore, who is serving a seven years' sentence at Charleston State Prison, picked the lock of his cell and escaped.

TO CRESSON SPRINGS.

President Harrison's Family Will Leave Cape May About August 12.

CRESSON SPRINGS, Pa., Aug. 4.—It is now assured that President Harrison will sojourn here during the greater part of August and September. The Presidential household will leave their Cape May cottage about the 12th inst., and take up their residence for the balance of the summer in their mountain home. The President is expected to follow in a week. The President will practically transfer his office here, only going to Washington as the exigencies of public business require.

The cottage, which the President rented some time ago, is the handsomest of the many cottages of the group, and has been thoroughly repaired and overhauled, and is now ready for occupancy. Distinguished neighbors surround the Harrison cottage on every side, all being prominent in business and social life in Pittsburg.

Private Secretary Halford's wife and daughter have been here for the past week, and Mr. Halford joined them to-day.

FIGHTING AN EDITOR.

A Number of Soldiers Get Into Trouble and are Arrested.

MASSILLON, Ohio, Aug. 4.—Intense excitement prevailed here during the night over the arrest of twenty-seven members of Company D, of Wooster, in camp with the Eight Regiment, on a peace proceedings warrant, sworn out by Robert P. Skinner, editor of the Independent, and it was feared that a conflict would be precipitated between the civil and military officers.

The Wooster boys took offence at something in the Independent, and failed in three attempts to humiliate the editor by trying to toss him in a canvas fly. The Massillon company rescued Skinner during the third assault, but he was wounded over the eye by a bayonet in the melee, hence the warrant.

The Wooster boys were taken by the police force to the mayor's office at 1:30 a. m., two other companies with guns accompanying from fear of an attack by citizens. A settlement was effected by three of the Wooster company pleading guilty, paying $20 costs and giving $300 bonds each to keep the peace toward Mr. Skinner forever.

Dr. Burtsell's Successor.

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—Father Peter J. Prendergast virtually assumed the pastorship of the Church of the Epiphany yesterday, over which Dr. Burtsell has been pastor for many years. Father Prendergast was in attendance at all the masses but only celebrated high mass at 10:30. He did not preach any sermon, but simply spoke a few words to the congregation. The parishioners of Dr. Burtsell are raising a $5,000 fund which will be presented to him on the 10th inst.

Saw Their Father Drowned.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Aug. 4.—George T. Davis, of Acushnet, with his wife, four children and a hired boy named Frates, went for a sail in Buzzards Bay. When off West Island, Davis went to jib the boat, when the boom struck Frates, knocking him overboard, with such force that it was broken. Davis, in unsuccessfully endeavoring to save Frates, became exhausted and drowned in the sight of his wife and children.

Police Stop a Game.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Aug. 4.—Between 3,000 and 4,000 people assembled at the Champion League grounds yesterday to witness the ball game to be played between the St. Louis and Rochester teams. The game had not begun when the police arrived and told the managers that the game must not be played. The crowd became noisy and boisterous, and several arrests were made.

Another Jewelry Robber Arrested.

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—Thomas McAviney was arrested here for robbing the jewelry store of A. D. Norton, at Gloversville, N. Y., on the night of April 11. He and his pals, who have not yet been captured, secured about $20,000 worth of jewelry. He will be taken back to Gloversville.

Became Suddenly Insane.

NORWALK, Conn., Aug. 4.—William Sheldon, a well known contractor, became suddenly insane and assaulted his wife, beating her almost into insensibility. He was overpowered by neighbors after a hard struggle. Sheldon was in the asylum at Middletown about two years ago, but under careful treatment, recovered his reason.

Shot Twice by Her Husband.

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—Mary Marie, aged 18, was shot twice last night in the left breast and abdomen by her husband, Andrew Marie, aged 40, at their home in 106th street, and probably fatally wounded. Richard Hodder, a neighbor, who tried to intercept Marie, was shot in the leg. The murderer has not yet been arrested.

Pushing a Boycott.

FALL RIVER, Mass., Aug. 4.—After the reading of an official note from the American Federation of Labor, the Trades council decided to ask the Butchers and Grocers' Association to refrain from buying or selling Fleischmann's yeast cakes. The local boycott committee is giving the matter a thorough investigation. It is quite probable that the boycott will be fought out in this city.

Fugitive Sullivan's Sister Dead.

BOSTON, Aug. 4.—Mrs. Mary Leonard, a sister of John L. Sullivan, the pugilist, was found insensible on the floor in her house. A few minutes after the physician's arrival Mrs. Leonard was dead. As the body was moved from the spot where the woman had fallen, the body of her infant was discovered. It had been suffocated while nursing.

RADICAL MANIFESTO

An Appeal to the Workingmen of Great Britain.

A BIG STRIKE IS THREATENED.

Half a Million Hands May Stop Work in Wales.

A Story That a Mine Was Found Under the Railroad Emperor William Was to Travel On—A Recast of Coins Ordered—The Turkish Reserves Called Out in Armenia.

LONDON, Aug. 4.—The Radical Federation, which influences the action of hundreds of thousands of the people of Great Britain, has issued a most important manifesto. It is addressed more especially to the laboring classes, and calls upon the workmen to take an active and persistent interest in each and every election, whether local or national.

The federation urges upon those whom it addresses to support only such candidates as will pledge themselves to do all in their power to secure for the wage earners employed on public works a working week of not more than forty-eight hours.

The manifesto also comprises a list of twenty other reforms, which are commended to the people for their sympathy and franchises.

ALL WILL STOP WORK.

Dock Laborers, Miners and Railway Men in Wales Threaten to Strike.

LONDON, Aug. 4.—The impending strike in Wales affects vast numbers of laborers, miners and railway men. Hundreds of dock laborers ceased work on Saturday, and a general turnout of the three above mentioned classes is now considered inevitable.

The railway companies decline to guarantee the regular running of trains after Wednesday, and there is no doubt that a most formidable movement is on foot on the Taffvale and Rhymney Barry lines, which carry the greater part of the mineral traffic of South Wales.

The directors refuse to guarantee sixty hours' work per week to the men, who gave notice that they were thoroughly organized, and, if their demands were not complied with, half a million hands would stop work.

Changes in the British Cabinet.

LONDON, Aug. 4.—It is said that when Parliament meets for the autumn session in November, Mr. Balfour will become the First Lord of the Treasury, and will also be the leader of the House of Commons in place of Mr. Smith, who will go to the Upper House under the title of Lord Hemley. Mr. William Davies Jackson will succeed Mr. Balfour as Secretary of State for Ireland.

For a Universal Meridian.

LONDON, Aug. 4.—An international conference for the purpose of fixing a common meridian is proposed, to be held at Rome next year. The conference will also arrange a system of universal standard time. The suggestion which is likely to be most strongly urged upon the conference is to select the meridian of Jerusalem as the common one, replacing Washington and Greenwich.

Amnesty for Labor Prisoners.

PARIS, Aug. 4.—A decree of partial or complete amnesty to those persons who have been convicted of offenses in connection with labor strikes has been issued by the Government of France. Under this decree fourteen prisoners have been released and the sentences of twenty-two others have been reduced.

Gladstone Upbraided.

LONDON, Aug. 4.—The "Irish Catholic," an influential ultramontane organ, bitterly upbraids Mr. Gladstone for ignoring the claims of the Pope to temporal power, and specifies recent speeches of the ex-Premier wherein he took grounds inconsistent with his former position on that question.

Russian Influence in China.

ST. PETERSBURG, Aug. 4.—The Government has been petitioned by a number of Moscow capitalists to extend Russian influence in China by supporting the foundation of a Moscow-Asiatic bank in opposition to the German bank at Shanghai.

A Dynamite Mine.

PARIS, Aug. 4.—The "Siecle" has received a cipher dispatch from St. Petersburg, saying that a dynamite mine has been discovered under the railroad station at Rasik. This place is on the route to be taken by Emperor William of Germany on his coming trip to Russia.

Prince George Very Quiet.

HALIFAX, N. S., Aug. 4.—Since his arrival here Prince George has kept himself retired. Only once has he been seen in public, and then he was visiting a fashionable ice cream parlor

Cardinal Rampolla Honored.

LISBON, Aug. 4.—Portugal has conferred a decoration upon Cardinal Rampolla for his services in treating for recognition of Portugal's interests in the West Indies.

Turkish Reserves Called Out.

LONDON, Aug. 4.—The Turkish Government has called out the reserves for the purpose of re-enforcing the garrisons in Armenia.

Mr. Chamberlain Coming.

LONDON, Aug. 4.—The Rt. Hon. Joseph Chamberlain will sail for America on Wednesday next.

BASEBALL MEN EXCITED.

Latham Signs With Cincinnati and Rumors of a Break Afloat.

CINCINNATI, Aug. 4.—The signing of Latham by the local League team has created a commotion.

President Stern is already in receipt of telegrams from two other Brotherhood men asking for places. Dispatches received here from an authoritative source declares that three of the New York Brotherhood team have asked Mr. Day to be taken back.

The following are the scores of yesterday's games:

POISONED TEN PEOPLE.

Three of the Victims Are Dead and More May Die.

ATLANTA, Ga., Aug. 4.—The attempt of a colored preacher named W. H. Boone, in Gordon County, to poison a family of ten persons, three of his victims having died, has created intense excitement, and the poisoner and his wife are carefully guarded in jail.

Boone put rat poison in the food of a colored family named Lalley. Boone puts the crime on his wife, saying she was jealous of Mrs. Lalley's affection for him. The wife puts it on the husband, saying he sought to obtain possession of Lalley's crop. The other victims are not yet out of danger.

A Big Paper Mill Burned.

DANSVILLE, N. Y., Aug. 4.—At about 3 o'clock in the morning an alarm of fire was sounded from Box 5, and the whole of the Dansville fire department turned out. The fire was found to be in an unoccupied building on State street, which was consumed. While there the department received word that the Whiteman paper mills were on fire. The large two-story building belonging to the company was burned to the ground. Loss, $150,000; insurance, $118,000. It is believed both fires were of incendiary origin.

Fasted Forty-three Days.

WINDSOR, Ont., Aug. 4.—Mrs. Rodrigo Valliniere, wife of a resident of Tecumseh, is dead, after having fasted for forty-three days. She was taken sick in January last, and the medical men said it was a case of dyspepsia. Latterly she refused to take a particle of food. The only thing she could retain on her stomach was water, of which she drank between two and three gallons a day.

Husband of Five Wives.

CHICAGO, Aug. 4.—Charles Loring is in the Court House jail here on the charge of bigamy. He is accused of having five living wives and the names of a dozen women are known who are his victims. He is 30 years of age, well educated, handsome, and of excellent family. He was born in Boston. His father is a well-to-do resident of that city.

An Epidemic of Diphtheria.

KINGSTON, N. Y., Aug. 4.—At Darmansville and vicinity there is an epidemic of diphtheria. Upward of fifty cases have been reported and half a dozen deaths have occurred. Six members of one family were stricken with the disease.

Will be Tried for Embezzlement.

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—William W. Chandler, the ex-manager of the Erie Transfer Company, who was arrested charged with the embezzlement of about $10,000 of the company's funds, has been held in $5,000 bonds for trial

Englishmen Purchase a Mine.

DENVER, Col., Aug. 4.—A strong English company has just completed the purchase of the Elkhorn mine, in Jefferson County, Montana. The price is $180,000.

WASHINGTON TOPICS

The Presence of a Quorum Disturbing the House.

BILLS READY TO BE PASSED

The Original Package Measure to be Disposed of this Week.

The Tariff Bill the Leading Feature in the Senate—Talk About the Federal Election Bill—The River and Harbor Bill to be Called Up—Additional Pension Clerks.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—The business that may be transacted in the House this week will depend largely upon the presence and maintenance of a quorum during the week. There are a number of matters waiting and claiming the attention of the House, but just which particular matter will receive attention first it will be difficult to predict.

There is a disposition on the part of a majority to dispose of the conference report on the Original Package bill, the Compound Lard bill and several contested election cases.

The General Deficiency bill and the Indian Appropriation bill, with Senate amendments, are awaiting the action of the House, and either of these, or some other matters not likely to arouse party feeling, are likely to be considered during the week, even in the absence of a quorum.

The probability is that the Original Package bill will be acted upon early in the week, and that the General Deficiency bill, which, when brought before the House, will occupy its time for several days, will be disposed of during the week.

THE SENATE'S WORK.

The Tariff Bill Will Be the Leading Feature Until Friday.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—The Senate will continue the consideration of the Tariff bill until Friday of this week, when Mr. Frye, the chairman of the Commerce Committee, has given notice that he will ask that the River and Harbor bill be taken up and disposed of. The River and Harbor bill will not take less than two days' debate, and the debate may extend over a week, particularly if the Democratic policy of obstruction is carried out.

The consideration of the Tariff bill may be interrupted to-morrow by the presentation of the conference report on the Land Grant Forfeiture bill or the conference report on the Original Package bill. Either of these may lead to extended debate, so the prospects of making much progress with the Tariff bill during this week are not very good.

It may be that the Republican caucus will get together during the week, in view of the slowness of the debate on the bill thus far, and agree to put before the Senate the proposition for adopting a rule under which the previous question can be called. This is not regarded as probable by those (and they are in the majority) who think that the Federal Election bill is to be shelved by agreement until the next session of Congress.

Additional Pension Clerks.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—The House bill providing 528 additional pension clerks, to be employed in the work of preparing for the payment of pensions under the Dependent Pension act, is still hung up in the Senate Committee on Appropriations, because that committee has been very closely engaged upon other measures, which also require immediate attention. Members of the committee say, however, that there is no doubt that they will be able this week to bring this bill into the Senate, with a view to putting it immediately upon its final passage.

TEXAS FEVER.

Cattle Badly Effected and Angry Owners Engage in Fights.

WICHITA, Kan., Aug. 4.—Texas fever is spreading with alarming rapidity among the cattle in Butler and Elk Counties. Some weeks ago about 50,000 cattle were taken to those two counties and represented to be from Arizona. An investigation has shown that they were brought from the Panhandle and Greer County, Texas, and this fact has greatly enraged the owners of native cattle.

Two men were killed in a dispute over the matter and more bloodshed is almost certain. So far about 4,000 head of cattle have died.

Trial Trip of the San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 4.—The new cruiser San Francisco made a preliminary trial trip yesterday. The trip, according to the builders, was thoroughly successful. Her speed under half pressure was ten knots per hour. The cruiser will probably start for Santa Barbara Channel, where the official trial is to be made, Aug. 11.

Severe Thunder Storm.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., Aug. 4.—The village of Cortland, in Cortland County, was visited by a heavy thunder storm last night. Streets and cellars were flooded and one barn was destroyed. Lightning damaged several business blocks and private residences. A number of persons are suffering from nervous prostration, the effects of the storm.

Shot a Boy Caught Stealing Papers.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 4.—J. L. Manyleese shot Henry Almond, aged 20 colored), whom he had detected stealing newspapers from doorsteps. He sailed upon Almond to surrender, but the youth took to his heels, and the watchman shot him in the back. Almond died last night. Manyleese is under arrest.

THE SUNSHINE SUNK.

The Captain of the Steamer Commended for Running Her Ashore.

GREENPOINT, L. I., Aug. 4.—The little steamer Sunshine, which plies between this place, Sag Harbor and New London, Conn., and which struck on the rocks off Orient Point Saturday evening, with two hundred passengers on board, sunk during the day near the shore.

The Scott Wrecking Company, of New London, Conn., this morning began work to pump out the Sunshine and raise her. The foreman of the wreckers said he expected the steamer would be floated some time to-night. She will be towed at once to New London for repairs. The damage to the boat, it is expected, will not exceed $1,000.

A large number of the boatmen from this section of Long Island were kept busy rowing sightseers to the scene of the wreck. The captain of the Sunshine is commended for his presence of mind in running the promptly ashore, after she struck on the rocks, and thus saving the lives of all his passengers, a great many of whom were women and children.

A large number of the passengers who were rescued remained at Orient Point Hotel during the night, and in the morning they started for their destinations. Some of them were residents of Hartford, Springfield, New Haven, Worcester, Providence, Boston and other distant points.

WAITING THE CALL.

The Gould System Again Threatened With a Big Strike.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Aug. 4.—The threatened strike of the Iron Mountain train men promises to develop into a movement that will blockade he road from St. Louis to Little Rock. The sympathy of all the train men is with their fellow workmen in the Little Rock district, and an order issued by the Little Rock Brotherhood would meet with prompt obeyance here. Delegates from Little Rock were looked for last night, but failed to arrive, but a telegraphic order to quit work would be sufficient to precipitate the strike.

Everything depends upon the result of the conference now in progress in Little Rock. If the obnoxious superintendent is not removed or an agreement reached a strike will be inevitable.

Reorganizing a Big Company.

BOSTON, Mass., Aug. 4.—It is reported that the National Cordage Company of New York is to reorganize with a capital stock of $15,000,000, shares to be offered for sale through several Boston brokers. It is understood that a prospectus of the new organization will soon be issued, under which the public will be invited to subscribe. A portion of the new shares will be issued as preferred stock. The company leases seventeen cordage mills, most of which are located in New York and States further West. The company has been in the hands of a few New York men, and the present action is due to the fact that a large increase of capital is desired, and that the future condition of the industry is such as to warrant the pushing of the scheme.

Captain Ericsson's Remains to Go Back.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 4.—An official communication signed by Acting Secretary of the Navy Soley, has been sent to the Commander of the Navy Yard, stating that the department had fixed the afternoon of Saturday, August 23, as the time for the embarkment of the remains of the late Capt. John Ericsson for transportation to his native country on the United States ship Baltimore, and that all arrangements were intrusted to him.

Three Prisoners Break Out of Jail.

GOSHEN, N. Y., Aug. 4.—Three prisoners broke out of the county jail here and are still at large. They are Ernest V. Utter, under indictment for bigamy; George H. Cauldwell, indicted for burglary at Monroe, and John W. Hill (colored), indicted for atrocious assault on two women of his race. The prisoners are all young men. Sheriff Johnston offers a reward of $500 apiece for their capture and return to jail. The escape of the three men was probably made soon after midnight.

Arrested for Drowning His Child.

BIDDEFORD, Me., Aug. 4.—Mary, the 7-year-old daughter of William Mannahan, was drowned in the river, and the body was recovered within an hour. Suspicion of murder is entertained by City Marshal Tarbox, who caused Mannahan's arrest last night to await the coroner's inquest. The child was drowned within sight of the wharves, and witnesses have been found who testify that Mannahan threw the child into the river.

A Bridge Jumper Killed.

BOSTON, Aug. 4.—Charles McCaffrey, the Canadian bridge jumper, jumped from the Sheers at the Atlantic Works, East Boston, into the water, a distance of 150 feet. He struck on his stomach and was killed. He had been giving exhibitions in this city, and said that this was his last jump before going to New York to jump from the Brooklyn Bridge.

Violent Electric Storm.

OLEAN, N. Y., Aug. 4.—The most violent electric storm of the season prevailed here last night. Three buildings in different parts of the town were struck by lightning, and all of them were totally destroyed. The storm raged for nearly two hours.

A Recast of Coins Ordered.

BERLIN, Aug. 4.—The Emperor William has ordered a recast of the entire issue of coins intended for the African trade, owing to wrong helmet being depicted in the present cast.

Emperor William's Movements.

OSTEND, Aug. 4.—The imperial yacht Hohenzollern, having on board the Emperor William, of Germany, arrived off Dover at 10 o'clock last evening. Salutes were exchanged with the batteries on shore.

The Doctor Refuses to Compromise and Will Defend Himself.

Dr. M. B. Long upon being interviewed by a PRESS reporter in regard to the suit of Wm. Uhrhahn for $10,000 damages, says that he first learned that such a suit was to be brought on Friday last at about 11:30 A. M., when he received a note from Uhrhahn's counsel requesting him to call at the Counselor's office before 12 o'clock that same day.

In compliance with said request the Doctor went directly to the lawyer's office and was then informed that suit was about to be brought for $10,000 for malpractice, and if the Doctor would settle without suit it could be done for $2,500. He was given until 2 P. M. of that day to see counsel and answer whether or not he would pay the $2,500.

The Doctor says he would not pay the $2,500 or any other sum without knowing what he was paying it for; hence the suit. The Doctor's reputation as a physician stands high and beyond question, and he proposes to defend the same. He will therefore secure able counsel and at the proper time bring evidence to show that the case in question was treated in his usual skillful and careful manner, and will meet any charge that may be brought against him.

She Started for Home but Was Carried to the Hospital.

Katie Rogers, a young nurse girl not yet out of her 'teens, who was carried to Muhlenberg Hospital on a stretcher, Saturday night, is much better today.

Katie, who is employed in the household of a Washington Park family, was on her way home with a companion, Mary Mullen, when as she passed through Emily street a spell of faintness came over her. They stopped at the home of Wm. H. Shotwell and asked for a drink of water. While it was being brought Katie was seized with a hemorrhage Dr. Mattison was called and his treatment was in every way successful.

It was not until some hours after that the patient could be removed to the Hospital, and even then she was too weak to be put in a hack. She was carried on an improvised stretcher. It was the first time she ever had such an attack, and the Hospital staff are very sure that she will fully recover.

A Little Lad's Close Call.

Freddie Perrine, seven years old, slid through the hay mow hole in a stable on Sycamore street, Saturday evening, where his father, who is an employee of A. D. Cook, & Bro., was putting up his horses. The lad fell 12 feet and struck on the left side of his head above the temple.

He was not at first unconscious, but compression of the brain resulted and convulsions set in. These convulsions continued yesterday, and at one time the lad's life was despaired of. City Physician Manning, however, who has the case in charge, today brought the boy out of danger.

Must Not Use Others' Bottles.

The number of empty beer bottles captured in this city, Thursday, as reported exclusively in THE PRESS, was 2,200. Seven places were raided by Detective Vols, of the Bottlers' Protective Association of Newark, and in all of them bottles bearing the names of members of the Association were found. The fact that Plainfield bottlers were illegally using bottles belonging to the Newark brewers was discovered by detective Vols by accident, and he lost no time in making effective use of his knowledge.

Dr. C. M. Field of Broadway, is charged by various rural newspapers with having caught, in complicity with John B. Field of Bound Brook, and two friends, 1,100 perch in one day, by hook and line, at the five-mile dam near Fieldville. One of the fishers is said to have caught two fish at a time on one hook.

After a six-months' illness from a complication of diseases, Peter Dunn died at his home on West Front street, Saturday. He was in the 69th year of his age and had lived in Plainfield as long as anyone can remember. A widow is left to mourn his loss in which she has the sympathy of the many who highly esteemed him.

Miss Georgia L. Chamberlin, of Madison avenue, is now Secretary of the College of Liberal Arts at Chautauqua, and Miss Kate Kimball is Secretary of the Reading Circle. Bishop Vincent is for a time compelled to be absent from the University, but Mrs. Vincent remains in the Vincent cottage on the lake front throughout the season.

Judge Harper and Eden Bolce Advocate Liquor Abolition.

There was a fair attendance in Reform Hall last evening, considering the warm weather. President Harper presided, Eden Bolce conducted the devotional services, and Mr. and Mrs. King and Mr. Spencer, with George Rogers as accompanist, composed the choir.

The first speaker was Mr. Bolce, who very earnestly espoused the cause of temperance, argued strongly against the license system, and declared prohibition of the liquor traffic to be the only cure for the gigantic evil.

He was followed by ex-Judge Harper, who made a brief address on the text: "Whatever God has joined together let not rum put asunder." Ethan Lanphear was the last speaker, and he in an interesting manner reviewed the temperance cause, compared it with the crusade against slavery, and advocated liquor abolition as the true and effectual remedy of the drink evil.

President Harper called attention to and invited general patronage of the Rockaway Beach excursion appointed for next Thursday. He also gave notice that in consequence of the excursion the usual Thursday evening meeting of the present week would be omitted.

FOUR MILLION GALLONS A DAY.

A Description of the Pumping Station of the Water Works Company of Plainfield, and Its Capacity.

At last Plainfield's water works begin to make a show above ground. Passengers by train to and from New York, have been noticing during the last two weeks the growth of a massive stone building close to the track and a few hundred feet north of Netherwood station. The location is the very spot where the severe tests as described in THE PRESS, were made in May of the big pipe wells that had been driven for the Water Works Company of Plainfield to supply this city. A thousand or two people are today wondering what the building is for, and enquiring what it will look like. It is to be the pumping station of the water works, and here is a picture of it as completed.

PUMPING STATION—PLAINFIELD WATER WORKS.

$25,000 has been spent already in the purchase of ground, and in preliminary tests and work beneath it; all of which, however, has made no show. In consequence THE PRESS is asked every day: "What's the reason they are not doing anything towards building the water works?" So Saturday a reporter was assigned to find out. On the top of the mountain just where the Johnston Drive turns into the road to Scotch Plains, was found a gang of Italians breaking huge boulders into chunks of stone small enough for them to lift. Foreman Rice, who was in command courteously answered the reporter's inquiries. The stone, he said, was to be used in the construction of the pumping station and other necessary buildings for the Water Works plant. He could not say whether the Company's mammoth stand-pipes were to be located on that spot, or not, but knew of no better place. It was afterwards learned that Contractor Moore has purchased the tract of land from which his men were taking the stone; so probably the reservoirs will be built there from whence the fall and pressure would be all that could be desired.

A half-hour's ride on one of the company's stone-laden wagons, brought the reporter to the pumping station near Netherwood. Here other large gangs of men under Sup't Doud, were busy in the hot sun. Expert fitters were connecting the twenty big wells with an enormous main; the loads of stone as fast as brought there from the mountain, were given to the masons, and the walls of the pumping station were steadily rising above the foundations that had already been finished. The picture above shows only the face of the building as it will be seen by any person looking towards it and the railroad track behind it.

The plans are by B. Fosgate of this city, architect for the Central N. J. Land Improvement company. The entire building excepting the roof and chimney, will be of second-mountain stone, as it is called, just as it is taken from the quarry and laid in pure cement. The window sills and other trimmings will be of dressed blue stone. The roof-frame and rafters will be iron and covered with red slate. The building alone will cost $9,000, and its dimensions will be 70 feet wide by 50 feet deep. It will be 40 feet high to the peak of the roof, with a chimney 100 feet to the top. This chimney will be of brick with a flue 2 feet 8 inches square, and an iron ladder inside will reach from bottom to top.

The entrance to the building will be up five steps 13 feet long, and into a handsome vestibule with open fireplace and terra cotta mantel. In the left of the building, looking at the picture, will be the coal room, containing pockets of a capacity of 80 tons. Cars on tracks will run from the mouth of the pockets to the boiler doors. There will be two pumping engines situated in the centre of the building. They will cost $16,000 and have a capacity of two million gallons each, every 24 hours. There will be four boilers of 320 horse power, to run these monster pumps. The corner of the building to the right, will be built in the shape of a tower. There will be Col. Moore's private office, 12 by 18 feet, fitted with all the modern conveniences and furnished with every luxury.

The grounds at the back of the building will be terraced up the railroad embankment, and laid out in beds of flowers around a handsome fountain. The front, which is on North avenue, will also be made attractive with pretty lawn and flowering shrubs. It is expected that the pumps will be ready to run in a very few weeks now.

—The summer young man at the shore affects combinations of black and white.

—A cask of wine, eight feet long and four feet seven in diameter, arrived for Charles Bock, Saturday. It weighed 3,270 pounds yet Mr. Yose lowered it into Mr. Bock's cellar with ease. It contained 180 gallons, and came from California.

DON'T KISS MY BABY.

That Is What Every Mother Should Say to Her Gushing Friends.

The promiscuous kissing of children is a pestilent practice, writes a physician in the Old Homestead. We use the word advisedly, and it is mild for the occasion. Murderous would be the proper word, did the kissers know the mischief they do. Do you remember calling on your dear friend, Mrs. Brown, the other day, with a strip of flannel around your neck? And when little Flora came dancing into the room, didn't you pounce upon her demonstratively, call her a precious little pet, and kiss her? Then you serenely proceeded to describe the dreadful sore throat that kept you from prayer-meeting the night before. You had no designs on the dear child's life, we know; nevertheless you killed her! Killed her as surely as if you had fed her with strychnine or arsenic.

Your carelessness was fatal. Two or three days after the little pet began to complain of a sore throat, too. The symptoms grew rapidly alarming, and when the doctor came the simple word diphtheria explained them all. To-day a little mound is the sole memento of your visit. Of course the mother did not suspect, and would not dare to suspect you of any instrumentality in her bereavement. She charges it to a mysterious providence. The doctor says nothing to disturb the delusion—that would be impolitic if not cruel—but to an outsider he is free to say that the child's death was due directly to your stupidity. Those are precisely his words; and who shall say, under the circumstances, that they are not justifiable?

It would be hard to tell how much of the prevalent illness and mortality from diphtheria is due to such want of thought. As a rule adults have the disease in so mild a form that they mistake it for a simple cold, and as a cold is not contagious, they think not of exposing others to their breath or the greater danger of labial contact. Taking into consideration the well-established fact that diphtheria is usually, if not always, communicated by direct transplanting of the malignant vegetation which causes the disease, the fact that there can be no more certain means of bringing the contagion to its favorite soil than the act of kissing, and the further fact that the kissing of children on all occasions is all but universal, it is not surprising that, when the disease is once imported into a community, it is very likely to become epidemic.

It would be absurd to charge the spread of diphtheria entirely to the practice of child-kissing. There are other modes of propagation, though it is hard to conceive of any more directly suited to the spread of the infection or more general in its operation. It stands to diphtheria in about the same relation that promiscuous hand-shaking formerly did to the itch. It were better to avoid the practice. The children will not suffer if they go unkissed, and their friends ought for their sake to forego the luxury for a season. A single kiss has been known to infect a family, and the most careful may be in a condition to communicate the disease without knowing it. Beware then of playing Judas, and let the babies alone.

MUSIC THAT CHARMED.

How a Little Colored Boy Captured a Carload of Passengers.

An incident of a peculiarly touching character occurred yesterday in one of the elevated railroad trains that brought tears to the eyes of the passengers, says the New York Times. The train had just left One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street when the passengers saw entering the car a little boy about six years old, being half pushed and half carried by an older boy, evidently his brother. At the first glance it was seen that the little fellow was blind and his eyelids had almost grown together. He had a pale, wan face, but was smiling. A quick look of sympathy passed over the faces of the passengers, and an old gray-haired gentleman got up and gave his seat to the two. The "big brother," who was about eleven years old, tenderly lifted up the little blind boy and placed him on his knee.

"How's that?" he asked.

"Nice," said the little chap. "Where's my 'monica?"

This puzzled some of the passengers, and several turned to see what the child meant. But the "big brother" knew, and immediately drew out a small mouth harmonicon and placed it in the little fellow's hands. Both boys were well dressed. The little fellow took the instrument into his thin hands, ran it across his lips, and began to play softly, "Nearer, My God, to Thee." Tears came into the eyes of the old gentleman who had given up his seat, and as the little fellow played on, running into "Rock of Ages" and "Abide with Me," there were many moist eyes in the car. The little player seemed to have a remarkably true ear and occasionally, when the instrument would rasp, he would turn sadly to his "big brother" and say: "Don't whistle."

The train rushed along, the passengers listened, and the little fellow played on tirelessly, never missing a note from "Anna Laurie" or "Home, Sweet Home." Finally the "big brother" leaned down and told the little one to get ready to leave, as the train was approaching their station. Then, as if he knew he had won a whole carload of friends, the blind boy quickly changed "The Suwance River" into "Auld Lang Syne," and with one accord the passengers burst into a round of applause, while the "big brother" carried the little one out of the car.

Races in the West Indies.

"It may come to pass," said a British lecturer lately, "that some African may, in centuries to come, point out how a race of Englishmen once dominated the West Indies and were improved off the face of the land. Such fears are real enough. In 1658 there were in those islands 4,500 Europeans to 1,500 Africans. In 1803 the numbers were 30,000 Europeans and 300,000 Africans. In the last census the figures were 14,433 Europeans, 109,916 colored, or mulattoes, 444,186 Africans and 12,240 Asiatics.

Learning at Sixty-Six How to Shut a Door.

The physical culture classes of Madame Alberti, formerly of Plainfield, at the Seaside Assembly, Avon-by-the-sea, continue to attract a great deal of attention. It is interesting to note the look of surprise on the pupils' faces, many of them showing marks of age, when they learn for the first time the proper way to pick up articles from the floor, or the scientific method of taking a chair. One old farmer said to a friend, when asked how he liked the lectures, "I'm goin' on sixty-six year old, an' I never before knew how to shet a door or git out'n a wagon."

Women Who Make the Best Wives.

Members of a Boston debating society have almost come to blows over the question, "What women make the best wives?" Culture was claimed by many to be the first essential, love and fidelity the second, and knowledge of household duties and ability to properly perform them, the third. None of the debaters, however, thought to add that very necessary qualification—health—without which a wife is far from perfection. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription will renew the hue of youth in pale and sallow cheeks, and infuse new vitality into a wasting body. "Favorite Prescription" is the only medicine for women, sold by druggists, under a positive guarantee from the manufacturers, that it will give satisfaction in every case, or money will be refunded. This guarantee has been printed on the bottle-wrapper, and faithfully carried out for many years.

A Strike Nearly Ended.

BOSTON, Aug. 4.—The building laborers' strike has nearly reached its end. Secretary Brennan reported at a meeting of the union last night that all but fourteen members had secured the 25 cents per hour demanded on July 1.

Deserted Three Wives.

NEW HAVEN, Aug. 4.—James McDowell, an Englishman, who lately lived at Fair Haven, has married and deserted three wives, his first one in England 30 years ago, the second in Roxbury, Mass., and the third a Fair Haven woman, from whom he fled a few days ago. McDowell went to Fair Haven four years ago and became the janitor of the Central block. He called himself McDowell when he was married to the Fair Haven lady, but she says she knows his name is Dowell simply The police will try to find him.

$5,000 For a Liquor License.

BRIDGETON, N. J., Aug. 4.—Judge James R. Reagland has publicly given notice that on the request of citizens from Downe and Fairfield townships an election will be held on Aug. 26 to determine whether or not any license to sell liquors for any less sum than $5,000 shall be granted in these townships. These are strong temperance districts, and of course no license will be likely to be issued at such a high figure, thus virtually making them prohibition districts. This is the result of the recent Werts law.

The Election in Alabama.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Aug. 4.—The State election takes place to-day. The successor to United States Senator Pugh will be chosen by the Legislature to be elected. Gov. Thomas Seay and ex-Gov. Thomas H. Watts are candidates, and Senator Pugh, the present Senator, will also stand for re-election.

Took an Overdose of Laudanum.

KINGSTON, N. Y., Aug. 4.—The wife of Alderman Christopher Shoder of this city was found dead at her home last evening. She had taken a dose of laudanum, but whether from accident or otherwise is not yet known.

BRIDAL AND SILVER WEDDING.

A Double Celebration at the Sans Souci Villa.

The wedding of Robert F. B Huntsman to Miss Leontine Lissignolo, occurred at high noon today at Sans Souci Villa, the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George A. Lissignolo, on East Front street. The occasion was also the twenty-fifth anniversary of the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Lissignolo, and the affair was made a very pretty double celebration.

The marriage ceremony was conducted by the Rev. Dr. D. J. Yerkes, pastor of the First Baptist church. The bride was handsomely attired in a traveling costume of Gobelin blue broadcloth and faille, with bonnet to match. She carried a tastefully arranged bouquet of sweet pea blossoms. The maid of honor, Miss Augustine Lissignolo, sister of the bride, wore pink faille and white lace. The "best man" was John F. Huntsman, of Providence, R. I., brother of the groom.

Owing to the fact that Mrs. Lissignolo has recently been in mourning for her mother, only immediate relatives took part in the quiet festivities that followed the ceremony.

At the wedding breakfast the bride's cake was daintily served with snow-white souvenirs, while with the bonbons were distributed mementoes in silver, in token of the anniversary day.

Amid showers of congratulations the bride and groom were driven away by carriage to board an early afternoon train for a wedding trip of several weeks. A musical programme composed especially for the silver wedding, was rendered after their departure.

Among the guests from Plainfield were Mrs. D. O. Wotherspoon, Mrs. Ferdinand Ruttmann, Miss Schipper, the Misses Butler, Mrs. D. J. Yerkes, Miss Yerkes, Mr. and Mrs. L. V. F. Randolph, the Misses Randolph, R. M. Stelle, Mr. and Mrs Judson Bonnell, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Irving Clarke, Miss Hellwig, Miss Maire, Dr. C. R. Thiers, Miss Pelletreau.

From out of town were Mrs. Charles Brown of Jersey City; Mrs. Eschen of Brooklyn; Carl Faber of Brooklyn; Otto Meyer of New York; John Montross of Clinton, N. Y.; Mr. and Mrs. L. F. Dunn, Mrs. J. A. Murdoch, Mrs. N. Garwood, Fred Garwood, Mr. and Mrs. John Russell, of Newark; the Misses Hunter of East Orange; Mr. and Mrs. John F. Huntsman and Miss Huntsman, of Providence, R. I.; Miss Marie Jebert of Newark; Mrs. John J. F. Randolph of Brooklyn; Miss Randolph of New York, Miss Mullison of Newark.

The maid of honor and "best man" were each presented with a silver four-leaf clover.

The ceremony occurred in the open bay-window of the East parlor, which was transformed into a bower of wild flowers.

LET'S GIVE PLAINFIELD A LIFT!

Quick Returns From a Sensible Investment Also Offered This City.

Below is given part of an article from the New Brunswick Home News of last Wednesday, which shows how a little money cast by philanthropic citizens of that place in a judicious way on perfectly legitimate waters, has already returned many fold.

The Mr. Agate spoken of is now in Plainfield, and THE PRESS has already heard of a number of generous minded and generous handed citizens who have subscribed largely towards the purpose of having Plainfield written up and illustrated as one of the World's pages. Among the contributors are Col. Chas. K. Moore, of the Water Works company, F. E. Miller, proprietor of Netherwood Hotel, J. B. Miller & Bro., of Laing's Hotel, and other well known men of the city who have its interests at heart. Undoubtedly all the money necessary to have the project carried out in the thorough and abundant way Plainfield deserves and all its people would desire, will be speedily forthcoming.

(From the Home News, July 30.)

It is well known that for some days past Mr. Agate, representing the New York World, has been in this city arranging for an article in that paper to boom the industrial and general interests of this city. The project was financially assisted by members of the Board of Trade and business men generally and on Sunday last the first of the proposed articles appeared in The World.

On Monday practical results began to manifest themselves. Letters began to pour in upon Nelson T. Parker, Secretary of the Board of Trade, and upon Messrs. Geo. W. DeVoe, Wm. J. McCurdy, John Waldron and other members, from manufacturers and promoters of industries making all kinds of offers and inquries looking towards a location of their business in this city.

This morning the Board of Trade had twenty-four of these letters on hand, and besides a number of gentlemen have been here to look at the situation and to satisfy themselves as to the advantages which New Brunswick can offer as a business location. Ever since Monday Mr. McCurdy has been busy showing these gentlemen over the city and explaining to them everything they desired to see.

Some of the propositions made with regard to locating here are practicable and promising, while others are not. The Board of Trade has called a meeting for Friday evening at 8 o'clock, before which all the correspondence will be laid and such action will be taken as is deemed likely to secure the advantageous location of some of these industries here. Some of the most promising will employ from 50 to 250 hands, and one of them proposes to employ 350 girls.

THEY WEREN'T IN IT.

The Brooklyn Ridgewoods Break the Crescents' Hearts.

If anybody was much surprised at the result of Saturday's game, it is not the fault of THE PRESS. Saturday's PRESS said the Ridgewoods were "loaded to kill." The score below shows this prophecy was fulfilled.

It was a battle of pitchers, principally. Livingston, whom the Crescents laid off two months ago, was in the box against them and he had them at his mercy. But Gregg was hit in bunches. Still all the luck was with the visitors. Long flys dropped in their fielders' mittens, and short hits came with a high bound into Gatens' and Livingston's hands.

The home team played with broken hearts, and their three errors were costly. Martin's muff spoiled a double play that would have closed the first inning with only two runs. Wiegand's muff and Jones' wild throw to third let in another run. The Crescents Saturday were like the man who fell out of a balloon—they weren't in it.

Lew Johnson umpired again. The Crescents have lost every game in which he officiated. He was substituted for Bowman, it is said, because the latter would not stand close to the catcher with a muzzle on. Johnson stood most of the time—even when there were no runners on the bases—back of the pitcher, and was very unsatisfactory in his judgment. One strike that he called on Lee was a ball way above his shoulders. The people hissed and groaned for a minute over it. The score was:

BRUTAL BUTCHERY OF HUMAN LIFE.

Fatal Results of a Terrible Fight Among Bound Brook Italians.

A terrible fight occurred in the Italian settlement known as the "Gravel Pit," in the outskirts of Bound Brook yesterday. Two men were killed, and several others are not expected to live. The fight started over a love affair. Several years ago an Italian girl came to this country and began to work in the Bound Brook mills. She was engaged to a lover in Italy, but in a short time was married to one of the Bound Brook Italians. Yesterday a brother of the jilted lover visited the settlement in the "Gravel Pit." Meeting the faithless woman, who carried her child in her arms, he struck her over the head with a bottle. The husband interfered, and in a moment the two men were engaged in deadly warfare. A free fight resulted. The occupants of the dozen or more shanties turned out and fought one another viciously. All sorts of weapons, including heavy pieces of split railroad ties, spades, pickaxes, shovels and knives, were used, with awful effect. In a few minutes the ground was strewn with bleeding and groaning victims. During the night two of the wounded men died in great agony. Others are in a dying condition. Five arrests were made, and more are to follow.

The Best Will be Cheapest.

At the last meeting of the Council, a resolution was passed authorizing a call for proposals for an electric fire alarm telegraph system for this city. That a system of prompt, definite, and reliable fire alarms is needed is beyond question. For a city the size of Plainfield to depend upon the ringing of bells and the shouting of "Fire" through the streets, is behind the times, and is not in the line of wise and economical management, for a few minutes delay in ringing an alarm may at almost any time cause a loss of property infinitely greater than the entire cost of a good system of Fire Telegraph. A good water supply and an excellent Fire Department are of no use in suppressing a conflagration until the fact of its existence and its locality is made known.

The cost of furnishing our city with a system of a fire alarm telegraph and its maintenance will be so small compared to the great benefits secured in the additional protection to the lives and property of our citizens, that there can be no hesitation on the part of the Council in making the necessary appropriation. It is not only important, however, that the Council should decide upon securing a system, but also that the mere price alone should not govern its selection. In this case, surely the best will be the cheapest, and that system only should be selected which has stood the test of time and will be found on investigation to be thoroughly endorsed as thoroughly reliable in its operation.

SECRET SOCIETIES.

Masonic.

The printed annals of the recent session of the Grand Lodge of Iowa have just been issued. The volume fairly bristles with pungent paragraphs aimed at the Cerneau's and their allies. Bro. Parom, the Grand Lodge reviewer, neither gives nor asks quarter. But, after all, the question may well be asked: Is it worth while for decent men and Masons to occupy page after page in calling one another "liar," "traitor" and "rebel," for the sake of a miserable, contemptible side-show in Masonry that must ere long die a natural and timely death if let alone? Would it not be better for the Grand Lodge of Iowa and most of the other grand bodies to turn their attention to improving the quality of their membership, and clearing the Masonic ship of a lot of barnacles that have fastened on it and are slowly but surely destroying the vitality of Ancient Craft Masonry throughout the land? The Mystic Shrine, O. G's. Veiled Prophets, and a number of other mongrel and worthless organizations, have done more to impair the prosperity and usefulness of the blue lodge than a dozen Cerneau rites combined.

In New York, death has just removed from the sphere of active life and duty, from fraternal halls and from an ideal home circle, the noblest man and the truest Mason that has ever been identified with the fraternity in the Empire State. General Charles Roome is no more. After a long, active and useful life he has passed upward to his reward. He attained the rank of General in the Union army, and served with distinction as Grand Master of Masons in the State of New York, Grand Commander of Knights Templar and Grand Master of the Grand Encampment of the United States. Every asylum of Knights Templar throughout the country will be draped in mourning for some weeks as a tribute of respect to his memory.

P. G. M. CHAS. ROOME.

The Elks.

The recent session of the Grand Lodge at Cleveland was a very interesting and important one. There were about 7,000 members of the order in attendance during the week, and the arrangements for entertainment of the visitors were as complete and satisfactory as could be desired. The grand officers were nearly all re-elected. Dr. Simon Quinlin, of Chicago, was unanimously chosen Exalted Grand Ruler for the second time; M. Bourlier, of Louisville, Esteemed Leading Grand Knight; Frank E. Wright, of Toledo, Esteemed Loyal Grand Knight; Hon. E. G. Bowen, of Dallas, Esteemed Lecturing Grand Knight; Allen O. Meyers, of Cincinnati, Grand Secretary; James O. Gray, of Boston, Grand Treasurer; Ferdinand Diebold, of Cleveland, Grand Tyler; William C. Dudley, of California, Grand Esquire; Dr. O. Clark Sprague, of Rochester, Grand Inner Guard; George A. Reynolds, of Hartford, Grand Chaplain. The Grand Trustees are: Hon. Willard C. Vanderlip, of Boston; George L. Griffin, of Troy; Daniel E. Cahill, of Washington; E. R. Tracy, of Wheeling, and John W. Coogan, of Hartford.

The New York lodge schism was promptly disposed of. The Loyal Grand Knight presented charges and specifications against the lodge for contumacy and violations of the order. By a unanimous vote the charges were sustained and the charter of the lodge declared forfeited, and Arthur C. Moreland, the Grand Secretary, was by unanimous vote expelled from the order and forever debarred from all its rights and privileges. It was provided, however, that a quorum of the loyal members of New York lodge may apply within sixty days for a reissue of the suspended charter, with all the rights and privileges of the old lodge. In case the members fail to avail themselves of this privilege, within the time designated, a new lodge will be instituted there. A number of the loyal members of New York lodge presented themselves at Cleveland and received Grand Lodge dimits which will enable them to unite with other lodges, if they so desire.

A new constitution, rules, regulations and ritual were adopted. The rules, regulations and ritual will go into effect immediately, but the constitution must be submitted to the subordinate lodges for ratification and approval.

Knights of Pythias.

The great biennial conclave of the order at Milwaukee is ended and a new and very interesting chapter is thus added to the history of Pythian Knighthood. In numbers and enthusiasm the camp was a great success so far as the rank and file of the order could make it such. The management of the camp and the arrrangements for entertainment were not all that could be desired. But in spite of these drawbacks the campers extracted a great deal of genuine enjoyment out of the meeting. The parade was a brilliant affair and moved smoothly and promptly. There were nearly six thousand men in line and about a thousand men in uniform present that did not take part in the parade, making in all about seven thousand members of the rank in Milwaukee. This is about the largest percentage of a civic uniform body that has turned out on such an occasion in many years. McDOUGALL.

SAVED BY A CYCLONE.

How a Dissipated Man Was Restored to Usefulness.

A Young Physician Becomes Addicted to the Morphine Habit and Loses Property and Friends—His Remarkable Recovery and Conversion.

James Brewster was the proudest boy in Athens in 1870 when he stood before a large and fashionable audience at the State university delivering his valedictory address, writes R. B. Harrison in the Atlanta Constitution. Well might he be proud, as he had been awarded the first honor in his class and was flushed with victory as he made his final bow amid a shower of roses thrown at his feet by his young lady friends in the audience.

Brewster was an orphan, and upon his return to his native village was informed by his guardian that as only a few thousand dollars of his legacy was left it would be necessary for him to choose some profession so that he would be prepared to engage in the battle of life. His inclinations were toward medicine and it was not long before he was engaged in his studies at the New York College of Physicians and Surgeons.

At the expiration of three years he returned to M—— and entered upon the practice of his profession with most flattering prospects. His father had been a very popular man in the community and his friends took pleasure in lending a helping hand to the son.

In due course of time Brewster was married and his domestic happiness was as unruffled as a fairy's dream. His home was all that heart could wish and he never tired in listening to the prattle of his curly-headed little boys. * * *

Familiarity with dangerous evils sometimes destroy our safeguards and before we know it our feet are led into treacherous quicksands. Place a bar-room constantly before a boy's eyes and he will become so accustomed to it that he will gradually lose sight of the danger lurking behind the glittering chandeliers and brilliant array of costly furniture.

So it was with Brewster. His familiarity with deadly anesthetics destroyed his fear for them and before he knew it he was a slave to the dreadful morphine habit, contracted in a very brief time by resorting to its use as a cure for nervous headache.

The once punctiliously neat and fashionably attired man began to grow careless in his dress and indifferent to his practice. He would sit in his office for hours and dream away his life under the influence of the deadly drug. The proud position to which he had attained in the community was won by years of close study and diligent application. His descent from this high social plane was swift and unrestrained.

Finding his property swept from him Brewster retired to a small farm in the country to eke out a miserable existence. His neighbors were kind and friendly, and by hard licks and severe trials, he managed to keep the wolf from the door and as he was to some extent cut off from the enemy of his life his family found more comfort in their poverty than they had known in several years. * * *

The evening had been warm and sultry and it was with forebodings of an approaching storm that the Brewster family retired for the night. None of the family could be wooed to sleep except Brewster, who had resorted to his favorite drug and was temporarily as as dead to all surroundings as if his heart had ceased to beat.

The low mutterings of distant thunder and the inky blackness of the night brought dismay to the remainder of the household, and Mrs. Brewster, who had witnessed a South Georgia cyclone before, prepared herself and children for immediate flight.

They had barely entered the storm-pit and barred the door behind them when the cyclone struck the house and crushed it as if it were an egg shell in the grasp of a strong man. Not a vestige of it remained standing and the timbers and furniture were scattered for miles along the path of the storm.

Mrs. Brewster and the children were rescued from their retreat at early dawn and with sympathising neighbors began the search for Brewster, who was missing. In the course of an hour his body was found about half a mile from the building with a terrible wound upon his head where he had been struck by a scantling. Restoratives were applied and Brewster was soon brought to consciousness.

His recovery was slow, but when he was again restored to health he was a new man. All desire for opiates had passed away and his mental faculties were as clear and bright as they were when we introduced him to the reader. Being a fine scholar and linguist he was attracted to the ministry, and in a short while was ordained. He at once took a prominent stand and became a useful and popular pastor. He has for a number of years followed the calling brought about by the storm, and is sometimes called "The Cyclone Preacher," and I doubt if there is a more earnest or faithful divine before the people than the hero of this story who was saved by a cyclone.

Stolen Fruit Tastes Best.

Outside the closed doors of a barber's shop which I passed on my way to church yesterday forenoon there stood a young man, neat in dress and of pleasing appearance, who scanned each passer with a glance in which there seemed to be something of professional criticism, says a writer in the Boston Post. If his survey appeared to be satisfactory he addressed a few words to the person and there was a short colloquy. As I drew nearer I heard his remark to an unkempt wayfarer in front of me; and it was: "Shave, sir? Right in here." And with a pass-key he threw back the latch of the locked door and waved the customer inside, closing the door with care and politeness after him. The half secrecy of the proceeding doubtless added to the attractiveness of the offer of unlawful service to those in need of it.

FOR LITTLE PEOPLE

THE BABY'S ANSWER.

Once there was a baby,
So I've heard it told,
Eyes of deepest azure,
Hair of ruddy gold,
And she paid a visit
To a little school,
Where the gentle teacher
Taught the mystic rule.

Strange sights new and wondrous
Met the baby's eyes,
Every thing the children did,
Filled her with surprise.
"Write my little scholars,
Carefully and slow,
You shall name the prettiest slate
When we marching go."

Ah, the sweetest sunshine
Lit each little face,
And the pointed pencils
Moved with careful grace.
But the baby's letters
Wouldn't stand up straight.
Oh, the crooked pothooks
On her tiny slate.

Each one named his sweetheart,
Each her little beau,
But the small fair visitor
Had no one you know,
So when she was questioned—
Azure eyes a-shine,
Answered: "All is pitty,
But the pittiest one is mine."
—Jessie Norton, in Christian at Work.

A LITTLE BOY'S "THANK YOU."

The Agreeable Change That Was Wrought By a Bit of Politeness.

It was a tall, grim building, crowded among other tall, grim buildings in the midst of a great city's noise and confusion. The sunshine, because of these high buildings on every side, was for the most part shut away from it. The fresh breezes from the wide flower-scattered prairies were tangled among a network of streets and alleys, and tainted with many a city odor before they reached it, and the smoke from the multitudinous chimneys around hung over it in a cloud that dropped everywhere in a sooty grime. Inside the long rooms the din of machinery sounded from morning till night, and a company of men and boys hurried about their work, for the most part in a decidedly surly fashion. For the outer grimness seemed to have crept, not only within the thick brick walls, but also within the hearts of the men who made up the force of Short & Farnham's large printing establishment.

Nobody could tell just when it began or quite how it came about; but so it was that every one in the tall building—such is the contagion of habit—from the proprietor in his private office down through the foreman, the compositors, the pressmen, to the messenger and errand boys, all went about incased in gruff indifference. Indeed, from long disuse, courtesy and politeness had become so unknown that any one who had ventured upon them would have been scoffed at for his pains. Outward kindness of speech and manner were in evident disfavor, and bluntness and rudeness had become the rule. As one of the men had expressed it, the motto at Short & Farnham's was "Every man for himself." And the worst of it was that they rather prided themselves than otherwise on this state of affairs.

Into this establishment there came one new boy, Jimmy Allen. He was a little fellow not more than ten years old, the youngest, the smallest, the weakest in the whole building. The other boys played tricks upon him, the men ordered him about. But an atom of humanity he seemed—a most insignificant atom at that, whose hand, you would have said, could hold no power, whose influence would be so feeble as to fall on the air unfelt and unpreceived.

It was but a few days that he had been at work when the foreman had occasion to send him a long distance, and, with the parcel he was to take, handed him a car-fare.

"Thank you," was Jimmy's acknowledgment, with a smile, as he took the coin.

"See here, youngster," and the foreman's voice was more than usually crusty, "we don't put on any such frills here. Thanking folks isn't in our line; and you had better save that sort of thing for some place where they use it."

Jimmy looked up at him with a surprised expression in his frank, blue eyes. "If you please, sir," he said, respectfully and half timidly, for the foreman was to him a very important personage, to say nothing of being decidedly formidable, "my mother"—and Jimmy's voice trembled slightly as he mentioned the name that represented to him now but a memory, the dearest earth held, but still a memory only—"my mother told me to always say 'Thank you,' when any one did me a service or a favor; and I wouldn't feel right not to say it." Then taking his parcel, he sped on his way.

The next noon it fell to Jimmy to carry the foreman the pail of hot coffee for his lunch. He took it from his hand with a responsive "thank you."

"Isn't that a considerable change?" was the comment of a companion who was eating beside him, and who noticed the act, simple in itself, but noticeable because so unusual there.

"Well, he thanked me for a car-fare yesterday, and I don't want to have less manners than a boy ten years old," replied the foreman, who did not care to repeat the reproof that the wee lad had so innocently and unconsciously given.

"There is nothing in that," admitted the other, looking thoughtfully after the little figure as it passed down the long room.

So Jimmy, the youngest, the smallest, the weakest of all the employes in the great printing establishment, went his way, with his cheery face, obliging manner and ready and smiling "thank you" for any and every service of kindness.

It may be that others among the men shared the foreman's feeling; that they did not want to be outdone in politeness by a child, or it may be that his example shamed them, or touched, and aroused the latent kindliness of their natures. At any rate, as daily he went in and out among them, more and more frequently did he receive his little coin of courtesy again; a little coin of courtesy, trifling in itself, and of value as a sign and integral part of the wealth of gracious words and gentle manners whose interchange so sweetens and gladdens life, bringing always more to the givers than to the recipients.

Then, from acknowledging a service at Jimmy's hands, it was an easy transition to acknowledge the same from each other. So, though nobody could have told exactly how it came about, yet, as the weeks went by, a change gradually became apparent—the working of a leaven that in time extended from foreman, compositors, pressmen, and messenger boys to the proprietor in his office. And, as a result, the tones grew softer, and manners less brusque, and kindly words and little acts of thoughtfulness more frequent. The clouds of smoke still hung over the tall building, the sunshine scant and broken; but a gleam of heart sunshine—that of all is the most truly of the skies—had pierced the thickness of the living walls, and lingered there to cheer and lighten the toilsome days. And little Jimmy, youngest, smallest and weakest of all, as he went his daily round, with his bright face and pleasant word, thought it must be because he was getting better acquainted with the men at Short & Farnham's that they seemed so much pleasanter than when he first came. He never once dreamed, in the modesty and humility of his young heart, that it was the magic of his simple "thank you" that had worked the transformation.—Christian Intelligencer.

A SMART DOG.

A Little Dog That Waves a Red Flag When a Train Is Signaled.

Scarcely any one who passes the point of intersection of the Gravois road and the St. Louis & Oak Hill railway fails to notice a little dog acting as flag-man at the railway crossing. This little animal is named Curly and is the property and assistant of Flagman Edward Howard, stationed at the above named crossing. Curly is a Spanish fox terrier, scarcely over two feet in length and not quite two years of old. When the Oak Hill Railway Company began to operate its road Flagman Howard was assigned to watch the Gravois road crossing, and to trim the signal lamps. Curly made her home at the watch-house and when her master would go out to collect the switch lamps the dog would lie down at the door and patiently await her master's return. One day as Howard was busy cleaning the lamps a train dashed into sight around the curve. Several wagons were approaching the crossing, and would probably have driven on, meeting with a serious accident, had not the little animal rushed past its master and began barking furiously, which had the desired effect of stopping the teams. An idea then struck the master to train the dog to hold a flag. She could stand on her hind feet with perfect ease, and to hold a red signal flag in her mouth would be a great help to him, as the passing trains are numerous. It took but very little time "to break her in" to hold a little red flag, and now every time a train whistles she runs to fetch it, and, standing on her hind legs, holds it aloft to warn drivers of wagons of the danger. The engineers all know the little dog and look out for her. Curly performs a variety of tricks and is a good mimic. Just now she is rearing a family, but every time an approaching train whistles she gets her flag and does her duty.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Curious and Useful.

You have a mill in your mouth for grinding food, and a good one it is. It has twenty teeth in it on purpose to grind up this food, and while this mill is at work there are little factories there preparing a fluid to moisten it, too.

And just so the food of plants needs moistening. The rain does that when it falls and soaks into the ground. In the spring of the year the farmer loosens the earth, to break up this food so that the plants can use it better. If the rain does not come for a long time the food is so dry that they can not manage it well, and they wilt and die. The dry earth is to them just what our food would be if we had no fluid to moisten it. These saliva factories of ours do a great deal of good, and we could not well live without them.—Mrs. G. Hall, in Our Little Ones.

—A new colony of strange people are farming southeast of Pierre, S. D. They are under the leadership of a woman, and hold their property all in one common lot. The woman is rather handsome and of commanding presence, and rules over the colony of about two hundred in a rather despotic manner. Their religion savors somewhat of the Mormon and old Jewish religion, and recently they offered burnt offerings in the way of calves, etc. They positively refuse to allow strangers who will not be one of them in their midst, and all attempts to gain any information from them by the ordinary means have failed. They have called their town Moab.

—Somebody has been collecting figures giving the distance to which sound is conveyed under favorable atmospheric conditions. J. S. Stranahan states that the whistle and the noise of the train on the trestle at Erie were formerly heard at a distance of nineteen miles. W. J. McC., of San Pablo, Cal., writes that on calm, clear days, especially in the fall, they hear the rumble of the cars on a trestle located eighteen miles distant. J. H. S. says that he has frequently heard the railroad shop whistle at Grand Island, while living at Orville, a distance of twenty-eight miles. C. V. Swarthout, Cape Vincent, N. Y., frequently hears the whistle at Kingston, Ont., twenty miles.

—The lions of India are going like the buffalo of this country. Within the memory of many persons lions were common enough in Rajputana, and even now a roar may be heard occasionally in the wildest parts of Central India, but the new railroad from Nagpur is now being built through this country and that will drive out the few remaining lions in the central provinces.

THE GIRL WHO BETS.

Her Methods, Her Superstitions and Her Luck at the Race Track.

Not Generally as Successful in Winning Money as in Winning Men—A Girl Who Wanted Her Money Returned—A Very Big Winner.

[COPYRIGHT, 1890.]
[Special Correspondence.]

"WON'T you please give me my money back again?"

"My dear madam, I really can not. You stood just as much chance of winning that money as I did, and if you had won I should have had to pay you seventy dollars."

These remarks attracted considerable attention in the betting ring at the Sheepshead Bay race-course recently. A young woman of medium height, pretty and well dressed, was in lots of trouble. She had evidently, from appearances, paid her first visit to the race-course. Perhaps it was her second. At any rate she had been induced to bet and had lost money. Now, with tears in her eyes, she was pleading with the bookmaker, with whom she had made the bet, to return her that money, but he of course declined to do so. She told him that the money was not her own and that she had been induced to put it on Bella B. at six to one because Bella B. was sure to win. She pleaded very hard with the bookmaker, and he finally gave her the ten dollars back again, at the same time giving her some wholesome advice about never coming to the race track again, or if she did never to risk her money because she was sure to lose.

"These women are poor losers," said the bookmaker afterwards. "They can not blow in their wealth with the carelessness of a man, and when they lose it grieves them. Some, however, bet very well and when they lose never say a word, and a good many of them win quite a considerable sum of money. How they do it is more than I can tell. I suppose it is just sheer luck."

At least fifty per cent. of the patrons of the race track are women. A good many of these are prominent leaders of society. They go down there just to see the races and perhaps to make quiet bets among themselves, or get their escorts to put a little money on their favorite horses just for fun. Others make a habit of frequenting the race tracks and are as well known there as the owners of prominent stables, jockeys or track officials. They are habitual betters and many of them have won large sums of money. Some of them lose, though, regularly, and where they get the money to lose is a puzzle that no one attempts to solve. These regular betters are easilly picked out in the grand stand. They are usually coarse looking women, dressed in very gaudy costumes and as a rule have numbers of diamonds.

They talk horse from the time they get on the boat or train to go to the races until they get home again. Some of them will put their money up and win or lose as calmly as most veteran turfmen. Others are in a state of nervous excitement even if they only have a few dollars at stake until the race is decided in their favor or against them, as the case may be.

The horses were about to start in a race at Brighton Beach not long ago. The field was a good one and the betting had been very lively. The members of the fair sex had put their money on their various choices. A few of them were still arguing about the merits of the various horses that were at the post. One young girl—she could not have been more than twenty years of age—was anxiously eyeing each horse. She was a very pretty girl, dressed with exquisite taste, and evidently above the women who were near her. In her hand she held the well-known piece of pasteboard. Her hand clutched it nervously and she acted as though the winning or the losing of the bet meant a great deal to her. I watched her in order to see if she won. Once the horses broke away and two were left at the post. She gave a quick nervous start and seemed much relieved when the starter still held his flag up. Again they made a break, and this time they were sent off. The girl gave a quick start. Her face flushed nervously. She jumped up and looked at the flying steeds and then sat down again. Then she bowed her head, closed her eyes, and I could see her lips moving.

She must have been praying—praying that the horse she had backed might win. The horses thundered past the winning post and the winner's name was hoisted. The girl had lost. She looked somewhat relieved, probably because the nervous strain was over, but she was worried. She had probably lost all she had. Perhaps she had used money to bet with that was not her own. Perhaps she had committed some crime to obtain the money to bet with and had then lost her money and ruined her reputation. In a frightened way she tore her ticket up, threw away her programme and then left the grand stand and track and although I have looked for her at all the other meetings I have not seen her. She probably had a lesson that she will never forget.

I noticed one woman who was evidently very methodical in her system of betting. She always sat on the grand stand near the reporters. She did not associate much with the other women or patrons of the track, and where she got her information from no one seemed to know. She always bet with remarkably good judgment and made lots of money. She was short, stout and a brunette; dressed quietly, and always carried a little hand-bag with her. She studied her programme very carefully, and when the jockeys' names were hoisted she copied them down in her programme. Then she would select her horse and, after making a careful choice, would give the money she wished to bet to one of the messenger boys. She bet large sums of money, too. Fifty, seventy-five and a hundred dollars very often on a race. No one could tell by watching her that she had risked any money on the race. She watched the horses as they raced around and after the race, if she had won, she quietly gave her ticket to the boy to be cashed for her. If she lost, she put the worthless ticket away in her bag.

After the races she invariably went down to Manhattan Beach and had dinner. One night I saw her at the hotel there. She had eaten an elaborate dinner, consisting of some of the choicest dishes on the bill of fare and had a bottle of wine. While she was drinking her coffee, she opened the little bag she carried and began to count out her money. The bag was crowded full of bills, and she sorted them out carefully, rolled them up into bundles and put them away again. Then she unbuttoned her dress and took out another roll of bills which were of larger sums—fifty and a hundred dollars each. When she had satisfied herself of the amount she had won she paid her check for the dinner, and, on leaving, tipped the waiter with a five-dollar bill. The waiter had been very attentive to her during her dinner, and as she was leaving he asked her if she had much luck that day. She smiled and said she had done very well. Whether this was an exceptional day or only on average day I do not know.

The ladies are very superstitious and very unimportant things frequently decide them in the choice of a horse in a race.

"I dreamed last night that Eon won, and I invariably back the horse I dream of," said one girl recently.

"How do your dreams turn out?" inquired another.

"I win five times out of six on them," was the reply, and the party then decided to back Eon.

They will even back a horse because they like the looks or color of it or because they happen to have heard something about the jockey. Very often the rider's colors have a great deal to do with their choice, particularly if they themselves happen to be wearing any thing of a similar color. Upon whether an owner's colors are beautiful or not depends a great deal in the female following that his stable has. If he has adopted a combination that makes the women exclaim: "Oh, what pretty colors!" you will be sure that his horse will be backed by some of the fair ones even if it be notorious that they can't run a little bit.

Then there are those young women who want long odds. They would not back a favorite under any circumstances. When they are urged to do so, this is the way they reply:

"Oh, pshaw, what is the good? Supposing he does win, you won't get any thing." And then they put their money on a 100 to 1 chance, devote the time before the race to planning how they are going to spend the money, and finally declare that the race was crooked when their horse comes in last. A cross-eyed woman gives these patrons of the race-course the shakes, and they will plunge into the mud to avoid passing her. If they can do it, they take their hats off, turn them around three times and put them on again. This is supposed to break the hoodoo.

There is not one of them who would risk offending the goddess of fortune by changing a stocking after it is put on wrong side out. That would be fatal. There are several who carry a rabbit's foot about with them and treasure it above their diamonds. They purchase their mascots from the colored people. They have their hoodoos and their Jonahs.

One of the funny sights on the grand stand which are to be seen when the horses are coming down the stretch, is a bevy of excited girls who are novices at the race track. They will actually hold out their hands in front of them and chirrup to an imaginary horse or slap themselves as though they were whipping one. A. F. OLDRIDGE.

"Good sir," said the humorist as he entered the clothing store, "you sell goods for cash only, do you not?"

"One price, C. O. D.," answered the merchant, who was a man of few words.

"Then," replied the humorist, "I shall go over to Hooray's, for he will give me time."

"Nay," replied the merchant; "Hooray's is a cash establishment, also."

"Yes," answered the humorist, smiling, for all had gone well, and now was the time for his joke; "I know it is; but he gives away a stem-winding watch with every suit. Do you not see that I can get time there?"

"You err," said the merchant; "you mistake the watch. Tick you get, but learned little time;" and the humorist departed ill-pleased, while the merchant gazed into space as before.—Puck.

WILL DIE TO-MORROW

Kemmler Will be Executed Before Daybreak.

ALL THE WITNESSES INVITED.

How the Murderer Behaves During His Final Hours on Earth.

The Stories of His Mental Weakness Unfounded—He Eats Heartily and Amuses Himself by Writing—He Does Not Seem Fearful of Death—Three Electricians Will be Present.

AUBURN, N. Y., Aug. 5.—From present indications William Kemmler will be executed between midnight and daybreak to-morrow. Warden Durston said to-day that he had sent invitations to the out-of-town witnesses Friday afternoon before he took his hurried trip to New York, and that these witnesses were to be at the prison at 7 o'clock this evening.

How He Spends His Time.

It can be stated on the most reliable authority that the stories of Kemmler's physical and mental weakness recently published are unfounded. He is as quiet as usual; amuses himself as he has done for months past by practicing his recently acquired accomplishment, writing; eats heartily and sleeps well. Last night he slept like a child. To-day he spent much of his time writing cards, reading from his Bible and talking with his keepers. His spiritual adviser, the Rev. Dr. Houghton, and the chaplain of the prison, Dr. Yates, visited him during the day and spent more than an hour talking to him about the hereafter. He was calm and repeated his professions of faith without apparent emotion. He has heard nothing of the rumors in circulation without, and while he realizes that this is his last week on earth, he does not seem at all fearful of death.

Those Who Will be Present.

Warden Durston has just given out the following list of those who are to be present at the prison this evening to witness the execution: Dr. C. F. McDonald of New York, formerly physician in charge at the State Insane Asylum; Dr. Samuel D. Ward of Albany, Dr. A. P. Southwick of Buffalo, Dr. E. C. Spitzka of New York, Dr. George E. Fell of Buffalo, Dr. C. M. Daniels of Buffalo, Dr. Charles Fowler of Buffalo, Dr. W. F. Jenkins of New York, Louis Balch of Albany, secretary of the State Board of Health; Dr. W. J. Nellis of Albany, Dr. A. Argue of Corning, ex-Senator D. H. McMillan of Buffalo, father of the Electricide bill; Hon. John B. Stansfield of Elmira, Tracey C. Becker of Buffalo, referee in the Kemmler trial; Robert Dunlap of New York and C. R. Huntley of Buffalo, expert electricians. The following persons have been notified according to law to be present in their official capacity: Geo. B. Quinby, district attorney of Erie County; Oliver A. Jenkins, sheriff of Erie County; Judge Henry A. Childs of the Supreme Court, who sentenced Kemmler.

The fact that the name of Electrician Barnes of Rochester does not appear in Warden Durston's official list has excited some comment. The warden is thought to be much annoyed by the publication of the interview with Mr. Barnes, which appeared yesterday.

Three Electricians Will be on Hand.

Mr. Durston has maintained a strict silence about the arrangements for the execution and it is natural that he should be annoyed at the divulgence of the programme. There are three electricians to be appointed, however, and it is probable Mr. Barnes will be named as the third when the final arrangements are made. Mr. Barnes did not have charge of the early tests of the dynamo as is claimed, but he was present and is intimately acquainted with the machinery and his presence therefore, is desirable.

The Latest Story.

The latest story concerning Kemmler's physical condition put in circulation is to the effect that on July 25 his nerve gave way and for sometime he could eat nothing and wine was given him to sustain his strength; that finally it was necessary to administer morphine to quiet his nerves and put him to sleep; and that on awakening he said that he had had a vision of hell. Whatever truth there may be in this story it is equally true that Kemmler is calm and untroubled to-day and that he sleeps and eats well.

THE CIRCUITS CHANGED.

The Atlantic Baseball Association Declare all Postponed Games Off.

BALTIMORE, Md., Aug. 5.—The managers of the Atlantic Baseball Association clubs held a meeting in this city and the old circuits of the Association were changed.

The Western circuit is now composed of Baltimore, Washington, Lebanon and Harrisburg. The Eastern circuit contains New Haven, Newark, Hartford and Wilmington.

After considerable discussion it was agreed that in order to secure harmony, some of the clubs should play an unequal number of games. According to the new schedule, the different clubs will play the following number of games: Baltimore, 120; New Haven, 125; Newark and Harrisburg, 127; Washington, 128; Lebanon, 128, Wilmington, 129, and Harford, 112. All postponed games have been declared off and provided for in the new schedule.

After the conference the managers indulged in a free conversation and the prevailing sentiment expressed was that the Association would now finish the season without any trouble.

A Young Man Cuts His Throat.

CORRY, Pa., Aug. 5.—William Lyons, a young man of 30 years, committed suicide last night by cutting his throat with a jack-knife, at his home near Columbus village. Lyons had been very despondent for some time.

FOUR MORE BATTLES

The Guatemalan Troops Badly Beaten by the Salvadorians.

A HEAVY LOSS FOR THE FORMER

Colonel Barrera Had His Leg Shot Off and Was Otherwise Injured.

Gladstone Talks About the Outrages in Armenia—King Milan Will Try to Retaliate on Queen Natalie—Kaiser William's Donation to the Poor—The Order of the Black Eagle for Lord Salisbury.

SAN SALVADOR, via La Libertad, Aug. 5.—Four more battles have been fought by the Salvadorians against the Guatemalan troops within the territory of Guatemala.

Eighteen hundred soldiers under the Salvador General Santiago Contreras made an attack on the artillery of General Cayetano Sanchez, with an equal number of Guatemalan troops, about thirty-five miles from Mataquescuintla, in the department of Santa Rosa, about forty-eight miles from the capital city of Guatemala.

Owing to the apparent inaction of the Salvador army during the past few days, General Sanchez had been recalled to the capital of Guatemala to arrange for fortifying that city, and Colonel Manuel Barreaa was left in charge. Barrera and his troops were surprised by the Salvadorians and retreated with a loss of nearly 400 men and nine pieces of artillery, including one heavily mounted 18-pound Krupp gun. Colonel Barrera had his leg shot off and was otherwise seriously injured, so that it is not believed that he will recover.

The Salvador troops lost nearly a hundred men, but, elated with their victory, they continued to pursue the enemy toward Mataquescuintla, where they have their stronghold.

At daylight the Guatemalan troops had been reinforced by additional troops from the capital under General Gabriel Burbano, formerly chief of President Barillas' staff.

General Contreras saw the Guatemalan reinforcements coming along about four miles away, and hastily rallying the Salvadorians he hastened to make another attack on the disabled troops of Barrera. The attack was successful, and the Guatemalan troops beat a hasty retreat till they came up with Burbano's forces.

Two more pieces of artillery was captured by the victorious Salvadorians.

The Guatemalan troops now numbered close upon 2,500 men, and the Salvadorians seeing themselves somewhat outnumbered made a strategic movement toward a little village called Santa Barbara, captured the place without encountering any resistance, threw up earth works, entrenched themselves in the city and despatched couriers for reinforcements to the Salvador frontier where telegraphic communication could be obtained.

The result in the end is two complete victories for the Salvador troops, who are now firmly established on Guatemalan territory, within forty miles from the capital of Guatemala.

The principal Salvador troops, numbering 3,000 men under Generals Martinez and Antonio Ezeta, invaded the Departments Jutiapa and Chiuimula against Generals Solares and Teliez, defeating them in two battles with heavy loss.

The troops are now located on the boundary line between three two departments, about 36 miles from the Salvador frontier.

NATALIE'S ATTACKS.

King Milan Will Try to Retaliate on His Former Queen.

LONDON, Aug. 5.—The publication by ex-Queen Natalie of Servia of the story of the divorce proceedings brought against her by King Milan, together with an account of the flagrant conduct of her husband with Mme. Christich, has greatly exasperated Milan, who is endeavoring to find some means of retaliation.

Natalie also scores the subservient Metropolitan who granted the divorce in spite of the fact that the evidence was wholly in favor of herself, and the probabilities are that another attempt will be made to exclude the ex-Queen from Servia before she gets ready to leave on her contemplated visit to Russia, where, it is understood, she will take up her permanent residence. It is stated that Milan's excesses have greatly impaired his health and alienated many of those who have stood by him in his troubles.

THE ARMENIAN OUTRAGES.

Mr. Gladstone Says Great Britain Should Make Remonstrances.

LONDON, Aug. 5.—In the House of Commons last night Sir James Ferguson stated that the Government had received reports that Armenia was greatly disturbed, but that the Government had no knowledge of any particular outrages. Until the Government was fully informed of the facts it could not make any representations to the Porte.

Mr. Gladstone contended that the Government ought to make remonstrances without delay. The Porte should be notified of the course which England would take toward the Anglo-Turkish agreement if the horrible misgovernment in Armenia continued.

To Mary the Duchess of Manchester.

LONDON, Aug. 5.—The society papers say that Lord Hartington will marry the Dowager Duchess of Manchester, and the statement is made that the time has been set for next April. The marriage will be the result of a mutual attachment of many years duration.

A STRUGGLE FOR LIFE.

The President and Secretary Blaine See Bathers Narrowly Escape Death.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 5.—A dispatch from Cape May says President Harrison and Secretary Blaine, while strolling on the beach, were the witnesses of a struggle for life by several bathers in the surf.

A short distance from the shore in about six feet of water, a raft was anchored, and a number of bathers were amusing themselves by diving off and swimming in on top of the waves as they rolled toward the shore.

It was shortly after 12 o'clock, and the tide was beginning to run out, when an unusually large wave came rushing in. The wave struck the raft and went over it, sweeping some of those on it into the water, while one or two others dived into it.

Mrs. Dimmick, niece of President Harrison, and Miss Florence Hazzard, of Philadelphia, were among the bathers. They were rescued by William Buck and were faint from exhaustion when they reached the shore.

Notwithstanding the imminent danger in which the occupants of the raft were placed, they were finally rescued without the loss of a single life.

Working for Jachne.

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—Over 2,000 names have been signed to petitions for the pardon of ex-Alderman Jachne, who was convicted and sentenced to Sing Sing prison for nine years and ten months for complicity in the Broadway steal. Jachne has been in prison four years and two months, and for that reason, and the other one that he has been the scape-goat for all the alleged boodle aldermen of the board of 1884, because he was the only one of the lot who was consigned to prison for his full term, many persons have signed it.

Narrow Escape.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., Aug. 5.—Lieutenant-Governor Jones had a narrow escape from drowning. While driving near Hooper, six miles from here he decided to drive through the creek instead of over the bridge. The current was quite rapid and the water much deeper than the Lieutenant-Governor thought and he soon found himself completely submerged. He had to make a long and vigorous struggle before he was enabled to reach shallow water.

A Negro's Brutal Crime.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Aug. 5.—Cornelius Brown, a negro, is in jail here charged with having committed a rape on Miss Sarah I. Stevens, of Wappingers Falls, by whose brother Brown was employed. The negro knocked Miss Stevens down, and besides, tearing her clothing almost completely from her body, lacerated the lady's right leg from the hip to the knee.

Brickmakers Hold a Meeting.

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—The Brickmakers Association of New York and New Jersey held a secret meeting lasting several hours at the Astor House. It was learned that no definite conclusion had been reached by the association. The situation remains virtually unchanged.

Death Caused by Gangrene.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Aug. 5.—Capt. Allan Glass, one of the oldest steamboat men on the Hudson river, died in this city, at Vassar Hospital, after a medical operation. The hospital superintendent says that death was caused by gangrene in its worst form and not as a result of the operation.

British Sailors Try to Escape.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 5.—Twenty-four British sailors attempted to escape from their ship by stealing the ship's boat while excursionists were landing. A crew sent in pursuit shot one, cut another's finger with a cutlass, and captured all but three, in the act of landing at the torpedo station.

Two Brothers Drowned.

NORRISTOWN, Pa., Aug. 5.—Willie and Freddie Preston, aged about 9 and 11 years respectively, were drowned at Ambler while bathing in the Wissahickon. The brothers were Girard College boys and were at Ambler for an outing. Their mother resides in Philadelphia.

Resigned on Account of Ill Health.

GREENWICH, Conn., Aug. 5.—Owing to ill health Mr. Hanford Lockwood tendered his resignation as president of the Greenwich Trust, Loan and Deposit Company, and Secretary of State R. Jay Welsh was unanimously elected president in his stead.

A Good Offer to Jack Dempsey.

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—Theo. Peterson, president of the Olympic Club of New Orleans, telegraphed that his club had decided to offer a $4,500 purse for a fight between Jack Dempsey and Bob Fitzsimmons.

A Drummer Kills Himself.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Aug. 5.—Edwin S. Koon, a traveling salesman for a New York hat firm, was found lying dead on the floor of his room at the Windsor Hotel with a bullet hole in his right temple. The pistol with which he committed the deed was found by his side. The coroner's undertaker found $277 in money and a letter addressed to his mother on the dead man's person. The letter stated that the writer was about to end his life because of incurable illness.

Reception to the President.

CAPE MAY, N. J., Aug. 5.—A reception was given last night at the Stockton Hotel to President Harrison and Secretary Blaine by a number of prominent citizens. Many people were present.

A Murderer at Large.

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—Mary Marie, who was shot by her husband, Andrew Marie, Sunday afternoon, died at the Presbyterian Hospital last night. Marie has not yet been arrested.

WASHINGTON TOPICS

The Passage of the Fortification Bill Now Assured.

THE TWO HOUSES COMPROMISE.

The Secretary of War Induced the Committee to Break the Deadlock.

The Kittery Navy Yard Investigation. The Anti-Lottery Bill Taken Up by the Senate Committee—England Presents Secretary Proctor With a Gun—A Number of Congressmen Return to Duty.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—An adjustment of the differences between the two Houses on the Fortification bill is at last practically assured.

When the conferees meet again, probably this afternoon, an agreement may be looked for. The outcome will be a compromise, the Senate agreeing to the House provision appropriating nearly a million dollars for enlarging the facilities at the Watervliet (N. Y.) Arsenal for the manufacture of heavy guns, and the House accepting the Senate amendment appropriating about $3,000,000 for the manufacture of guns by contract with certain modifications.

The final concession will be made by the Senate conferees, for the House members have been willing all along to allow a certain percentage of the guns to be built by contract, provided the Senate would agree to the enlargement of the Government gun factory as originally intended when it was first decided to convert Watervliet Arsenal into a gun foundry. The persuasive arguments of the Secretary of War, which have been used on the recalcitrant members of the Senate committee since his return to the city yesterday, have done much toward breaking the deadlock, which it was feared some days ago might result in the failure of the bill.

The Kittery Navy Yard.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—The House Committee on Rules acted on the resolution introduced on Friday last by Mr. Cummings, of New York, providing for a Congressional investigation as to the necessity for the employment of an additional force of men at the Kittery (Me.) navy yard in Speaker Reed's district prior to and during the Congressional election in September, by agreeing to report a substitute calling on Secretary Tracy for an explanation of his action to be made to the House.

The Anti-Lottery Bill.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—The Senate Committee took up the Anti-Lottery bill prepared at the Postoffice Department and which was reported favorably to the House last week. Some doubt was expressed as to the constitutional right of Congress to interfere with matter entrusted to the mails, and the bill was referred to a subcommittee, consisting of Senators Sawyer, Mitchell and Reagan, for examination and report.

A Present From England.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—Secretary Proctor has received a present of a new Enfield rifle from the English Government as a sample of the style of arms now in use in the British service. It is handsomely encased in a polished wooden box with silver plates and corners and lined with blue velvet. It is the latest magazine pattern, .30 calibre; and weighs about 10 pounds.

Congressmen Return to Duty.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 5.—As a result of the resolution which passed the House, revoking leave of absence, quite a number of members are in their seats who have not been here for some time. Responses received from 160 telegrams sent to absent members, indicate that many more absentees will be here to-morrow, and the prospect is fair for the attendance of a quorum and the transaction of considerable business.

ESCAPED FROM PRISON.

A Notorious Character Cuts His Way Out of a County Jail.

LANCASTER, Pa., Aug. 5.—Nick Ames, a notorious character who has served one or more terms in State prison, and who was again awaiting trial here for burglary, escaped from the county jail with two fellow prisoners.

Having obtained a small saw they managed to cut their way through the bars and gained access to the outside barred windows of the jail. Here, by removing a few bricks, they were free. By means of their blankets they lowered themselves to the ground and escaped. As yet no trace of them has been discovered. Several other prisoners refused to escape. Among them was Henkel, the murderer of Dr Ayres.

Indians Badly Treated.

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—The condition and complaints of ill treatment made by the Indians who have recently returned from Buffalo Bill's and other Wild West shows, now in Europe, has been set forth in a letter sent by Gen. James O'Beirne to Thomas J. Morgan, Commissioner of Indian Affairs, at Washington. General O'Beirne points out the violation of their contracts made by Cody, and other managers, and suggests that an investigation be made by the United States authorities.

Blinded by Lightning.

NORWICH, Conn., Aug. 5.—While Alfred Bliven, of Griswold's, was milking a cow in his barn the building was struck by lightning. The cow and a horse were instantly killed and the barn burned. Bliven has since been unable to see, and a horse that was saved has also gone blind.

MEETING OF PATRIARCHS.

Over 15,000 Uniformed Men to Take Part in the Odd Fellows' Parade.

CHICAGO, Aug. 5.—The first triennial cantonment of the Patriarchs Militant of the I. O. O. F. began here, and will continue every day during the week, with a grand parade Thursday and a variety of exercises on each day and evening.

Up to the present time about 1,000 men have arrived in cantons, with possibly 3,000 civil members and their ladies. John C. Underwood, generalissimo of the Patriarchs, is of the opinion that the cantons taking part in the grand parade Thursday will contain not less than 15,000 uniformed men.

An immense tent has been erected on the inclosure on the lake front, near the Auditorium, where will be held the canton and brigade military contests. Three United States army officers have been invited to take entire charge of the contests.

At 10 a. m. the military council met at the Auditorium and spent several hours discussing the affairs of the Patriarchs Militant.

WARSHIPS CRASH.

Baltimore Bumps the Dolphin and Breaks Her Armor.

BAR HARBOR, Me., Aug. 4.—There was a pretty bad collision between the United States flagship Baltimore and the new cruiser Dolphin just as the flagship was getting under way. The Dolphin was badly dented, and had several of her plates injured.

The Baltimore was signalled to come and drop anchor alongside. She lies now in the harbor.

So that repairs may be made immediately, the Dolphin was ordered to the Brooklyn Navy Yard at once by Secretary Tracy.

Secretary Tracy had arrived at 12 m. A 19-gun salute was given him from the Baltimore. The same salute came also from the Dolphin and Petrel.

Secretary Tracy then inspected the drills on board the warships, in company with visiting statesmen, Senator Manderson, Senator Hale, Congressman Boutelle and Senator Frye.

Flags were flying, bells were ringing and the little village gave its welcome to the head of the Navy in a hearty way.

Secretary Tracy will remain here one week. He has ordered the Baltimore to New York and the Petrel to Portsmouth.

The Cronin Demonstrations.

CHICAGO, Aug. 5.—Rival Irish demonstrations will be held here on August 15, one under the auspices of the Clan-na-Gael and the other conducted by the friends of Dr. Cronin. The anti-Trianglers have adopted an address which scores the friends of Cronin's murderers, and says among other things: "This year the friends and associates of the murderers—the men who stood between the chief murderers and the gallows—have decided to use the proceeds of the Ogden Grove picnic for the benefit of their dupes, so that the tongues that could speak the words that would bring them within the grasp of the law may be kept silent a little longer by delusive hopes.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

William Carey, of Boston, Mass., was held in $5,000 bonds on a charge of assault with attempt to kill Frank E. Cunningham.

The pattern shop of the Wilson Laundry and Machine Company, at Columbia, Pa., was destroyed by fire. Loss, $10,000; insured.

Humphrey Toomey, who was arrested in Boston, Mass., charged with being implicated in the murder of Robert Dunbar, was held without bail.

It is now 127 days since Mrs. Ellen Wuchter, wife of Adam Wuchter, of White Hall, Pa., has tasted a morsel of food or allowed a drop of liquid to pass her lips.

Mrs. Deborah Powers, of Lansinburg, N. J., celebrated the 100th anniversary of her birth, and is still hale and hearty, only her eyesight being impaired. She is the head of the bank of D. Powers & Sons, and is active in its management.

There is to be a balloon ascension at Birmingham, Conn., Aug. 16, the occasion of the Foresters' picnic, and J. H. Collwell, a local undertaker and chief of the Fire Department, announces boldly that he will marry any young woman who will accompany him in the ascent. He is a widower and means business.

Weather Indications.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 5.—For New England: Fair, followed by local thunder showers during the evening; continued warm weather, followed by cooler weather; southwesterly winds.

For Eastern New York and New Jersey: Fair weather, followed by showers and severe local storms during the night.

For Western New York and Western Pennsylvania: Rain; slightly cooler; westerly winds.

Another Pharmacy Coming.

The handsome corner store in the Miller building at Park avenue and Fourth street, has been leased by and is now being fitted for George E. Williams, the Asbury Park druggist. He will still continue his business at the seaside, but will also open in this city at the location mentioned, just such a high class pharmacy as he is noted for keeping.

—Those who want to enjoy ocean's bracing air, the finest of surf bathing, and other pleasures of a popular seaside resort, will procure tickets for the Reform Club excursion to Rockaway Beach, by the magnificent steamer "Grand Republic," next Thursday. Everyone who doesn't want to get left must be aboard the train at 8 o'clock. The day will be one of healthful enjoyment.

THAT NEW THOROUGHFARE.

The Borough Councilmen Interested and Active in the Matter of Opening a Broadway Over the Brook.

An informal meeting of the Street Committee of the North Plainfield Council was called for last evening, to consider the matter referred to in the following message from Mayor Place submitted to the Council at its July meeting.

To the Borough Council:

I desire to call the attention of the Council to the importance of taking some action in connection with the City of Plainfield, in extending Peace street from the city limits through the Borough to such point in North Plainfield as may be deemed advisable.

The question is being seriously talked of by the City authorities, and Mayor Male is anxious that the street should be widened to the city limits, and that the Borough act in harmony with the City to accomplish this highly important improvement.

As to the wisdom of opening Peace street through the Borough—if the City will widen it to the limits, there can be no question. It would add much value to the property adjoining it, making a direct route to and from the depot, and not only this, but those living in that part of the Borough would have much shorter access to the depot and City than they now have.

I am informed that many owners of property, and residents upon the proposed street within the Borough, are very anxious to have it extended, and will render all the aid possible to that end. This improvement possibly could be accomplished with but little, if any, cost to the Borough, and be of great benefit to the property and residents East of Somerset street.

I therefore would recommend that the Street Committee, or a Special Committee, as in the judgment of the Council may seem best, be empowered to investigate this matter, confer with the Plainfield city authorities, and report thereon as soon as practicable.

CHARLES PLACE, Mayor.

July 9, 1890.

Councilman Hegeman and Smalley with the Mayor and Clerk Brokaw, were the only ones present at eight o'clock. Councilman Buckle arrived a few minutes afterwards, and he and Councilman Hegeman adjourned the meeting for one week just before the arrival of Councilman Needham the third member of the Street Committee.

The proposed opening of Peace street is a matter of much importance to all the people of the Borough, and the Committee is desirous of receiving an expression from everyone interested, whether in favor or not. The Boroughites would then have a handsome thoroughfare from station to mountain, and would be compelled no more to pick a way through crowded Somerset street and the dangers of Park avenue. Between Westervelt avenue and Somerset street, a very long distance, there is now no outlet; whereas the cutting of Peace street through would open up frontage, create corner lots, develope a great deal of desirable property now almost worthless, and attract numbers of well-to-do residents.

The Best of the Season.

The races on Saturday at the Plainfield Driving Park included the following: First Race—Woodbrooks Farm "Colonel" Peter Osborn's "Magnetic," and Nat Robbins "Doctor." "Colonel" won both heats in 2.55 and 2.52½. "Magnetic" second, and "Doctor" last.

Second Race—Philip Jenners "Blanche Warwick," Mr. Fosher's bay horse "Foesher" and John Hayes "Andy." "Blanche Warwick" won the first heat in 2.43½, "Andy" second and "Foesher" last. Second heat won by "Foesher in 2.45, "Blanche Wawrick" second and "Andy" last. The concluding heat was won by "Blanche Warwick" in 2.40, "Foesher" second and "Andy" last.

Third Race—O. T. Waring's "Copeland," Woodbrook Farm "Lady Thistle" and M. H. Branden's pacer "Wichita." "Copeland" won both heats, time 2.38½ and 2.37½.

The races were the most exciting of the season, especially the second race. Quite a large crowd present. Good races scheduled for next Saturday.

A Great Novel.

"The Toltec Cup," a tale of the here and now in New York city, by "Nym Crinkle" (A. C. Wheeler), is the latest candidate for public favor.

Mr. Wheeler is a writer of such noted skill and power that there was a tremendous competition for this novel among the New York publishers as soon as it was known that he was writing it, and it was only by paying a higher price than any other publishing house could offer—$10,000—that the Vanderpoole Publishing Company succeeded in obtaining it. This is the largest sum paid for any recent work of fiction.

From the first page to the last, "The Toltec Cup" is intensely dramatic and of thrilling interest. It has a plot whose mysteries cannot be penetrated until its gifted author chooses to disclose them; the course of the story teems with the stirring incidents and episodes of active every-day life in New York. Bound in paper, 75 cents.

"Oh! woman, in thy hours of ease, uncertain, coy, and hard to please." With children hurt, long hours she's spent. Do try Salvation Oil, the liniment.

The vicissitudes of climate are trying to most constitutions, especially to people having impure blood. For all such (and they constitute the majority), the best safeguard is Ayer's Sarsaparilla, the use of which cleanses the blood and strengthens and invigorates the system.

—Jacob Benner was knocked down on Park avenue, this morning, by a horse and phaeton belonging to Counselor Wm. M. Stillman. He rolled out of harm's way and thus escaped being run over.

OUR YOUNG FOLKS

SAVAGE ARMOR.

Some Queer Garbs That Are Worn by War-Like Tribes.

In the Central Pacific Ocean is a small group of islands entirely covered with white coral sand. They are known as the Gilbert Islands, and, almost all sand, yield no good, fresh water; yet the cocoanut palm grows abundantly and beautifully on their almost barren soil.

HELMET.

On this tree the islanders live. Not an inch of it goes to waste, for its wood, leaves, fruit, fibre and sap furnish food, shelter and clothing for the savage inhabitants. The way in which these uncivilized people make their armor and weapons, and equip themselves, almost wholly by the aid of the cocoa-tree, is ingenious and interesting.

They twist the fibre of the outer husk of the cocoanut into a hard, close cord, and weave this into a framework made of the slender, tough midribs of the leaves. This framework forms a round jacket or corselet opening in front and extending up the back, so as to form a flat shield, protecting the head.

That it may fit snugly under the arms, the sides and fronts are cut out, and strong shoulder-braces are made connecting front and back. Such a corselet a bullet, arrow or spear can not easily penetrate, and the warrior wearing a shield so fashioned goes fearlessly to battle. Peculiar patterns are woven into these jackets, to vary according to the different households and villages. Worked in black on a background of yellow—the color of the cocoanut fiber—each design stands out like an old knightly device.

The warrior's hemlet, however, is not made from a tree, but from a fish. This is the porcupine fish, which, when caught, puffs itself up like an angry porcupine almost to bursting, and so remains after being killed. In this state the fish's thin skin, studded with hard, long spines, is dried and then made into the helmet, the tail forming the crest.

Some dried fibers put inside the skin make it fit closely, and this headpiece, together with the high back of the corselet, perfectly protects the back and top of the head. When the warrior prepares for battle he first puts on an under-jacket and leggings of closely-woven cocoa fiber, and then fastens the corselet over this.

He fixes a belt round his waist from which suspends a number of stiff, dry pandamus leaves, which make a queer, rustling noise at the slightest movement. The next and last thing put on is the helmet. But of what good would all this splendid defensive armor be if the warrior had no offensive weapon?

So the native has other means of war in the way of spear, club and short sword. The spears are long and heavy, being made, as are all the other wooden implements, of the outer layer of the cocoanut palm.

There are various kinds of clubs, some pointed at both ends used to hurl at the enemy, and others like a policeman's club slung from the waist. Armed thus from head to foot the Gilbert Island warrior is a terrible foe; but is so only as long as he keeps his enemy at a distance. This, however, he can not do for long, for fierce rage to kill impels him to fight at too close quarters.—Laura Gardiner, in Santa Claus.

Kept His Word.

Eastern Capitalist—Great Stars and Stripes! Is this the site of the new city you persuaded me to help found? Why, it's all bog and swamp.

Western Speculator—Yes, sir. You know I said it would be a second Chicago.—Puck.

BIG LEGAL FEES.

How the Leading Lawyers of New York Tax Their Clients.

The New York Morning Journal gives an account of the fees of some of the ten thousand lawyers of New York and Brooklyn. The following are some of the items: The most widely known and without doubt lucrative law firm in New York is Evarts, Choate & Beaman, with magnificent offices at 153 Wall street. The senior is Senator William M. Evarts, whose active interest during the session of the House is very slight. The Hon. Joseph H. Choate, a host in himself, is the pleader. The firms earnings are said to be $500,000 annually. Mr. Choate's fees are enormous. The next in importance is Tracy, McFarland, Boardman & Platt, with offices at 35 Wall street. The senior is Secretary of the Navy, Benjamin F. Tracy, the "counsel." Mr. Frank H. Platt is a son of Senator Thomas C. Platt, while A. B. Boardman is well known as a constitutional lawyer. The clever William M. Ivins has recently allied himself with this firm, which has been interested in the attempt to overthrow Tammany Hall. William W. McFarland is the other partner. The firm's business is, by good judges, said to be worth $400,000 annually. Coudert Brothers have a monopoly on the French business. The firm is Charles and Frederick R. Coudert, and its income is not far from $350,000. Its practice is by no means confined, and is very general in its character. The firm of Bangs, Stetson, Tracy & Mac Veagh, of which Grover Cleveland is a recent acquisition, has an income of $300,000. Mr. Cleveland has become a great drawing card, and to him are referred the many big cases, requiring great research. Seward, Da Costa & Guthrie devote their attention almost exclusively to corporation law. Clarence Seward, the head, seldom practices other than in the United States courts. The firm's income is between $250,000 and $300,000. Colonel Robert G. Ingersoll has one of the largest individual practices in New York. It is said of him that he will not accept a retainer of less than $500, with fees running high into the thousands. Colonel Ingersoll is one of the most approachable of the heavy legal lights. His earnings with his pen and legal knowledge are between $75,000 and $100,000 a a year. Daniel Dougherty, the "silver-tongued," has two offices, one in New York, the other in Philadelphia. His income is not far from $50,000. The largest firm which devotes a large part of its time to the practice of criminal law is that of Howe & Hummel. William F. Howe, the melter of jurymen's hearts, attends exclusively to the criminal end, while little Abe Hummel delves into the intricate questions of civil practice. Between them they divide $100,000 annually.

LESSON IN POLITENESS.

How a Professor Rebuked a High-Strung Boston Damsel.

The late Prof. Morren related once in our hearing a rebuke which he gave to a high-strung Beacon Hill damsel, which is worth repeating for the moral it carries, says the Boston Courier. The young lady was one of his pupils and made herself particularly obnoxious by her haughty and even insolent bearing, displaying her contempt for all about her so markedly that it became at last unbearable.

"I knew her mother in France," said the professor, whose broken English there is no need of producing here, "and she was a most exquisitely modest and unassuming woman. But the daughter was so insolent that she had to have a lesson; so I said to her:

"'Will you be so good as to remain after the lesson? I have something to tell you.'

"She stand, and in her haughtiest manner she said: 'You wish to speak to me?'

"'Yes. You are Miss So-and-So?'

"'Yes.'

"'And you live at No. — Beacon street?'

"'Yes.'

"'And your father is Mr. So-and-So?'

"'Yes.'

"'And your mother is the lovely and sweet Mrs. So-and-So I have met in France?'

"'Well?'

"'Oh,' I said, 'you are sure there is no mistake?'

"'No mistake! What do you mean?'

"'I am exceedingly surprised that you come of such a family, and so well-born.'

"'Sir!'

"'I am much surprised. I have been sure you came of a new rich family some parvenu —'

"'Sir!'

"'You think, mademoiselle,' I said, softening my manner, 'that haughtiness is aristocratic? Now, you will pardon an old man if I remind you that the contrary is true. I have known your mother so long that I dare to be frank with you. You have been very insolent in the class.'

"'Insolent, monsieur?'

"'Yes, mademoiselle. You have mistaken this for a mark of aristocracy. You would much better copy your mother, your gentle, lady mother.'

"And I made her my best bow and left her to think about it. And she was a good girl afterward; a very good girl."

Robbing Country Towns.

The country towns most subject to visitation by burglars are those which lie on the line of several railroads, and are thus in communication with many different places by various routes. The "cracksmen" arrive from the city by the latest train at night, after the residents are most of them asleep. They have four, five or six hours for their nefarious work, and the earliest trains in the morning take them away with their plunder, before the good people of the town have fairly waked up. It is also to be noted that towns thus abundantly provided with railroad facilities are likely to be prosperous and therefore attractive to thieves. In all places so situated the police should be particularly watchful at and above the various railway stations. Indeed the inhabitants really need just as much police protection as the dwellers in our large cities.

That distension of the stomach which many feel after eating, may be due to improper mastication of the food; but, in most cases, it indicates a weakness of the digestive organs, the best remedy for which is one of Ayer's Pills, to be taken after dinner.

Women Who Make the Best Wives.

Members of a Boston debating society have almost come to blows over the question, "What women make the best wives?" Culture was claimed by many to be the first essential, love and fidelity the second, and knowledge of household duties and ability to properly perform them, the third. None of the debaters, however, thought to add that very necessary qualification—health—without which a wife is far from perfection. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription will renew the hue of youth in pale and sallow cheeks, and infuse new vitality into a wasting body. "Favorite Prescription" is the only medicine for women, sold by druggists, under a positive guarantee from the manufacturers, that it will give satisfaction in every case, or money will be refunded. This guarantee has been printed on the bottle-wrapper, and faithfully carried out for many years.

Run Down by a British Steamer.

NEW YORK, Aug. 5.—A dispatch was received at the Maritime Exchange announcing that the United States mail steamship Rio de Janeiro, bound from San Francisco to Hong Kong and Yokohama, while at anchor at the port of Yokohama was run into by the British steamship Aggra and seriously damaged. The passengers were taken ashore in the boats and the Rio de Janeiro was towed to her dock and in a sinking condition.

Quarreled Over Chickens.

SCOTTDALE, Pa., Aug. 5.—During a quarrel at a mining town named Broadford, near here, a German named Hawk had his head split open and his skull badly fractured by a hatchet, and was shot twice through the legs by another German named Kaus. Hawk will hardly recover. They quarrelled over some chickens that had been frequenting the other's garden.

Rheumatism,

BEING due to the presence of uric acid in the blood, is most effectually cured by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Be sure you get Ayer's and no other, and take it till the poisonous acid is thoroughly expelled from the system. We challenge attention to this testimony:—

"About two years ago, after suffering for nearly two years from rheumatic gout, being able to walk only with great discomfort, and having tried various remedies, including mineral waters, without relief, I saw by an advertisement in a Chicago paper that a man had been relieved of this distressing complaint, after long suffering, by taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla. I then decided to make a trial of this medicine, and took it regularly for eight months, and am pleased to state that it has effected a complete cure. I have since had no return of the disease."—Mrs. R. Irving Dodge, 110 West 125th st., New York.

"One year ago I was taken ill with inflammatory rheumatism, being confined to my house six months. I came out of the sickness very much debilitated, with no appetite, and my system disordered in every way. I commenced using Ayer's Sarsaparilla and began to improve at once, gaining in strength and soon recovering my usual health. I cannot say too much in praise of this well-known medicine."—Mrs. L. A. Stark, Nashua, N. H.

DECENCY AND DISCIPLINE UPHELD.

THE COMMON COUNCIL FINALLY EXPEL OFFICER CAREY FROM THE POLICE FORCE.

All of the Big 6 Show by Their Votes Their Disapproval of Obscenity, and Insubordination, While the Little 4 Express Their Love of the Vulgar for Politics Sake.

Tunis J. Carey was dismissed from the Plainfield police force last night in disgrace. The Police Board reported to the Common Council his insubordination in refusing to do his duty as a regular policeman, together with his obscene and profane abuse of members of the Police Board and Common Council, and by a vote of six to four the ex-Captain was removed utterly from the office under whose cloak he has done such discreditable things.

In spite of the evidence, sworn to under oath, saluting their own ears, three members of the Council saw fit to pass encomiums on Carey's righteousness.

As soon as the motion to expel Carey from the force was before the Council, Mr. Jenkins took the floor and asserted that Carey had been used in a mean manner by members of the Council. To such a remark Councilman Hetfield objected, holding that one member had no right to make improper reflections on the others. President Moffett also considered the remarks of Dr. Jenkins unparliamentary, and called him to order. But the speech of Councilman Jenkins was not to be curbed.

"Carey ought to be continued in office as Captain of Police," he said. "He was a good, honest, straightforward officer. The City of Plainfield owes him the place. His dismissal is a put-up job all the way through. Carey was a good, straightforward Republican. The Board of Police was composed of Democrats. They ousted Carey to get a Democrat in his place."

Councilman Hetfield arose in a blaze of indignation.

"I had not intended saying anything on this motion," he said, "but I must answer such a charge as this. To say that the Police Board has been actuated or is actuated by political motives is nonsense. That the Police Board is Democratic is true, but at its first meeting whom did it appoint as Police Captain but Republican Tunis J. Carey? And whom have they appointed as Carey's successor but Geo W. Grant, as good a Republican as the worthy Councilman himself."

Mr. Hetfield had no sooner made his answer to Dr. Jenkins than Councilman Dunham drew himself together, mopped the perspiration from his beaming countenance, heaved a heavy sigh, and delivered himself of his little speech.

"I," said he, "I am opposed to the dismissal of Mr. Carey. Plainfield will hunt a good while before it succeeds in getting a man to fill his place. I know I am in the minority, but he was true; he was conscientious. I shall stand by him."

The expectant auditors seemed to think this but the exordium of a lengthy discourse, but after sighing heavily again Mr. Dunham said no more, and slowly sat down.

Councilman Rushmore evidently forgot himself for a moment and imagined himself in camp meeting, for he began in a solemn, sepulchral tone to speak about bearing "testimony."

Three gentlemen of dilapidated appearance on the back seat began to reach for their hats, but as Mr. Rushmore corrected himself and said nothing about bearing evidence to the blessings of temperance and religion, which was what they seemed to dread, they remained to hear him through.

"I wish to add my opinion," said Mr. Rushmore, "to the opinions already expressed. The charges against Mr. Carey are such as have arisen from personal motives. Eventually he will be sustained, will prevail with the right. I protest against these proceedings."

Then speech-making was at an end, and the voting that counts was begun.

The six votes for Carey's dismissal were those of Councilmen Gallup, Hetfield, Moffert, Roberts, Smith and Spangenberg. Councilmen Dunham, Jenkins, Johnson and Rushmore voted no. Councilman Newhall was absent.

On motion of Mr. Hetfield the City Clerk was instructed to notify Carey of his dismissal from the force.

The following is a copy of the document which was read before the Council and which resulted in a motion being made for Carey's expulsion:

To the Common Council of the City of Plainfield:

According to the provisions of the ordinance of the said City of Plainfield, entitled "An Ordinance to regulate the Appointment and Tenure of Office of Appointable officers," as amended, and the act of the Legislature entitled "An Act to Amend Section One of the Act entitled 'An Act Respecting Police Departments of Cities, and Regulating the Tenure and Terms of Office of Officers and Men Employed in Said Department,'" approved March 25, 1885, providing that if any member of the police force of any city who shall be absent from duty, without just cause, for the term of five days, shall, at the expiration of said five days, cease to be a member of such police force; in pursuance of the above laws the present Captain of Police, George W. Grant, reported to the Police Board as follows:

"PLAINFIELD, July 8, 1890.

"To the President and Members of the Police Board:

"GENTLEMEN:—Inasmuch as the three months' suspension of ex-Captain of Police, Tunis J. Carey has expired, and as he has not yet reported for active service, I deem it my duty under the Police Board rules and regulations to report the matter to your honorable body.

"GEORGE W. GRANT,
"Captain of Police."

And also in pursuance of the above notice the Board caused a notice to be served on Tunis J. Carey, the following of which is a true copy:

"To Tunis J. Carey:

"You are hereby notified to appear before the Police Board of the City of Plainfield at the office of Walter L. Hetfield, No. 18 Park avenue, in the city of Plainfield, on Saturday evening, July 12, instant, at 8 o'clock, and show cause, if you have any, why you should not be removed from the police force of the city of Plainfield because of failure or neglect to perform police duty since the first day of July 1890. Done by order of the Board of Police on the eighth day of July 1890.

"WALTER L. HETFIELD, Sec'y.

"Dated July 9, 1890."

The last above notice is marked Exhibit A.

The Board of Police met at the office of Walter L. Hetfield, pursuant to notice, and the following is a true copy of the minutes of the meeting of said Board held on the said twelfth day of July 1890.

"JULY 12, 1890.

"The Police Board of the City of Plainfield met at the office of their Secretary, Walter L. Hetfield, No. 18 Park avenue, pursuant to adjournment. Messrs. Roberts, Moffett, Spangenberg and Hetfield were present. The minutes of the last meeting were approved as read. Chairman Roberts inquired from Mr. Carey why he had not reported for duty on July 1, and he replied that it was none of his —— —— business. Foster Voorhees, Esq., was present with Mr. Carey as counsel; he stated that he was not his regular counsel, and asked for an adjournment.

"It was moved that Mr. Carey be requested to state before the Board why he had not returned to regular police duty on July 1. The motion was carried. Mr. Carey through his counsel declined to make any statement.

"Mr. Voorhees was shown the written charge of Captain George W. Grant.

"Mr. Thomas McCue being duly sworn according to law on his oath said that he was one of the regular policemen of the City of Plainfield. I served a notice, he continued, on Tunis J. Carey on Thursday, June 10, 1890, of which Exhibit A is a copy, between twelve and one o'clock in the day. Mr. Carey told me when I served the paper that Mr. Hetfield could —— —— ——, and that he, Mr. McCue, could take it back and tell Mr Hetfield to —— —— —— with it, [using the vilest and most indecent of language.]

"George W. Grant being duly sworn according to law on his oath said: I am Captain of Police of the City of Plainfield. As such Captain it is the duty of the regular policemen of the city to report to me for duty at the station house twice a day. Mr. Tunis J. Carey has not reported to me for police duty on July 1, nor since that time. On account of Mr. Carey's neglect or refusal to do police duty the city is short one policeman. The city has been short one officer since April 1. I have used specials part of the time. I could do it now. I have one on now on half-time, and had them on before July 1. Mr. Carey has not tendered himself ready for duty to me since April 1. I receive my authority as Captain from the Police Board. I presume Mr. Carey received his authority as Captain from the same Police Board. I have received compensation as Captain since April 1. Special policemen receive twenty-five cents an hour for whatever time they make. It is more expense to the city to employ special policemen than to pay a regular officer. There have not been any specials on regular policemen's pay since April 1.

"Testimony was declared closed.

"Mr. Voorhees on behalf of Mr. Carey declined or refused to show any cause, but presented written objections, which were received and ordered placed on file, and marked Exhibit B, as follows:

"Mr. Carey now objects at the close of the case against him, as he did before the opening thereof, to the proceedings of the committee in the matter, on the ground of want of jurisdiction, illegal constitution and irregular method of procedure of the Committee so far as the subject matter of the notice is concerned and the action thereunder contemplated, and hereby tenders himself, as he has heretofore tendered himself ready at all times to perform the duties of his office.'

"Mr. Hetfield inquired to what office he referred in his objections, and Mr. Voorhees said that he decined to state.

"It was moved that Mr. Tunis J. Carey be found guilty by this Board of absenting himself from police duty, and refusing to perform regular police duty since July 1, instant, to the present time, without any cause shown by him.

"Mr. Roberts voted aye; Mr. Moffett, aye; Mr. Spangenberg, aye; Mr. Hetfield, aye. Carried.

"It was moved, that this Board deem that the charge of Mr. Carey absenting himself from regular police duty for the space of five days, justifies his dismissal from the police force of the City of Plainfield, and that this Board so report in writing to the Common Council at its next meeting.

"Mr. Roberts voted aye; Mr. Moffett, aye; Mr. Spangenberg, aye; Mr. Hetfield, aye. Carried.

"It was moved and carried that we adjourn subject to the call of the chairman.

"WALTER L. HETFIELD, Secretary."

We, the Police Board of the City of Plainfield, do most respectfully report to your honorable body that the charge of Tunis J. Carey absenting himself from duty for the space of five days and longer, without any cause shown when an opportunity was offered him, has been duly proved; and in our opinion, and under the laws, such absence justifies his dismissal from the police force of the City of Plainfield,

D. S. ROBERTS,
E. D. MOFFETT,
L. SPANGENBERG,
WALTER L. HETFIELD.

Dated August 4, 1890.

The rest of the business of the session was mainly routine work. Several important matters were left unfinished till the next meeting, Tuesday, August 12. Among the matters concluded before adjournment was the consideration of the resignation of Eugene A. Laine from the police force, which was accepted, and the investigation concerning the $200 submitted to Tunis J. Carey for use in the detection of illegal liquor selling. A correspondence between Carey and Corporation Counsel Craig A. Marsh was submitted, showing that Carey had expended $73.50 "in detective work," and had on demand given a check for the balance, $126.50, to the City Treasurer. The papers in the case, together with an essay by Carey on the secret service, were placed on file.

The sixth report of progress of the Plainfield Water Works was made by Supervising Engineer, Rudolph Hering. The mains and branches connecting the twenty wells, the report stated, were all in position. All the work connected with the wells would soon be finished. The foundations for the building and chimney of the pumping station had been laid, and a site was being chosen for the tank reservoirs. The pipes and castings for the street mains were to be ordered in a very short time.

A resolution was adopted that the City Treasurer be instructed to demand of the Water Works company the $2,000 due for the months of July and August.

The Street Committee reported that they considered that the widening of Peace street, as suggested, would be a great public benefit, and recommended the appointment of a commission to assess damages that would result to property holders if the frontage of their property was abbreviated for street purposes. The matter was tabled.

The street roller at present used by the city was reported too light for Plainfield service, and bids for a new heavy roller were presented. The bid of the Pond Machine Tool Company offered a superior machine at by far the lowest figures, and was accepted.

The "Plainfield Street Railway Company" requested and received the privilege of inserting in their application for a franchise, a proviso that they use electric power.

The Board of Engineers of the Fire Department was empowered to employ three men at $10 per week each, to care for and drive the new horses.

Councilman Dunham moved that Corporation Counsel Craig A. Marsh be granted a month's vacation. Mr. Marsh had already reported that he had taken a vacation and had left his city business in charge of John H. Jackson, but the Council made Mr. Dunham happy by permitting his motion to prevail.

August H. Krohne, of Stebbins place, Michael F. Watson of Grant avenue, and Matthew Kilpatrick of West Sixth street applied for "quart" liquor licenses.

Councilman Rushmore said that charges had been made against these applicants that they had been selling without licenses, and moved that the Law and Ordinance Committee investigate.

Councilmen Smith held that no investigation could be made unless the charges were specific. Mr. Rushmore's motion was not seconded.

The ordinance compelling wheelmen to display lighted lanterns or ring a bell continuously while riding the city streets at night, was found to be defective because no penalty was attached, and was found to require a physical impossibility in insisting that the lighted lanterns should be seen from all sides, and was referred back to second reading for correction. It was jocosely suggested that the Corporation Counsel, who rides a wheel himself, had been careful to omit the penalty feature purposely.

The ordinance fixing Street Commissioner Robert A. Meeker's yearly salary at $1,500 was adopted on final passage.

The ordinance to grade and macadamize Belvidere avenue, making it an excellent driveway, was adopted on final passage. Councilman Jenkins wanted to know why the ordinance didn't bob up till after the work of grading and macadamization was all done, but he voted for the ordinance all the same.

In his preambulations as a physician Councilman Jenkins had run across an electric light way out in the meadows back of Broadway, and an investigation was ordered preparatory to having the light placed where it would do more good.

Their Only Woman Professor.

A portrait of Mrs. P. L. McClintock, a former Plainfielder, is given prominence in the Tribune yesterday, and the following sketch concerning her is published.

Among the public lecturers at Chautauqua there are almost as many women as men. But the only woman professor at the college is Mrs. P. L. McClintock, and her branch is one of the most difficult. She teaches Anglo-Saxon and beginning Old English, and any morning you can see this tall and graceful lady showing a class of young men and women how to make music out of King Alfred's baffling array of consonants or to discover the poetry hidden away in the mysterious pages of Beowulf. This is her fifth Summer at Chautauqua. She makes a special study of Anglo-Saxon with reference to English, and deals with phonology and grammar. Her pupils read 1,200 lines of Beowulf during the six weeks of the Assembly, which is as much as ordinary students accomplish in the regular college year. The poem is considered as literature, as a story, as a description of early life and character, and with reference to the historical development of language. A class in Chaucer has also been formed, and a class in Middle English will probably follow. Mrs. McClintock is enthusiastic over her favorite study and says she almost feels that no teacher of English to children has the right point of view for himself or them unless he has studied the language historically. She was led to teach Anglo-Saxon by an accidental vacancy in a college that she was called on at short notice to fill. Most of the Anglo-Saxon teachers in the country, by the way, have come from the Southern States—a result due immediately to Thomas Jefferson's establishment of a chair of English at the University of Virginia.

Mrs. McClintock was born in Kentucky and was educated at the Millersburg College and at Wellesley. She has taught at Millersburg, and is now at Wells College, Aurora, N. Y. She is a successful teacher by correspondence, and has conducted Anglo-Saxon classes in the United States and Canada, while tramping through the Lake country in England. She is an accomplished and thoughtful conversationalist and an agreeable lecturer.

Pleasant to the taste, surprisingly quick in effect and economical in price—no wonder that Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup is the leading preparation of its kind.

THE WHIPPING POST.

Romans Used the Lash More Than Any Other Nation.

Whipping in Queen Elizabeth's Time—Flagellation in France and Holland—Use of the Rod in Russia and the Orient.

The first mention of whipping as a punishment occurs in the fifth chapter of Exodus, where we find that Pharaoh whipped the officers of the Israelites when they did not furnish the required number of bricks which they were compelled to make every day.

In ancient times, says a writer in American Notes and Queries, the Romans carried whipping as a punishment farther than any other nation, and their judges were surrounded with an array of divers kinds of whips well calculated to affright the offender who might be brought before them. The mildest form of whip was a flat leather strap called the ferula, and one of the most severe was the flagellum, which was made of plaited ox hide and almost as hard as iron.

From ancient times the use of whipping can be traced through the Middle Ages down to, comparatively speaking, more modern times, when it is easier to find record of the use of the rod.

In Queen Elizabeth's time the whipping-post was an established institution in almost every village in England, the municipal records of the time informing us that the usual fee to the executioner for administering the punishment was "four pence a head." In addition to whipping being thought an excellent corrective for crime, the authorities of a certain town in Huntingdonshire must have considered the use of the lash as a sort of universal specific as well, for the corporation records of this town mention that they paid eight-pence "to Thomas Hawkins for whipping two people yt had the small-pox."

In France and Holland whipping does not seem to have been so generally practiced. The last woman who was publicly whipped in France by judicial decree was Jeanne St. Remi de Valois, Comtesse de la Motte, for her share in the abstraction of that diamond necklace which has given point to so many stories.

In connection with the history of flagellation in France may be mentioned the custom which prevailed there (and also in Italy) in olden times of ladies visiting their acquaintances while still in bed on the morning of the "Festival of the Innocents," and whipping them for any injuries, either real or fancied, which the victims may have done to the fair flagellants during the past year.

Among the Eastern nations the rod in various forms played a prominent part, and from what we read China might be said to be almost governed by it. Japan is singularly free from the practice of whipping, but make up for it by having a remarkably sanguinary criminal code.

Russia is, however, par excellence a home of the whip and the rod, the Russians having been governed from time immemorial by the use of the lash.

Many of the Russian monarchs were adepts in the use of the whip, and were also particularly ingenious in making things unpleasant for those around them. Catherine II. was so particularly fond of this variety of punishment (which she often administered in person), that it amounted almost to a passion with her. It is related that she carried this craze so far that one time the ladies of the court had to come to the Winter Palace with their dresses so adjusted that the Empress could whip at once if she felt so inclined.

While the instruments of torture used in Russia were of great variety, the most formidable "punisher" was the knout, an instrument of Tartar origin and of which descriptions differ. In its ordinary form it appears to be a heavy leather thong, about eight feet in length, attached to a handle two feet long, the lash being concave, thus making two sharp edges along its entire length, and when it fell on the criminal's back it would cut him like a flexible double-edged sword. "Running the gantlet" was also employed, but principally in the army. In this the offender had to pass through a long line of soldiers, each of whom gave the offender a stroke with a pliant switch. Peter the Great limited the number of blows to be given to 12,000, but unless it were intended to kill the victims, they seldom gave more than 2,000 at a time. When the offender was sentenced to a greater number of strokes than this, the punishment was extended over several days for the reason above stated.

Whipping, after dropping out of sight for a time in England, was reintroduced in England in 1867, in order to put a check on crimes of violence. The law was so framed that the Judges might add flogging at discretion to the imprisonment to which the offenders were also sentenced. The first instance of this punishment being used was at Leeds, where two men received twenty-five lashes each before entering their five and ten years' penal servitude for garoting. The whip used in this instance was the cat-o'-nine-tails.

The whipping-post is also still used in some parts of this country, notably at New Castle, Del., where the "cat" is still administered for minor offenses. Judging from a whipping that the writer once witnessed, it appears to be a very mild form of punishment.

Co-Operation a Failure.

Co-operation has not been successful in Berlin. Thirty-five co-operative societies have been organized there for manufacturing purposes since 1868. Thirty of them wound up their affairs after an average existence of six years each. Five still exist. The various reasons for discontinuing business were lack of funds, differences of opinion among members and dwindling away of membership.

A Cow with No Pedigree.

A Vermont editor boasts that he has a stub-tailed, one horned cow, with no pedigree, which not only furnished the milk for his family of ten persons last year, but $100 worth which he sold to his neighbors.

She Entertains Us with Odds and Ends of Fashionable Life.

Princess Louise's Walking Stick—Girls Who Can Swim—A Story from Narragansett—The Prettiest Woman in New York—An Entertaining Flirtation.

[COPYRIGHT, 1890.]
[Special Correspondence.]

The Henley shirt is doomed. Four-in-hand scarfs, diamond shirt studs, natty jackets and mannish silk sashes with big buckles will delight the eyes of my dear Four Hundred friends no longer. I have a haunting fear that even the pretty patent-leather top-boots must go, too.

All these jaunty things have had sentence of eternal banishment pronounced upon them by no less a personage than Mrs. Elliott F. Shepard. She says they're loud and fast and not becoming, and that, really, ladylike women—but wait; I'll tell you just exactly what she said.

I got into a Fifth avenue stage the other day after a narrow escape from dislocation of the spine—Fifth avenue stage drivers have a pleasant habit of starting up when you are about half way in. And there I found Mrs. Shepard with a friend. They had come to the city for a day's shopping; and, just as women do who belong to the Four Hundred Thousand they were discussing what they were going to buy.

"I don't object to a silk blouse," said Mrs. Shepard. "Indeed, I think them rather pretty and they are certainly very cool and comfortable. But the Henley shirt and all its appurtenances are to me abominations."

"But the Princess Louise wears one," said her companion, slyly.

"Yes, and she carries a cane, too. But if there is any thing that I dislike more than mannishness, it is the craze for copying every thing that English royalty does. I have an additional reason now for disliking the Henley shirt."

Then the ladies drifted into general fashion talk and Mrs. Shepard's friend asked her if she had ever worn the divided skirt.

"No," said Mrs. Shepard, and she said it in a way that indicated that she never intended to, either. "To be honest," she went on, "I'm not very enthusiastic over dress reforms of any sort. I believe that a sensible woman will, as a rule, dress herself sensibly, and certainly the fashions of the present day allow everybody to exercise their individual taste in the matter of dress."

LOVE'S YOUNG DREAM ON A LONG BRANCH BOAT.

Mrs. Shepard certainly puts her theory into practice, for on this particular morning no one could have been more exquisitely dressed than she. She wore a light, soft silk of dark, rich red, all covered over with a delicate, feathery figure in black. The skirt was plain, save for a graceful drapery of airy, black thread lace. The waist was made surplice fashion, shirred down to a point in front. Her hat was of cream Tuscan with airy trimmings of black gauze. Mrs. Shepard never wears any birds. She is a member of the society of women who have pledged themselves never to wear as an ornament any thing which encourages the slaughter of birds.

I had two or three glimpses of the wife of the Marquis of Lorne while she was here. I think it requires some exercise of the imagination to make oneself believe that she is beautiful. She has the fresh, red and white complexion and abundant, glossy hair of all well-groomed English women. She looks wholesome and good, but her figure is much too stout for grace, and her taste in dress is—well, I don't blame Mrs. Shepard for her remarks.

I am told by those who ought to know that the Princess doesn't go in for silk and lawn and lace underwear; but that she wears wool all the year around, high in the neck and long in the sleeve. If all these things be true one might almost get the impression that American girls haven't Anglomania so badly, after all.

The young ladies from the Berkeley Lyceum who are in the country are profiting by the year's instruction in swimming which they received. It makes them independent. There is no longer any more excuse for the embrace of a manly arm in the water than there is on land. And it gives to them the, perhaps unChristian, but, all the same, delicious knowledge, that the other girls are envious. The Berkeley girls can dive and float and tread water, and deep water has no terrors for them.

Ella Wheeler Wilcox has an aesthetic suit of pale blue. She is quite a diver. I have seen her take a downward plunge from an elevation of twenty feet.

Miss Minnie Hatch is another graceful swimmer. She is taking her plunges at Narragansett pier.

And the mention of Narragansett pier brings to my mind a little story which has been wafted in on the breezes from the romantic pier. It is of a beautiful young girl who had an experience. She is a lesser belle, and lives in a big, old-fashioned country house a few miles back from the coast. In the same house lived a gentleman whom she disliked and whose attentions she scorned.

A PLUNGE AT SUNRISE.

On that fearfully hot Tuesday, which will remain on record as long as records endure, after darkness had come it occurred to the young lady that she would bathe. She went to a little pond—it wasn't big enough to be called a lake—where she had often been before in the daytime. She flattered herself that it was her own individual bathing place. It was a sequestered spot almost hidden by big, friendly old trees. It was so deserted on this hot evening that when she got there it occurred to her that it would be delightful to dispense with the trammel of a bathing suit, for once. So she entered the water in the same condition that Venus is supposed to have come out of it. Scarcely had she done so when she discovered to her horror that the object of her aversion was there before her.

Involuntarily her eyes fell and she saw that the sandy bottom of the pond was plainly visible. Upon that sandy bottom rested her pretty feet. She could see them plainly, and if she could see them, that awful man must have seen them too.

The story winds up with the statement that the young man overcame the young lady's dislike for him and earned her eternal gratitude, by resolutely turning his face away and shutting his eyes while she escaped.

There has been a great deal of discussion from time to time as to who was the prettiest woman in New York. The discussion is rather senseless, it seems to me, for New York is not famous for pretty women. It is the Mecca of handsome men; but a handsome woman is a rare sight. However, I settled the question of supremacy in this line while visiting the other day at Riverdale-on-Hudson. Everybody remembers the story of Miss Morosini and her escapade with a coachman. There is another Miss Morosini and she is handsome. She is more than handsome; she is beautiful.

I saw her in evening dress, a soft white India silk, made in the very simplest style. You might almost have called it a wrapper, made low-necked and sleeveless. It was confined at the waist with a white silk girdle and was worn without an ornament, save a single, great, creamy rose, fastened at the breast. I thought of Tennyson's Alice, who "Went by dale and went by dawn,

With a single rose in her hair."

Miss Morosini has splendid dark eyes and a wealth of blue black wavy hair. Her figure might be modelled, for that of Diana. Of course I offer my opinion for only what it is worth; but I think Miss Morosini is the handsomest woman in New York.

I see the season's moralist has come to the front and has begun to lecture upon the sin and folly of flirting. I may be very wicked, but I think it's a sin to deprive the boys and girls of their bliss of flirtation. I have a firm belief in the old chestnut that "there's nothing half so sweet in life as love's young dream." I got a lot of real, genuine enjoyment the other day, aboard the iron steamer, watching a young couple going down to Long Branch. He was about twenty, and wore a bicycling suit with a natty round jacket. She wasn't so old by a year or two. She wore a girlish costume of pretty foulard, with a Fauntleroy collar of lace and a cunning little soft cap nestling down over her bangs.

TEMPERANCE IN BOSTON.

Howard Fielding Becomes Involved in the Meshes of Reform.

The Chair, the Cracker and the Pickle as Aids to Moderation in the Use of Strong Drink.

[COPYRIGHT, 1890.]
[Special Correspondence.]

In passing through Boston a few days ago I met a middle-aged temperance crank, who claims to be a friend of our family. He called me his dear boy and fractured a few bones in my hand. A great grip has he; and I was glad that my hand wasn't a dollar because in that case he never would have let go.

"You haven't been in Boston lately," said he, "and doubtless you notice and are delighted with the change."

"I am delighted to find that by living in some other town I'm able to have a little change in my pocket," said I. "Boston is not what you'd call remunerative to a young man."

"Ha! ha!" said the temperance crank, in metallic accents. He is one of those men who greet a modest attempt of that kind with the hearty and jovial note of approbation affected by the laughing hyena when he finds a new corpse in the desert. "That isn't the change I was speaking of," he continued, "though it amounts to the same thing in the long run. I refer to the new law regulating the liquor traffic."

I thanked him for supposing that I must have learned all about it in the fifteen minutes since I arrived. In fact, I had read about it in the papers, as most people have done, but had not thought much about it.

"A great law, that," said he; "a great step forward in the cause of temperance. But, of course, it is only a step; we shall go further. We are too lenient with the saloon-keeper.

"I believe in temperance, sir, and I would have it even if we had to call out the militia and shoot the neck off every bottle in the city. We haven't punishments enough. We don't stick closely enough to the one great cause of temperance in all things. I'd have every liquor dealer hanged, sir; hanged on Boston common where our forefathers first showed how to resist tyranny. Down with the saloon power."

"It is hard to make the mass of the people coincide with these moderate and reasonable views," said I.

"Yes, unfortunately it is," he admitted, "and the more's the pity. Why, sir, any man who fails to deposit his ballot in favor of temperance legislation ought to be whipped to the ballot-box with raw hides, and his children disfranchised to the third and fourth generation.

FIELDING GIVES A TEMPERANCE LECTURE.

"But you ought to see Tim Noonan's place since the new law went into effect," he continued, brightening up. "It's changed wonderfully. You used to see crowds of men hanging over his bar, but they can't do it now. We have a grating up in front of every bar, and the men who want to drink must sit down at little tables. Let's walk by Tim's place. I like to have him see me for it must make him rave. I've been an humble instrument in the hands of the Lord in this reform; yes, blast me if I haven't, and nobody else has been anywhere alongside of me."

We walked down toward Tim's place, and I couldn't help feeling sorry for him, in spite of my naturally strong principles against over-indulgence. Graves, the crank, led the way into the place, much to my surprise, and took a seat at one of the tables. Then he turned round and glared at Tim, who stood behind the grating which guarded the bar.

Tim, contrary to my expectations, was looking very well. He had gained ten pounds or so of flesh, and wore rather better clothes than in the old days. His saloon was much more handsomely fitted up. He remembered me and nodded cordially.

Immediately, a long, thin female who looked ridiculously like the typical Boston "blue-stocking," brought a plate of crackers and a dish of cucumber pickles, and placed them on the table between Graves and me. Graves bit a cucumber in two, and I thought that the milder acid of the pickle softened his expression into something like a smile.

"I suppose we ought to buy something," said I. "It is hardly right to use his chairs for nothing."

"I would not add to the profits of his nefarious business," said he.

"Then have a glass of water," I replied, "and I will take a whisky cocktail for medicinal purposes. I have had a bad night on the boat."

Whether by mistake or the promptings of Tim Noonan, the waiter brought two cocktails, and set one before Graves, whose wrath was something fearful to witness, and was mollified only when I drank the two cocktails in order to get them out of his sight.

There were not many people in the place. Four men sat at a table near us, and were ordering drinks in turn. As they had forgotten where the rounds began they would probably go on indefinitely, trying to make the thing come out even—at least, that was the explanation which Tim whispered in my ear. In a corner sat a man with his head on the table. Several young clerks had dropped in for a hasty glass of something cooling—for the day was very hot—and having met friends were chatting comfortably at the tables, while their employers doubtless wondered where they were.

I was just rising to leave the saloon, when who should appear but my old friend Tom Banks. I hadn't seen him for years. We greeted each other affectionately, and then I introduced Graves.

"Won't you and Mr. Graves have something?" asked Tom, summoning a waiter. Graves scowled, and I excused him to Tom, but of course, after that, I had to order something myself. I took a mild punch, for I am not a man who indulges in strong drink.

Under the new Boston rule it takes longer than formerly to get served, for the waiter has to run around the grating and tell the bar-keeper, and go through a lot of rigmarole before the drink is ready. However, I did not begrudge the time, for otherwise I should not have met a very pleasant fellow named Frank Smith, who dropped in just as we were ready to leave. I used to know Frank well, and I was really very glad to meet him.

"How are you, old boy?" said I. "Draw up a chair and let's have a good look at you."

"Meanwhile I'll order something for the party," said Frank. "Mr. Graves?

FIELDING AND FRIEND GO HOME.

Pleased to meet you, Mr. Graves; what'll you have?"

Graves wouldn't have any thing, but the rest of us had a little claret with mint.

"You're qui' right 'bout it, Mizzur Graves," said I. "A Bos'on s'loon's a different place now."

"It's a heap more cosy and comfortable," said Tom. "Hello, here's Billy Webster; you used to know him, Howdy, didn't you?"

"Know Billy? Well, I sh'ay I did. Come 'long, Billy, an' moisten your epiglosh—epigloshis—epiglottis. Had it right in my throat all time, but somehow couldn't get it out."

Billy always has money sticking out of all his pockets, and he ordered a bottle of champagne. Graves took another cucumber pickle.

"'Shu shay, Tom," said I, "'s a heap more comfo'ble drinking this way than kicking toes off un'er a bar. Gen'lemen, 'low me to introduce Mizzur Graves. Mizzur Graves 's the man who ins'tuted this reform. All drink to Mizzur Graves."

By the time that Billy's bottle was empty several more friends had dropped in. I couldn't really say how many. Sometimes I thought that there were five and then again there appeared to be ten, so I ventured to put the inquiry: "How many are you of there, anyhow?" whereat everybody laughed. A good many people seemed to be laughing all about me, and I was on the point of getting offended when Billy said: "Sit down, Howdy; it is the effect of the new law."

The next thing I remember Mr. Graves was bundling me into a herdic, and we were riding down Tremont street. I was just preparing to go to sleep when an express wagon knocked the hind wheels off our conveyance, and I went out through the back window, which I understand was only seven-by-nine in dimensions. Graves picked me up and braced me against a lamp-post, where for a few moments I stood, and took great pleasure in pointing him out to the passers-by as the philanthropic citizen who had supplied all the saloons with chairs. Then all is a confusion of crooked sight and twisted legs, and the horror of Graves as he passed his fellow laborers in the cause of temperance, all of whom appeared to have turned out especially for that occasion. It was too much for his generosity and he finally abandoned me to the fate which he had been so largely instrumental in bringing upon me. Fortunately I made out a familiar hotel near by and in it I succeeded in sleeping off the effects of the only indiscretion of the kind that I was ever guilty of.

I have just finished a brief note to Mr. Graves which contains, I hope and trust, a strong presentation of my views on temperance legislation.

A TREE grows round instead of square or any other shape because there is nothing in nature on the square, except the forms of some crystalline minerals. A circle is the shortest way around, and as trees grow from a common center, a circle becomes a natural sequence in their outward form.

IT is proposed to use the spectroscope to determine whether cesspools, stables, etc., drain into neighboring wells. A solution of carbonate of chloride of lithium is poured into the suspected sources of pollution in the neighborhood, and after a week or so the well water is examined spectroscopically for lithium, which can thus be detected even if the water holds in solution less than one pint to a million.

THE average reader is scarcely aware of the changes in the map of Africa made necessary by recent explorations. The great globe of the Paris exposition was twice altered during its construction, to accommodate itself to changes, and it is said that two years ago some Belgian map makers were five times compelled to take from the press a large map of the Congo State for additions and corrections.

NEVADA has what are termed "traveling stones." They are described as being perfectly round, about as large as a walnut and of an ivory nature. When distributed about on the floor, table or other level surface, within two or three feet of each other, they at once begin to move toward each other until they meet in a common center, and there lie huddled in a bunch. They are largely composed of magnetic iron ore.

A RUNNING board for the top of cars has been invented, its purpose being to prevent the brakemen from falling off the cars. Railings run from one end of the car to the other in the center, other railings leading from the side ladders. Between these railings a man might walk with safety, the slipping outwardly of the feet being prevented by a skirting rail at the feet of the upright rail posts. The running board extends over the end of each car so as to closely approach a similar extension on the opposing car.

A LEADING fire commissioner advances the suggestion that electricity will soon take the place of steam in fire engines, and that the question of getting an engine of the greatest water-throwing capacity to the fire with the greatest celerity will be solved by electricity. Substitute for the steam power of any modern engine, stored electricity or electric power, conveyed to each hydrant, making of your engine a pump on wheels, and you have lightness itself as regards weight, with almost unlimited power for throwing water. This will be the fire engine of the future as he sees it.

SCARLET FEVER.

How It May Be Prevented—Some Suggestions That Should Be Carefully Read and Remembered.

At a recent meeting of the American Pediatric Society in New York Dr. J. Lewis Smith, the president of the society, read a paper on a part of the general discussion on "How to Prevent Diphtheria and Scarlet Fever." The micro-organism of scarlet fever had not been positively ascertained, but its effects were known from clinical observation. The contagiousness probably did not cease until after desquamation had passed, and it had been said the discharges from the otitus due to it were contagious. Quarantine in a small room attached to one of the wards at the Foundling Asylum in this city had been sufficient for scarlet fever, but not for measles. The contagious element was more fixed and less diffusible in the former. It remained in clothes a long time. Most prophylactic measures consisted in isolation of the patient, disinfection of the person and air which surrounded him, and of objects and persons in close relation with him.

He called particular attention to the danger in books handled by the sick with scarlet fever, for in them the contagious element remained a long time. At his first visit he wrote a prescription for carbolic acid and oil of eucalyptus, of each one ounce; spirit of turpentine, six to eight ounces; mix, add two tablespoonfuls to a quart of water, put in a broad basin and maintain a state of constant simmering over an oil stove. He also ordered an inunction of the entire surface of the patient every three hours with carbolic acid and oil of eucalyptus, each one drachm; sweet oil, seven ounces. A solution of corrosive sublimate might with advantage be applied on a probe and cotton to the tonsils and pharynx, and ten drops of a solution of two grains to the pint syringed into the nostrils every two hours in the young infante Then there should be constant ventilation during the active period of the fever, no article should be sent from the room unless properly disinfected, new families not allowed to move into the apartments before proper disinfection, the physician should disinfect his hair and entire person, and not wear the same outer clothing when going to see midwife cases.—Scientific American.

THE GREAT TRAGEDY

Crowds Surround the Prison at Auburn.

KEMMLER'S LAST MOMENTS.

He Prayed With Pastor Houghton and Displayed Little Nervousness.

A Description of the Autopsy—Visiting the Execution Room—Changes Made in the Metre by Electrician Davis—Disposition of the Remains of the Murderer—The Jury of Doctors.

AUBURN, N. Y., Aug. 6.—A curious crowd is gathered without the walls of the prison. Young faces and old are pressed against the heavy iron bars on either side of the gateway. Little groups of newspaper correspondents are scattered about along the pavement. But there is no appearance of unusual activity within the prison walls. Once or twice two or three of the witnesses came out on the broad landing and sat looking at the crowd outside, which seemed to afford them much amusement.

A consultation was held in the warden's office about the arrangements for the autopsy and the most appropriate time for holding the execution. On the first point there were few differences of opinion.

Visiting the Execution Room.

When the conference was at an end, the Warden asked the party to go with him to the execution room. The electricians, under the direction of Mr. Davis, were already there putting in place the volt-meter which the Warden took to New York to be repaired last Friday and which Mr. Davis brought back with him. The dynamo was running in the machinery room and when the volt-meter had been adjusted the current was turned on and off several times, and the double row of incandescent lamps on the wall was thrown in and out of circuit to demonstrate the current's strength. Mr. Davis said the meter did not work as satisfactorily as he could have wished and that he would have to make some changes in it.

How He Spent the Night.

Kemmler spent the night quietly. No sign was given by him of his impending doom. His friend, the Rev. Dr. Houghton, accompanied by the chaplain of the prison, visited him and spent the greater part of the night with him. They were present at Kemmler's request.

Kemmler made his will again, leaving his books and other little traps to Mrs. Durston, Daniel McNaughton and a few others who have been kind to him. A lady in Buffalo sent him a Bible a short time ago, and he wrote his name in it and wanted it sent back to her.

He Dreams of Death.

It was 2 o'clock this morning when Kemmler first awoke. He sprang from his couch with a cry.

"What's the matter?" asked Keeper McNaughton.

"Been dreaming," replied Kemmler, briefly. "Well, I suppose I have got to die pretty quick, and I don't care. I am going to sleep some more, anyway."

He laid down upon the couch again. The first streaks of light were stealing over the prison walls when he again awoke. He had been tossing back and forth and groaning for an hour.

"What time is it?" he demanded.

"A little after 4," replied the keeper.

"Is that all?" said the doomed man. "How slow time flies." Then he laughed nervously. He paced quickly up and down the cell for a few minutes. Twice he went to the window and looked out. He could see dim lances of light which faintly flecked the prison wall. He gratefully inhaled the cool air of the morning. He then returned to his cell. Crouching in one corner he buried his face in his hands. He remained there, so still and quiet, the keeper became nervous, and went to see what he was doing.

Prepared for the Autopsy.

Dr. Southwick, the author of the new method of execution told some interesting things about it. "I have come prepared for the autopsy," he said, "with thermometers, etc., with which to take the temperature of the remains so as to be sure that death has intervened before the surgeon's knife is used. The law requires that the autopsy shall take place immediately, but that will be interpreted to mean within a decent time. So soon as the temperature of the man is below the point where life can continue to exist the operation will be begun. So that explodes the idea that some people have had that if the electric shock did not kill him the surgeon's knives would."

The doctors in charge of the autopsy will prepare a careful story for publication at the earliest possible moment.

Disposal of the Body.

The body of Kemmler will be covered with earth in quick time unless it is claimed by friends. There is a brother in Philadelphia and there is a nephew in Ohio, and there are rumors that both of these have communicated with the warden regarding the disposal of the body. It is not determined yet that they will take it, and the chances are even that it will be buried in the prison yard in the manner the law directs.

Killed Her New-Born Child.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Aug. 6.—Henrietta Shackleton, an abandoned woman, gave birth to a female child in an outhouse in this city and then killed it with a stone. When the woman is well enough to be out of the hospital she will be arrested.

Overcome by the Heat.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Aug. 6.—Burnett Coyle, of Brooklyn, N. Y., a fireman on the steamer Francis, was overcome by the heat while off Stratford, and died in a few minutes.

A NEW RAILROAD.

It Will Tap the Lehigh and Wyoming Coal Regions.

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Aug. 6.—At a meeting of the stockholders of the projected Pennsylvania, Lehigh & Eastern Railway held here the following officers were elected: President, Joseph Pool, New York; directors: Senator S. P. Wolverton, Sunbury; J. Vaughan, Darling; P. J. Flick and Elias Lowenstein, Wilkesbarre; I. W. Newburger and Jacob Newburger, New York.

The capital stock is $10,000,000, bonded for $5,000,000. It is expected that the road, which will be 75 miles long, will be commenced within a year.

The road starts at Tomhicken, near Hazleton, where it connects with the Pennsylvania Railroad. It crosses the Lehigh Valley near White Haven and runs up the Lehigh River to the Pocono Mountains, thence to Stroudsburg, then up the Delaware Valley from Milford to Port Jervis, N. Y., where it connects with the Erie Railroad. It will be a coal and passenger road and will tap the Lehigh and Wyoming coal regions.

STABBED TWO WOMEN.

A Married Man Has an Uncontrollable Outbreak of Madness.

NORTH ADAMS Mass., Aug. 6.—Frank Tiffany, of the firm of Tiffany Brothers, knitted goods manufacturers, of Bennington Vt., and a guest of the Mansion House, stabbed and severely wounded Rosanna Cain, aged 21, and Carrie Halbey, aged 19, chambermaids employed in the house.

Tiffany, who is believed to be insane, was secured after a hard struggle, and just as he was about to spring from a window.

He is a married man and the father of two children.

The injuries of Rosanna Cain are dangerous and she is in a critical condition.

No motive is known for the deed which appears to have been the result of an uncontrollable outbreak of madness.

Desecrated the Stars and Stripes.

ELIZABETH, N. J., Aug. 6.—A desperate fight occurred at the picnic of the Arbeiter Turnverein at Eller's Grove, nearly one hundred men taking part in the fray. Six policemen were badly handled by the infuriated Anarchists, one of whom, Emil Vogt, was locked up. During the riot an American flag, floating from a staff at the entrance of the picnic grounds, was torn down and trampled under foot. Warrants are out for a dozen of the rioters, who will be severely punished.

Rev. Adin Ballou Dead.

MILFORD, Mass., Aug. 6.—The Rev. Adin Ballou, pastor emeritus of the Hopedale Universalist Church, is dead, aged 87. He was a lineal descendant of Marechal Gumebord Ballou, one of William the Conqueror's generals, who died in 1091. The family settled in Rhode Island in 1646. The deceased was born in Cumberland, R. I., entered the Baptist ministry in 1821 and became a Universalist in 1823, officiating over Boston, New York, Medway, Milford, Bellingham, Mendon and Hopedale churches.

Reformers Disgusted.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Aug. 6.—The National Reform meeting last night proved a fizzle. John Lloyd Thomas was expected to be present and debate the issues involved with Editor Jones, but failed to turn up. The rainfall, Kemmler's execution and one or two other matters so demoralized the convention that Evans and Jones left town early in great disgust.

Diamond Thieves Arrested.

ELLICOTTVILLE, N. Y., Aug. 6.—Robert Lego, a prominent foundry man, and Charles Crogan, both of Salamanca, were arrested and brought here, charged with breaking into the bank of Ellicottville on December 11 and stealing a quantity of diamonds belonging to Senator Vedder. Their examination will take place to-morrow forenoon Other arrests are expected.

The President Leaves Cape May.

CAPE MAY, N. J., Aug. 6.—The President did not leave yesterday, as expected. He and Secretary Blaine having derived so much benefit from their short sojourn, it was decided to defer the day of departure until to-day. President Harrison and Postmaster-General Wannamaker left for Washington, while Secretary Blaine will go to New York.

A Suicide at Niagara.

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., Aug. 6.—About 6 a. m. Officer McMullen, of the Reservation Police, found a brown-checked sack coat, black vest and a derby hat on the bank of the river in Prospect Park, about 300 feet above the American Falls. From articles found in the pockets of the coat it is believed that the owner was J. J. Kirchner, of Brantford, Ont., and that he has committed suicide.

A Judgment Against Ferdinand Ward.

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—A judgment for $28,088 was entered against Ferdinand Ward in favor of Elihu Spicer, Jr., on default. It is based on a note for $20,000 dated July 11, 1883. The summons was served on Ward in May last at Ossining, Westchester County but he failed to appear.

General Sherman at Bar Harbor.

BAR HARBOR, Aug. 6.—Gen. Sherman and two daughters, Miss L. Sherman, of New York, and Mrs. Thackar, of Pennsylvania, arrived here during the night from Boston and will be the guests of the Blaines. The General will go to Boston in time to attend the G. A. R. Encampment.

Appointed by Gov. Hill.

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 6.—Gov. Hill has appointed Mr Frank L. Norton, of Delhi, a member of the State Board of Pharmacy to succeed Charles K. Brown, whose term of office is about to expire.

THE QUEEN'S PERIL

Her Majesty Incurs the Risk of Drowning.

AN ACCIDENT TO A PONTOON

Spectators Panic-Stricken When They Saw the Great Danger.

More Trouble in Buenos Ayres—President Celman and His Cabinet Resign, The Duke of Norfolk's Mission to Rome. Mr. Carnegie Honored in Scotland. Emperor William's Movements.

LONDON, Aug. 6.—The Queen had an unpleasant experience last night. She left Osborne House at 7 o'clock for a drive to witness the yacht squadron parade at Cowes. Her carriage had to cross to a steam ferry on a pontoon. A too sudden letting down of the platform on which the Queen's carriage stood caused an inrush of water which partially submerged the pontoon.

The Queen and the spectators were for a moment panic-stricken, but the pontoon soon righted itself and floated free. The Queen was then safely conveyed to her destination.

An unpleasant incident also occurred to Miss Knollys, lady in waiting to the Princess of Wales. While she was walking in High street her dress by some means, probably by stepping upon a match, became ignited. Bystanders deluged her with water and extinguish the flames. She was not hurt.

TROUBLE STILL EXISTS.

Commercial Circles at Buenos Ayres Continue Disturbed.

BUENOS AYRES, Aug. 6.—The Bourse is closed and a panicky feeling still prevails in commercial circles. Comments on the crisis by the press have been strictly forbidden. The rates of exchange are falling but the premium on gold is up to $2.60.

Senor Lastra, who heads the party supporting General Mitre, formerly President of the Republic, has been tendered a cabinet position and has declined.

Fifty million of dollars of paper currency will, it is said, shortly be issued.

A bill has been introduced in the Chamber of Deputies providing for a forced currency.

President Celman, abandoned by Pellegrini, Roca, Pena and Garcia and completely isolated, has been forced to present his resignation at a joint meeting of the Chambers.

As Celman's partisans still form a majority his resignation is possibly a trick. The Chambers have a constitutional right to decide whether the reasons given for the resignation are sufficient for its acceptance.

The populace threaten to shoot any Deputies who vote not to accept the resignation.

A session is being held in secret, and the crowds that were surging back and forth in the lobbies have been ejected.

A committee of Deputies is trying to reconcile Celman and Roca and Pellegrini. The President, however, declares that his resignation is irrevocable.

THE KAISER'S VISIT.

He Breakfasts With Queen Victoria and Goes in a Yacht Race.

LONDON, Aug. 6.—After breakfast with the Queen in the gardens attached to Osborne House, Emperor William was driven to Cowes accompanied by the Prince of Wales. There he embarked on the latter's yacht, the Alene, which started in the race for the Queen's cup in the Cowes regatta, under the auspices of the Royal Yacht club.

Emperor William watched the race from the poop of the Aline. As the yachts were returning the Aline suddenly caught a strong wind and her topmast was carried away, so that it was necessary to tow her into Cowes Roads.

Parachutist Baldwin Mobbed.

LONDON, Aug. 6.—Baldwin the parachutist was advertised to make a balloon ascension and a descent by means of a parachute at Torquay, and a large crowd assembled to witness the performance. At the last moment he announced that he would not ascend and the disappointed crowd attempted to lynch him. He was seized and roughly handled, but finally managed to break away and escape the fury of the mob by climbing a high wall and taking to his heels, leaving his balloon and other property behind him.

Of Interest to Foresters.

LONDON, Aug. 6.—The High Court of the Order of Foresters has refused to agree to a proposal to expunge the paragraph of the investigating committee's report stating that freedom of action having been granted in the matter of graduated contributions to American courts, an obstacle has been removed which has hitherto impeded the progress of the order in America.

Alleged Diamond Thief Held.

LONDON, Aug. 6.—Clyde, the quartermaster of the steamship City of New York, and his wife, who were arrested at Liverpool on the charge of stealing Miss Eastlake's diamond bracelet, were arraigned before a magistrate and remanded for further examination. It is asserted that the evidence of their guilt is very strong.

The Duke of Norfolk's Mission.

LONDON, Aug. 6.—In the House of Commons last night Sir James Ferguson, Under Foreign Secretary, declared that the Duke of Norfolk had no mission from the Government on the occasion of his first visit to Rome, and that his second visit was purely confidential.

THE MORMON DEFEAT.

The Liberals of Salt Lake City Win a Great Victory

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Aug. 6.—There is great rejoicing here over the Mormon defeat. The Liberals elected their entire county ticket by majorities ranging from 300 to 600. The fight has been a bitter one and all parties have worked hard.

Meetings were held in the twenty-two wards of the city every night for the past week and both sides expended money freely.

There were great rejoicings over the result and the city was ablaze all night, bands and drum corps parading the streets. The Mormons are badly broken up, as the result means their everlasting defeat as a body.

It is likely that the next election will be on party lines, Democratic and Republican.

The Benwell Murder.

WOODSTOCK, Ont., Aug. 6.—A cablegram has been received from G. T. Blackstock, of Brighton, England, signifying his intention of accepting a retainer for the defence in the Burchell case. Besides Mr. Blackstock, and Hellmuth & Ivey, of London; Finkle, McKay & McMullen, a leading local law firm have been retained for the defence. Detective Bluett, of Toronto, who is also watching the case for the defence, is in town, and will remain until after the trial, which takes place next month.

Satinet Mills Will Combine.

WORCESTER, Mass. Aug. 6.—At the meeting yesterday the satinet manufacturers, representing nearly all the important mills in the country, most of which are in Worcester county, a committee was appointed to devise a plan of consolidation similar to that adopted by the card clothing makers. It is hoped, by close combination, to reduce the number of commission houses and lessen competition.

WASHINGTON TOPICS

Another Anti-Chinese Bill Reported to the House.

IT EXCLUDES THEM ABSOLUTELY

Extended Debate Expected on Mr. Blaine's Reciprocity Proposition.

The House Committee Favor Unseating Mr. Breckenridge—Senator-Elect Price Purchases a Newspaper—Little Committee Work Being Done—Ex-Consul Wolf Would Like to Call on the Czar.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—The House Committee on Foreign Affairs reported to the House with a favorable recommendation a substitute for the bills recently introduced to prohibit Chinese immigration.

The committee bill excludes all Chinese from landing in the United States except those duly accredited to the United States, as ministers plenipotentiary or other diplomatic representatives, consul generals, consular and commercial agents, including other officers of the Chinese or other governments traveling upon the business of that government, with their body and household servants. The visiting of Chinese immigrants, whether for the purpose of transit only or otherwise, is absolutely prohibited.

Section 10 directs that hereafter no State or United States court shall admit Chinese to citizenship, and repeals all laws conflicting with the act. Chinese now in the United States, who may at any time thereafter depart from the United States, as well as all who are now in the United States, are to be subject to all the provisions, conditions, prohibitions and penalties of the act.

RECIPROCITY PLANS.

A Great Deal of Debate Expected on Mr. Blaine's Proposition.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—Mr. Blaine's reciprocity proposition is to be discussed as the last feature of the Tariff bill. When the sugar schedule is reached it will be laid aside till all the other features of the measure have been passed upon. There is a belief that the sugar schedule and the Blaine reciprocity plan will come up for discussion some time week after next, and that it will occupy ten days or two weeks, which will make the adoption of the Tariff bill the latter part of August or the first of September.

Knowing that there will be a great deal of debate upon Mr. Blaine's recommendation, and that it would come up in connection with the sugar schedule, the Committee on Finance agreed to lay aside the latter when it is reached, so that whatever action may be taken upon sugar and Mr. Blaine's recommendation it will have no effect upon other features of the bill.

Willing to Go and See the Czar.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—Representative Baker of New York, who introduced a resolution in the House authorizing the President to respectfully protest against the enforcement of the edict against the Jews by the Russian Government, has received the following cablegram from Simon Wolf, dated Baden: "Thousand thanks, President Grant in 1869 succeeded in preventing expulsion of Russian Jews. I am willing to go as special envoy to the Czar. See President Harrison." Mr. Wolf is a representative Hebrew, was Consul General to Egypt for many years, and is president of the Hebrew Orphan Asylum at Atlanta, Ga.

Little Committee Work Being Done.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—Outside of the Appropriations Committees of the two Houses, but little committee work is being done. The regular meeting days of committees are passed over without anybody taking the trouble to look in to see if anything is going on. It would be useless to prepare any more bills for the calendar and no attempt is being made to do it.

Senator Chandler's Illness.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—A dispatch from Concord, N. H., says the report that Senator Chandler is very ill is exaggerated. He was prostrated with an attack of dysentery a week ago last Saturday at his summer house in Waterloo, and for a day or two was seriously ill. His physician reports that he was up and dressed yesterday and was "doing nicely."

Colored Farmers' Alliance.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—The Colored Farmers' Alliance has made its appearance in South Carolina and State Alliance Lecturer Powers says it numbers 35,000 members in that State. While the chief purpose of the order is mutual benefit, Mr. Powers says it intends to do whatever would be to its advantage. It would go into politics if necessary.

Favor Unseating Mr. Breckenridge.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 6.—The House Committee on Elections adopted a resolution declaring the seat of Mr. Breckenridge of Arkansas vacant. The resolution, with the reports of the majority and minority of the committee, will be presented to the house in a few days. Mr. Maish was the only Democrat member of the committee present.

A Mysterious Meeting.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—There is considerable speculation in political circles as to the meaning of a conference held at the residence of Senator Quay, and at which Senator Plumb and other Republicans were present.

The Washington Club Will Disband.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—Notwithstanding statements to the contrary, the Washington Baseball Club, which is now in the hands of Manager Sullivan, will in a few days totally collapse.

KNIGHTS DISMISSED.

The New York Central Getting Rid of Labor Agitators.

NEW YORK, Aug. 6.—General Manager J. M. Toucy of the New York Central railroad to-day said that within the the past few days twenty or thirty conductors, brakemen and other trainmen running between this city and Albany on that road had been dismissed. Most of these men were in the freight service of the company and nearly all of them were Knights of Labor. Some of them were members of grievance committees which had from time to time waited upon the officers of the company. Manager Toucey said that the officers were competent to run the company and would do so without the interference of outsiders and non-railroad men.

Grievance committees which have called on Mr. Toucey with regard to the dismissals have received no satisfaction. The only explanation offered being that this being the dull season, the opportunity had been taken to weed out the less useful men: One of the men dismissed is E. J. Lee, Master Workman of the Assembly at Albany.

It is hinted that the Knights will attempt to force the company to terms but nothing definite is know as to their plans.

TWELVE YEARS A CONVICT.

A Life Prisoner Pardoned from Auburn by Governor Hill.

AUBURN, N. Y., Aug. 5.—Wm. Burns, a big-boned, healthy-looking man, six feet three inches in height, stepped out of the prison gate, a free citizen, after twelve years and four months of steady confinement.

Early in the morning a messenger from Albany arrived with the pardon, and casting aside the prison garb which he had worn all through the years of his early manhood and donning the garments of civilization, William Burns walked through the doorway of the prison and passed the great iron gate, a free, happy man.

The pardoned man was only seventeen years old when he was sent to State prison from Syracuse under sentence of life imprisonment for murder. While under the influence of liquor, believing that two men were trying to steal his employer's team of horses, he assaulted them and one of them died of the injuries received. Strong efforts were made to obtain executive interference and they were at last successful.

Forty Lashes for a Brute.

TORONTO, Ont., Aug. 6.—In the police court here, Wm J. McLeod, who criminally assaulted 7-year-old Ella Carter yesterday, was sentenced to 27 months in prison and 40 lashes on the bare back.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

The Republican State Committee of Connecticut has decided to call a convention at New Haven, Sept. 17.

A new postoffice has been established at Lezette, Bucks County, Pa., and Oliver P. Kulp appointed postmaster.

A New York dispatch says Leary's big raft, the fourth of its kind, was towed safely to port and anchored in Hempstead Bay.

It is rumored that Mexico, jointly with Nicaragua, Honduras and Costa Rica, has recognized Salvador's provisional government and that this will end the trouble in Central America.

Miss Mary Tillinghast, of North Stonington, Conn., is an inveterate killer of snakes. Since the 4th of July she has killed 90, including the common grades, blue rocks, blacks, copperheads, adders and rattlers.

Councilman Hogate of Camden, N. J., was arrested on a warrant sworn out by Capt. Thomas G. Smith, one of the richest men in Camden county, charging him with having forged the name of Edward L. Carter to three bonds for $1,000, and the name of E. B. Sooy to one bond for $2,000. Hogate has been released under $5,000 bail.

Convicts at work in the shoe shops of the Massachusetts State prison, being angered at the punishment inflicted upon "Chicken" Walsh for attempting to escape, created a disturbance yesterday. They cut up the manufactured stock, damaged the machinery and smashed the windows of the shop. Twelve of the ringleaders were placed in confinement, where they will be kept until they promise to obey the rules of the prison.

Weather Indications.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 6.—For New England: Light local showers, preceded by fair in eastern portion; southerly winds, slightly cooler.

For Eastern New York and New Jersey: Showers; cooler; southwesterly winds.

For Western New York: Fair except local showers in eastern portion; southwesterly winds. Cooler in eastern, warmer in western portion.

BY THE WAY.

—Van Sciver at 47 North avenue, is having his first annual clearing out sale of wall paper. There are some points worth noticing in his advertisement elsewhere.

—The sisters of Mount Olive church, desire it stated that there will be a "Pink and Water Melon Tea Party," at the church, to-morrow evening. Admittance ten cents.

—Much profit awaits the man who will build a public bath in this city, and have certain hours when boys of seven years old and over, and girls, can receive instruction in swimming.

—The quarterly meeting of Gazelle Engine Co., No. 1, will be held in their parlors this evening, at 8 o'clock. A full attendance is desired as business of importance will be transacted.

—There will be no delay at Jersey City to the Reform Club excursion to-morrow. The steamer will be in waiting at the pier, on the arrival of the train. There will be no postponement in consequence of cloudy weather.

—A Borough Councilman and a Park avenue merchant were speeding their trotters the other day faster than the law allows. Thomas Rutledge, Chief of Police over the brook, made the charge and Mayor Place fined the two reckless drivers $3 each.

—No one should fail to attend the grand picnic at Mt. Bethel Hall, on Monday evening next, under the auspices of the "Scattered Four." Stages will be run from the City Hotel, leaving at 7 o'clock of that evening. A good time is promised those who attend.

—The very willing and agreeable operators in the telephone central office, are trying to persuade the subscribers to give the number of the one they want and not the name. "Netherwood Hotel" slurred through a 'phone, often sounds like "Muhlenberg Hospital."

—There is all sorts of talk about changes in the Crescent League's ball team, but it is the talk only of those who know nothing about it yet think they know it all. If the cranks ran the team they'd speedily run it in the ground, and Wiegand would be the first man laid off.

—The Unions of Plainfield defeated the Chathams of North Plainfield at base ball yesterday by the score of 10 to 5. The battery for the Unions was D. Mack and F. Shattle; for the Chathams, E. Farley and F. Bolsterle. The Unions say they batted the Chathams' new pitcher all over the field.

—A race for a $100 purse has been arranged between the horses of Dennis O'Brien, of this city, and John Manyon, proprietor of the Clarendon Hotel, Bound Brook. The race will take place on the track of the Driving Park Association, Saturday afternoon at two o'clock. Mile heats, best 3 in 5, will decide who wins.

—The "Gorhams" are the best colored team in the country today, with possibly the exception of the "Yorks" who include many of the former "Cuban Giants." The "Gorhams" and "Cuban Giants" of this year, are not to be classed together. The former can out play the latter in every way. On Saturday afternoon the "Gorhams" will play the Crescents in this city.

Forged a Plainfielder's Name.

The name of Henry C. Squires, of Broadway, Plainfield, is being used by a New York swindler seeking to obtain books by means of forged orders. Yesterday a man called at the office of the Forest and Stream Publishing Company and presented an order purporting to be signed by Mr. Squires.

Neither the handwriting nor the order form were recognized as those of Mr. Squires' and subsequent investigation showed that the order was forged. The swindler is apparently a German Hebrew, 5 feet 8 inches in height, slender, with dark complexion, prominent nose, high cheek bones, and black mustache. The handwriting of the order was German in character.

A Victim of Rum Runs Wild.

A strange man was found roaming aimlessly about in the woods near Scotch Plains, yesterday, by Constable Hand. He was trembling as if with ague, and jabbering queerly. He was brought to Plainfield and given a cell in the lock-up, where he is being treated for delirium tremens. He says his name is John Connors.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Samuel Jacobus and family will leave for Sea Girt to-morrow.

Miss Clara King, of the Borough, has been visiting in Orange.

Miss Ida Vermeule, of North Plainfield, is home from a New York visit.

The Oranges have attracted Mrs. Joseph Bolsterle for the month of August.

Amboy friends are entertaining Miss Sophie McGinnis of Linden avenue.

Miss Minnie Bolsterle has returned from a visit among New York friends.

Mrs. Elmore Moffett is visiting her daughter, Mrs. W. H. Tams, at Trenton.

The Rev. Cornelius Schenck is enjoying the sea breeze at Ocean Grove for a few days.

L. B. Mulford of East Second street, is recovering from his recent severe illness.

Miss Edna Bliss, of Alfred Centre, is visiting Miss Ida Randolph at Mount Pleasant.

Russell Jacobus, of East Front street, and Ralph Opdyke, of Broadway, sail for Europe today.

The Rev. Ernest Thompson of Lakewood, is visiting his sister, Miss Thompson of Peace street.

Mrs. John Wilkins and daughter, Miss Eva, of Orange, are visiting Mrs. E. Chapin of East Fifth street.

Mrs. L. Adams left town today for a month's visit to Cleveland, Ohio, her former home. She will also visit Toledo.

Mrs. C. L. Hurlburt of Plainfield is assisting Miss Isabel E. Smith, the artist, in her china-painting class at Chautauqua.

Councilman Smalley of North Plainfield stands ready to give $200 towards the opening of Peace street through the Borough.

The Rev. Howard P. Doane, member of Drew Seminary, is visiting his cousins, Mr. and Mrs. S. O. Doane, of East Fourth street.

Mrs. John H. Vincent, wife of the Bishop, has been called to Tidioute, Penn., to attend the funeral of her brother, Wm. Dusenbury.

Miss Daisy Scanlon, of New Rochelle, N. Y., is enjoying a two weeks' recreation with her aunt, Mrs. S. Kennett, of West Fourth street, this city.

Charles H. Pelletreau, for thirty years chief accountant of the Brooklyn City water works, and his wife, are visiting at the home of their son, R. C. Dingee, East Fifth street.

Mrs. J. Hervey Doane, with her two children and their nurse, accompanied by Mrs. S. O. Doane, left town today for Asbury Park. They will register at the Leadley House.

Lewis R. Blackford, of Unity Lodge, Knights of Phthias, has been appointed by Grand Chancellor Bolton a member of the finance committee of the Grand Lodge. He fills the vacancy caused by the promotion of L. S. Menger to the office of the late Eugene Lorton.

Chas. Hyde, as President of the City National Bank of Plainfield and of the Second National Bank of Titusville, Pa., is a member of the committee of creditors who are to supervise the liquidation of the business of H. S. Miller & Co., manufacturers of fertilizers at Newark and New York.

Edgar Sheppard, one of THE PRESS newsboys, is the proud possessor of a printed copy of the "Journal and notes of the House of Representatives of New Jersey, in their first sessions of assembly, at Perth Amboy, the 10th day of November, 1703." The book was presented to young Sheppard by his uncle, the late D. H. Banghart, State Senator.

Councilman Hetfield at Monday evening's meeting, asked when Supervising Engineer Hering had been in Plainfield. July 3 was date, if THE PRESS is not mistaken. And yet some blackguards try to make the people think that the Councilmen who fought against paying Mr. Hering $500 a month, are not working in the people's interests everytime.

The Rev. R. S. Holmes, formerly of this city, preached in the Crescent Avenue church, last Sunday, probably the two most remarkably eloquent sermons ever heard in this city. Mr. Holmes will occupy the same pulpit through the present month, and everybody should seize an opportunity of hearing him at least once. His sermons are unusually well finished in every way.

Maimed While Working to Support His Mother.

Frank Titus, a boy about 13 years of age, living in Warrenville, met with a serious accident a few days ago which may make him a cripple for life. While working in the harvest field he stepped in front of a reaper without noticing his dangerous position. As the team that was attached to the machine walked rapidly forward, the guards caught Titus above the ankles, throwing his legs between them. The sharp knives cut deep to the bone before the team could be stopped.

The unfortunate lad was taken to his home where all that could be done to alleviate his sufferings was done until Dr. Zeglio could be summoned. The physician dressed the wounds and has hopes of saving the boy's legs. It was thought at first that both limbs would have to be amputated. The lad is as comfortable as possible at the home of his mother, a poor woman, whom he was trying to help by working in Farmer Voorhees' harvest field, at the time of the accident.

—The clerks held a meeting Monday evening, with President Jeremiah Moore in the chair.

A SLAUGHTER OF INNOCENTS.

Critique Discusses the Ethics of Cat Killing and Makes Remarks About the Madison Avenue Method of Feline Suppression.

If the S. P. C. A. could have been in the neighborhood of Madison avenue and Fifth street the other evening they might have gotten in some of their best work where it would not have been wasted. A little tragedy took place near the spot before mentioned, in the early Sunday twilight, which comprised about as much agony and suffering on a small scale as any form of brutality can inflict. The parties to the case were and old, white-haired man, old enough to have known better, and four of the very littlest of little kittens. The old man had become possessed of a fiendish notion that the four little kittens, being less big and less possessed than he, had no right whatever to existence and should accordingly be swept from the face of the earth. The four little kittens, having been brought into this wretched world through no wish of their own, believed that at least they should have a show; but they were not as big and strong as the hard-hearted old fossil who had their destiny in hand, and their chances, they realized, were very slim.

As there are various modes of skinning cats, so there are countless ways of killing them; good ways and bad ways; easy ways and cruel ways. The old man was old enough to have known all this, and his time-worn fancy chose the bad and the cruel. His process was briefly thus: the four little kittens were placed in a pail of water. To drown them, you think? Not a bit of it. There was not sufficient water in the pail to drown them little as they were; just enough to keep them struggling for breath and life. They had good voices, too, and their diminutive cries for aid brought their mother to the scene; but when she saw the old man she kept her distance and no one could blame her. Of course, in time the kittens in the pail would have succumbed through exhaustion and starvation; but old Nero couldn't wait for that. His next move was to take each partly drowned little feline from the bucket and to beat out what life remained with a bit of kindling wood. It was a strange sight to see the old man, with white, flowing beard and silver locks, standing there in the half-light pounding the existence out of the four little innocents. He seemed to take a ghastly pleasure in it too, for a fiendish smile played over his wrinkled features and his old eyes sparkled as each dying cry announced another life put out and one more feeble spirit set adrift on the sea of oblivion.

You will say, perhaps, that it is farcical to go on at such length about the extinction of four unlucky kittens which should never have been born, and there are many men of whom I may say the same. I wish to remark that the man, woman or child, I don't care who it is, that wilfully tortures a kitten will torture other animals—and what is a human being but an animal. The mind that will gloat over the annihilation of life, however small that life may be, is not a good mind and not the sort I care to deal with. Our S. P. C. A. and S. P. C. C. might combine in organizing a branch for the Restriction of Senile Depravity and have all they wanted to do for some time to come. A hardened old mind is worse than a bad young mind, as they would be sure to discover. After the ancient butcher of whom I have told had wounded the little kittens to death, he shoved the shapeless mass of cat-flesh under his grape arbor, put on his coat and went to church, I suppose. All good people go to church.

CRITIQUE.

A Fair Young Bicyclist Comes to Grief.

A young miss, about fourteen years of age, has been trying to master a safety bicycle, the past few days, and this morning was wheeling cautiously along the sidewalk on North avenue, in utter feminine disregard of existing ordinances. In front of Woolston & Buckle's store was an open grating, and in fear of tumbling over into it she grew nervous, and wobbled her machine tremblingly. Suddenly she made a spurt away, and shot out over the curb. Machine and rider were tangled up together and lay prostrate directly underneath a horse attached to an Adams express wagon. The horse was fortunately a gentle one, and not easily startled, else, aroused by the strange sensation about its feet, it would doubtless have kicked at the wheel and the girl with disastrous effect. The fair young bicyclist screamed, and a policeman and expressman assisted her to her feet.

A Day on the Boat and Beach.

If you want to enjoy the invigorating influences of an ocean trip, the pleasure of a few hours sojourn on a beach of hard white sand, with opportunities for bathing, boating, fishing, etc., take the excursion train to-morrow morning at 8 o'clock sharp. You will be conveyed from Jersey City to Rockaway by the "Grand Republic," one of the largest and finest steamers afloat, built and equipped especially for sea service.

The Political Bias All Their Own.

Certain Councilmen who confessed by their votes that they preferred politics to decency, accused the police board that appointed Captain Carey, a Republican, and chose for his successor Captain Grant, another Republican, of expelling the former because he was a Republican. Of course there were no "politics" in the efforts of the "Little 4" to keep Carey on the force!

MURDERER KEMMLER EXECUTED.

A Muscular Spasm, a Faint Quivering of the Limbs, and All Was Over.

(SPECIAL TO THE PRESS.)

AUBURN, N. Y., August 6.—Kemmler, the murderer, was executed by electricity at five minutes past seven o'clock this morning.

With this execution a new era in capital punishment was begun. The first criminal to die by electricity at the hands of justice has been recorded.

Never has a brutal murderer had a more persistant fight made to save his life than had Kemmler. The electric companies fought his case through every tribunal in the land having jurisdiction, their object being simply to prevent the State from using electricity to kill murderers.

THE electrical contrivance that sent Kemmler into eternity was constructed under the supervision of Harold P. Brown, an electrical engineer of New York. The machines used were Westinghouse Dynamos and the current was the alternating current, which comes in in pulsating waves, and previous experiments demonstrated to be the most deadly of all currents. The "death chair" was constructed on the model of an invalid's reclining chair, and is made of hard wood. It has a foot rest like that of a barber's chair. This chair, with the necessary apparatus, was stationed in the cell only a few feet from Kemmler's. He was conducted to the death chamber only a few minutes before the execution.

A few minutes before leaving the cell the guards fastened his hands in front and put a strong leather strap with buckles under the armpit. The condemned man was then conducted to the death chamber and at once seated in the fatal chair. The buckles on the arm straps were then connected with the rings on the arms of the chair, and a sponge with wire connection placed at the base of the spine. Then the cap, a peculiar affair constructed of black rubber, was adjusted. Inside the cap was a spiral of copper wire, five inches in diameter, which fit well over the crown of the head, and which, before being finally adjusted, was covered with a sponge, wet with salt water. From the ceiling of the room and immediately over the chair hung two flexible wires, while on the cell wall was an electrical dial to indicate the intensity of the current and which was operated by a small double switch, similar to those used in telegraph offices for turning on and off the current. One of these wires was adjusted to the connection in the top of the helmet-like cap and the other to the sponge at the base of the spine.

All was now ready for the execution. But before the final touch was given to the switch that sent the victim into eternity, a connection was made with an instrument in an adjoining cell and Kemmler felt a slight electric thrill, by no means painful or unpleasant. This was done to apply what is known as the "Wheatstone Test," for the purpose of ascertaining Kemmler's electrical resistance, and occupied only a moment. The black cloth was then pulled over Kemmler's face; the officers stood back while the last prayer was said by the prison chaplain; the signal was given; the executioner gave the switch a little push to one side and 1,000 volts of the alternating current passed through the murderer in the chair. There was a muscular spasm, a faint quivering of the limbs and "all was over."

Harold P. Brown did not have charge of the execution, and in fact was not present at all, but Brown advised with the warden about the execution, and was in telegraphic communication with him until the affair was over. The man who had charge, so far as the electrical part was concerned, was Mr. C. E. Barnes, of Rochester. He was a man of the Warden's own selection, and proved himself fitted to send Kemmler off in proper shape. Mr. Barnes was in the city of Auburn several times during the past two weeks. All the preparations for the execution were under his management, and frequent tests of the apparatus were made. The death chair was sent recently to the State prison at Dannemora, and was to be used there at the execution of Chapleau. The chair was sent back here after Chapleau's sentence was commuted. Warden Durston himself turned the fatal lever and actually killed Kemmler. The warden told his friends that the duty of killing Kemmler devolved upon him personally, and he felt that he could not relegate the responsibility to any one else.

Everyone connected with the prison seem to be more than satisfied that their disagreeable task is over. Warden Durston has been greatly perplexed ever since the man was delivered into his charge. There was, of course, nothing certain as to how the execution would result. The fear of a horrible bungling of some kind was constantly spoken of. A slight defect in the machinery, slipping of a belt, any break in the insulation of the wire, improper connection, and a hundred other things might have occurred that would have lessened the current sufficient to have only tortured the victim. All this was thought to be probable, and of course must have worried the Warden considerable. Then a fear was entertained that Kemmler would attempt suicide, and extra precaution became necessary several weeks ago. The newspaper reporters followed every movement of the Warden for weeks, and he was plied with thousands of questions, most of which he was compelled to decline answering. He was anxious to give the newspapers all the information he could under the law, and, in fact, strained the point repeatedly, but still he was constantly being bothered. In all, he is well through with an extremely disagreeable job.

Honored by the Governor.

The following have been appointed by Governor Green as Commissioners of Deeds in this city and vicinity.

Plainfield, 1st ward, Walter L. Hetfield, Edward P. Thorn; 2d ward, John Mortimer, James A. Demarest; 3d ward, Levi C. Kline; 4th ward, William A. Coddington.

Westfield, John M. C. Marsh, John J. Willis.

Fanwood, James Ritchie.

Suspected of Hushing Up Murder.

The Italians who were implicated in the terrible affray at Bound Brook, Sunday, are secreting themselves and their wounded companions so that the authorities can gather very little information. It is believed that several of the victims have died since Monday, and that the bodies are being hid by the foreigners.

"Early to bed and early to rise
Makes a man healthy, wealthy and wise,"

says the olden-time nursery rhyme, but we think that—

"Early to drink from the fountain of health
Will bring both the wisdom and much-longed for wealth,"

and that fountain is to be found in Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, the world-famed remedy for impurities of the blood. It cures Scrofulous Sores and Swellings, Skin and Scalp diseases, Tetter, Salt-rheum and all blood taints.

—Somebody fell through one of the windows in John Clark's peanut and pie emporium, Monday night.

Guarding Against Cholera.

LONDON, Aug. 6.—A dispatch from Cairo says the Government has appointed a commission, consisting of leading physicians, to consider means to prevent the introduction of the cholera into Egypt.

Carnegie Honored Abroad.

GLASGOW, Aug. 6.—The town council of Wick has conferred the freedom of that place upon Mr. Andrew Carnegie of Pittsburg, Pa.

Mr. Brice Purchases a Newspaper.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 6.—It is stated here upon good authority that Senator-elect Calvin S. Brice has bought the Indianapolis Sentinel. The sale, it is said, was made about two weeks ago.

A Freight Depot Burned.

LEWISTON, Me., Aug. 6.—The Maine Central depot was burned last night, the contents being considerably damaged but the loss on the building is not heavy. The origin of the fire is unknown.

The Election at Portsmouth.

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Aug. 6.—In the city election Edmunds Fry, the present Democratic Mayor, was re-elected over William H. Sise, Republican, by a plurality of 176. The Board of Aldermen stands six Republicans, three Democrats, and the Common Council twelve Democrats to six Republicans.

Bought by the Cracker Trust.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Aug. 6.—A Chicago corporation has secured control of the New Haven Baking Company. The purchase was made in the interest of the Cracker Trust.

If your dealer says he does not keep Hires' Root Beer in stock, go to the next one who does. There is no valid reason because he hasn't the genuine to accept an imitation. Would you take counterfeit money? The dealers business is profit.

UNDER THE SHINING SUN AT MIDNIGHT.

President Murray Tells His Friends Through THE PRESS, a Story of His Travels.

TROMSO, NORWAY, July 21, 1890.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE DAILY PRESS: Inasmuch as some of my friends and some of your readers may be interested in hearing about this strange land of eternal daylight—during the summer—I will try to give you, very briefly, the story of our trip. We are anchored just now, for the purpose of coaling, at this town, in latitude 69° 38' north, so that a quiet time is given us for writing. But the whole voyage has been in quiet water and we have had no sea-sickness. Last Monday evening we sailed from Throndhjem—the ancient capital of Norway—with its old cathedral, where her kings are still crowned. We had the good fortune to secure staterooms on the "Olaf Kyrre," one of the vessels of the "Nordenfjeldske Dampskibsselskab—all which means the Northern Mountains Steamship Company. We had anticipated bad fare on board steamers here, and our surprise can be imagined when we found ourselves aboard this luxuriously furnished steam yacht, for that is really what is is. Captain, officers and stewards all speak English, so that we are quite at home. The fare is far ahead of that on the Cunard line. Every afternoon at two o'clock we have a table d hote of seven courses which would be a credit to one of our own famous hotels. Of course we have a gathering of the nations on board. There are Italian, English, American, German, French, Hungarian, Norwegian, Danish and other representatives. A great many of the foreigners speak English, but few of the English speak any other language.

Soon after leaving Throndhjem the scenery began to grow to the grandeur which we expected Norway to show, and while there was the variety which prevented monotony its general character was the same throughout. We sail between the main land and the islands, but both look alike. In the foreground usually we see low hills, covered to the summit with foliage, with little hamlets nestling at their base, each with its little garden. Here and there we have seen men making hay, even in latitude 70° 40'. Back of these green hills, almost invariably, rise snow covered mountains, forming a strange contrast to their verdure clad neighbors. Of course, in some places the hills are merely bare rocks. This is particularly true of the Lofotou Islands, a barren, rocky group extending from about 67° 80' north, all within the arctic circle. We anticipated very cold weather and were surprised to learn that no ice forms here in Winter. But it has been cold enough; and clothes which were oppressive in Plainfield last Winter have been quite comfortable here.

There have been four nights on which we have been in a latitude high enough to see the "Midsummer, midnight, Norway sun set into sunrise,"

for he rose last Thursday morning at about one o'clock and set last night for the first time since that hour. On three of these nights we have been successful. I will try to describe Friday night when we were on top of Nord Kap—the North Cape. At 8:30 we cast anchor in a little bay at the foot of this rock and looked with a good deal of trepidation at a zig-zag path which seemed to go very nearly perpendicularly up the face of the mountain. A quiet tramp of an hour and then a walk of a mile brought us at 11:30 to the monument which crowns the summit. We had prepared for a cold night, but found the air almost balmy. Flowers bloomed on the very top and coats were almost useless; this, however, was an exceptional night. The clouds had been gathering all the afternoon so that while it was bright and warm, the sun's disk had been hidden all day. Slowly however, they began to break in the north and we watched intently for his majesty, the sun. At 12 o'clock he burst his bands asunder and shone forth in full glory, bathing everything with that strange red light, which seems so unnatural when seen only in a picture. It was a sight worth the thousands of miles we had come. My pen cannot paint the glorious panorama which lay before us, as the "Olaf Kyrre," far beyond, fired the four guns which marks that midnight hour. Our German contingent drank the health of King William, five of us who were Yale men gave three-times-three for our alma mater, and if we could have decided just who was the President of this United States we would have cheered him. We remained on the summit an hour, loath to leave such an inspiring place, but the boatswain's whistle blew and we scrambled down. On two other nights we saw the sun, each being a little different from the other. I thought that people came to see this strange sight merely because it was strange; now I know they come to see it because it is in itself beautiful. The air is wonderfully transparent here and the blending of purple, red, pink, blue and saffron, as the sun sinks is marvelous. The calm, deep green sea, the purple headlands, the golden snow tipped mountains weave about one the spell of an enchanted land.

We are now bound south and soon will finish our visit to the land of the midnight sun.

Sincerely Yours,
WM. D. MURRAY.

DRUGGIST AND DOCTOR FIGHT.

A Pharmacist From Plainfield Involved in a Row at the Seashore.

James Allen Sangston, who has been at various times a clerk in the drug stores of Plainfield, where he has a large circle of acquaintances, became involved in a quarrel and fistic encounter with Dr. Henry A. Mitchell, a leading physician at Asbury Park, and President of the local Board of Health, yesterday.

Sangston now conducts Kinmouth's pharmacy in the West End Hotel. Recently he compounded a prescription ordered by Dr. Mitchell which the physician alleged was not put up according to directions. Yesterday another prescription of the doctor's was compounded by Sangston, and was returned as not having been put up correctly.

This roiled the pharmacist, who called on Dr. Mitchell and demanded an explanation. The doctor ordered Sangston to leave the house, and Sangston asserts followed up the command with a blow. Then there was a fight, Sangston striking the doctor several times. Peace was finally restored, and both combatants went before separate Justices of the Peace and made counter-charges of assault and battery.

The young druggist was place under bonds for his appearance at court, but the doctor was not arrested. The affray caused considerable excitement, as both parties are prominently known at the Park.

Terrence Pays For His Fun, and Wants Vengence.

Catharine Day and Terrence McCaffry, neighbors in the First ward, were present in City Judge Codington's court room yesterday afternoon to tell their respective sides of a story of trouble. Catherine accused Terrence of saying she was no lady and of calling her names which she as a self-respecting woman felt called on to resent. Besides, Terrence had threatened to do some very unpleasant, though ingenious things to Catherine, such as pulling all her hairs out one by one, and extracting her finger nails by the roots. Terrence said he was only in fun. The Court waxed into a poetical mood and quoted, dramatically:

But pleasures are like poppies spread;
You seize the flower, its bloom is shed;
Or like the snowfall on the river,
A moment white—then melts forever.

"Terrence," his Honor continued, "pleasures are expensive as well as ephemeral."

"What does that mean, Jedge?"

"It means that you pay a fine of five dollars."

Terrence forfeited the money, but was determined to have revenge, so this morning he had a warrant issued for the arrest of Mrs. Day on the charge of abusing him with unladylike language. His sensitive ears had been shocked, he said, with expressions of great vulgarity and profanity. He made no objection to repeating the language.

A Plainfield Druggist Routs the Festive Fly.

The patrons of the soda water fountains in the drug stores of suburban cities are continually pestered with flies, and it has been a matter of no small vexation, among pharmacists, to know just what to do to keep the insects under subjection. The various fly-catching devices which the druggist assures his customers are efficacious and perfect, fail to meet the exigency, and, besides, the public gets tired of seeing them around.

After trying everything under the sun, and racking his brain to find the true solution of the fly problem, a Plainfield druggist has discovered what he believes to be an effective banisher. His scheme is to distribute sassafras spray over the fountain and its surroundings, and every morning and noon one of his clerks sprinkles the fragrant fluid about with an ordinary atomizer. The result is a pleasant perfume for the druggist's customers, and the utter rout of the flies. The insects refuse to alight on anything to which the minute globules of sassafras have clung, and soon leave the store altogether in disgust.

Didn't Need Excursion Tickets.

Frank Lally and Edward Reilley, two young bloods from Elizabeth, visited this city, yesterday, made the rounds of the barrooms, and by night were sufficiently intoxicated to find great pleasure expressing themselves, on the streets, before core decent people, in profuse profanity. They called passers-by most objectionable names, and offered to whip the town. They were arrested and taken before City Judge Codington, who sentenced them to twenty days imprisonment in the county jail. This morning they had a free ride home, and will board for nothing for two weeks.

Councilman Rushmore for Representative.

The Nominating Committee of the New Jersey Division of the League of American Wheelman have presented the following men for officers for 1890-'91.: Chief Consul, G. Carleton Brown; Vice Consul, H. A. Benedict; Secretary and Treasurer, George C. Pennel; Representatives, Townsend Rushmore of this city; A. T. Dodd, Newark; B. O. Miller, Camden; G. H. Cain, Trenton; George C. Thomiar, Jersey City; W. E. Shult, Passaic; W. E. Stauffer, Asbury Park, and H. S. Fulper of Flemington.

For burns and wounds we would recommend Salvation Oil. All druggists sell it at 25 cents.

Many cases have come under our notice where a single bottle of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup relieved a sufferer from a severe cough, which had been treated for months by competent physicians. 25c.

TEMPERANCE NOTES.

RUM AND EXTRAVAGANCE.

A Chicago Minister's Eloquent and Logical Temperance Sermon.

"Thieves In Our Houses," was the subject of one of Rev. Robert McIntyre's recent sermons. The text was found in St. John x, 10: "The thief cometh not but for to steal and to kill and to destroy."

"If a man should enter yonder door, make his way down to you and whisper in your ear that a thief was in your house you would lose all interest in this sermon and hurry to your home. The thief does not always enter to steal money, but sometimes to steal persons, individuals. Charley Ross, a beautiful boy, was stolen many years ago; although every effort was made for his recovery he was never found, and the matter to this day remains a deep mystery. The thief who steals a child is not always a human thief. Sometimes the wolf, the lion or the tiger steals into the home and carries the little one away to the jungles, never to be seen again. Birds have been known to commit such thefts, and I well remember the story told me in my native country, Scotland, by my father. A fond mother had dressed her little boy in his prettiest, brightest clothes, and left him playing about the cottage door. An eagle, whose nest was on the summit of a beetling crag in a neighboring mountain, swept down upon that home and carried away the boy. The mother heard the rush of the wings; saw the dark shadow cross the threshold, heard the childish scream and saw the bird bear her loved one away to the nest on the mountain top. No human aid could reach him, and for months his bright mantle, with its brass buttons glistening in the sun could be seen fluttering in the wind.

"I do not mean to speak of human thieves. The greatest of all thieves is habit, and first of these is rum. For authority that rum is a thief I will quote you Shakespeare, who said: 'Is it not strange that man shall put an enemy in his mouth to steal his brain?' Next to the soul in importance is the brain. In this day a young man who comes into the city from a country town stands about as much chance for escape as a pigeon flying from a trap before a circle of marksmen. Rum, like all thieves, has many false names, beer, gin, brandy, etc., but its real name is rum. If a man steals my brain he has brought on me a double death; it were better for myself, better for my family, that I were dead. Rum steals one man's brains and leaves him a maniac; another it leaves maudlin, a disgrace to his children and a curse to his patient wife.

"Cleopatra powdered precious pearls into a cup of wine and drank the costly draught, but the man drinks a costlier cup who puts his brains in his glass and drinks it. A costlier cup is the one which throws away the minds of his children, and the home for the feeble-minded shows that three-quarters of the children there are from parents who drink rum. I have been taught to hate rum as Hannibal was taught to hate Rome. No drop of liquor, except the communion wine, has ever crossed my lips. I say to you that I abhor the man who sells liquor to the poor laboring man more than I do the leper, and I would sooner touch the crusted lips of the latter than shake hands with the former. Statistics show that throughout the United States the average paid for every man, woman and child for liquor is $6. There is a saloon across the street from a factory in this city which has a monthly account of $3,000 against the laborers which is settled out of the pay-roll. It is the great gigantic curse of the Nation and the one blot on its history. If I had the money that is spent for drink I would set a school-house in every plain and a church on every hill top, and in less than four years would have a Bible in the hands of every person on the globe. Last of all rum steals a man's good name and he loses self-respect, he is out of employment, his children uneducated, his family poorly provided for, and he dies in middle life.

"Once the devil wets his hand in whisky to get a grip on a man, he seldom lets loose until he lands him in hell. The whip is now changed, and the preacher and editor who trembled before its strength now wield the lash. The lowest man is the preacher who stands Sunday after Sunday in his pulpit and never says one word about the liquor traffic.

"Thieves work together. Rum and extravagance go hand in hand, and many a good man has been driven to drink or to crime by the extravagance of his wife or himself. The extravagance in the city is overwhelming. People patronize the theater who refuse to pay their rent. Cash goes, but landlord may whistle. I believe in adornment and think that a man should look his best and a woman her loveliest, but do not go beyond the means. You do wrong when you wear to church any thing but plain dress, something that will not make the poorest woman in the congregation ashamed in comparison. I do not believe in excessive simplicity Debt is a twin brother of Satan. Practice economy in the home, and if you want to lead a fashion, let it be in elevating and assisting the needy and your reward will be waiting your arrival in Heaven."—Chicago Globe.

A SEVEN-HOOPED CASK.

Joseph Cook's Ideas of the Duty of the Church Toward the Liquor Traffic.

Speaking of the duty of the church toward the liquor traffic, Joseph Cook said at the Temperance congress:

"Every drunkard is immortal. Without wishing you to think for a moment that I would say the churches can do any thing more effective against the liquor traffic than to preach the Gospel, I will read my paper, which I have headed: 'Seven Hoops for the Church Temperance Cask:'

THE FIRST HOOP.

"It is safe to assert that the churches ought to rise to the Temperance level of the public schools. Mandatory instruction in the schools of twenty-seven States and Territories of the American Union has recently set up in the name of science a new, unassailable and almost standard. Below that standard the voluntary Temperance inculcations, directly or indirectly given by the precept and example of the churches, ought not to be allowed to fall. This does not necessarily mean that the churches should devote as much time as the schools do to scientific Temperance instruction, nor that they should employ the methods of the schools, but it does mean that they should not be satisfied with inferior results.

"As to the methods by which the Temperance instruction of the young is to be brought up in the church to at least the level it has attained in the schools, each church must decide for itself. I venture to suggest only that by pulpit hints or special addresses and lectures, by Sabbath-school instruction, by the use of pledges, by the circulation of sound Temperance literature, and especially by personal example, the standard of total abstinence should be everywhere preached in the churches. Mr. Spurgeon was many years a wine dealer, but now he says: 'More men have been killed by grape juice than by grapeshot.'

"The new approved Temperance textbooks which are now molding the secular schools of the Nation ought to be in all Sunday-school libraries. Once a month, at least, instruction in harmony with these standard books should in some way be effectively given in all Sunday-schools. Lift the youth, the adult membership and all the preachers of your churches to the level of total abstinence, which is now the level not only of the secular schools, but even of the life assurance societies, and immense results must sooner or later follow.

THE SECOND HOOP.

"All Christian denominations ought to rise to the level attained by the largest and strongest bodies in the United States, and declare that no rum-seller shall be accepted as a church member.

THE THIRD HOOP.

"As no rum-seller ought to be accepted as a church member, all denominations of Christians ought to rise to the level of the Methodist body and declare that the liquor traffic can not be legalized without sin. The church can not in reason or honor with one hand make rum-sellers and with the other hand excommunicate rum-sellers.

THE FOURTH HOOP.

"If rum-sellers ought not to be church members, and if the liquor traffic can never be legalized without sin, then it follows that church members ought never to vote for a political candidate who is in favor of the liquor traffic. While the churches as such need not declare for any one political party, they ought to declare that church members as individuals should support no party that is dominated by the whisky rings. Christians on their knees before God will never vote for any party on its knees before the liquor traffic.

THE FIFTH HOOP.

"The churches will support law and order by the whole power of their moral and social and political influence.

THE SIXTH HOOP.

"There should be a great extension of visitation from house to house by church members, as individuals, as committees and as companies in support of the Temperance reform. Personal contact with the tempted and the tempters on the part of church members has great possibilities of good that as yet have not been fully utilized in the Temperance field, nor indeed adequately explored and discussed. Let the co-operative and aggressive work of visitation proposed by the Evangelical Alliance be carried out so as to reach both drunkards and their families on the one hand and saloon-keepers and corrupt politicians on the other.

THE SEVENTH HOOP.

"The churches should unitedly insist on the closing of saloons on Sundays and election days and on the prohibition of the sale of liquor to drunkards and minors.

"There is no reason why the churches on these seven points should not reach unanimity, and if unanimity, then victory."

SACRAMENTAL WINE.

A Drink That Proved Too Much for a Burglar's Hard Head.

The strength of the liquid which some churches are using as "the fruit of the vine" for the most touching memorial of the Christian faith appears from the following account given in the World of an occurrence in the old St. Paul's Church in New York City:

Near the back door two big bundles were found, containing over $1,000 worth of silk and satin altar draperies and vestments, and upon peering in the officers were surprised to see a man about sixty years old comfortably sleeping on a sofa. The door was opened. The policemen filed in, but the man on the sofa hardly moved as the officers surrounded him. It was then discovered that the man was "gloriously drunk," and shortly afterwards his condition was explained by the discovery of an empty jar which had contained a large quantity of sacramental wine. The contents of this jar probably saved the church from a heavy loss, for had the thief not been overcome by his deep draughts of the rare wine he would undoubtedly have got safely away with the booty.

As it was, he was removed to the station-house screaming and fighting like a madman. He was too drunk to tell his name and at once fell into a heavy sleep in his cell. Around the ante-room, where all the vestments are stored, valuable draperies, loose and in bundles, were strewn about in the utmost confusion.

We confess to a very strong objection to offering to delicate women and children, to growing boys, and to men struggling up from the pit of intemperance, a drink which is too much for the hard head of a burglar.—Better Day.

WHEN the late Horace Greeley, who was a staunch adherent to Temperance principles, was once pressed by an Irish waiter to take some brandy and water, he met the opportunity by saying: "Well, Pat, I'll take half that to oblige you. Give me the water and take the brandy somewhere else."—Sunlight.

THE keeper of the morgue in New York City states that four-fifths of the five thousand bodies that reach the city dead-house every year are sent there by drunkenness.—Journal and Messenger.

THE Connecticut W. C. T. U. has begun agitation to secure a better enforcement of the scientific Temperance instruction law of that State.

A PLAIN STATEMENT
To the People of Plainfield and Vicinity.

Whereas, we are in sympathy with the Clerks of Plainfield, still we have our own ideas of doing business, and employ our Clerks at such wages as they are willing to remain with us until such an hour evenings as our customers demand their attention; and the unprecedented success with which we have met with shows to us conclusively the appreciation of the public in general of the low prices and attention we are giving them; and so long as this appreciation continues we are willing to work early and late to serve our patrons, and decline to close our store to please our would-be competitors; so that customers who find it inconvenient to do their trading before 7 P. M., will be treated in the same courteous manner after that hour as has been customary with our store in the past.

THE COUNTRY BOY.

You'd think, to hear the poets talk
About the country boy,
That his life was just made up of all
Earth's best and sweetest joy;
They talk about the buttercups,
The fragrant new-mown hay;
Well, I guess that I've been there myself,
And know as well as they.

'Tis easy sitting in the shade
Of "the grand old apple tree,"
To blow about the romance of
The farmer's life, you see;
But would they like, those city chaps,
Who have so much to say,
In the burning heat and scorching sun
To load this fragrant hay?

And chores, upon the average farm,
They seem to never end;
The cows to milk, the wood to get,
The sheep and pigs to tend;
And jobs that are too mean for men,
Fall also to our share,
And yet they say the country boys
Are free from strife and care.

While they're riding in their coaches fine,
Or lounging on soft rugs,
The country boys are pulling weeds,
Or smashing tater bugs;
But of all mean jobs upon a farm,
And I can't mention half,
The meanest thing is trying to wean
A well-developed calf.

Of one thing more I wish to speak,
Which every boy knows well;
If a farmer chance to have a call
From a stylish city swell,
The best preserves the house affords
Are plied upon his plate,
While the boy who picked the fruit is left
To pout, and cuss, and—wait.

The time is passing quickly by,
The boys will soon be men,
And take revenge by using boys
As others have used them;
But I wish those chaps who write that stuff,
Misrepresenting boys,
Would tell the truth about the thing,
Or else shut up their noise.

—Country Boy, in Ohio Farmer.

MY WEAK POINT.

An Uncomfortable Habit, with Many Disappointments.

It's a very curious thing. I don't know how to account for the tendency, but nothing ever happens that I don't at once begin drawing inferences from it; and, in the same way, when any thing that ought to happen does not, I spar immediately into the infinite regions of the possible, and revel in deductions, always logically arrived at, but invariably wrong. I am not conceited about it; but I never met any one so hopelessly given to the practice as I am.

I sometimes think my proneness thus to draw inferences must be hereditary; my parents were great at it, so it is possible I got it from them. It was quite wonderful how much they could deduce from a little thing. For instance, when I was a small boy, I developed a mania for consuming bread and butter at odd hours and reading books beyond my comprehension. I used to combine these occupations, and preferred to indulge in them when I ought to have been at play. For a long time my parents regarded these pursuits with a lack of sympathy; my mother docked my pocket-money as often as I was reported to have "eat a new loaf;" and my father pointed sternly to the compressed dabs of butter with which I embellished the pages of his best books. I was driven perforce to eat and read in secret.

But one fine day a change came over the spirit of my parents. The change lay in their sudden adoption of a totally different course of treatment. My taste was discovered to be not only harmless but eminently praiseworthy, and I was not only permitted to read and eat, but warmly encouraged to do both. I puzzled over it a good deal before—in the course of my reading—I traced this happy change to its source. My father had been hearing anecdotes of Lord Macaulay, and had discovered, or been told, that the story of his childhood furnished an exact parallel to mine. The infant Thomas loved to sit in corners eating bread and butter and devouring books whose contents he could by no possibility understand. He avoided his playfellows and sat all by himself reading under shady trees, precisely as I was wont to do. To my parents, the deduction to be drawn from these striking coincidences was obvious; another Macauley had been born in me. As soon as they realised this, the doors of the pantry and library were thrown open, and the housemaid received orders to supply me with bread and butter ad libitum on demand. I took full advantage of my opportunities, and only wished that my great predecessor had expressed a preference for bread and jam. I ascertained when too late that the youthful Macaulay had a rooted antipathy to going to school, and that compulsory attendance was eventually found to do him no good. It was a lasting regret to me that my father had not made this really valuable discovery when he made the other. I have called Lord Macaulay my predecessor; he was regarded in this light at that time; but, long since, it has been generally acknowledged that his reputation is in no danger of eclipse by mine. It is not my fault that the authors of my being have been disappointed. They drew an inference, and it was wrong.

As it was with my forebears so is it with me now, and has been for as long as I can remember. One particular case stands out like a landmark; it owes its prominence solely to the fact that it was the first of its own especial kind, and that is why I select it from the ten thousand instances of reasoning from insufficient data, to which I am adding every day. It was when I proposed to the first of the only girls I ever loved. I wrote in a strain of devoted humanity (which was right and proper, since she was twelve years my senior), laying my hand and fortune—salary of sixty pounds a year—at her feet. How I watched the postman for the next few days! One day passed, but there came no reply; two days dragged by, and three and four, but she answered not.

"She is considering it," I said to myself. "Courage! She can't make up her mind, and wants time! Think what a flutter she must be in, and possess your soul in patience. She is wavering; and when a woman wavers she is lost—that is, gained, won, conquered!"

But she wasn't. I saw her on the evening of the sixth day, and she said she had quite forgotten my letter; she was so sorry. And then she laughed!

And I—I, unhappy one, sneak away out of the house, feeling in my pockets for two-pence to take the 'bus to Westminster bridge. Life was not worth living, of course. I groaned as I passed out of the Terrace, for I had decided upon taking the corner house, that she might be near her mother. It seemed as though the staring "To Let" over the door had been left there on purpose to remind me of it. I know better than to draw any inference from a girl's omission to answer a letter now, but for the life of me I can't help doing it sometimes.

Another time I built a whole town in the air on the strength of a letter from the publisher who has helped and guided me on my literary career, and has paid for my maiden efforts with the generosity of a rich uncle. "Can you spare time to run up and see me to-morrow?" he wrote; "I should like to speak to you." I replied by return of post that I would be with him at noon next day, and went to bed speculating. Was he going to commission me to do a three-volume novel? Hardly probable; even to my capacity of belief, that didn't seem likely. Then, as I pondered over the riddle, I suddenly solved it to my own complete satisfaction. Jones, that publisher's sub-editor, had been looking seedy lately; he'd got a nasty cough, and had complained of his eyes. It was as plain as a pike-staff; Jones had been pensioned, and I was to succeed him. Now, what salary should I ask? Jones got six hundred pounds, I knew. I couldn't expect so much as that, but I would ask four hundred, and take three if I were offered it. I could manage very nicely on three hundred pounds a year. Lodgings in Charlotte Square, and—and—then perhaps I might venture to speak to the then "her." To acceptance and marriage was a brief step, and having settled it all I fell asleep. Next morning I went up to my publisher's office, and as I wiped my boots on the door-mat I resolved to take the sub-editorship at two-fifty.

When I got in, the publisher said: "I thought I'd ask you to come and see me about that last little thing of yours. There are some excellent points in it, some excellent points; but I'm afraid—I'm afraid"—

I forgot how I got outside again.

The habit is chronic, and incurable as consumption. Twenty years ago, an aunt of mine said something to me about her will—something very commonplace and casual; any sensible fellow would have forgotten it ten minutes afterward. I didn't; I weighed the remark, and turned it about; and having, as I supposed, accurately outlined the train of thought that gave it words, drew the inference that I was to be her heir. I put that inference away in a corner of my mind, and whenever I was hard up or in the blues, I pulled it out and furbished it up, and got consolation and comfort from it. That aunt died the other day; but my name wasn't even mentioned in her will. And yet, a week ago, because another aunt said something of the same kind, I am at it again! drawing inferences and deductions which range from a fifty-pound legacy to the dear old lady's entire fortune. I know I oughtn't to do it. But I was born with this hopeful nature, and I suppose shall die with it. I trust, however, that I may outgrow the habit, for it has done me little good until now.

And yet I don't know. When the Present treats you hardly, and the Past has not been kind, is it not well to cozen the Future into promising better things, if it gives you courage to press forward? I have been wrong all my life, and that is poor reason for thinking I shall be right at last. But leave me Hope as long as she will stay. Let me bury "the might-have-beens" out of Memory's sight and borrow what I can from "may be." This habit of inferring is one of Hope's children; a thriftless child at best; but its mother will die one day, so let me nurse the child. It will bring forth only disappointments; but they, when they are many, are short-lived, with little power to pain.—Chamber's Journal.

THE MASCULINE GIRLS.

Nowadays the World Can Stand Almost Any Thing They Do.

The woman of to-day is unique. Such a type was never known before. Now that she has decided to ride horseback man fashion, she has aroused so much alarm that a society has been formed in England for the purpose of checking her headlong career toward masculinity. The world can stand the modern girl when she wears masculine shirts, collars, cuffs, cravats, gloves, boots, jackets, ulsters, hats, rings, umbrellas, waistcoats, and even a single glass; but when she proposes to straddle a horse there is a sudden jerk backward, writes Blakely Hall to the Illustrated American. The American girl has the fad. For some inscrutable reason she has a rabid desire to lay hold of her beauty and compress it into the semblance of a brick. The purpose of her life is the abolition of the curve. The soft, graceful and symmetrical lines of the symbol of absolute beauty—the untrammelled figure of a beautiful woman — are squeezed and forced into the rigid and wooden form of men's attire. With the masculine clothes has come a grenadier-like carriage and a manner that is every thing but feminine.

In England the desire of women to ride man-fashion is not a half-hearted one at all. They claim that they are handicapped by the side-saddle in cross-country riding. They are lighter in weight and often more daring and skillful than men, but owing to the difficulty of riding a fractious or ugly horse with a pummel saddle they are nearly always behind in the dangerous runs across country which the fox-hunters take.

Women forget the advantage of the opposite sex in greater length of limb. Yet it is an advantage. I have seen plucky women in the hunting countries of England, and more notably in Ireland, who rode fiery and powerful six-teen-hand hunters over the stiffest country with perfect ease. They were often small women, and they could not have clung on their horses' backs ten minutes without a pummel to grip in the jumps.

A GYPSY CAMP.

A Peep at Their Wild and Nomadic Life.

The Gypsy Always Chooses a Pretty Spot for His Camp—Their Musical Ability —The Traveling Wagon and Other Paraphernalia.

[COPYRIGHT, 1890.]
[Special Correspondence.]

Going down the Narrows, from New York to Sandy Hook, on the wooded height back of Fort Lee, just across the river from New York City, will be found a gypsy camp. It is a novel experience while walking along the Palisades to come suddenly upon the white tents and covered wagons. The spot is chosen with an eye to rural beauty, but a motive purely mercenary. You will never find the gypsy encamped in a forbidding situation. A fondness for landscape is born in him, and he invariably makes his stopping place near a running stream, among the rocks and trees, where his fire of sticks will be protected from the wind.

By a lucky chance I was able to gain the confidence of this camp of gypsies and learn something of their mode of life.

These gypsies, it appears, have been only four years in the United States. The camp consists of Tenet Bucklin, his wife, their five sons and their families, in all some thirty persons, with seven horses, dogs, a green parrot and an excellent road outfit.

It is strange how a few generations will change the orthography of a name. Bucklin, I have no doubt, is the corruption of Buckland. The youngest son of the Bucklin brood bears the name of Plater, probably after his remote ancestor, Plato Buckland, a famous English Romany, of whom the song relates:

Two Romany fellows were banished afar,
Far away over the dark-rolling sea,
Lasho for robbing,
And Plato for fobbing
The purse of a lady as great as could be.

And when they came to the far-away land,
The land that is over the dark rolling sea,
One came to the halter,
But one at the altar
Soon married a lady as fair as could be.

Would you like to know who the lady was?
'Twas the lady whose purse he had stolen, d'ye see:
For the chap had an eye
Black, witch-like and sly,
And she'd followed him over the dark-rolling sea.

Bucklin is a man of more than ordinary intelligence, and, unlike most of his kind, he talks freely and well about gypsy life and tradition if you win his confidence. At least he did with me. The old man was pleased with my hearty interest in the Romany character; he saw that I had picked up some quaint information about it, and he was willing to add to my stock of knowledge.

A GYPSY MAIDEN.

"Is fortune telling as profitable as it used to be?" I asked him.

"No," he responded, with a sly twinkle in his gray eye, "people know too much these days. There was a time I mind in England when the folk flocked to our tent at the fairs and our prettiest woman in a gay gown and decked out with trinkets told their destinies for hours together, or it might be an old granny saw the lines of fate in their hands and warned them of the threat of danger. Silver was showered upon us and times were good. Why, the country people were so simple then they would bury gold in a pot to multiply if but a wrinkled hag bade them to. Nowadays everybody makes little of our skill, and our women have to beg the Gentiles to show their palms and be told what the future has in store for them."

"Then how do you contrive to live so well? The children are all fat, the young women are plump, the old people look hearty, and even the dogs have enough to eat."

"Well, we are all musicians, as you see. There isn't one of us that doesn't play on some instrument, and when the crowd comes over here on Sundays we entertain them with some of the finest strains on the fiddle you ever listened to.

"You should know," continued old Bucklin, with a proud ring in his voice, "that the Romany is always a born musician. From us have come many kings of the violin. Our composers, Czermak and Bihary, take high rank, and the great maestro Lisst himself states his belief that the gypsies created the national music of Hungary. Poor folk, you well know, pay liberally as their means go for the playing of familiar airs, and it's a common thing for us to take in between ten and twenty dollars of a Sunday. Then, a gypsy can do a little of every thing. He can shoe a horse, doctor a cow, mend a kettle, make baskets, clean a clock, snare birds and rabbits and, I needn't tell you, sell a horse and lose nothing by the bargain. Altogether, we make out to live and have no need to worry much."

Two things in connection with the gypsies had always excited my curiosity, and I sounded Bucklin upon them; they were the burial of the dead and the Romany religious faith. I entertained a vague notion that these people had the earth for a cemetery, that they laid their loved ones away in the forest solitudes or in the breezy downs, but the old man shook his head and a sad-faced woman sitting by us said:

"We bury our dead in the cemetery wherever we's 'appen to be. They's allus kind to we then."

"No," Bucklin added, "we are as civilized as the Gentiles in that respect, and death is a more serious affair to us than to you. No gypsy, for instance, would have his dead cremated. The idea is terrible. We have a reverence for the cold clay. The garments of the deceased are generally burned, the family show their sorrow by fasting, and a mother in some instances never partakes again of the favorite dishes of her son. We are such children of nature that it seems hard we can not live on forever among the grasses and woods, changing our tents from season to season and following the summer sun.

"Creed we have none," he responded to my question; "you will find gypsies who are Roman Catholics, gypsies who are Protestants and gypsies who are Buddhists; yes, and gypsies who are heathens. We are an impressionable people, and just as our cheerful temperaments are reflected from the bright sky we take our religion from those by whom we are surrounded. There are bands of gypsies that always keep a fire burning in camp and carry the smoldering embers with them as they move from place to place. Perhaps this is a kind of fire worship. The fact is, we have no creed or ritual and in the Gentile sense no religion."

"I have heard that your people seldom or never intermarry with the Gentiles," I remarked.

"That is not the case," said the old man. "Our young women have a kind of dark beauty much coveted by the Anglo-Saxon, and where will you find a handsomer man than the gypsy? Intermarriages do and always will occur while human passions last. In England they have not been uncommon since the law has regarded us as vagrants and driven us from the downs and lanes. But we have our family pride, just as you have, and the Romany whose blood is pure is honored among his people."

I had my fortune told before I left these hospitable people by an olive-cheeked, dark-eyed maid whose glance and touch were magnetic. I was willing to believe she could see into the future for the pleasure it gave me to look into her eyes. Holding my palm in her small hand she traced the lines demurely, and, observing my admiration, artfully told me that I was to marry a stately, dark lady, who would be my guiding star in a very stormy life. But I should have a larger portion of happiness than fell to the common lot, and my declining days with the paragon of womanhood mentioned would be peaceful and happy. It was the same old story and told in quaint and grammarless phrase, but I am afraid I pressed the round silver dollar into her brown hand with undue and lingering feeling. The whole camp turned out to bid me good-bye, with warm invitations to come and see them again, and I could not help thinking as I turned down the precipitous road toward the ferry that these children of the open air had many lovable traits.

Odd-Fellows.

The public demonstration of the order in Chicago next month will, beyond question, be the greatest event in the history of the order in the Eastern States, especially, there has been considerable enthusiasm developed on the subject, and large delegations from the New England States have already secured quarters in Chicago. It now appears probable that there will be about 10,000 Patriarchs Militant in line, and perhaps 20,000 members of subordinate lodges. August 7 has been designated as the day for the great parade, and the low rate of fare established by the railroads will bring thousands of visitors to the world's fair city during that week.

The exhibition drills and prize contests will be exciting and attractive, as there are $25,000 to be distributed for proficiency in drill and exemplification of the work in the various branches of order.

Already thirteen degree staffs of the Daughters of Rebekah have entered to contest for the prizes offered for efficiency in conferring the degrees of that order, and the initiated fair ones are in a flutter of excitement upon the subject everywhere. The decoration of chivalry will be conferred some evening during the cantonment, in the Lake Front Park. The park will be illuminated for the occasion, and the ceremonies promise to be imposing and impressive.

Grand Master J. L. Barnum, of Illinois, has issued a proclamation granting a general dispensation to all subordinate lodges in the jurisdiction to participate in the grand parade next August, using the name and wearing the regalia of the order.

Masonic.

The fraternity in Denver have already gone to work with a will, to raise funds and prepare for entertaining the triennial encampment in 1892. They propose raising $500,000, one-half of which will be expended in erecting a large hall where thousands of Sir Knights can be lodged, fed and entertained. The building will be 500 by 260 feet, and will contain 52 suites of rooms around the outer wall, and a grand hall in the center 400 by 200 feet, with a reception parlor 100 by 30 feet. This vast hall can be used for exhibition drills, banquets and ball-room. The conclave will take to Denver perhaps a hundred thousand Sir Knights and visitors, and it is proposed to give a reception or ball during the conclave which will surpass even an Inaugural ball at Washington, or any ever given on a similar occasion in this country. The Templars of Colorado are made of something besides wind, and what they promise is pretty sure to be performed.

The lodges and the craft generally in Illinois are making their annual preparations to replenish the exchequer of the Masonic Orphans' Home. This year a great union picnic will be given at Desplaines August 23 in aid of the institution, and already thousands of tickets have been sold for the occasion. The Sisters of the Eastern Star have also taken the matter up and are arranging to give an entertainment at the Auditorium in Chicago, the proceeds of which will go to the orphans. While the Masons of the Prairie State are becoming famous for temple building, they are certainly not neglecting the more important duty of charity.

I have received inquiries from several sources regarding the actual number of affiliated Masons in the United States and Canada, and as there is probably not one Mason in a thousand that could answer the question correctly, I will give a general answer here. At the close of the year 1889 there were 648,361 Masons on the North American continent. During the year 36,741 were raised and 13,876 suspended for non-payment of dues. There are now about 1,015,000 affiliated and non-affiliated Masons in the United States and Canada.

Mystic Shrine.

All is not harmony in the Arab camps of the Shriners. Many of the great scherifs are sulking in their tents, refusing to be comforted, and the voice of the kicker is heard in the land. All of which came to pass in this wise, it is said. The Imperial Potentate, Samuel Briggs, issued a call for a special meeting of the Imperial Council, which was held in Pittsburgh last month. The call for the special meeting covered all the important business which could come before the regular annual meeting at San Francisco next August, and as this was all done at Pittsburgh nothing is left for the regular assembly, and few of the representatives will, therefore, attend. It is claimed that his Imperial Highness has been playing fast and loose with the constitution and by-laws of the order; that he has spoiled, and intended to spoil, the annual gathering at the Golden Gate, to the great disappointment and mortification of the illustrious nobles on the Pacific slope.

That there is a serious breach in the order, there can be no question, and whether it will be healed, and if so, how, none pretend to say. It is admitted on all sides that the Imperial Potentate has driven a very large nail in his coffin which can not be easily withdrawn.

The special train bearing the pilgrims of Mecca Temple and their friends across the continent started from New York City last Monday and will reach 'Frisco August 4. There they will remain until August 11, and on the return trip will visit Ogden, Salt Lake, Denver, Omaha, Chicago and Niagara Falls.

BANISH THE CHAIR

Dr. Shrady Strongly Opposed to Electrocution.

KEMMLER'S DEATH DESCRIBED

Humanity Paying Too Dear a Price for Instantaneous Demolition.

The Awe and Mystery of Death Intensified a Thousand Fold—The New Style More Horrible Than Hanging—The Agony of the Criminal Said to be Terrible—London Interested.

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—The doctors from this city who were present when Kemmler was executed were kept busy to-day answering calls from brother physicians and members of the press. The general opinion is that the electric current did not kill Kemmler instantaneously.

One witness gave this graphic description: "The poor wretch was bound in the chair and 1,300 volts of electricity poured through him. His shoulders reached up and his hands stiffened in a great shudder. After being subjected for 17 seconds he was thought to be dead. The current was turned off, the electrodes were removed, and the spectators came close to look at the 'dead' man.

"The man began to gasp and gurgle; his breast heaved up and down with convulsive breathing, and foam from his white lips flowed over his clothing and upon those who looked at him. He was alive.

"The current was re-applied and kept on for several minutes until the man died. Then the body began to smoke and the death chamber was filled with the odor of burning flesh. Some of the witnesses nearly fainted and had to be assisted from the room.

"After the autopsy which was held, the doctors went away, carrying in cans portions of Kemmler's body for future dissection; and finally, what remained of Kemmler was buried in quicklime in the prison cemetery."

DR. SHRADY'S VIEWS.

The Spectacle Presented Was by No Means Edifying.

AUBURN, N. Y., Aug. 7.—The following is a copy of an editorial which Dr. George F. Shrady, editor of the Medical Record, of New York, telegraphed last night to that journal:

"The lengthened agony of suspense regarding the efficiency of electricity as a means of executing criminals has finally terminated in the legal killing of Kemmler. As was reasonably anticipated death was instantaneous and so far as can be judged the unfortunate subject of the experiment died without pain. The spectacle presented was, however, by no means edifying to such as hope for improvements of the old methods.

Science and Humanity.

"Although science has triumphed, the question of the humanity of the act is still an open one. But shall we call it a triumph when the object obtained was the killing of a fellow-being? Heretofore the proudest claim of science has been to save or at least to prolong human life and insure for its possessor the greatest enjoyment of its many bounties. In this instance it has been plainly diverted from its course under a paradoxical plea of high humanity. And yet men of science have lent their best efforts in this direction to humor the whims of a few cranks and 'world betterers,' who imagined they could make legal murder a fine art and enforce into it an element of sentimentality which might rob it of its atrocity.

More Horrible Than Hanging.

"While we allow that electricity has been a success as far as the killing is concerned we must also admit that we have little if anything over the ordinary method of execution by hanging. The preliminaries of electro-thanasia are far from pleasant to contemplate. Alongside of those for hanging they are pretentiously horrible. There is something more than weird in the preparation of the machine, the deliberate fixation of the victim, and the adjustment of the electrode and the thousand deaths in contemplating one, which more than offsets the quick though damnable 'taking off.' The horrors though hidden are nevertheless felt. There is something else to be thought of than the mere quickness of death. While the latter might have been triumphantly done, the agony of the criminal during the preparations must be terrible as compared with that of hanging.

The Awe and Mystery of Death.

"It becomes a serious question if humanity is not paying too dear a price for instantaneous demolition. The awe and mystery of death are intensified a thousand fold in anticipation of what this instrument of subtle power may do as compared with either the noose of rope, the grip of the garroter, the smart of the knout, the bore of the bullet, or the chop of the axe. And yet to harness the lightning and bolt it through a human body is thought to be one of the advances of the nineteenth century.

Many Difficulties in the Way.

"The experiences in the Kemmler case in spite of all the precautions taken have shown many difficulties in the way of a general adoption of the method. It is far from simple in its application. It requires elaborate and careful preparation; it multiplies machinery, which, without expert manipulation, is liable to fail in its working and bring about disastrous results; it may be a source of danger to the executioners and spectators; it increases the expense of executions; but worse than all in the necessary preparation of the victim there is crowded upon him in a few seconds an amount of horror and suspense which holds no comparison with any other form of rapid demolition, save those of being thrust into the muzzle of a loaded cannon or tied to a dynamite bomb."

Dr. Spitzka's Testimony.

AUBURN, N. Y., Aug. 7.—The following statement was dictated by Dr. Spitzka before the witnesses left the execution room: "There is no doubt that consciousness was abolished instantly at the first contact. The first current did not destroy all vital phenomena, but some reflex phenomena or phenomena of vegetative life resisted, and that I think you can safely say was due to the fact that the voltage was not constant or strong enough."

WORK OF THE SURGEONS.

Great Interest Taken in the Autopsy on Kemmler's Body.

AUBURN, Aug. 7.—From dispatches received here last night and this morning it is evident that the results of the autopsy are of great interest to medical men throughout the country.

The autopsy was in charge of Dr. Jenkins of New York, who handled the knife, Dr. Daniel, Dr. MacDonald, and Dr. Spitzka. Dr. Fell prepared the blood drawn from the body for examination under the microscope.

It was found when the body was spread out on the table that a very severe rigor mortis had set in. There was little relaxation and it was with difficulty that the corpse was straightened out.

On examination it was found that the second electrode had burned through the skin and into the flesh at the base of the spine, making a scar nearly five inches in diameter. The heart, lungs and other organs were found to be in good healthy condition. They will be preserved for further examination.

Pysically Kemmler was a fine specimen. The weight of the brain was 45 ounces, which is precisely the average. Over the brain and beneath the spot where the electrode was applied the blood was found to be like charcoal, all the fluids having been evaporated. The brain was lighter in color than it should have been.

Dr. Shrady, who took notes of the autopsy by short hand, transcribed and prepared them for the signatures of the examining surgeons, but some of them left the city during the night, so the report will not be made immediately.

LONDON INTERESTED.

The General Opinion is that Execution by Electricity is a Failure.

LONDON, Aug. 7.—The newspapers and press associations were on the qui vive for news of the execution of Kemmler, and eagerly sought every scrap of information obtainable.

Every paper published a detailed account of the execution, and many of them indulged in extended comment and criticism on the method employed.

The use of electricity as a means of capital punishment has excited much scientific interest here, and the medical experts were among the foremost to seek for details of the experiment.

Recently the London papers have been flooded with sensational and grossly misleading statements anent the execution emenating from a New York news agency. The general opinion here is that execution by means of electricity is a failure.

WHO PULLED THE LEVER?

George B. Irish of Albany Said to be the Man.

AUBURN, N. Y., Aug. 7.—It is now said that George B. Irish, of Albany, N. Y., pulled the lever which closed the circuit through Kemmler's body. He was one of the three persons in the room adjoining the execution cell. The other two were Electrician Davis and one of the prison keepers.

Mr. Irish said to the special correspondent of the United Press that the voltage was at no time below what the doctors had said it ought to be. It is understood that the voltage was between 1,000 and 1,500 on the first shock and that it ran up to 2,000 on the second.

Westinghouse People Jubilant.

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—The necessity of applying the electric current twice before the condemned murderer Kemmler ceased to live is claimed by the opponents of electrocution to prove that the method as formulated by Harold P. Brown is not a success. An air of ill-concealed triumph was apparent at the offices of the Westinghouse company, and while the officers do not come out flat footed and say so, they are jubilant over the failure of Brown's machine.

Gov. Hill Will Wait for a Report.

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 7.—When asked for his opinion about the Kemmler execution, Gov. Hill said: "I am not prepared to give any opinion in this matter yet. I am anxious to see the law successfully carried out, and believe it will be. Further than this it would be unfair to speak until an exact report is made."

Mr. Edison's Opinion.

Mr. Thomas A. Edison, the famous electrician, spoke as follows about the electrocution: "The trouble, to my mind, lies wholly in the application of the current to the victim's body, the working out of a doctor's theory in the face of the plain demonstrations of experience." He thinks the Governor should call a special session of the Legislature and abolish the new law.

Arrested for Malpractice.

ORANGE, Mass., Aug. 7.—Dr. O. B. Dunbar, a well known physician of Athol, was arrested on a charge of malpractice, the victim being Miss Kelley, of Pinedale, who turned State's evidence. The doctor was taken before Judge Field and had his case continued until August 21. He was released in $2,000 bail. The arrest is the outcome of the finding of the body of an infant in Pinedale Pond a few weeks ago.

WASHINGTON TOPICS

The Tariff Bill Will Run Another Month.

MAJOR M'KINLEY INTERVIEWED

He Does Not Look For an Adjournment Before the Middle of September.

Talk About Mr. Blaine's Visit to the President—The Original Package Bill Passed by a Narrow Majority—The Measure Now Goes to the President. Oklahoma's First Election.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—Senator Aldrich has said that by August 23 the Senate will have disposed of the Tariff bill. Major McKinley, however, gives the Senators until September 1 to dispose of it. He says:

"If the bill is sent over to the House by September 1 I do not think it will require more than a week to dispose of it there. It is impossible to estimate the time that will be consumed by the conference committee, but another week would not be an extravagant allowance. We would, of course, save a great deal of time if, when the bill is received back by the House, the motion to non-concur without debate could be passed. That, however, does not seem at all likely."

"How much time will the Senate require to dispose of the Federal Elections bill?"

"I have no means of guessing. There is no reason, however, why that measure should not at once be taken up when the Tariff bill is passed. The two houses could then proceed together and much time would be saved."

"You do not look, then, for an adjournment before the middle of September?"

"Hardly; though, of course, no one can tell what may arise to expedite or delay Congressional work. Nothing that is necessary can be left undone."

MR. BLAINE'S VISIT.

The Behring Sea Question Discussed With the President at Cape May.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—The recent visit of Mr. Blaine to the President at Cape May Point was not altogether of a social nature. There was a prolonged conference on the seal fisheries question and reciprocity.

Mr. Blaine is reported on good authority as maintaining the doctrine that the claim of the Government to regard Behring Sea as a closed water, like the Delaware or Chesapeake Bay, cannot be successfully accomplished, and that the President claims it as United States property, acquired by treaty and purchase, and must be held at all hazards.

Mr. Blaine, being the guest of the President, did not press his views, but will in future Cabinet councils on the subject. There were radical differences of opinion reported on the reciprocity question, and instead of Mr. Blaine being won over to the President, he is further from him than before the Cape May Point meeting. There seems to be small chance of concession enough on either side to formulate any administration policy.

Oklahoma's First Election.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—A dispatch from Guthrie, Oklahoma, says the first election in the territory was held yesterday for members of the Legislature. There were three tickets in the field, the Republicans, Democratic and Alliance. The indications are that the Alliance will carry these seven counties, but that the contest will be close in the towns. In Guthrie 2,000 votes were polled and it is thought there that the Republicans will have a small majority. Purely local issues were at stake.

The Original Package Bill Passed.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 7.—The House has adopted the conference report on the original package amendment to the Interstate Commerce law by a narrow majority—103 to 91. The vote indicates that only 203 members are participating in the proceedings of the House, and that a large number have not heeded the command of the Sergeant-at-Arms to return here. The original package conference agreement having been adopted by the Senate, the bill will now go to the President.

LOOKS LIKE CHOLERA.

The Inhabitants of a Western Town Carried Off by the Epidemic.

PRESTON, Ia., Aug. 7.—Fifteen deaths have occurred here within the last week from an epidemic apparently of the nature of cholera. Seventy persons are now lying sick with the disease. The population of this town is only about 500, and the inroads made by the disease are proportionately very great.

Only five physicians are available in attendance and they are worked to death.

Without an exception the bodies of the victims have turned black within a few hours after death. The majority of the dead are children.

Another Diamond Robbery.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 7.—The residence of Mr. W. H. Osgood, Bellevue avenue, was entered and plundered of jewelry valued at $4,000. There is no clue. The police believe the burglar boldly entered the house by the front door while the family were at dinner.

Mr. Morton at Sullivan Harbor.

BAR HARBOR, Me., Aug. 7.—Vice President Morton and family went to Sullivan Harbor at 10:30, where they will stay, and where they have invited friends to visit them.

A Change Since 1862.

BOSTON, Aug. 7.—Samuel Williams, of Brookline, has purchased the 29-set cards woolen mill in North Vassalboro, Me., for about $300,000 and will start it up, giving employment to some 500 hands. In 1862 Mr. Williams worked in the mill for $15 per month, running a wet cropping spear in the furnishing room.

An Elopement Suspected.

LOWELL, Mass., Aug. 7.—George L. Brown, otherwise known as Lee Browning, a prominent Good Templar, is reported to have eloped with Agnes L. Hill, aged 19. The girl has been missing for two weeks. Brown is married but separated from his wife some time ago.

FORCED TO RESIGN

Great Excitement Prevails at Buenos Ayres.

CELMAN CREATING TROUBLE.

Contradictory Dispatches About the President's Resignation.

Consuls Discussing the American Tariff—Indignation in Buenos Ayres—Over 100,000 Men to Strike in Wales—An Alleged Cure for Consumption Discovered—A Railroad Destroyed.

BUENOS AYRES, Aug. 7.—President Celman has withdrawn his resignation, the Senate having refused to accept it. His cabinet, it is said, will comprise Senors Levalle, Costa, Irojoyen, Dastra and Agote.

A later dispatch says that President Celman has been compelled by popular clamor to resign and Vice-President Pellegrini has assumed the Presidency. It is expected that Senors Metre, Costa Grimstiago and Levalle will enter the new Cabinet. Public confidence is reviving, and gold is quoted at 170.

LATER.—The Chambers have not accepted Celman's resignation. Complications are feared and great excitement prevails.

Celman is Out.

Senor Dardo Rochas will attempt to form a Ministry. The investigation into the affairs of the Government conducted by the Celmanites is a complete fiasco. In secret session Senor Roca declared that Congress must sit until the question of Government was settled. A committee of Deputies visited President Celman and informed him that if he did not resign he would be impeached. Celman then tendered his resignation, but said that history would justify his course. The resignation was accepted by a vote of 61 to 23.

Russia's Blow Against the Jews.

BERLIN, Aug. 7.—It is calculated by the Jewish committees here as well as in London that over a million souls will be driven from their homes and business by the Russian movement. The reason given, that many of the men arrested in other countries as Nihilists are Jews, is so trivial as to be unworthy of any consideration. It is more likely that, beside the periodic scare which Russia is in the habit of experiencing, and for which somebody must be made to suffer, the Jews have become rather prominent in the trades and professions, because they are more clever than the dull Russian of the middle classes, and therefore, for the sake of these same Russians, they must be thrust out of all their advantageous positions. This is one of the views taken of the action against them.

Bacillus of Tuberculosis.

BERLIN, Aug. 7.—The most important occurrence at the international medical congress in this city thus far has been the reading of a paper by Dr. Koch, the famous practitioner and investigator, on the tuberculosis bacillus, which he claims is the cause of that disease. He announced that he has discovered a substitute which is capable of killing the bacillus and curing the disease.

Passengers Killed and Injured.

VIENNA, Aug. 7.—A railway train was thrown from the track near Pilsen, Bohemia. The cars rolled down an embankment into a marsh. The stoker and several passengers were killed and nearly eighty passengers were injured. Most of the passengers on the train were emigrants who were bound for the United States.

The Secret Conference in Paris.

PARIS, Aug. 7.—The consular conference in this city on the McKinley bill held a protracted sitting. The American consuls who compose the conference are going to discuss European consular questions generally, but the results of their deliberations will be kept secret until the Government at Washington authorizes the publication of them.

Chinese Superstition.

SHANGHAI, Aug. 7.—A mob of soldiers combined with the peasantry and destroyed the railroad to Lutai, on the pretense that the road caused the recent floods in the Pei-Ho river. The Government remained passive, making no effort to stop the work of destruction.

Over 100,000 Men to Strike.

LONDON, Aug. 7.—The negotiations which were in progress to prevent the great strike in South Wales have proved a failure. It is expected that the men will go out to-morrow to the number of over 100,000.

The President's Trip to Boston.

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—The arrangements for the reception of President Harrison on the Baltimore next Saturday for the voyage to Boston, where he goes to take part in the National Encampment of the G. A. R., have not yet been completed. It is thought, however, that that the President will embark at Twenty-third street, North river, near where the Squadron of Evolution is anchored. It is not altogether unlikely that Admiral Walker's fleet will accompany the Baltimore on her trip to Boston.

The World's Baseball Championship.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Aug. 7.—Jack Rowe, a player and part proprietor of the Buffalo club, is authority for the statement that the American Association and the Players' League clubs will contend for the world's championship and that all of the clubs in the former organization will play exhibition games with the Players' League clubs at the termination of the present championship season.

THE BRICK BOYCOTT.

It May Throw 150,000 Men Out of Work Next Week.

NEW YORK, Aug. 7.—A brick famine is predicted for next week. The trouble has been brewing for some time, and is owing to the action of the Board of Walking Delegates of the Knights of Labor. These men visited the big brick yards at Verplanck's Point and ordered a boycott against the firms of O'Brien & Vaughey, King & Lynch, Avery & Mackay, and Silas Travers, because the firms refused to discharge the non-union men.

These four firms are members of the Brick Manufacturers' Association of New York and New Jersey. The association has taken the matter up, and a resolution has been passed to discontinue shipping brick to this city and Brooklyn until the walking delegates raise the boycott from the product of the four firms. Unless the boycott is withdrawn before Monday next the shipment of brick will cease.

The effect of such action would be to throw 150,000 men out of work and cause a loss of millions of dollars to builders and contractors. There is no stock of brick kept on hand in this city. Supplies arrive daily, and cargoes are carted from the vessels at the wharf to the building where they are to be used.

RETURNED FROM PRISON.

A Novel Point of Law Raised by Counsel to Save a Client.

ROSDOUT, N. Y., Aug. 7.—In February last Daniel Maxon, a man 50 years of age, was sent to Dannemora Prison for 15 years for the crime of rape. The general term reversed the decision on which he was sentenced, and yesterday Maxon was returned to the jail at Kingston.

A writ of habeas corpus has been procured by the prisoner's counsel which directs the sheriff to bring Maxon before the county judge on Saturday next to determine why he should not be discharged.

A novel point is raised by counsel for the prisoner, who claims that according to the code of criminal procedure the general term should either have granted a new trial to Maxon, or discharged him, neither of which is did.

AN INDIAN PRESIDES.

The Foresters' High Court Holds a Secret Session at Watertown, N. Y.

WATERTOWN, N.Y., Aug. 7.—The High Court of the Independent Order of Foresters of New York State held its first annual session in Washington Hall, this city, with about 100 delegates in attendance. The sessions were secret.

Dr. O'Ronbyattkha, of Toronto, a full-blooded Indian, is chief ranger, and as such presided over the Foresters. He conferred the high degree on forty novices.

There are now thirty courts in the State, all of which are in a flourishing condition. At present the order has 600 courts in all, with 20,459 members, and a reserve fund of $204,814.86.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

The Rev. Dr. Burtsell, of New York, is stopping at Lake Mahopac.

The Elizabeth, N. J., anarchists were fined $25 and costs for disorderly conduct.

One hundred and thirty-five deaths from cholera occurred in Mecca yesterday.

The business part of Vermillion, S. D., was burned yesterday. There was no fire apparatus in the city.

The Farmers' Alliance of Louisiana denounce the big lottery and will work against it.

Dr. Gilbert A. Lathrop, a surgeon of Montrose, Pa., met a frightful death by his horse running away while descending a steep hill.

James Moore, an aged farmer residing in Weston, Conn., fell from a wagon and broke his neck, dying almost instantly.

The stair-builders of Boston organized a trades union last night. The cloak makers at Seaman's factory have returned to work, Seaman agreeing to an advance ranging from 15 to 25 per cent. in wages and not to employ non-union men.

BY THE WAY.

—Because of the excursion to Rockaway, the Thursday evening meeting of the Reform Club will be postponed for a week.

—On the door of a little shop next to Rugg's coal office, is this sign: "This exchange will be closed until Sept. 1st. The manager has gone away to have a good time."

—An industrious workingman last night permitted strong drink to gain a mastery over him, and made the sidewalk his couch. He was arrested and fined five dollars.

—Washburn & Arlington's bill posters' car arrived yesterday and was sidetracked at the freight house, and Plainfield is being billed for their circus and Wild West show on the 18th inst.

—The Reform Club excursionists who left town this morning for Rockaway Beach, filled fifteen railway coaches, and the club is sure of making money by the affair, besides giving every excursionist a good time.

—Members of Major Anderson Post, No. 109, G. A. R., who intend going to the National Encampment at Boston, are to meet at Comrade Collier's store next Saturday evening at eight o'clock, to make the necessary arrangements for the trip.

—Ex-Officer Eugene Laine came to the rescue of an unfortunate man, this noon. Driver Staats, who works for L. A. Rheaume & Co., was overcome with the heat or some other sickness, and fell on North avenue. Laine carried the man into his shop, and after much effort succeeded in reviving him.

—Canine solos have grown to be so nerve-trying and sleep-breaking a thing among the residents of the Richmond and Third street neighborhood that the weary householders talk of forming a vigilance committee for the extinction of the howling nuisance who nightly renders darkness hideous with his yelps and whines.

—The colored troops who went to Somerville, yesterday, to see the ball game, kicked because the price of admission was raised for the occasion. One of them shouted so all Somerville could hear: "We Plainfielders ain't like de men who can't pay. But when you come to Plainfield we'll show you der best clubs in der country all for der regular price."

Property Changing Hands.

The following transfers of real estate in this city and vicinity, have just been recorded:

Randolph M. Stelle, of Plainfield, to Sarah F. Brett, Plainfield, land on West side of Central avenue, Plainfield, intersection of Stelle avenue, 200x200 feet, $4,000.

Central New Jersey Land Improvement Company to David Hallan, of Brooklyn, lot in Plainfield, East corner of South avenue and Prospect place, 125x40, $350.

Frances T. Humbert and William P. Humbert, of New York city, to James Frank Hubbard, of Plainfield, land on Madison avenue, Plainfield, 139 feet South east from corner of Sixth street, 55x154 feet, $1,925.

Frances T. Humbert and husband to F. Adelbert Dunham, of Plainfield, land in Plainfield, on Madison avenue, 84 feet Southeast from Sixth street, 55x158 feet, $1,925.

Walter L. Hetfield, exr of Antoine Debaud, deceased, of Plainfield, to William Frano, of Fanwood, lot on West side of Barth avenue, 100 feet Southwest from Stout avenue, 50x100 feet, $60.

Walter L. Hetfield, exr to Frederick Coombs, of Westfield, two tracts of land in Fanwood township, on stage road or Main street, containing 30-100 acres and 2 acres 4 rods, including the old Scotch Plains Hotel and grounds, $7,152.50.

Vice President Corwin Condemns the New Stamp.

Charles B. Corwin, of East Ninth street, was elected Vice President of the American Philatelic Association, at yesterday's session of the fifth annual convention of the Society, and was toast-master at the annual banquet at the Manhattan Beach Hotel last night.

On the centre of each menu card at the banquet was a four-cent stamp of the new series, bearing an excellent portrait of Abraham Lincoln. Vice President Corwin said that this stamp was the best executed one in the new series, and that the new two-cent stamp was an abominable botch and was condemned by the association.

PARTICULAR MENTION.

Ex-Councilman Bowers and family are home from Spring Lake.

Bert Tallamy of West Sixth street is visting friends at Cumberland Hills, R. I.

Miss Ella Milligan of West Fourth street is spending a week with relatives at Landsdown and Clinton.

Mr. and Mrs. R. F. R. Huntsman, who are out of town on their honeymoon, are at present at Martha's Vineyard. Later they will go to Nantucket and the White Mountains.

The Asbury Park papers say: "Miss Laura Runyon of Plainfield, is at the Leadley. This lady is a fine musician, as is also her brother, Wm. Runyon, also a guest at this house."

James Bergen, the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Bergen of Wilson avenue, North Plainfield, died yesterday in the second year of his age. The funeral will occur Friday.

Musicale at Hotel Netherwood.

A very enjoyable musicale arranged by Mrs. F. E. Miller for the entertainment of the 200 guests of the Hotel Netherwood, was carried out last evening with entire success according to the following programme:

PART I.

OVERTURE—To the Opera, "Raymond."...Thomas
ORCHESTRA.

SONG—"The Stirrup Cup."...Arditi
MR. W. E. MCCREEDY.

PIANO SOLO {a. Waltz. {b. Air de Ballet.}...Thome / Chaminade
MRS. QUINLAN.

FLUTE SOLO—"Mélodie de Chopin."...Chopin
MR. W. H. GREENOP.

SONG—"Beauty's Eyes," (with Flute obligato)...Tosti
MRS. W. E. MCCREEDY.

PART II.

MARCH—"Fidele."...Leo Pinner
LEO PINNER AND ORCHESTRA.

VIOLIN SOLO—"Serenade."...Shubert
MASTER SIMON L. PINNER.

WALTZ SONG—"Il Bacio."...Arditi
MRS. W. E. MCCREEDY.

PIANO SOLO—"Pavne."...Sharpe
MR LEO PINNER.

FOURTH SYMPHONIE—Adagio-Vivace...Beethoven
ORCHESTRA.

It is needless to say that the entire programme was commendable and received sincere approval. The vocal solos of Mrs. McCreedy and the instrumental solos of Mrs. Quinlan, were especially worthy of note; while the performances of Mr. Pinner and his son excelled the efforts of many professionals. The numbers rendered by Greenop's philharmonic quartette, were remarkably praiseworthy. The Netherwood has never before had such an orchestra.

At the close of the programme, the artists were tendered a little supper by Mr. Miller, served in the famed "Parlor B."

Sangston on the Path for Revenge.

Dr. Henry W. Mitchell, the Asbury Park physician who was arrested yesterday, charged with assaulting James Allen Sangston, the drug clerk, formerly of Plainfield, was given a hearing before a justice of the Peace and placed under bail to appear before the Grand Jury in October next.

Mr. Sangston says, concerning Dr. Mitchell's finding fault with the two prescriptions which he himself was careful to compound in the presence of witnesses, that in ten years, during which he has worked in the noted chemical laboratories of H. C. Blair's Sons, Philadelphia, and Hazard & Hazard, New York, this is the first instance of a charge of inaccuracy in his work. The fight of Tuesday resulted in no severe injury to either combatant. Sangston carries a scratch under the left ear, and the doctor exhibits no marks.

Out of Town Jockeys Race Plainfield Horses.

The local sporting fraternity enjoyed a half-mile race between George Conover's bay horse "Doctor" and N. B. Smalley's grey horse "Frank", on the track of the Gentlemen's Driving Park Association, last evening. The stakes were $20 a side. Dudley Clark, of Westfield, who weighed sixty-eight pounds, rode "Doctor", and Jockey Miller, of Somerville, rode "Frank". Andrew Lutkins started the race, and Peter Emmons, Andrew Love, Jr., and August Trust were the judges. "Doctor" early took the lead and won by a few yards in fifty-nine seconds. That's pretty good time.

Who Are These For?

The following letters are now lying in the post office awaiting identification. Even Second Assistant Postmaster Godown can't guess where they are intended to go:

Mr. Cornelias
265 Six st.

In care of Mr. Bil Gard
Mr. John Slattery
117 Sheffield st
New Jersey

Mr. Willie Hill
Yorktown
Under Hill

In haste

Just a Sample of "News."

A correspondent who has been reading a lot of dead religious notices used to fill up the empty columns of another paper, asks if the Rev. Mr. "Stinson" is pastor of the New Market Baptist church, as that paper has stated for weeks and weeks. A sufficient reply to the query is: "If you don't see it in THE PRESS, it isn't so." The Rev. Mr. Cubberly is pastor of the Baptists, and the Rev. Mr. Stinson of the Presbyterians of Dunellen and New Market.

Go where you will, you will find people using Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup, and unanimous in its praise.

I suffered most severely from rheumatism during Winter. After using Salvation Oil two days the pain entirely subsided, and now I am a well man.

METHODISTS IN MORMON LAND.

Bishop Vincent Present at the Laying of the Corner Stone of the Utah University in Ogden, U. T.

The corner stone of the Utah University of the Methodist Episcopal church was laid there Tuesday afternoon with appropriate and brilliant ceremonies. The foundation and much of the superstructure of the majestic main building are completed upon one of the most eligible and sightly locations in the city. The landed and money endowments of the university are already large; and the series of buildings, costing upward of $500,000, will be pushed rapidly to completion. They will include the main building, men's hall, ladies' hall, library, laboratory, gymnasium, observatory and residences of the faculty.

The programme embraced appropriate music and the solemn ceremonies of the Methodist ritual. The corner stone was set in place by the Rev. Bishop John H. Vincent, formerly of this city, and the famous founder of the Chautauqua assemblies of the World. There was an immense concourse of people present, including distinguished representatives of the church and public dignitaries.

The address of Bishpp Vincent was eloquent, and prophetic of the value and achievements of the institution in the causes of Christian education, civilization and patriotism.

Looking for a New Home.

The meeting of the Crescent League, last evening, being principally for a consideration of the purchase of a club property, the attendance was unusually large. President Reed occupied the chair, and Charles Lyman was elected Secretary.

Fully one hundred members took part in the discussion of plans for a new home. A number of desirable locations were considered, but that which was most generally favored was the home of the late Henry C. Latimer, on the corner of Front street and Bank place. A resolution was offered to the effect that the Board of Trustees be authorized to purchase the property if it could be bought for $6,000. This is the figure at which it had stood in the market for some time until the League confessed an approval of it. Then the price advanced to $6,500, and to $7,000.

The resolution that the Latimer property be purchased, was unanimously lost. It was the expressed sense of the members, however, that not more than $6,000 be expended for any property for club purposes.

Saturday's Game Against the Colored Champions.

On the Crescent League's ball grounds, Saturday afternoon, there will be a fine game between the Plainfield team and the "Gorhams," the colored champions of the World. They have beaten everybody, including the Cuban Giants, Metropolitans, Ridgewoods, Rahways, Stars, Senators, Hackett-Carharts, and the entire list of ball clubs. The Gorhams will be accompanied on Saturday by their celebrated coacher, Collins, who is the great rival of Latham, of the St. Louis League Team. The batting order will be:

| CRESCENT LEAGUE. | GORHAMS. |
|---|---|
| Martin, short stop. | Freeman, third base. |
| Lufbery, 2d base. | Barton, catcher. |
| Wiegand, 1st base. | Peterson, first base. |
| Jones, catcher. | Collins, short stop. |
| Hatfield, right field. | Evans, 2d base. |
| McIndoe, left field. | Dickenson, centre field. |
| Gregg, pitcher. | Smith, left field. |
| Lee, third base. | Douglas, pitcher. |
| Gillis, centre field. | Miller, right field. |

In spite of the expense of bringing the Gorhams to this city, especially on Saturday, there will be no extra charge for admission.

The Somervilles Defeat the Colored Professionals.

The Somerville base ball team has weeds on its diamond, but it gets there just the same. A large crowd of people, including about 200 cranks from this city, saw them beat the Cuban Giants, yesterday, by the following score:

| | | | | | | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| West Ends | 0 | 5 | 0 | 0 | 1 | 0 | 1 | 0 | 3 | —10 |
| Cuban Giants | 0 | 0 | 1 | 1 | 2 | 0 | 2 | 0 | 0 | —6 |

Harkins was not pitching his usual game and was batted freely; otherwise the Giants might have been shut out. The latter put up a good game, however, and promise to come to Plainfield with even a stronger team on the 30th inst.

Among the prominent Crescent League members present from this city were President Reed, Secretary Lyman and Managers Burnet and Leggett of the ball team.

Whisps From Washingtonville.

The Misses Laura and Lizzie Huesterman of Brooklyn, are visiting their cousins, the Misses Milligan.

Fred. P. Thompson of Brooklyn, is visiting his cousin, G. N. Beeching.

Mrs. Greable and Miss Louisa Taylor, former residents of this place, are visiting friends in the vicinity.

A beautiful night blooming cereus belonging to Mrs. S. H. Beeching, was in bloom last evening. It was the admiration of her friends, who enjoyed its rare fragrance, and to whom she presented a flower as a souvenir of the occasion. The flowers were uncommonly large and beautiful. W. H. R.

Mrs. Day to be Tried Next Week.

Mrs. Catharine Day was considerably surprised on learning that Terrence McCaffry, who had been fined five dollars on her complaint, for using abusive language, had made a counter-complaint against her on a similar charge. She was told by City Judge Codington this morning to appear for trial next week Tuesday.

ABOUT ANIMALS AND BIRDS.

A HEN at Hanover, Penn., is setting on a nest of eggs in the top of a willow tree.

A RAT jumped from the eaten-out inside of a loaf of bread which a Pennsylvania miss took from the pantry to cut, and was speedily dispatched by the family cat.

AT Washington, Pa., a hawk swooped down on a three-year-old boy and attempted to carry him off. The cries of the child attracted the neighbors and the bird was captured and killed. Its wings stretched five feet from tip to tip.

THE festive jack rabbit is a strict vegetarian and will not touch grease of any kind, nor will he tackle vegetables that are seasoned with grease. Orchardists in Colorado take advantage of his fastidiousness and protect their trees from his incisors by rubbing the body of the tree with a bacon rind.

A FARMER near St. Louis has a nest of owls in his barn, and they keep it free from rats and mice. The birds lay up provisions at night for the next day. The farmer marked the bodies of the mice he found by cutting off one foot with a pair of scissors. At night all the marked mice would be gone and the next morning there would be a fresh supply.

SOMETHING remarkable happened near Sidney, O., to a cow. There were two large trees close together on the edge of a clover field. A fence touched either tree, but the gap had no fence. The cow squeezed into the gap, and without passing through began to browse. She soon began to swell with gas generated by the green clover, and to get her out one of the trees had to be cut.

A WATERVILLE, Me., lad tells a story of the remarkable sagacity of a pet cat which he owns. The feline has a great fondness for the flesh of birds, and in order to make her quest for the same successful, employs a stratagem. Evidently understanding the birds' fondness for angleworms, she collects a number of the same and buries them in the ground. She then takes her place in a convenient place of ambush, and when the birds alight to secure their coveted morsel she springs from her concealment and pounces upon them. Many a bird thus falls a prey to pussy's shrewdness.

RELATED OF THE RENOWNED.

THE Emperor of Russia is building a yacht which will be more than twice the size of the English royal yacht, having accommodations for two hundred persons.

PRINCE HERBERT BISMARCK cherishes carefully the wreck of a watch which he carried during the Franco-Prussian war and which stopped a bullet that otherwise might have ended his life.

THE late J. J. McElhone, stenographer of the National House of Representatives, could report equally well with either hand, and in taking a long speech in the House he would frequently shift the pencil from one hand to the other without interrupting his speed.

A BEAUTIFUL album, bearing the signatures of many of the most distinguished personages in this country and England, and containing drawings by a few eminent artists, has been presented to M. Pasteur, the eminent chemist, as a testimonial. It was originated and successfully carried through by Mrs. Priestly, wife of the distinguished English physician.

THE Pope is going to erect a monument in the Lateran in which are to be deposited the remains of Pope Innocent III. It will be placed at the entrance, on the left of the aisle leading to the sacristy, and will harmonize with the new decorations of the complete restoration recently carried out. At present the remains of Innocent III. are in the archbasilica of the Lateran.

IT would seem that Mr. W. K. Vanderbilt does not confine his investments to railway stocks, nor does he find these by any means as profitable as certain other gilt-edged enterprises with which he is connected. It is stated that Mr. Vanderbilt owns eighty per cent. of the stock of the Coney Island race-track, and we are trustworthily informed that he recently received a dividend of forty-five per cent. upon his capital. This is probably a larger per cent. than certain other railway magnates have been able to make out of their racing studs, and possibly they may find here a valuable hint as to the really profitable forms of investment.

A GRIST FOR THE GRANGER.

HUNGARIAN grass or millet is the best crop to sow in the poultry yard.

IT is important that the corn crib be cleaned out and fumigated so as to destroy insects.

HAY should be stacked only after it is well cured and dry. Wet hay will either heat or deteriorate.

A HEN pays in proportion to the number of eggs she produces; therefore it is an item to feed so as to secure plenty of eggs.

KEEP alfalfa closely cropped if the weeds are growing among it. In this manner the weeds will be killed, while the alfalfa becomes stronger.

IT is said that rags saturated with kerosene and fastened into a split stick that has been driven into the squash, melon and cucumber hills will keep bugs off.

ON all fields where the mowers are to be used the advantage of the land having been previously rolled will be noticeable. Fields that have been rolled can be mowed easier, and the work done more completely than where the land is rough.

BREAKING down the top of sweet corn as soon as the ear is formed, but leaving it sufficiently erect to allow the pollen of the tassel to dust the silk, has been found by repeated trial to hasten the growth of the corn to the eating point a full week.

FROM the vigorous growth of stray asparagus shoots year after year in hedges, along roadsides and in uncultivated fields it would appear that the old way of stuffing the soil with manure for the family plat is a somewhat wasteful method of raising this everywhere-prized vegetable.

A Child Carelessly Run Over.

Frank Campbell, the young son of druggist Campbell of Stelle's pharmacy, was run over by a horse and phaeton at the corner of Park ave., and Front street, this morning. The lad was carried into Stelle's, and as soon as a carriage could be procured was sent home. It is thought that no bones were broken, but the boy is severely bruised, especially about the legs. The accident is attributed to the carelessness of the driver, who drove on without being recognized.

That distension of the stomach which many feel after eating, may be due to improper masticetion of the food; but, in most cases, it indicates a weakness of the digestive organs, the best remedy for which is one of Ayer's Pills, to be taken after dinner.

—Much profit awaits the man who will build a public bath in this city, and have certain hours when boys of seven years old and over, and girls, can receive instruction in swimming.

The vicissitudes of climate are trying to most constitutions, especially to people having impure blood. For all such (and they constitute the majority), the best safeguard is Ayer's Sarsaparilla, the use of which cleanses the blood and strengthens and invigorates the system.

Catarrh

IS a blood disease. Until the poison is expelled from the system, there can be no cure for this loathsome and dangerous malady. Therefore, the only effective treatment is a thorough course of Ayer's Sarsaparilla—the best of all blood purifiers. The sooner you begin the better; delay is dangerous.

"I was troubled with catarrh for over two years. I tried various remedies, and was treated by a number of physicians, but received no benefit until I began to take Ayer's Sarsaparilla. A few bottles of this medicine cured me of this troublesome complaint and completely restored my health."—Jesse M. Boggs, Holman's Mills, N. C.

"When Ayer's Sarsaparilla was recommended to me for catarrh, I was inclined to doubt its efficacy. Having tried so many remedies, with little benefit, I had no faith that anything would cure me. I became emaciated from loss of appetite and impaired digestion. I had nearly lost the sense of smell, and my system was badly deranged. I was about discouraged, when a friend urged me to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and referred me to persons whom it had cured of catarrh. After taking half a dozen bottles of this medicine, I am convinced that the only sure way of treating this obstinate disease is through the blood."—Charles H. Maloney, 113 River st., Lowell, Mass.

FACTS ABOUT THE BAPTISTS.

Some Compilations From an Official Publication.

(From the Central Times.)

The minutes of the forty-ninth anniversary of the East New Jersey Baptist Association, held in Newark, in June, have been published in a pamphlet. This is an association of some of the Baptist churches located in this part of the State. Other churches in the same vicinity belong to other associations. To be exact, the churches included in the body here noticed are 10 in Newark, the 3 located in Plainfield, 3 in Elizabeth, 2 in Jersey City, and one each in Piscataway, Scotch Plains, Mount Bethel, Lyons Farms, New Brooklyn, Perth Amboy, Rahway, Red Bank, New Market, Port Monmouth, Westfield, Roselle, Paterson, Harrison and Cranford, making a total of 33. The oldest Baptist church in the association, and in the State, is that of Piscataway, which was founded in 1689, and the next oldest that of Scotch Plains, founded in 1747. The largest church is the First, of Plainfield. The following table gives a list of the largest churches in the order of their size, with the dates of their organization:

| | Year Organized | No. Members |
|---|---|---|
| Plainfield, First | 1818 | 795 |
| Newark, First | 1801 | 755 |
| Jersey City, North | 1865 | 674 |
| Newark, South | 1850 | 487 |
| Red Bank, First | 1844 | 426 |
| Elizabeth, First | 1843 | 390 |
| Jersey City, Bergen | 1869 | 388 |
| Newark, Fairmount | 1860 | 344 |
| Paterson, Emmanuel | 1884 | 319 |
| Newark, Bethany | 1871 | 315 |

The total membership of the 33 churches is 8,491, a net increase of 256 during the year. The following tables indicate the changes in the membership which took place in that period, in these churches:

| Increase. | |
|---|---|
| By Baptism | 387 |
| By Letter from other churches | 204 |
| By Experience | 41 |
| By Restoration | 19 |
| Total | 651 |
| Decrease. | |
| By Letter to other churches | 200 |
| By Death | 95 |
| By Exclusion | 49 |
| By Erasure | 51 |
| Total | 395 |

Nine of the churches own parsonages, and fifteen of them have a debt of from $100 to $10,000 on their property.

For various benevolent objects of the Baptist denomination the 33 churches gave for the year $20,000, more than one-fourth of it being contributed by the First Baptist church of Plainfield.

As this association embraces only one of several similar groups of churches in the State, (though this is the largest) it will be seen that the Baptists are a powerful religious force in New Jersey.

Sidewalks Not Made for Wheels.

Bicycling on sidewalks is again getting to be a great nuisance in Plainfield. Most of the offenders are young men of a smaller growth, and their impudence in taking possession of the places that belong to pedestrians is ofttimes astonishing. Complaints come from various parts of the city, but the commuters who rush down Broadway and Park avenue every morning seem to be especially aggrieved. The young wheelmen, with an air of superb impudence, dash up and down along the smooth pavements, swerving neither right nor left, and calmly maintain possession of the centre of the walk as far as they please.

Plainfield's driveways are good enough for anything that runs on wheels, and if there isn't considerably less violation of the sidewalk-riding ordinance, some of the violators may find themselves in trouble. It must be said for the ladies who ride that most of them bravely obey the law and show no hesitation about taking their chances among the crowds of horses and wagons on the business streets. They seem satisfied with the driveways, and they set a good example.

There's a Law Against Slung-Shots.

A large number of Plainfield boys carry slung-shots, or catapults, and not only carry them, but use them with considerable effect along the streets. Song birds are daily maimed and killed by them, and not a few window-panes are broken. Besides, people walking out where the whizzing slung-shot missiles are flying about are constantly in danger of being struck. Last evening a woman walking along Sixth street was stung in the face by several small shot. She gave a short cry and saw a small boy hastily thrust something into his pocket and scamper away in the darkness. There is a legal penalty for the mere carrying of slung-shots and similar weapons, and for the results of using them there are penalties which in many cases are very severe.

The Circus is Coming.

Hunting's new railroad shows will exhibit in this city on Tuesday of next week. The show is entirely new this season, and much larger and better than ever. New acts, new faces, new wardrobe, new canvas, new horses, new cars, and is the best show on earth for the price of admission.

The company is under the personal supervision of Mr. Hunting. The attractions presented are first-class in every respect, and all advise everyone to attend. Two performances daily, afternoon and evening.

If your dealer says he does not keep Hires' Root Beer in stock, go to the next one who does. There is no valid reason because he hasn't the genuine to accept an imitation. Would you take counterfeit money? The dealers business is profit.

A TRAMP AS A TENANT.

Tribulations of a Netherwood Farmer With an ex-"Hired Man".

A Netherwood farmer was approached Tuesday morning by a genteel tramp, who asked politely if he might repose in the farmer's barn.

"If you want work"—said the granger—"I'll give you an abundance of it, and you may not only sleep in my barn, but I'll give you wages besides."

The honest tramp confessed that he desired employment, but had been refused so many times that he was disheartened, and had grown weary of asking.

With much joyousness, therefore, he received the farmer's orders, first, to take care of a herd of cattle, and departed with jubilation to the meadow indicated by the horny-handed tiller of the soil.

Not for long, however, did the new "hired man" attend the lowing herd. He had been told to turn the bovine creatures into another pasture, drive them to their watering-place, bring back two calves for market, and let the others roam about at will till nightfall.

He satisfied himself with turning them loose into the wrong field, a neighbor's, and then made a circuit to the barn, where the farmer found him, some time later, sleeping contentedly in the haymow with the stem of a lighted pipe held loosely between his teeth.

With a Pan-American war-whoop the farmer aroused the cherub-faced gentleman of leisure and ordered him to "clear out".

The tramp carefully arranged his garments and sauntered away. At nightfall, however, he quietly returned, and in the morning, yesterday, his urbane countenance once more smiled on the irate farmer. The tramp was once more verbally ejected, but four times during the day the farmer again discovered him reclining on the greensward in various parts of the farm, and once in the corn-crib.

At evening twilight occured the final exasperation. The farmer had been working hard since five o'clock, and returned at about seven, to find the tramp sitting placidly on the back steps pointing out to himself the beauties of the sunset. This time the farmer kicked the tramp, who smote not back, but grew mournful of feature and walked away.

The farmer was hot, and not very hungry. He ate but little supper, and then started out for a stroll across his cool broad acres. Not a hundred yards away the tramp sat on top of a rail fence. The farmer got an axe and snaked his way Indian fashion through the grass. When within twenty feet of the fence the tramp dismounted and turned and smiled on the farmer.

"I guess you must be wantin' me to move on," he said.

The farmer leaned against the fence, and the tramp went on two hundred and fifty feet and sat down, his back to the farmer, near the barn. For nearly half an hour the farmer kept sneaking up with his axe, and the tramp kept discovering him just in time to wander to some other spot. A public road was near at hand, and, though it was now growing dusk, a number of wheelmen and one or two driving parties had halted to witness the scene. By and by the farmer crawled into a wet ditch with water in it and went back to the house in anger, disgust and wet, soiled clothes, and with a rusting axe. This morning, bright and early, the tramp slunk out of the farmer's barn and sat down on the railroad bank near the pumping station of the new water works, where he became apparently absorbed in studying the science of hydrostatics.

The farmer has discovered that his larder is being systematically robbed. The tramp will probably be around again to-night, and so will the farmer and his little gun.

Lost a Finger in a Mill Wheel.

Charles Amerman, in the employ of M. H. French, the miller, was adjusting some of the gearing of the mill, when a wheel weighing about 200 pounds fell on the index finger of his right hand, severing it at the middle joint as completely as if done by a knife. Dr. Probasco dressed the wound.

"Early to bed and early to rise
Makes a man healthy, wealthy and wise,"

says the olden-time nursery rhyme, but we think that—

"Early to drink from the fountain of health
Will bring both the wisdom and much-longed for wealth,"

and that fountain is to be found in Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, the world-famed remedy for impurities of the blood. It cures Scrofulous Sores and Swellings, Skin and Scalp diseases, Tetter, Salt-rheum and all blood taints.

FOR GIRLS AND BOYS.

THE COUNTRY BOY.

Happy the boy whose lot in life
'Mid rural scenes is cast,
Whose youthful hours with birds and flowers
Contentedly are passed;
Whose home is where the dense woods wave
And emerald meadows lay,
Where Nature stands with outstretched hands,
Inviting him to play.

The mill-race, churned to dancing foam,
The pond, the rush-rimmed brook,
Are free for him to sail or swim,
Or cast the baited hook;
He roams in blossomed clover fields,
Companion of the bee,
And for the fruits his palate suits
He plucks the orchard tree.

He sees no signs: "Keep off the grass!"
"Boys not admitted here!"
Policemen grim don't trouble him
And make him quake with fear;
No threatening municipal laws
His outdoor sports annoy;
There don't exist a Socialist
Free as the country boy.

These summer days he sports about
Barefoot and jacketless;
No fashion plates he imitates
In matters such as dress;
The prisoned brick and mortar lads
May dub him "Country Jake,"
But everywhere the pure, fresh air
Clear brains and stout limbs make.

And while the draughts of rich ozone
Feed muscle, brain and lung,
The rustic mind is quick to find
Gems in our mother tongue;
For where the state, the pen, the sword,
Ambition's slaves employ,
High up in fame is carved the name
Of many a country boy.

—P. C. Fossett, in Golden Days.

GOOD-TIMES FREDDY.

How a Selfish Little Boy Learned to Plant the Good Seed.

There was once a little boy who had such an appetite for good times that he was called Good-Times Freddy.

Now, what do you think was his idea of good times? Why, pleasing himself, playing, eating, reading fairy tales, getting gifts at Christmas, and stuffing himself till his buttons flew off at Thanksgiving time!

One way of having a good time, according to Fred's belief, was to "knee it" up and down and across the lawn. Another way was to make taffy on the kitchen stove ironing-day. Freddy had a most delightfully good time whenever a homeless cat crossed his path. To see his little terrier frighten timid Mrs. Tabby, and send her flying over the high board fence, caused Good-Times Freddy to fairly bubble over with delight.

Or if an ugly little mongrel specimen of a dog happened to stray into Fred's domain for a sociable call upon the elegant terrier, to see that same dog go scuttling off over the pavement with a tin pail banging and bouncing at his tail, caused Fred the most intense joy.

There were little sisters in Good-Times Fred's family, and a baby boy. Sometimes mamma wished Fred to amuse these little people while she was making good things in the kitchen for breakfast, dinner and supper, and the same thing over again. (Oh, such a lot of goodies as it took for the stomach of Good-Times Fred!)

But when Fred was asked to stay in the house and play with Patty and Matty and Toddlekins, he would throw himself flat upon the floor, and utter wailings like unto this:

"Ow, wow, wow! I never can't have no good times!"

Now you know there are only just so many good times in the world. It seems a pity that there are not more, but probably things are best as they are in this respect. There being a limited quantity of good times, if one boy gets more than his share, somebody else must do without. On account of the good times "kneeing it" over the lawn, mamma was obliged to sit up nights, and patch and darn till she had bad times with her aching head.

Because Good-Times Fred was determined that he wouldn't help take care of Patty and Matty and Toddlekins, mamma couldn't go out and get as much fresh air as she needed. Because he would climb scraggly nut-trees and peaked picket fences, his new suits cost so much that mamma sometimes had to do without new gloves or a new gown. At last this poor overworked mamma fell sick. The headaches got worse and worse till there was not much but headaches.

A tall, sharp-eyed, Roman-nosed doctor was called. He was the kind of a doctor who can see right through little boys, and he saw through Good-Times Freddy at the first sharp glance. He saw through the gentle, tender-hearted mother, too.

"See here," he said, holding up a long bony forefinger. "See here, madame! You are worn threadbare. Now you might take a barrel of pills and powders; you might dose your liver, and dose your stomach, and brace your nerves, and rectify your heart—for they're all ailing—but it would do no good. Madame, you must have change; you must leave every chick and child behind you, and go off and enjoy yourself. Tone, madame, tone is what you need."

So the patient mamma went away for her share of the good times, and a housekeeper as tall, as bony, as grisly, as the doctor, came to take her place.

It is well known that housekeepers like good times almost as well as little boys. The very first time that Mrs. Toothacre caught Fred on his knees out of doors she called him in and sent him to bed.

"No place like bed for boys," she said. "They're out of sight and hearing, and their clothes last twice as long if you keep 'em in bed."

So hungry was our little Piggy Wee. But in vain did he squeal for more cake, pie or bread and butter.

"You shan't stuff while I'm here," said the grim, slim, trim Mrs. Toothacre. "You'd be hungry any way, however much you ate."

And the hours that Fred spent shut up with Patty and Matty and Toddlekins! Why, it was beyond belief!

"Good Times!" exclaimed the housekeeper. "Oh, you will have good times when your mother's quite gone from you!"

You see, Fred had been complaining, as usual, that he never had any good times, and in the midst of his moanings had jingled the postman's bell. A letter from mamma was handed in, which Mrs. Toothacre hastened to read.

"When's she a comin' home—say, Miss Toothache, when's my mamma a comin'?" said Fred.

"To the best of my knowledge and belief, she won't come home at all. She's very sick. Your papa writes that she seems to grow weaker instead of stronger."

"And shall you stay here allers?" inquired the grief-stricken boy.

"Mebbe, an' mebbe not," said Mrs. Toothacre.

A great wail went up, that no scolding and no threats could stop. Good-Times Freddy had a heart, after all. That night he couldn't eat his supper. Something swelled in his throat that kept him from swallowing. Pretty soon after that, a dimple-cheeked young aunty came to stay with the children. Fred began to love her the moment she stepped into the house.

"What made mamma sick?" he asked, wistfully, the day she came, leaning on her shoulder, with her soft, round arm clasped about him.

"I think your good times helped to make her sick," said gentle Aunt Grace. "And now all those good times have changed into one big bad time—the very saddest and sorrowfulest kind of a time."

"Do good times always make bad times?" asked the tearful little boy.

"Not always. But your good times my boy, were like seeds that make ugly, prickly, stinging things—and that's because they were selfish good times, which really are no good times at all."

"I see," said Fred, who was a very bright boy; "I've been a plantin' thistles an' nettles an' burs, an' now they're a stickin' into me."

"But suppose we begin planting some of the right kind of seed:", said Aunt Grace, smiling; "the kind that comes up in genuine good times."

Fred was curious to have Aunt Grace tell him about the wonderful seed. But she said they had talked long enough. There was work to do, and Patty and Matty and Toddlekins must be attended to.

"I'll tell them that story about the mouse mother and the baby mice," said Fred. "The poor things really don't have any good times."

"There's hope for little Good-Times Fred," said Aunt Grace to herself. "He has really begun to think about making good times for other folks."

Quite patiently Fred went over and over with the story, till the little folks had had enough. At the end they threw three pairs of fat arms around his neck, and printed a dozen baby kisses upon his round red cheeks. His face sparkled with pleasure as he went to give an account of himself to Aunt Grace.

"You needn't tell me about it, Fred," she said. "I see it all in your face. You have made a good time for the babies, and the good time has stretched out so that there is enough for you. It is a kind of a miracle."

"I'd like to make another good time for somebody."

"Go help Mrs. Toothacre. She is making supper, and the fire is giving her a very bad time."

Fred ran out, with an offer to help.

"Dry wood I want, if there's to be any supper to-night," said the slim, prim housekeeper.

The wood-box was filled, which so pleased and cheered Mrs. Toothacre that she baked Fred a special little cake, and covered it with red and white candies.

And so the true good times began. They grew and grew, and reached even to mamma in her sick-room. It was about this time that she began to get better, and one day, a long month later, the Roman-nosed doctor said she might go home to her children.

"I have been planting good-times seed," said Fred, as he nestled close to her side on the night of her return.

Mamma was completely mystified.

"What?" asked she.

"Good-times seed. Of course, you don't understand; but just wait a few days, and you will see."—Mrs. M. F. Butts, in S. S. Times.

JOHNNY'S CONCLUSIONS.

Why He Thinks It Doesn't Pay to Be Selfish.

"Shall I tell you what I think doesn't pay? Well, it doesn't pay to be selfish.

"I've often heard mamma say so; but somehow I didn't exactly see it. I thought it was a little nicer to keep your candy instead of dividing it with Polly and Tom.

"Or to go off by yourself when you had a big apple, for fear some one would want a bite.

"Or to try to get the biggest half of any thing.

"But I don't think so now. And I'll tell you how I came to stop thinking so.

"I went down town with Uncle Jack one day, and he filled all my pockets full of peanuts.

"I didn't want any body to see them, because I didn't wan't to give some to any body.

"I thought I'd hide the peanuts. I put them in an old flower-pot and set it up in a tree, and then it tumbled down on my head.

"I picked up all the peanuts and went into the house. I was afraid to hide them in the pantry for fear Bridget would find them. I was afraid to hide them in the parlor for fear mamma'd find them.

"At last I went upstairs to my room, and got the jacket of my new suit. I put them all in the pockets. Then I shut it up in the drawer.

"Then I forgot all about the peanuts till the day Uncle Jack came to take us to the circus. Then I ran to put on my best suit.

"The drawer was full of peanut shells, and there was a hole on both sides of my jacket just where the pockets were.

"Mamma said it was mice. And the peanuts were all gone but the shells.

"I didn't go to the circus.

"There were trained dogs and a band and elephants and lemonade and horses.

"There's two patches right on the front of my best jacket.

"That's why I don't think it pays to be selfish."—Sydney Dayre, in Our Little Ones.

HALL FIXTURES.

Frank Laurel Tells How to Make a Mirror and Umbrella Stand.

In too many houses the hall is but a small alley whose only furnishing is a square piece of gaudily colored oil cloth, with perhaps a long row of clothes hooks in the wall on a level with the top of the door, or thereabouts. The caller, who may have ridden a dozen miles over a dusty road, and whose hair and clothing are gray with dust and awry from the wind, must either sit with this disordered toilet through the brief call, or ask for whisk broom, hair brush, and a more suitable place to use them than the parlor. If possible, therefore, the hall should be large enough to hold hat rack, umbrella stand, mirror, whisk broom, and hair brush. If no better can be done put up two shelves upon iron or wooden brackets—fair iron brackets are but ten cents a pair—with a looking-glass between, the last as large as can be afforded.

The shelves may be finished with stain, or bronzed, or may be covered with a linen scarf, fringed and embroidered. (See Fig. 1.) The upper shelf will accommodate those humanly obstinate hats which will not hang when hung up. The lower may have vases with flowers, a pin-cushion, etc. The hooks underneath are for the use of the juveniles, and none should be put so high as to render a jump or spring necessary in order to reach them. A simple umbrella or hat stand, like the one shown in Fig. 2, is easily made, and useful to hang overcoats on as well as hats. It consists of three bamboo-rods, or broom sticks, or failing these, small trees or straight limbs, put together as shown, and ebonized. This is easily done with "diamond dye," black. If there are knobs where twigs and small limbs have been cut off, they but serve to add to its rustic beauty when ebonized and varnished. Tie firmly in the middle, and put a strong ribbon or small rope (which may be bronzed) through staples to hold the top well together. The tray at the bottom is a shallow wooden butter bowl with staples put through screw eyes in the bowl, to fasten it to the standards. This catches any drip from a wet umbrella, and also holds a muddy pair of overshoes or sandals if wished.—Orange Judd Farmer.

YOUR VACATION.

This Means You, Good Mothers and Housewives.

Mrs. Housewife, have you begun to make preparations for your summer vacation? Haven't given the subject a thought! Well, then, it is time you were beginning to think about it. Don't say that you can not afford to take a vacation; you would not say so if you looked at it right, for the truth is, you can not afford to go without one. You believe that it is necessary for a child to have a rest from school; you believe that the pastor should have a vacation, and that the business man is blind and foolish who does not give himself a rest. You know that the plants and fields must have a rest, or they soon become useless, and you are not so foolish as to believe that you are so very different from the rest of the world that you can continue year after year in doing the most trying sort of work, without a rest, and not have your efforts more or less a failure.

There are so many inexpensive ways of spending a vacation that there are few who need to plead poverty as an excuse for not taking one. When you get at the root of the matter you will find that the real reason why the housewife gives herself no rest is because she imagines that her little world would speedily go to rack and ruin if she did not give it her constant personal supervision. It would be a good plan for her to do as the little girl in the story did—"play she is dead" for a week or two. Things will go on when she dies very much as they do now, and when that fact is realized the vacation problem becomes much less difficult.

It will do the children good to spend part of the vacation in doing the housework. Shut up all the rooms except those most needed, and let the family live on bread and milk for a week if need be, while you go home to mother, or if you have no mother, go to the neighboring town and board for a week. Ten chances to one you will get awfully tired of it, and when the week is up you will feel like a child who rejoices that the dreaded punishment is over, and be very glad to go back to your work again. Now don't say that such a feeling is convincing proof that the vacation has done you no good. The flowers might say the same thing of the frost which gives them rest, and with as much truth.

The mother whose daughter is less than twelve can not so easily take a vacation, yet she may rest a little if she will. One such woman pitched a tent beneath some trees in the yard, and swung hammocks under it; then closed the house, all but the kitchen, and for two weeks spent her time in the tent. She thus saved sweeping and bed-making, and picking up things after the children and entertaining guests. The children were delighted with the arrangement and required much less attention than usual. She dressed them in outing suits made for the occasion which were easily washed and required no ironing. Living in that way she cared less about appearances and had a good, lazy time lying in the hammock for hours with little to do but read. The out-door life made them all so hungry that bread, butter, radishes, milk and fruit were all they cared for, and the task of cooking was simplified by more than one-half. There was a little fruit to can during the time, and the milk to care for as usual, but such necessary tasks were done during the cooler hours of the day.—The Housekeeper.

To Preserve the Complexion in Summer.

The young lady who wants to look as pretty as possible during hot weather, must endeavor to keep cool. She must not have a hasty temper, for anger makes a red face. Second, she must eat nothing indigestible, for nothing makes the face red and the nose red so quickly as a bad diet. She should especially avoid flesh foods, which are heating to the blood. Her diet should be grains and cooling fruits, together with milk, in rather small quantities. If the diet is good, the temper cool and the nerves quiet, she will not be troubled with a red face and coarse looking skin. Aside from this, much can be done by frequent bathing in cool water, not only the face, but the whole body. If there is a little irritation of the skin, due to erythema, it does no harm to apply a little starch powder or powdered arrowroot to the surface and it will often prove quite soothing. But the young lady who wants to preserve a fine complexion must never use any form of face powder which contains lead or arsenic.—J. H. Kellogg, M. D.

Pretty Design for Tidy.

This tidy is prettily adapted to the popular, low willow rocker whose braces are arranged by the artisan so as to form an umbel in two sections, which of course makes convenience for fastening the tidy. Make a flexible arch to fit the top of the chair, upon which stitch 13 rays of picot edge ribbon in any design or scale one fancies; the orange scale is pretty. The center ribbon is the pure color. Leave the ends long enough to loop and fasten securely to the arch. Unite the several lower ends. The exactness of the parallel can be obtained by proper attention given to sewing of the strips upon the arch, across which stitch a border of pretty lace continuing around the sides; tie the corners to the braces of willow or bamboo with a ribbon that matches with, or is complementary to the center ray. For a very dainty decoration use 11 rays, if they fall between the slender braces they look airy and summery. If wire is used for the arch and wound with footing or other thin stuff, the graceful neglige of the top loops conceals it effectually.

RIBBON TIDY.

Treatment of Persons Overcome by Gas.

In regard to the treatment of persons overcome with gas several suggestions were made by different speakers at the recent meeting of the American Gaslight Association at Toronto. The most practical were those quoted on the authority of a prominent physician:

1. Take the man at once into the fresh air. Don't crowd around him.
2. Keep him on his back. Don't raise his head or turn him on his side.
3. Loosen his clothing at his neck.
4. Give a little brandy and water, not more than four tablespoonfuls of brandy. Give the ammonia mixture (one part in all, aromatic ammonia to sixteen parts water) in small quantities at short intervals, a teaspoonful every two or three minutes.
5. Slap the face and chest with the wet end of a towel.
6. Apply warmth and friction if the body or limbs are cold.
7. If the breathing is feeble or irregular, artificial respiration should be used and kept up until there is no doubt that it can no longer be of use.
8. Administer oxygen.

Treatment of Burns.

The best thing to do, writes Dr. J. H. Kellogg, of the Michigan Sanitarium, whether the burn is large or small, is to submerge it in water, which will keep the air away from it and alleviate the smarting; then as soon as possible apply a paste made of carbonate of soda and water. Spread it on the burned surface, cover with cloths and keep saturated with water. This mode of treatment destroys the pain, expedites recovery and prevents blistering. There is no better remedy known. If it is applied promptly and properly, the skin will form a hard, dry covering over the burn and no blistering will occur. If a blister is formed, it should be carefully punctured to let the water out and let the skin down upon the raw surface. If a burn is treated antiseptically—and this manner of treatment is antiseptic—there will be no suppuration. The dressing need not be changed, but more of the carbonate of soda may be added if washed away by the application of water. The less the dressing is moved the better.

How to Treat Cramp in the Leg.

If taken with a cramp in the foot or leg, seize the part firmly and hold it for a minute or two in a tight grasp. A muscle can not cramp without shortening, and if it is thus held down it can not shorten. A gentleman troubled with cramps in his legs to whom I gave this prescription made an improvement on it by providing himself with a leather strap and buckle, and when he felt a cramp coming on he would buckle the strap tightly around his leg and thus relieve himself of the difficulty.—Dr. Kellogg.

A CLEVER TRICK.

How To Make a Ball Out of a Pocket Handkerchief.

It is not, I think, very "generally known" how respectable a ball for many purposes can be in a few minutes extemporized out of an ordinary handkerchief. The trick is, however, well worth knowing, inasmuch as we can therewith perplex our friends as to how it was done, as also submit the result to them as a puzzle, it being difficult or

FIG. 1.

(if it has been thoroughly done) impossible to undo it except by one particular method.

As the first part of the process, fold your handkerchief as in Fig. 1; next fold the points A, B, C, D, inwards again to the center, and continue this process as long as it is possible; finally hold the handkerchief thus folded in the left hand, keeping down the folds in the center with the thumb.

Next with the thumb and forefinger of the right hand pluck at the skin of the roll you have now made till you have separated the skin from the contents, and draw the skin toward you and toward the center, as shown in Fig. 2, pushing the contents away from you with the thumb of the left hand.

Pluck the skin again at a point a little further away from you than at first, and again draw the skin and push the contents as before. Continue this process, turning the roll round in your left hand till the handkerchief begins to form a sort of whirlpool, in which the thumb of the left hand is engulfed.

It is now easier to complete the work by making each successive plucking nearer to you instead of further off, though of course the drawing with the right hand and the pushing with the left must be in the same direction as before.

It will be necessary, also, at intervals, to knead it a little between the hand in order to equally distribute the contents throughout the ball.

Continuing in this manner, you will finally arrive at a very hard ball (Fig. 3), c with its skin quite tight and its wrinkles all firmly fixed in the little center of the whirlpool.

It now ought to be impossible to undo it again except by reversing the process—that is, by plucking the skin away from the contents and pushing from you instead of toward you with the right-hand fore-finger and thumb, while pushing the contents toward you with the fingers of the left hand.

Large sheets and even blankets and counterpanes can be rolled up in the same way; and I have heard a story of a visitor at a hotel who, considering himself badly treated, rolled up all his bedclothes before his departure so tightly that they could not be undone, by way of revenge.

The result, however, falsified his expectations, for the landlord, by displaying these curiosities and charging a small sum on each attempt to undo them, realized considerable on the transaction.—Golden Days.

Elevator Sickness.

The elevator in modern big buildings has only one drawback—the sickness it causes when the car is suddenly stopped. To people of a delicate constitution this sickness is often such a serious matter that to them the elevator is a dangerous blessing. This sickness, says a contemporary, can be avoided by observing simple physical laws. Elevator sickness is caused by the same law that throws a person to the ground when he gets off a moving car in the wrong way. The stoppage of the elevator car brings a dizziness to the head and sometimes a nausea at the stomach. The internal organs seem to want to rise into the throat. All this comes from the fact that all parts of the body are not stopped at the same moment of time. The feet being next to the car floor stop with the car, while other portions of the body continue moving. If the body as a whole can be arrested at the same time with the feet, there will be no sickness. This can be done by placing the head and shoulders against the car frame. Then there will be no sickness, and, according to the Scientific Press, it is a sure preventive.

ROBBING THE MAILS.

How Clerks Guilty of the Heinous Crime Are Caught.

An Interesting Talk with Post-Office Inspector James Stewart—How a Hardened Thief Was Set to Catch Himself—Clever Detective Work.

"Robbing the mails is not usually a productive or highly successful way of filling one's pockets with other people's money," said Post-Office Inspector James Stewart to a Chicago Inter Ocean reporter. "You see, every possible safeguard is thrown around all valuable mail, and it is usually rather easy to locate the thief before any serious damage is done. The delay or deviation of a registered letter is almost immediately noted. Every man who handles the registered letters is cautious to see that they are all right as to condition and number, and so each man has a check before and behind him. However, occasionally the registered letter thief succeeds in giving us a good deal of trouble.

"One case that I remember, and with some pardonable pride, I will tell you about. There was a long star route clear to the Pacific coast. Every now and then registered letters would be received at both ends, the contents of which had been abstracted and the letter gummed together again. All the ordinary checks failed to locate, even remotely, the culprit, so I sent out a special to go over the route from end to end. He went and he returned without having discovered any thing. I sent out another and another, with the same lack of result. It was costing the Government many hundreds of dollars and the stealing still continued. What was most annoying was that the thefts continued just the same while the specials were out trying to discoverowho was doing it. The thief was expert. He knew how to steam or otherwise open the envelopes. He could then abstract any cash or convertible securities, and regum the envelopes, and there was nothing about their outward appearance to indicate that they had been tampered with. The fellow annoyed me, and I made up my mind to find him out.

"So I started out over the line myself. I gave it out that it was just a friendly sort of a visit I wished to make in order to become familiar with the various offices and their needs, and have a sort of little pleasure trip. I visited every office in a casual sort of way, would not examine any thing, and said I didn't want to be bothered with business on a pleasure trip. I chatted with the men, smoked, and had a good time, and went on. Thus I went over the whole line, and came back here satisfied. I said: 'The very first letter that fellow robs bring it to me and I will nab him.' 'Who is he?' I was asked. 'I don't know, but he will tell me, just as sure as he robs another letter,' I replied. I guess it was all of two weeks before word came to me that he had robbed several letters. 'Bring them here,' said I. They were brought, I lifted the flap of the envelope and touched the gum to my tongue. I had him. I sent officers at once to a certain station and caught the thief.

"How did the gum help me? I will tell you. The open letters were just like the untouched letters except in one particular—they were regummed with mucilage. Now when I stopped at each office I made myself at home, and presently would ask permission to use the postmaster's desk to write a letter home or some such thing. When the opportunity offered I would dose the mucilage bottle with some recognizable flavor. A note in my note book opposite each office told what was the flavor of the mucilage. The gum used to reseal the robbed envelopes was well dosed with quinine. A look in my note book at once showed what office that mucilage was in. It wasn't such a very bad idea that, to set a thief to catch himself; now, was it?"

It was at once admitted that it was an exceedingly clever ruse. The Inspector was asked: "But sometimes considerable sums are got away with, are they not?"

"Not often. A very little thing will locate the thief. Take the John Moore case some years ago. The stolen parcel was of $5,000 in bills. The thief unsealed the parcel, untied the string, substituted paper cut of the size of the bills and tied and sealed it again. Three months after I detected the thief. How? I put $5,000 in bills in the rifled package, tied the string and sealed it, and found at once that the string was loose. Now, all such strings are tied tightly, and string won't stretch. Besides, any clerk receiving the parcel with a loose string would at once note 'In bad condition' opposite the parcel number. No clerk had done this, so I at once said that the last man who handled the package was the thief. So it proved. He was arrested and the money recovered, part of it from the coat-tail pocket of a Chicago pawnbroker. And so I say that the way of the mail robber is usually a hard and rocky way. Sooner or later he is surely nabbed."

What Queen Victoria Drinks.

Some remarkable information about the favorite beverage of European sovereigns has been published by an American journal. The Queen is described as preferring "the old-fashioned wines," port and sherry, and she is fond of hock and tokay. Formerly the Queen drank champagne and claret, and she never cared for either port or sherry. It was the Prince Consort who liked tokay so much, and he invariably drank a bumper of it after dinner, regarding it, and very likely, as a liqueur. Of late years the Queen, by advice of Sir William Jenner, has taken Apollinaris water and Scotch whisky, and even when she drinks a glass of claret it is often mixed with Apollinaris. The distillery of Lochnager, from which the Queen obtains her whisky, is on the Balmoral estate. There is a large cellar of wine at Windsor, containing a great quantity of fine old port and claret, and some wonderful Cabinet Rhine wines of the great vintages.
